PIC TALENT LOOTING LOOMS

New York, June 30.—With male stars flocking to join the Army, the question now being discussed by major company heads is whether looting, pooling or trading talent will be the method adopted to offset the shortage of leading men.

Seriousness of situation facing studios is highlighted by fact that Clark Gable's application for an Army Air Corps commission is now under con-

No One Wants to Buy Ziegfeld Theatre

New York, June 30. — Ziegfeld theatre, originally one of the touted legit houses in New York, is for sale —with no takers, despite a low asking price.

Theatre was built by Florenz Ziegfeld and opened in 1927 with 'Rio Rita'. Other top musicals, including 'Show Boat', followed, but in recent years the house has been operating as a Loew second-run. Possible deal, now under discussion, would turn it into a radio theatre.

Film Row Army-Navy Take $2,332.42

Film row collections for the Army-Navy Relief Fund drive totalled $2,332.42, according to final official figures released by M. R. 'Duke' Clark, chairman of the committee, in letters to exchange managers along the row.

Employes of exchanges, supply houses, delivery services, etc., donated one day's salary each for the fund.

Jolson's Overseas Task

New York, June 30.—Al Jolson will entertain overseas forces of the United States Army and Navy — though where and when is a military secret. Jolson turned down a summer commercial program to do it, and may refuse any and all other offers as long as he can entertain the boys.

Hal Wallis Returns

Hal B. Wallis trained in from Washington yesterday after conferences with Army and air command officials on his forthcoming production for Warners, 'Air Force'. He would say nothing regarding probability that he is to receive a major's commission in the Army Air Corps.

RKO Sales Nat. Meet In NY July 27-29

New York, June 30.—RKO will hold its national sales convention here July 27-29, when it is expected that a shortened program for the 1942-43 season will be announced. According to inside reports, the company may cut the year's output to 30 pictures or thereabouts.

All district managers, branch managers and home office travelling representatives will be brought on for the sales confabs to augment the various execs of the department of distribution.

Dupont May Sponsor Screen Guild Airer

New York, June 30.—DuPont is considering sponsoring the Screen Guild program as replacement for 'Cavalcade of America'. Latter is sponsored by DuPont currently over NBC on Monday nights.

Huddles aiming for pickup of the Screen Guild show by DuPont have already been held between Jean Hersholt, DuPont execs, Walter Johnson of MCA and BBDO officials. Shows overall cost is $13,500 per broadcast.

Busy Month For Rep

Republic will toss seven into production during July. In order they are 'Bells of Capistrano' and 'Shadows On the Sage', July 6; 'Sunset Serenade,' July 11; 'X Marks the Spot,' July 15; 'Shantytown' and 'Ice Capades Revue,' and 'Pride of the Commandos' on July 27.

Boyer-Robinson Co-Star

Charles Boyer will co-star with Edward G. Robinson in Universal's 'Flesh and Fantasy,' in addition to co-producing with Julien Duvivier. Robinson was signed yesterday. Duvivier also will direct. Start is aimed for late this month.

New York, June 30.—Figuring the advance window and mail sales for 'This Is the Army', Irving Berlin's all-soldier musical is already virtually set to remain at least two weeks beyond the originally planned four-week engagement at the Broadway theatre, where it opens Saturday. Scale is $27.50 top. Besides the probable lengthy New York run, show is almost certain to have a road tour. It is now figured for a profit of $200,000 for the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

'Information' To Be 3 Hr. Theatre Show

New York, June 30.—'Information Please' will become the basis for a three hour minstrel-vaudeville show at the Capitol theatre next October. Billed as 'Information Please Jamboree' by creator-producer Dan Golenpaul, it will be used as a promotion stunt for the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

Besides the regular trio of John Kiernan, Franklin P. Adams and Oscar Levant — a special panel of comics, actors, musicians and sports figures will demonstrate their prowess at answering questions. The show will not be broadcast.

Army Bans Publicizing Troop Camps, Bases

Washington, June 30.—The Army has issued orders that henceforth names or positions of army camps or locations must not be used in publicity of any kind. All film companies have received such instructions. No reason has been given, but it is figured the reason is that information about number of soldiers attending shows, recreational events, etc., may have revealed distribution of troops.

Acting Easier Job

RELIEF FUND BUILDS HOME; AMASSES $795,875 BONDS

Following the reelection of Prexy Jean Hersholt and other officers of the Motion Picture Relief Fund last night, Treasurer George Bagnall reported the Motion Picture Country House in Woodland Hills is being completed without having to dispose of the Fund's $795,875 in Treasury Bonds and interest. He said the bonds will produce an income of $21,000 annually, and that a savings of $15,000 to $25,000 per year will be effected through operation of the clinic under construction at the home.

Bagnall reported that at the end

Skouras Party Leaves New York Tomorrow

Spyros P. Skouras, 20th-Fox prexy, Tom Connors, vice-president in charge of distribution, and L. L. Lawrence, head of company's foreign department, plane out of New York tomorrow morning for the Coast to start studio meetings Friday with Colonel Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz on product and other matters. Trio will be here for a week or 10 days. Hal Horne, director of advertising and publicity will probably come to the Coast later next week, having been held over in the east.

Entertainment For AEF Will Bring U. S. Talent

Washington, June 30.—Entertainers will follow the Army wherever it goes to meet the requirements of a global war. This decision means that eventually the U. S. overseas forces will be entertained by shows direct from America—travelling under USO auspices. Extent of the program will be limited to available space on transports, it was pointed out.

Test Runs Success

New York, June 30.—All seven pre-release test engagements of Walter Wanger's 'Eagle Squadron' are holding over for indefinite runs, Universal sales department announced today. Pictures opened last week at advanced prices in Baltimore, Buffalo, Harrisburg, Chicago, Dayton, San Francisco and San Antonio.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

CONSERVATION-MINDED front offices are beginning to prove a tough nut to crack for producers and directors with a past reputation, justified or not, for wasting film footage in turning out their assignments. With Hollywood making definite economies in raw stock and other materials, it is expected future jobs will be even more scarce for those classed as wasters. Ban may duck a few of the high-priced producers or directors because of the box office returns shown despite waste, but on the smaller-budgeted films which have a return that can be calculated almost accurately prior to shooting, economies will be stricter. An example in the latter field is a director who has always turned out better than average features for the type of production assigned him, but to do it always managed more than the usual number of takes and ran over schedule. Recently finishing a term contract at a major plant, director was up at same lot for a free lance chore but met with a nix by the front office due to past record.

UNITED Artists, checking records of Bill Cagney as a boxoffice producer and Jimmy Cagney as top-draw star for sales ammunition, dug up info that has everyone humming 'Happy Days Are Here Again.' UA figures it is impossible for Cagney duo to make anything grossing under $1,600,000. 'Angels with Dirty Faces,' prepared by Bill, at Grand National and turned over to Warners when Cagneys ended their feud with the Burbank lot in '38, clicked for $2,500,000. 'City for Conquest,' produced by Bill, starring Jimmy, coined $1,800,000. Brother combo scored $2,000,000 on 'Strawberry Blonde,' ditto on 'Bride Came C.O.D.' then topped both with 'Captains of the Clouds,' $2,500,000 to date. With 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' estimated at $10,000,000, Cagney brothers can claim nearly $21,000,000 on six pictures.

PRODUCER handling smaller-budgeted features at a major studio recently had a trying experience with a writer given to big words. After listening awhile to the $10-phrase being thrown around by scribbler concerning a story, Producer told him to use plain English as he didn't have time to run to the research department to find out what the writer was trying to say to him. Interview ended abruptly when writer complained about changes wanted that would cheapen production. Producer replied that 'this studio pays me a big weekly salary NOT to produce a "Gone With the Wind".'

FIVE reels of the War Heroes Day celebration in Los Angeles Sunday were shot by Movietone newsreel cameramen for Fox West Coast theatres. President Charles P. Skouras, who was coordinator for the entire affair, will have the footage edited down under 2,000 feet, and show it as a patriotic subject in all F-WC houses of southern California. Cameramen caught highlights of the day, including arrival at Lockheed Airport, the afternoon parade and Coliseum activities, and shots of the heroes at the banquet and ball held in the Cocoanut Grove of the Ambassador in the evening.

IT'S tough going financially for some of the Producers Releasing Company producers who get $1,000 for their services on a film and must then wait for profit shares long period after film releases. Martin Mooney who produced 'Mr. Celebrity' and 'Men of San Quentin' in association with others was in need of coin recently. He broached Herman Fromkiss, PRC local head and after long dealing and bickering got the generous sum of $375 to waive profit interest in the two films.

When Boy met Girl in a studio
The flacks rejoiced and yelled:
'What ho!
Let's frame a studio love affair
And peddle the story here and there
To charm the hicks in the fields of hay
And plug a romantic picture play.

So the Boy and Girl went out to dance
As part of the studio romance
And thought so well of the studio plot
They hopped to Yuma and tied the knot.
Which goes to show that flacks are stupid
To monkey around with old Dan Cupid.

The Magnificent Ambersons

(Drama)

RKO release of an Orson Welles production. Cast: Joseph Cotten, Dolores Costello, Anne Baxter, Tim Holt, Agnes Moorehead, Ray Collins, Erskine Sanford, Richard Bennett, Don Dillaway. Directed by Orson Welles. Screen play by Orson Welles, From the novel by Booth Tarkington. Music composed and conducted by Bernard Herrmann. Photography, Stanley Cortez. Special effects, Vernon L. Walker. Art director, Mark-Lee Kirk. Set decorations, Al Fields. Costumes, Edward Stevenson. Film editor, Robert Wise. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, June 30, 1942. Running time: 88 MINS.

Booth Tarkington's ironic tale of suburban American magnificence of a family which lost most of its humanities under pressure of wealth and showy splendor, comes to the screen as biting, impressive drama with strong imprint of Orson Welles in the scripting and directing. Artistic magnificence matches theme and title. The playing imparts the storied passions strongly to the audience. The picture's power to enthrall will be unquestioned. Only question relative to box office is the sombre nature of the drama, done with honest directness and penetration in the study of the unhappy family. 'The Magnificent Ambersons' therefore will require astute selling to promote it as mass entertainment.

In the Tarkington-Welles narrative, the hard-working elder generations of 'Ambersons' have hatched a pampered drone as the last family scion, Tim Holt. The boy is more than a spoiled brat. He is inbred with all the futile, unsocial, arrogant attitude and behavior of ambitious American working folk who attempted to ape the old continental aristocracies, alias 'society.' The result is a terrible confusion of spirit which threatens every member of the family with tragedy. This warp of character, so glaring in the son, but also in all the relatives to some degree, Orson Welles understands to the fullest possibilities of dramatic statement. He gets from his players the most eloquent performances. The narrative flows smoothly from its early phases of raucus family fights and feverish excitements to deeper channels of tragic trouble. The automobile, from its crude beginnings to quantity production, is an effective device to give background color to the period and to indicate the passing of time. It also is used for the comedy which runs leanly through the story. A great 'character' in the tale is the house in which the Amberson's dwell — a three-storied thing of rococo elegance which has grown like a shell around the outlines of the family; and which is used effectively both in the direction and by the cameras of Stanley Cortez.

Joseph Cotten soundly characterizes the suitor who, because of a tipsy moment at a grand house party, muffs marrying Dolores Costello, mother of the son upon whom the drama focuses. The father of Tim Holt dies early in the story. The love between Cotten and the widow blooms anew. They are minded to marry, but the snobbish son, accounting Cotten beneath his mother social-sideration in Washington, while Robert Taylor, Fred Astaire, Bing Crosby and others have put in bids for spots where they can be useful.

Industry admittedly is confronted with the most serious threat in its history to continued successful production. Because of the exodus of manpower into the armed forces, some producers may be obliged to readjust their production sights for next season.

It is believed possible that some stars in active service, unless stationed abroad in combat zones, may be given furloughs by the Government, once the seriousness of the problem is recognized in official circles, as has been done in the case of numerous English players.

One important producer told Variety that 'we'll loot talent if the others won't agree to pool it. We've been remarkably successful at looting before, and we can do it again.'

Meanwhile, Gable is in Hollywood awaiting Air Corps decision on his application. Bids for commissions from actors, directors and other civilian notables are being carefully weighed in the War Department, since indiscriminate appointments, even on morale values, might create widespread criticism.

Gable is realistic about the matter, however, and wants a spot where he can be useful, not ornamental. Same idea is said to motivate Crosby, Taylor, Astaire and others.

Indies Put $12,500 Week in Bonds

Independent studios are subscribing approximately $12,500 weekly through payroll savings and cash sales to the purchase of War Bonds, it was announced yesterday by Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the film industry campaign committee. The indie group under leadership of Sol Lesser is buying $9,876 weekly on the payroll savings plan, while weekly cash sales average $2,579.

General Service is the first of the indies to exceed the mark of 10% of payroll, its record being 11.3%, with Hal Roach showing 9.75%, and Samuel Goldwyn 8% of payroll. Other indies who are part of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood are Walt Disney, David O. Selznick, Principal Artists, Edward Small, Leon Schlesinger and Larry Darmour.

Distribs Ask U. S. Aid To Get English Coin

New York, June 30.—American distributors have had little success in unfreezing film coin being held in Great Britain by the Government there. Appeal is now being transmitted by them through the State Department in Washington to get the British to loosen their hold on the American currency which is said to aggregate around $52,000,000. The American distribs feel that this try by the State department may get them if not all, most of the impounded money.

Drop Remote Pickups Eases Shortage Of Air Technicians

Slowing up of remote pickups of name radio shows touring camps, etc., has eased the paucity of radio technicians, it's reported, and nets do not expect to feel too great a pinch of manpower until Fall when normal radio boom resumes.

Though all have been depleted, the shortage of technicians and soundmen has not been too greatly felt, it's said, because of the summer layoff. And though time still has to be filled with something and demands technical coverage, it's not the calibre of help needed for big-time commercials, many of which have made shortage more acutely felt by tieing up favorites for a week for just one broadcast while on tour. Come Fall, that system will be ash-canned, with stars taking what they can get from nearby stations of net affiliates, if touring.

Stealing of help from lesser stations is no longer a solution, either, since all have been hit by martial attraction and commissions, plus the draft. Fall and further exodus is expected to make the situation more acute.

Three Air Shows Set By Victory Group

Three radio shows headlined activities of the Hollywood Victory Committee yesterday and another hits the air today. He thanked the Gulf Oil Co. for its cooperation the past four years, and also Y. Frank Freeman and A. H. Blank for the Sidney Kent Memorial Clinic. He said the dedication ceremonies for the Home would be held in September.

Executive Secretary Wilma Bashor reported the Fund now has 6,671 regular contributors who give one-half of one per cent of their salaries in addition to substantial amounts contributed directly by allied organizations. She said a total of 1,843 individual families were aided in 1941, some for short periods, others throughout the year. She detailed many individual cases and showed how many workers had been rehabilitated by being placed in other industries where they were able to earn a living.

Ralph Morgan reported for the Fund's Executive Committee, and Jack Natteford for the case committee. Albert Critz explained progress of construction at the Country House.

Officers of the Fund in addition to Prexy Jean Hersholt are Mary McCall, Jr., Ralph Morgan, Walter Wanger, Lucile Gleason, first, second, third and fourth vice-presidents; George Bagnall, treasurer; Wilma Bashor, secretary. Trustees are Francis Faragoh, Richard Wallace, Jack Cooper, Sidney Buchman, Dudley Nichols, Thomas Mitchell, Ralph Block, Y. Frank Freeman, Bernard Vorhaus, Charles Bickford.

CALL SERVICE FOR RADIO AND STUDIO ARTISTS

Obituary

WILLIAM LAIRD

Funeral services for William Laird, 47, Hollywood business manager for film players, will be held at 2 p.m. today in the chapel of Reed Bros., Tapley & Geiger mortuary. Burial follows at Forest Lawn mausoleum. Laird died Saturday at the Hollywood hospital of a heart ailment. He was a World War veteran and is survived by his wife, Mrs. Roselle Laird, of 11157 Sarah street, North Hollywood, and four daughters.

MRS. WILLIAM YOUNG

Mrs. William Young, 40, known on the stage as Frances Jean Robertson, died in Milwaukee Monday. On the stage for eight years, Mrs. Young toured the country in 1933 and 1934 with the Oscar O'Shea Players.

Eddy's $4,000 Radio Just Tax Money

New York, June 30.—Nelson Eddy receives $4,000 weekly from Old Gold program but retains none of it. At the outset he offered it all to the government. But that meant he would have to pay taxes on it also. So now he donates all not paid in taxes to government.

Chang Hired by CBS

CBS has signed Dr. H. H. Chang, Chinese commentator, exclusively for 13 weeks through the National Concert Artists Corp., it was revealed yesterday. Chang started new regional series last night at 5:45 p. m. Dispute over Chang when KFWB claimed his services, and threatened to recall Chang if he was not sold commercially in two weeks, has been settled according to CBS officials who demanded 13 weeks assurance before concluding deal.

Latest Coast Network Without Sustainers Until September

Though lines are permanently installed, revived California Radio System will not start interchange of any but commercial broadcasts until September. When started, KMPC, Beverhills; KFBK, Sacramento, and KSFO, Frisco, key stations in major markets, will supply all net sustainers.

KMPC's musicians union difficulty remains at an impasse. Men walked last week when Bob Reynolds, manager, failed to meet union's demands for increases in salaries from $40 to $55 weekly and refused to add four men to staff of six. Union asked increases in view of upped power and network prospects. Reynolds says demands would double yearly music bill, but adds that his counter proposal included pay and staff increases, though he would not reveal figures.

Despite Petrillo Order Capitol Records Tunes

Following letter yesterday from James C. Petrillo, musicians union head, which stated that after July 31 their license for employment of AFM musicians would be terminated, Capitol Records, new B. G. De Sylva-Johnny Mercer firm, announced July 16 as release date for their second issues. Bobby Sherwood, Paul Whiteman, Paramount's Johnnie Johnston, and Tex Ritter will be featured in forthcoming discs. Capitol's first batch was released Monday, the day on which Petrillo's tense order was received without further explanation. Deals are also on for Bob Hope and Fred MacMurray.

No Dixon Successor; Will Divide Work

Sidney Strotz, NBC v-p, will not appoint a successor to recently deceased Sydney Dixon, former national spot sales representative who died of a heart attack at Rainier Park, Washington, last week while attending Pacific Ad Convention. His duties will be split between Norman Noyes, Dixon's assistant and Tom Ray, of NBC Frisco office. Vacancy left when Bob McAndrews, sales promotion manager left for Navy lieutenancy, will be filled in a few days. Strotz is considering several agency and local radio men for the job.

Sketch Artists Move In With Designers

Plans for merger of the studio sketch artists with Screen Set Designers were mapped out Monday night at a conference between representatives of the two groups. Les Thomas handled details for the sketch artists, with Prexy Joseph Sternad representing the Designers. Demands for an immediate wage deal covering sketch artists will be made as soon as the merger is completed. The artists have been negotiating with Producers for several months, but were able to make little headway.

KLO Dropped by CBS

CBS dropping KLO, Ogden, Utah, as an affiliated station after August 1 due to complications over station's other tieup with Mutual and inability of CBS to clear time when wanted. KUTA, Salt Lake, already a CBS member, will cover for the dropped station, having recently upper power from 1,000 watts to 5,000.

Casual Film Workers Warned To Register Or Lose Jobs

Final warning was issued last night that the Central Identification Bureau for casual workers in the film industry will be closed at 6 p.m. July 8. With only a week remaining it was stated that fewer than half of the estimated 12,000 in this classification have registered, despite the knowledge that failure may result in denial of employment in the studios.

The number of applicants has been unusually heavy the past few days, but the turnout is still far below the average necessary to register all workers. The citizenship census is being conducted by the Producers Association in cooperation with the various studio guilds and unions. Each worker qualified will be given an identification card bearing his or her photograph and fingerprints. This card must be displayed in order to gain admission to a studio.

All workers not regularly employed by a studio are affected. This includes extras, carpenters, laborers, etc., who may work occasionally on calls. Regular workers are being registered at the studio where they are employed.

Montez Dilemma

Maria Montez, Universal's sarongess, walked into one of those old fashioned clap-board scene markers during a silent picture test and was painfully nipped. Actress had hospital checkup on bruise and is threatening action.

KIDS FREE IN F-WC HOUSES IF THEY BRING RUBBER

To provide impetus to the lagging rubber collection drive, Charles P. Skouras, president of the Fox West Coast circuit, has lined up morning kid matinees for practically every house of F-WC in the southern California district. Shows will be staggered in each community and district for the next two weeks, with admission only for donation of at least one pound of rubber material.

All theatre help, including operators, cashiers, porters, managers, etc., are donating their services in each house; circuit is providing lights and power; all film exchanges are donating pictures for the matinees; and film delivery services ship the programs gratis.

About 60 circuit houses launch the plan today, with programs consisting of pictures suitable for kids and including cartoons, shorts and action features — and all old releases that have previously played through the theatres. Skouras asked for the out-of-circulation prints to prevent any chance of hurting business of subsequent run houses in each zone if current pictures at F-WC houses were used on programs.

If the Skouras plan, which anticipates the collection of at least 100 tons of rubber in southern California, is successful; it is expected that he will immediately launch the idea for the northern California division of F-WC, in addition to all other affiliated circuits of National Theatres throughout the country.

Fred Stein and his staff of F-WC bookers have been busy for the past two days dating the rubber matinee pictures, while Ryllis Hemington, circuit's public relations contact with the PTA and schools, has generated cooperation for maximum effort in each community to get the kids digging up the rubber.

OCD Urges LA Theatre Defense Plan For National Use

Los Angeles theatres are now as well equipped for War emergencies as those of London, film industry tops announced yesterday. Simultaneously, it was stated that Director Dean James Landis of the Office of Civilian Defense, has recommended to Washington that the LA Theatre Defense Bureau plan be adopted nationally. It was said the plan has proved so practical that it has already been adopted by many theatre circuits as well as companies with a large number of chain stores and branch organizations.

Officials said that more than 2,000 theatre employes have been trained in Red Cross first aid. Extra fire equipment has been installed and its emergency use worked out with the police and fire departments. 'Battalions of Safety' have been organized for children's matinees and the children have been rehearsed in drills.

It was explained the city has been divided into 36 theatre zones, each with a captain and from three to five lieutenants. These zone officers make regular inspections. Special telephone hookups have been made with air raid headquarters. Theatre managers are instructed in methods of handling emergencies, building public morale and certificates of merit are issued to theatres fulfilling all safety requirements.

In the meantime a continuing program of educating the public by the screen as to what it should do in emergencies is under way.

Cagney May Direct Besides Acting

James Cagney will likely make his debut as a director on at least one of the pictures he and William Cagney will produce for United Artists. If idea under consideration goes through Cagney will not appear in the film, but will use another star name.

To date William Cagney has not closed for any of several story properties he is reading for possible production, but is making every effort to be ready to put unit's initial UA picture into work around August. Cagney brothers are also not considering any outside offers for the acting end of the partnership at this time.

J. C. Flinn In Town

Lum 'n' Abner, Quinn Get Variety Scroll For War Shows

Variety's special war time radio showmanship survey of Net Work sponsored programs brought scrolls of honor from the publication to Chester Lauk and Norris Goff, 'Lum and Abner,' and Don Quinn, and staff writers of the 'Fibber Magee and Molly' scripts on the coast.

Awards in the survey will be announced in Variety (July 1) today issue and were determined on a survey made by its radio editor, Robert J. Landry, based on the war messages used on the two programs as suggested by The Office of Facts and Figures in Washington.

The awards were presented to Lauk and Goff and Quinn at the Variety office here last night.

Roach Gets Army Call; May Be Detailed Here

Hal Roach's status with respect to Army service will be decided this week. Roach holds reserve commission in Signal Corps for 15 years as Major. He was ordered to report for duty at Astoria on July 25. Conferences being held here with Col. J. T. Schlosberg, whereby Roach can probably devote his time here to Army duties, so that operations of his studio will continue with him in charge.

Roach went into reserves at time he submitted plan for photograph record of war, with respect to personnel, equipment, etc., which, however, as yet has not been attempted by Signal Corps. Should Roach be inducted he will probably have rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Vallee Visits General Cousins at Santa Ana

having a Guild agreement. Agents also would be notified not to book them for luncheons or other engagements until they were reinstated. Despite the recent national reorganization of AGVA, this minority group is reported to be continuing its agitation for changes and policies desired exclusively by them.

The Local also disclosed that it has collected approximately $2,000 for members in claims and adjustments during the past six weeks. Executive Secretary Mead Sigler has already started paying out $704 in dismissal pay collected from Felix Young. Amounts of the various claims collected range from $12 to $756. A record of total collections in claims and adjustments during the last eight months is now being compiled for the membership.

ly, is horrified at the thought. The aunt, too, Agnes Moorehead, is violently jealous of her more attractive sister, and does her bitter share to defeat the elderly romance. On the sidelines, with more or less authority to complicate the situation, are an uncle, Ray Collins, and the grandfather, Richard Bennett. All are positive and intrusive. Their combined efforts create a very melee of passions.

Tim Holt and Agnes Moorehead get the brunt of the story impact. Holt demonstrates his dramatic acting mettle in a fine performance, a bitterly valid portrayal of the son who scorns work as unbecoming an 'Amberson.' Miss Moorehead delivers a role of deeply moving emotional power and shows herself an actress of top rank in every respect. Anne Baxter is splendid in the part of young Holt's fiancee, a normal, disciplined, lovable girl against that frantic household, who eventually sees the boy settle down to acceptable ideals after fortunes have vanished and the boy's mother has died. Ray Collins is the mellowest of the family in a carefully exploited role. Richard Bennett has a brief part as the aged grandsire. Don Dilloway is the husband who dies. Erskine Sanford has a good assignment.

Major credit goes to Welles, functioning as scenarist, director and producer. The authority demonstrated in this combination further fixes Welles status as a distinguished creative screen artist. Sound technical support comes from Stanley Cortez on the camera; Mark Lee-Kirk in the art direction (that memorable house and its decoration), Al Fields for his sets, Bernard Herrmann for his music and musical direction.

Vocal credits follow the picture, identifying the players and major technicians. At the end the voice says 'My name is Orson Welles. I wrote the screen play and directed it.'

Night Shots on 'Reunion'

'Reunion' rolled at Metro last night for the first of 10 nights of filming before daylight shooting gets underway. Jules Dassin is directing Joan Crawford, John Wayne and Philip Dorn in the leads.

Makes the Grade

Lloyd Bridges, after year's apprenticeship in relatively minor roles, goes into second male lead in Columbia's 'The Daring Young Man.'

Par Troupe Embarks For 'Bell' Location

Troupe of 300 trained out of Glendale last night for Sonora Pass in the High Sierra on toughest location trek in years. 'For Whom the Bell Tolls'' company will spend 38 shooting days in area covering 125 miles of rugged mountains, with many sites accessible only by pack train. Filming starts tomorrow.

Included in Paramount troupe were Gary Cooper, Akim Tamiroff, Katina Paxinou, Vladimir Sokoloff, Mikhail Rasumny, Eric Feldary, Fortunio Bonanova, Victor Varconi, Arturo de Cordoba, Lilo Yarson and Joseph Calleia. Sam Wood preceded the main group by 24 hours. Other principals will be called to location later.

Paramount has taken over three resorts, all 50 to 60 miles from Sonora, and a tent city also is being erected to provide housing.

Disney Latin Films Go to S. A. Market

First of Walt Disney's Technicolor features on Latin America will be released first in that territory, with prints being flown to every RKO exchange in South America next week for immediate release.

Production, combining well-known Disney cartoon characters with live action highlights of recent Latin American tour by Disney and a staff of artists and musicians, consists of four episodes based on music and atmosphere of Brazil, Argentina, Bolivia and Peru. New character created for series is Jose Carioca, brightly-colored parrot.

Film will be released in Brazil with Portuguese sound track, under title 'Alo Amigos.' Elsewhere in South America, it will be billed as 'Saludos' and will have a Spanish track. Plans for picture's English language release in U. S. are now being developed.

Shift 'Texas' Title

Universal's title right to 'Deep In the Heart of Texas' has been switched from the Robert Stack-Brod Crawford-Jackie Cooper-Anne Gwynn picture to the Johnny Mack Brown-Tex Ritter western, heretofore known as 'Lone Star Trail.' Former picture now carries the title, 'Men of Texas.' 'Lone Star Trail' is being iced for use in final picture in the Brown-Ritter series.

Hawaii Gets 'Army'

'She's in the Army,' T. H. Richmond production for Monogram, and one of the first covering activities of the Women's Ambulance and Defense Corps of America, opens a run at the Hawaii theatre tomorrow. Other attraction is Edward Small's 'Miss Annie Rooney.'

SOEG Demands Pair Be Reinstated At Warners

The Screen Office Employes Guild charged yesterday that Warners Theatre Zone Office had let out two veteran employes because they were among a majority group which had expressed a desire to have the SOEG act as their bargaining representative. Business Representative Glenn Pratt said he was calling the matter to the attention of the Conference of Studio Unions, and that he planned to take it up with top company executives before carrying a complain to the National Labor Relations Board. He expressed the belief the action was taken by a subordinate without the knowledge of company heads.

Pratt said the two were notified of their dismissal shortly after 18 out of 20 Collarites had signed with the SOEG. He said one of them who had been in the employ of the company for 13 years was told he was being replaced because he could not get along with people, and the other, who had been employed two years, was told she was being replaced by an older person.

Guild officials said they intended to insist that both employes be reinstated before opening of negotiations with the company.

The SOEG huddles with Technicolor representatives today on its demand for retroactive pay and also resumes negotiations with the major film exchanges.

Bowles Returns North Takes Over Here July 20

Arch M. Bowles is slated to return to San Francisco tonight, following conferences with Charles P. Skouras on Fox West Coast circuit matters. Bowles expects to spend a week or 10 days cleaning up details in San Francisco, and take a vacation trip before returning here to assume active charge of the northern and California divisions of F-WC in place of Charles P. Skouras, who will devote his activities to post of National Theatres head.

Rick Ricketson, Jr., head of Fox Inter-Mountain circuit, who also came in Sunday, is expected to head back to Denver Friday.

Shumlin Conserving

Herman Shumlin, directing Warners production of his legiter, 'Watch On the Rhine,' yesterday closed down filming for two days intensive rehearsal with Bette Davis, Paul Lukas, George Coularis and other principals. Halt is designed as time and film saver, and will possibly be repeated later if rehearsals seem advantageous.

Court Nod on Pact

Court approval was granted yesterday to minor's contract between 20th-Fox and June Haver, 16-year-old Beverly Hills high school girl. Miss Haver formerly was a radio singer in Rock Island, Ill., and also did vocals with the Ted Fio Rito band.

'Moscow' Yarn at PRC

'Miss M. from Moscow,' by Arthur St. Claire and Sherman Lowe, has been scheduled for July production by the George Merrick unit of Producers Releasing Corp. Alfred Herman will direct.

Patrons Ask For Reissues Of Top Films

New York, June 30.—With a potential cut in Hollywood output expected to result from the war, and reissues destined to grow more important, a large number of theatre patrons have expressed the desire to again see outstanding films of past years.

This fact was shown in survey on reissues by Dr. Leo Handels of the Motion Picture Research Bureau. Limiting his quizzing to a cross-section of New York's population and to those going to films at least once monthly, Handel determined that 91% said they would attend outstanding oldies; eight per cent nixed the idea; and one per cent had no opinion.

Cartoonists Busy On War Pictures

Hollywood cartoon producers are reported near the top in the motion picture industry's war efforts. The cartoonists are making many documentary films putting over specific ideas,turning out scores of straight entertainment productions with a war background and delivering numerous training pictures.

A survey showed that 75% of Walt Disney's production is for government departments. Leon Schlesinger's 'Any Bonds Today' and other cartoons are a direct aid to war activities. These cartoonists have created more than 400 different insignia for war planes and fighting units.

Flacks Ask $135 Week At National Screen

Demand of the Screen Publicists Guild for a minimum wage scale of $135 weekly for flacks at National Screen Service will be discussed Friday when Guild representatives confer with Tom Baily, local company head. The Publicists will be represented by Prexy Lesley Mason and Attorney George E. Bodle.

Hellman, Wyler Soviet For Youth Film Yarn

New York, June 30.—Lillian Hellman and Major William Wyler are going to Russia, with the blessing of the United States Government, to obtain material for a motion picture about Russian youths in wartime. Plan is in line with campaign for closer Russo-American relations.

Generous Goldberg

San Francisco, June 30.—Each of the 31 employes who has been with the Aaron Goldberg circuit for a year or more was presented with a war bond at a Mark Hopkins hotel dinner that was part of the celebration of Goldberg's thirtieth anniversary as an independent exhibitor.

'Angel of Bataan' at Rep

Republic has bought an original, 'Angel of Bataan,' from Fresco Cooper as starring vehicle for Fay McKenzie. Tells the war experiences of a nurse under siege in the Philippines. Armand Schaefer will produce.

Sonja Henie, scheduled to leave for New York last Friday, trained out yesterday. She and husband Dan Topping celebrate their first wedding anniversary there July 4.

FILM JUVENILES REGISTER IN FIFTH DRAFT CALL

Hollywood's film youngsters, mail room boys and other junior studio workers between the ages of 18 and 20 signed up yesterday in the Selective Service registration for the nation's youth of those ages. While figures have not yet been completely tabulated by studio personnel departments, total from lots is expected to run around 250 or better.

Young contract actors were in the minority, being either below the registration age or having already been tabbed by previous roll calls. Largest number of registrants came from the ranks of youngsters learning the studio functions in mail rooms, as office boys, messengers, etc., but few names are available as yet.

Among the screen names were Jackie Cooper from RKO, Jimmy Lydon from the 'Henry Aldrich' series at Paramount, and Dick Langley, on Republic's stock contract list. Other Hollywood juveniles registering were from the freelance field, with returns still incomplete on number signing up. Warners studio reported largest number of youngsters checking in with selective service boards yesterday, a total of 75, none of whom were film players. Studio's mail room yielded eight, while the others represented practically every department on the lot.

RKO had 30 registrants, including Cooper, some of whom were from back-lot crafts. Paramount had 20, Universal 13, including Dan Cahn from editorial; Andy Lane, publicity; Jerry Cornyea and Les Abramson, mimeograph; Don Hill, labor; Lee Smith, Dick Russell, Bud Wilson, Stanley Shank, Bill Russell, Ray Lewis, Jack Sonenshine, all from the mail room. Columbia totaled 10. Republic had five, including Langley, and Bobby Lynn from the mail room. Totals or names were not complete at either 20th-Fox or Metro, although combined figures for the two lots is expected to add between 75 and 100 more to list.

Hunt Stromberg, Jr., son of the producer, was one of the 18 to 20 year olds registering at the Beverly Hills City Hall. Only the 20 year old signing up yesterday are subject to immediate military service. Their draft cards will be filed in order of birth dates, with induction into the Army following as the War Department makes further calls for men.

Youths of 18 and 19 are not subject to call under present law, but both President Roosevelt and Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, have indicated law may be altered to permit drafting of these ages classifications.

Sturges Played Sturges

Preston Sturges, writer-director-producer, yesterday added acting to his accomplishments, making thespic debut in 'Star Spangled Rhythm' at Paramount. Role is not difficult for Sturges. He impersonates himself.

Carroll In Nassau, Then to England

New York, June 30.—Madeleine Carroll spent two final hectic days last week getting clearance from Income Tax authorities so she could take a vacation in Nassau and possibly also in England. She is due back in month to fill two dates on 'Cavalcade of America.'

Understood her reason for going to Nassau is to see Stirling Hayden, to whom she is reported secretly married.

Home Sick Saroyan Returns to Broadway

New York, June 30.—Wild Bill Saroyan has returned to the East after a year's absence, and he's saying it was too long. Saroyan has $60,000 from his Metro stint and with six plays in his possession—including 'Get Away Old Man,' which he offered to Metro for $250,000, sight unseen—he has a hankering to get into show business again.

Mono Topical Buys

Monogram yesterday purchased two stories, both dealing with landing of spies and saboteurs on the Atlantic Coast, but treating situation from different angles. First, 'Spies On Our Shores,' is an original by Pauline Josephs, while second is 'The Yanks Are Cunning,' by Gordon Williams.

Familiar Assignment

Robert Buckner will be producer on Warners filming of 'Mission to Moscow.' Buckner was correspondent for the London Mail in Moscow at time Joseph E. Davies, author of 'Mission to Moscow,' was U. S. Ambassador to Russia.

Signal Corps Wants Private 35 mm. Lense Equip.

Washington, June 30.—War Department issued a call today for 35mm cameras and lenses owned by private parties, stating such equipment was urgently needed by the United States Army. Owners of Mitchell, Standard N. C. or B. N. C. models, Bell & Howell Standard Rack-Over type, Bell & Howell Eyemo Spider Turret, motor driven, adapted for magazines, and Bell & Howell Eyemo cameras with compact turret type adapted for magazine motors are asked to sell equipment to Army.

Owners are asked to send full description, with age and condition and price expected, to the Signal Corps Photographic Purchase Board, 35-11 35th avenue, Long Island City, N. Y.

'Eagle' Terrific Take At Orpheum S. F.

San Francisco, June 30.—'Eagle Squadron' is going through the roof at the Orpheum theatre—far exceeding all records and expectations. Original estimate of $19,000 for first week's gross was boosted today to $22,000—$5,000 greater than the all time record for the house—when initial five days tabbed $17,000.

House record for each of the five days film has played so far has been shattered, while 'Invaders' held honor of record for biggest week's gross.

Plenty of Cast For 'House of Mystery'

Irene Hervey, Don Porter, Nils Asther, Lionel Atwill, Ralph Morgan, Elyse Knox, Leif Erikson, Fay Helm, Doris Lloyd, Bela Lugosi, Frank Reicher, Robert Homans and Ed Waller have been added to major roles in Universal's chiller, 'House of Mystery,' slated to roll July 6 under Ford Beebe who will both direct and produce.

Wiles Will Decide

Gordon Wiles, production designer on 'The Commandos,' planed out last night for Victoria, B. C., for inspection that will set final location selections for Lester Cowan pic. Difficulties encountered because British Columbia is in Canadian defense area appear to have been ironed out, and present plans call for company to depart July 13 for six weeks location shooting.

Del Goodman Replaces Hugh Braly as Par Coast Sales Top

New York, June 30.—Del Goodman, recently general manager of distribution for Paramount in Canada, has been appointed district manager for the Pacific coast area, with headquarters in Los Angeles.

Hugh Braly shifts from the Los Angeles district post to take charge of the Rocky Mountain division out of Denver, succeeding Manny Brown, who assumes charge of Paramount's Buffalo office. Braly, who has been with Paramount's distribution department for 24 years, previously had charge of the Rocky Mountain division before taking charge of the Pacific coast offices several years ago.

It is expected that either Neil Agnew, distribution chief, or his aide, Charles M. Regan, will go to the coast to install Goodman next week.

Ford Returns to Air on Blue Net July 12

Ford Motors Co. returns to radio after dropping due to war on July 12 with a TC quarter hour seven nights weekly new commentary program from Washington by Earl Godwin on Blue net. Will be heard here at 8:15 p. m. from Eastern rebroadcast of 11:15. Account was placed by Maxon, Inc., for 107 stations on Blue, and is a significant move in radio, marking return of large auto account at first chary. Return to Blue of Texaco's sponsorship of Metropolitan opera stars, set for Nov. 28, further brightens fall picture for nets.

Priscilla Lane Loaned For Benny Lead

Priscilla Lane has been borrowed by 20th-Fox from Warners for the femme lead opposite Jack Benny in 'The Meanest Man in the World.' Miss Lane takes spot originally slated for Maureen O'Hara, who checks into St. Vincent's hospital next week for an operation. 'Meanest Man' rolls Monday with Sidney Lanfield directing for William Perlberg.

DIRECTORS SAVING 40% FILM; THREE CHECK STUDIOS

had been agreed that by July 15 every producing company in the industry would furnish the WPB with a report showing the amount of film stock consumed during the first six months of this year. Thereafter, bi-monthly reports would be submitted on the consumption of film.

A committee composed of Ray Klune, Ben Goetz and Lindsley Parsons was named to coordinate the reports of the individual companies and see that they comply fully with the agreement between industry representatives and the WPB. Klune's report also disclosed that the New York industry committee had advised the WPB that substantial cuts in the number of release prints had already effected, and that 'a uniform procedure would be established quickly for all companies.' He stressed the fact that while individual companies would be required to submit reports, the picture producers would be judged on an industry basis.

It was stated that the next meeting with the WPB in Washington will be held July 28 and that future meetings will be held on the first Tuesday of each month. National Screen Service, Metro and Warners, who release their own trailers, reported that every step possible was being taken to reduce the length of trailers to a minimum.

After listening to the various reports, chairman M. C. Levee stated: 'Reports made by all members of the committee show such substantial savings throughout the industry there is no doubt but that we will be able to meet our objectives.'

Ray Klune was required to attend another meeting, so submitted his report on meeting with the WPB in writing.

'Woman' Resumes With Gilmore Vice Bari

With Virginia Gilmore in the top femme spot, production on 'That Other Woman' will resume work at 20th-Fox today, after having been halted since last Saturday when Lynn Bari was transferred from that picture to 'China Girl.' Miss Gilmore was last in 'Berlin Correspondent.' Producer Walter Morosco had 'Other Woman' before cameras a week. Osa Massen was taken out of the role in 'China Girl' into which Miss Bari has been substituted.

Film Rationing Wont Affect Screen Tests

New York, June 30.—Despite the drive by the industry to conserve raw film stock, eastern talent scouts for major studios do not expect any film rationing for screen tests. Scouts figure there are two reasons for this opinion: first is the small amount of footage involved and secondly the great value of new talent compared with the minor cost of the necessary film required for tests.

Welles-RKO Ties Will Dissolve

New York, June 30.—Orson Welles, now shooting 'It's All True' in South America, leaves RKO on completion of the production. Talk is that company will not offer him a new deal. His present 'Magnificent Ambersons', said to have been edited by Welles from Brazil by phone, was tradeshown this week.

Mal St. Clair Set

Malcolm St. Clair has been signed to direct 'Two Weeks to Live,' next Lum and Abner comedy for RKO. Hallam Cooley agented.

Minneapolis Exhibs On WAC Bandwagon

Minneapolis, June 30. — Calling upon exhibitors to roll up their sleeves and tear into the war job with all possible energy and unity, John J. Friedl, War Activities Committee chairman for this district and president of Paramount's Minnesota Amusement circuit here, urged a moratorium on 'petty bickering, jealousies and fighting' within the industry for the duration.

The plea was voiced at industry rally staged by the WAC, at which Arthur Mayer, assistant coordinator of the WAC, and local exchange managers and exhibitors spoke. Exhibitors were told they must put forth maximum effort in every government assignment for the industry; Victory films must be dated and played; war bonds and stamps must be aggressively sold in theatres; and exhibs must be leaders in every drive for funds of service groups.

More than 800 theatres of this territory have signed to run Victory Films, and only 29 had failed to signature pledges, Friedl disclosed.

Sharpe In 'Busters'

First of the Range Busters westerns at Monogram in which Davey Sharpe will make his appearance as one of the lead trio will be 'Texas to Bataan,' rolling next week. Sharpe will be featured with John King and Max Terhune, replacing Ray Corrigan in the George W. Weeks series of eight for 1942-43.

Withers Here Today

Jane Withers is due from the east today after completing a number of personal appearances and bond-selling stops in eastern key spots. She reports at Republic to prepare for her first picture, untitled, which will roll later this summer.

Capra Will Make Two Reel Newsreels For Army

Washington, June 30. — Major Frank Capra has been assigned the task of turning out two-reel newsreels for the Army. Films also will probably be distributed to the entire Navy personnel. It is now planned to issue a subject every two weeks, beside the regular news subjects. Product will be designed to show the armed forces what America is fighting for and to give them conception of what both United States and other countries are doing.

Major Capra is now in Hollywood and will be turning out the new two-reelers there.

Organize Band For Coast Guard

San Francisco, June 30.—Coast Guardsman Leonard Hickson, music veteran of radio, vaudeville and symphony, has organized a Coast Guard band, at the new bay area training station, that includes—from the one station—am amazing aggregation of talent.

Among the members are Bill de Mello, formerly with Orrin Tucker and Bob Crosby; Voyle Williams, drummer for Griff Williams and Ravazza; Lowell Hawk, who has played with Heidt and Rossner; Bob Augustine, trumpeter for Kyser and Weeks; Merril Jordan, National Symphony Orchestra's onetime first flute; Reed Adams, dubbed by Stokowski best tuba player in southwest; Sheldon Taix, of Skinnay Ennis orch, and Emilio Scalise, clarinet soloist at San Francisco conservatory.

Sherman Hires Jory As Actor-Director

Harry Sherman yesterday signed Victor Jory to actor-director contract and George Reeves to term pact as thesp. Jory will first play important roles in Sherman's two specials for Paramount, then turn to directing a number of Hopalong Cassidys. Reeves, Pasadena Playhouse graduate, formerly under contract to both Warners and 20th-Fox, goes into romantic lead in 'Buckskin Empire.'

Bay City Minus Legit

San Francisco, June 30. — The legitimate stage is in the doldrums here, with 'Life With Father' having departed from the Geary Theatre Saturday night. The next play scheduled for the city is 'Sailor Beware,' to open Friday night at the Alcazar, with George Shafer as producer. 'Claudia' will check in at the Curran August 3.

Dix Pic Starts Aug. 15

'Buckskin Empire,' novel by Harry Sinclair Drago, rolls at Paramount Aug. 15 as the next Harry Sherman special western production starring Richard Dix. Following 'Buckskin' will be 'Peace Marshal,' Frank Gruber story. Sherman has signed George Reeves to appear with Dix in both pictures.

ORSON WELLES EVICTED FROM OFFICES BY RKO

Battle between RKO and Orson Welles resulted yesterday in eviction of Welles' Mercury Productions unit from its offices on the RKO-Pathe lot. Immediate cause of open breach was an ultimatum to RKO delivered by Mercury over the cutting, in his absence, of Welles' last picture, 'Journey into Fear.' However, hostilities between RKO and Welles had been in progress for many months, dating back to shortly after the latter's arrival here.

Another specific complaint by Mercury was that its pictures were

Depinet Still Ponders Smith Successor

New York, July 1.—Ned Depinet is still pondering as to whom he will choose to succeed Andy Smith, as RKO sales manager. One moment he figures that Bob Mochrie should fill the spot, then his thoughts turn as to whether or not to give it to Herb McIntyre, or make him a division manager. Also Depinet has dreams of asking Jules Levey, now a film producer, to come back into the fold at his old job.

Likely Depinet will cogitate on the matter over the holiday and make his decision.

Thornton Returns

New York, July 1.—C. W. Thornton, vice-president and general manager of Hal Roach studios, planed to the coast today following conferences on distribution of Roach streamlined features with United Artists executives. · HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

WITH WPB restrictions on set construction materials driving pictures out of doors and rubber rationing making distant locations hazardous undertakings, Hollywood is getting back to the old dictum: 'A rock's a rock, a tree's a tree—shoot it in Griffith Park.' While high-budget films are making increasing number of distant location jaunts, low budgeters generally are going no farther than their respective back lots, while studio-owned ranches today are more active than in years. Harry Sherman, who for years has taken his Hopalong Cassidys to Kernville and Lone Pine, is building his own western village at the old Major lot.

yesterday at the meeting of the Public Relations Committee, following receipt of a report listing occasional appearances of studio players at events not authorized by the Victory Committee. At today's conference, publicity directors will stress the necessity of full cooperation with the Victory Committee at all times, as a protection to the players and the industry.

Plans for a weekly news letter of information to be sent out by the Eastern Division of the Public Relations Committee were outlined by S. Barret McCormick, newly elected chairman of that group, who attended today's meeting of the Western Division. McCormick explained that the news letter will not be a clip-sheet but a brief, concise letter of information which will be sent to editors throughout the country giving an overall picture of industry activities.

A general speeding up of the industry's rubber drive was reported. At many studios junior players have been appointed to visit every department to urge increased participation in salvaging old rubber at home and in their offices.

Vacation time is joy sublime to any barefoot boy
Who has no early morning calls nor film jobs to annoy.
He romps about the greensward in his free-and-easy way
And laughs at wealthy moppets who must work the livelong day.
The photogenic youngsters, when vacation time appears
Are doomed to well-paid labor in their adolescent years.
And while they reek with fame and wealth and live in gilded state,
They envy nameless barefoot kids who cannot crash the gate.

Present UMPI Plan To Thurman Arnold Tomorrow

New York, July 1. — Following completion of the official and legal draft of the UMPI sales plan, a committee has been appointed to present it to the Department of Justice in Washington, Friday morning, at 10 a. m.

UMPI committee includes Bill Rodgers, chairman of UMPI committee of the whole; Austin Keough, head of the legal committee; Ed Kuykendall, president MPTOA; Abram Myers, general counsel of Allied; Harry Brandt, president of ITO, New York; William F. Crockett, president MPTO, Virginia; and Robbert Barton, Jr., attorney for MPTO, Virginia. Col. H. A. Cole would have been on the committee except for fact he is serving on Texas grand jury; while George Aarons, MPTOA attorney, is absent because of illness.

Although any recommendations or changes desired in the new UMPI sales plan, proposed for the five major distribs operating under the consent decree, by the DJ, would cause some delay in making necessary revision; the hope is that the plan, as written, will be okay with the DJ officials and an early date for hearing before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard here may be made to press for its adoption. Presentation to Judge Goddard could be made some time next week if no changes in the plan are deemed necessary by the Department of Justice.

Harmon Talks Problems With Exhibs, Distribs

Francis Harmon, vice-president of the War Activities Committee, checks out tomorrow night for Memphis, where on Friday he will speak before a combined exhibitor-distributor group under auspices of the Variety Club. He will address a similar group in St. Louis on July 8 and in Indianapolis on July 9. He returns to his New York office July 10.

Harmon completed a busy scheduled last night by addressing the Los Angeles Branch of the American Council on Public Relations. He spoke on 'Public Relations For the Church'. Harmond has already talked with exhibitor and exchange groups in San Francisco, Seattle and Portland on the War Activities program.

Monday he conferred with the Los Angeles distribution group of which Jack Dillon, 20th-Fox branch manager, is chairman. The conference dealt largely with war time film conservation, standby pictures for blackouts, and transportation problems. Dillon is to appoint a bookers committee to handle the Government Victory Films in this area.

New S. F. Sports Center

San Francisco, July 1.—The $350,000 'Sports Center,' in the Mission district, today entered the ever-increasing competition here for the war boom amusement dollars. The huge establishment contains 38 bowling lanes, eight badminton courts, table tennis facilities, and a cocktail bar. Dink Templeton, former Stanford track coach, is sports manager. A similar place, the 'Downtown Bowl,' also representing a $350,000 investment, opened only a couple of months ago.

UNITY COUNCIL ELECTS; MULLS WAR LABOR BOARD

Permanent officers for the Unity for Victory Committee will be elected tonight at the first meeting of the Executive Council, composed of delegates representing approximately 200,000 LA County workers affiliated with independent unions, the American Federation of Labor, Congress of Industrial Organizations, and the Railroad Brotherhoods. This group takes in more than 10,000 studio employes, including White Collarites, Studio Painters, Machinists, Cartoonists, Set Designers, Laboratory Technicians, etc. The session is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Teamsters Hall.

Following the election of officers, permanent committees will be named and a future program for the Committee adopted. The program probably will call for a mass rally of workers.

One of the most important items on the agenda is the establishment of a State War Labor Board. A petition asking Governor Culbert L. Olson to appoint the board will be discussed, but whether the petition will be drafted by the Executive Council or referred to a special committee for action will not be decided until after the delegates meet.

Purposes of the committee is to handle jurisdictional disputes, etc., while disputes between employer and employe would be referred to the proposed State War Labor Board for arbitration. Leaders said operation of the committee and War Board would prevent wildcat strikes and eleminate other work stoppages that might interfere with the War effort.

Burley Operator Can't Define Strip Tease

Marvin Lee Harrison unsuccessfully attempted to explain the intricacies of a strip tease dance in strict Websterian terms yesterday before the Los Angeles police commission in hearing for his theatre permit to conduct the Follies burlesque house on Main Street.

Burleycue showman tried to academically describe the disrobing of a strip teaser garment by garment, but Commissioner Al Cohn brushed aside the lucid description to question what the dancer had on at the finish. Harrison's reply that she had left a brassiere and panties was later disputed by vice squad policeman R. A. Wellpot, who stated one red headed dancer had on something about the size of a postage stamp. Harrison's application for a theatre permit, in hands of the commission through enactment of a recent city ordinance, was taken under submission.

Plenty of Toil In July at 20th-Fox

Production at 20th-Fox gets into high gear this month, with nine films set to get under way.

Two go together on July 6, 'Buried Alive' and 'The Meanest Man in the World,' with 'My Friend Flicka' rolling two days later and 'One Man Army' on the 13th. 'The Light of Heart,' 'Crash Dive,' 'Seventh Column' and 'Corregidor' all start July 20, followed by 'The Undying Monster' a week later.

Because Nunnally Johnson is busy on 'The Light of Heart', production of John Steinbeck's novel, 'The Moon Is Down', has been set back to sometime in the Fall.

Monday will also set a new high at the Pico lot for Technicolor filming. With 'Thunderbirds' back at work on retakes, studio will have four tinters simultaneously in work, others being 'Springtime In the Rockies', 'The Black Swan', and 'My Friend Flicka'.

Walt Disney's 'Bambi' has been recorded for Treasury Department's all-station broadcast in near future. Disney acts as m.c. on disc, with David Broekman directing the orchestra, and Jimmy Cash, Sally Miller and Lee Sweetland included in cast. Bill Bacher directed event before leaving for East over past weekend, after completing series of platters here. 'Love Is A Song,' 'Let's Sing A Little Spring Song,' 'Little April Showers' and 'Looking for Romance,' from score are included in hour program.

Thanks For Rubber

John Weiser of Ruthrauff and Ryan, motion picture contact for the scrap rubber drive, has written letters of thanks to the Publicity Directors Committee, to Charles Skouras and to Robert Poole. Weiser thanked the Publicity Directors for supplying pictures of stars to aid the drive, National Screen for its speedy delivery of 1,100 prints of a special trailer to Coast theatres, and to the theatres which played the trailer.

RUSSELL BIRDWELL whose pub-licity habits and expenditures have always reached the extravagant stage comes through with a blast against waste in the film industry. He's East now so possibly there won't be so much. . . . It is quite likely that another of the boys who crossed swords with George Schaefer may return to the RKO lot in his former capacity as a production executive. He is Lee Marcus. There has been talk around, too, that Harold Hurley will locate there as well. . . . Jules Levey made his Hollywood bow yesterday lunching with Frank Buck and Geoffrey Bernard at the Holly Derby. . . . Table Talk mouthpiece for Bob Murphy is a most interesting pamphlet. . . . Harry M. Warner returned to the studio yesterday after six weeks in the East. . . . Ned Winchester, standin for Joe E. Brown at Columbia, is awaiting induction as a captain of Marine Corps. . . . Neale Macready of RKO music department reports to Army July 7. . . . Brock Pemberton wants Harry Carey to come back to Broadway in the fall to appear in 'Living Room' a play by Jules Eckhardt Goodman.

BEST DRESSED GAL OF THE WEEK—

Connie Russell, at the opening of Andre's in Beverly Hills, wearing a full-skirted formal of white organdy highlighted with wide bands of eyelet embroidery and sequins. Over her dark hair she wore a burnoose of sheerest white organza. Her short evening capelet was white ermine, and her evening sandals and bag were of iridescent sequins.

NEW high in auction of intimate possessions of stars will be set tomorrow by War Bond auction arranged at Des Moines, Ia., by Tri-State Theatres. Hundreds of sealed bids already are reported. Object of frenzied bidding is Greer Garson's nightgown worn in Metro's 'Mrs. Miniver.' . . . Republic now has its horse-drawn covered wagon for making daily trips to laboratory and film row. Round-trip downtown requires three and a half hours. Paramount recently started lab trips via horse and fancily-painted and emblazoned wagon. . . . George Weiss gives up trailer making for 20th-Fox to become Lieut. Weiss in the Signal Corps. . . . Walter Pidgeon smiled graciously at 125 Red Cross gals who got glimpse of a Metro picture yesterday. . . . Al Parminter takes over today again as trade paper planter for Warners with 'Fightin' Jaik Rosenstein vacating for unit assignment. . . . Parchment scroll with 238 signatures of fellow workers will be given Mike Curtiz at his 15th anniversary party on the Warner lot tomorrow. . . . Columbia has signed Val Raset to term contract to establish a dance department at studio for first time. Peggy Carroll will be assistant. Raset has been working on dance direction for individual pictures. Is currently doing choreography on 'You Were Never Lovelier.'

A. J. Balaban Chosen Roxy Theatre NY Operator

New York, July 1.—Instead of promoting from within, National Theatres has gone on the outside to engage A. J. Balaban, veteran Chicago theatre operator who co-founded the Balaban and Katz circuit, to operate the Roxy theatre starting August 28 when the current Fanchon and Marco contract ends. According to reports, he will have a two year contract, while F&M will continue booking talent for the theatre.

Although Spyros Skouras is still largely concerned with National Theatres operations since being elected prexy of 20th-Fox, he has been giving some time to the film company's affairs also—notably details of advertising and exploitation. Dan Michaelove, under remote control from NT's new president, Charles P. Skouras, from the coast, has so far been limited to status of clearing house director for NT affairs in the east.

With Spyros Skouras dividing his time between theatres and looking in on distribution, circuit operations previously handled out of New York offices appear to be undergoing some change, with eventual result to be entire supervision from the new NT headquarters in Los Angeles.

The Roxy here will be used more directly as a studio showcase for 20th-Fox product than heretofore, and from indications, Irving Lesser will continue as house manager. Balaban emerges from retirement to become the Roxy operator and managing director. With house to be more closely identified with the studio, his appointment gives indication of being a Darryl Zanuck move.

Soundies Added To Govt. War Program

RCM Productions, Inc. (Soundies) will join in government shorts program, according to Sam Coslow and the Office of War Information. Coslow volunteered services of Soundies yesterday and expects to start production in August on stories suggested by the office of coordinator of government films. Propaganda juke-box films will hit estimated audience of 10,000,000. Free shorts will be tagged onto paid-for reels, making for double portions when combined with war additions in boxes.

Don Stauffer Due Today

Don Stauffer, radio director of Ruthrauff & Ryan Agency, gets in today from East to look over local scene and make changes. Expected house-cleaning will be in order and changes made in office setup here, in addition to confabs on Edward G. Robinson's 'Big Town' program, slated for expense-paring and possible new lead come Fall. Stauffer recently joined R. & R. after exiting Lyons & Lyons, replacing Lawton Campbell who is in the Army.

GIRLS MAY BE BOYS IN NEW FILM MUSICALS

Draft inroads on male dancers qualified to appear in film musicals has a number of dance directors seriously considering the use of tall girls to replace male hoofers in picture choruses.

While Screen Actors Guild carries large registration of male dancers, few qualify from the youth standpoint, resulting in studios increasing their requests for waivers to use outside hoofers when an elaborate musical is before the cameras.

Some efforts have been made to save rehearsal and shooting time by lining up troupes between 18 and 20, but fifth draft registration Tuesday and possibility of immediate service for new registrants has created another barrier to casting offices. Difficulty has increased sharply in past year, as exampled by a call at Paramount last summer for male hoofers for 'True to the Army.' Studio obtained the needed 20 dancers on the first call. A few months later five calls were necessary to set 12 males for 'Priorities On Parade.'

Republic is now running into difficulties with dancers for 'Chatterbox.' Twenty-four jitterbugs, all of teen-age, were selected some time ago by Dave Gould, dance director, to avoid upsetting production by the draft. Production was halted yesterday afternoon while dancers moved off the lot to register, and several are considering enlisting immediately, which would cause a shuffle in picture's dancing line.

Mixing up a line of short and tall girls, with the latter filling usual masculine dancing assignment, even so far as to make-up and costume, is the practical solution to the problem being considered if availability of male hoofers becomes much tighter in the near future.

Obituary

GEORGE WATTS

Rosary for George Watts, 65, known for years as the male half of the vaudeville team of Watts and Hawley, will be observed tonight at the Pierce Brothers chapel, 5959 Santa Monica blvd., beginning at 8 p.m. Body will be interred in Newark, N. J., where his mother, who is 88, and two sisters survive. Following a heart attack, Watts died yesterday morning at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

In his last few years he had played legitimate and picture roles but the best part of his life was spent in vaudeville, touring the country as a standard act for more than 30 years. His last legitimate role on Broadway was in 'Knickerbocker Holiday.' He played a featured part in support of Helen Hayes in 'Ladies and Gentlemen' in Los Angeles several years ago and was offered screen roles but was forced to return to New York by his contract with Gilbert Miller. Last picture of his film career, covering three years, was 'Andy Hardy's Last Fling.'

JAMES BAILEY CROSBY

Private funeral services being held today at Edwards Colonial mortuary for James Bailey Crosby, 87, retired publisher, who died at his home at 3801 So. Denker Ave., June 27. Crosby lived here 37 years, and formerly published the Irvington, N.Y. Courier and maintained a news service in New York. 10 children survive.

CHARLES GORDON

Charles Gordon, 45, professional music contact, died in his sleep at his Ridgefield, N. J., home Tuesday night. For many years with Santly Bros., he was associated with Broadcast Music, Inc., in New York at time of his demise.

or tomorrow and of going to the Conference of Studio Unions for support.

At the same time, it was reported that Studio Machinists Local 1185 which has reached a tentative agreement with Technicolor, is not inking the deal pending outcome of the SOEG negotiations. The Machinists, along with the SOEG, Studio Painters, Cartoonists, Designers and Laboratory Technicians, are affiliated with the Conference of Studio Unions.

Technicolor executives at a conference with SOEG officials yesterday offered to make the retroactive date March 15, but when Guild representatives did not immediately accept withdrew the offer and fixed the date as of June 1. A showdown in the situation is expected today or tomorrow, but SOEG officials expressed the belief the company would finally accept the Jan. 15 date, since similar concessions had been made to other unions.

Negotiations between the SOEG and the Major film exchanges will be resumed today, when the companies are scheduled to submit their ideas as to employe classification.

Kenny Baker gets in today from East to talk picture deals, having done his last stint for Fred Allen program on June 28 and will not return to program next Fall. He leaves here for New York July 12 to appear on Andre Kostelanetz' Coca Cola broadcast July 16, returning here August 1 and later appearing at Hollywood Bowl on Aug. 19 and 20.

Distribs, Carriers Plan Early Film Shipment To Save Tires, Gas

New York, July 1.—Film carriers and distributor representatives held a meeting today at the Film Board of Trade offices to discuss the new government regulations on film shipping, with the object of outlining plans to fully cooperate in the reduction of gasoline and tires in transporting prints.

Various plans were suggested, one being advanced to eliminate Monday as a shipping day while another recommended earlier shipments daily in order to eliminate subsequent trips the same day. Film carrier reps are to compile specific recommendations to conform to the new government rules, and these will be discussed at a Film Board of Trade meeting set for Friday. Huddles with exhibitors for discussion of shipping conservation and requirements of theatre cooperation will follow the Friday sesh. Distribution companies represented at the meeting today include: Universal, Metro, Columbia, Paramount, RKO, Republic, 20th-Fox and United Artists. Louis Nizer presided.

KFAC Applies To FCC For Power Upping

KFAC has purchased former transmitting equipment of KMPC at 84th & Compton, and has applied to the FCC for upping of power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts. Station wanted new equipment but priorities limited it to second hand buy. KFAC also not sure of keeping present studio-office site in old Court House building at Wilshire and Mariposa since Army is sizing up building for possible takeover. Present transmitter is at Adohr Farm, 18th and La Cienega.

Jack Votion To Army Won't Stop L & A Film

Jack Votion, producer of Lum 'n Abner series at RKO, leaves today for active duty in middle west as a lieutenant in the Army. Ben Hirsch, his assistant, will continue production in association with RKO. 'Wonderful World,' next of planned six to go, will start the second week in August with Mal St. Clair directing. Writers have not yet been assigned.

KUTA Ogden Chore

Blue network switches its Ogden, Utah, coverage to station KUTA, Salt Lake, after August 1 when affiliation with KLO, Ogden, terminates. Trouble over time clearances because of station's part-time deal with Mutual net caused the friction and resultant severance. KUTA recently upped power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts, making new coverage possible.

Want Sponsor

Jose Rodriguez and Sidney Sutherland, local commentators on Blue net's KECA, being offered around Pacific net on participation basis, having built up an audience with their semi-humorous news treatment in Olsen and Johnson type crossfire. Stations may sell pickup of pair to individual local sponsors in station's town.

New Blood For Sherman

Shirley Spencer, Pasadena Playhouse grad, gets her screen debut in Harry Sherman's 'Leather Burners' as femme lead with Bill Boyd.

ORSON WELLES EVICTED FROM OFFICES BY RKO

released without adequate preliminary advertising and exploitation campaigns. RKO attitude on this beef is that releasing company is properly the one to determine how costly a ballyhoo is justifiable on any given picture.

RKO issued this statement: 'Upon completion of "The Magnificant Ambersons" and "Journey into Fear," and pending completion of Orson Welles' work in Brazil and return to Hollywood, there was nothing further to be done at the RKO studios by the representatives of Mr. Welles or Mercury Productions in connection with either of the completed pictures or the picture currently being photographed in South America. Accordingly, because the space was urgently needed for those engaged on current productions, RKO requested these representatives to make available the offices which have been occupied by them. RKO's future relationship with Mr. Welles will be discussed upon his return from South America.'

Welles countered with this statement, issued by his attorney, Loyd Wright: 'The disagreements that have existed between RKO and Orson Welles and his Mercury Productions have culminated in the necessity of his leaving the RKO-Pathe lot. This comes at a time when "Citizen Kane," adjudged one of the outstanding pictures of 1941, is still being released and "The Magnificent Ambersons' is receiving unusually high praise from the critics. The photoplay, "Journey into Fear," on which Mr. Welles was working prior to leaving for Brazil, was arbitrarily taken over by RKO during Mr. Welles' absence and is being edited without benefit of the services of those who worked on the picture and conceived its creation.'

Wright's statement further revealed that RKO will release 'It's All True,' picture on which Welles is working in Brazil, 'where he went at the request of the Office of Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs to make a picture in the interests of hemispheric solidarity.'

Battle is expected to reach the legal stage as soon as Welles returns to Hollywood. He leaves Fortalezza, Brazil, on July 15, but goes first to Washington to report to Nelson Rockefeller. Until such time as his government stint is completed, no action will be taken by Welles.

Staff of Mercury Productions affected by RKO eviction consists of Jack Moss, production executive, Herb Drake, publicist, and five stenographers. Three stenos are out, two go back to RKO, from whom they had been borrowed. Drake is opening temporary offices in the carpenter shop of his home. Moss left last night for an Oregon vacation.

Military Flavor For Film War Relief Mass Meeting

A formal military presentation of the colors of four nations, with the U. S. Navy band from San Diego and 100 sailors present, will be a feature of the motion picture industry War Relief Mass Meeting Monday night at Paramount. General plans for the affair to launch the appeal for Navy, Dutch, Russian and Chinees relief were announced yesterday by Chairman Jack Karp following a luncheon of studio leaders at the Hillcrest Country Club.

A high officer of the U. S. Navy will speak for Navy Relief, while a Russian officer will present his group's cause. Previously announced as speakers are Adrien Hartog, consul for the Netherlands, and T. K. Chang, consul for China. Each of the four interested groups will supply a typical entertainment number for the 1200 studio colonels, captains and others interested in the last film industry War relief appeal of the year.

Lieut.-Commander Eugene Zukor, U.S.N., formerly a Paramount executive, spoke briefly at yesterday's meeting. He described as all important for combatant Navy morale the methods by which the Navy Relief handles the immediate financial problems of a family when the fate of a husband or son may not be known for several months. He said the Navy was proud of the fact that, until its present expansion, it has never before had to solicit public aid. In the past Navy Relief has been supported entirely by contributions within the service itself.

U Increases Force In Drapery Dept.

While most studio departments are operating on a hold-back basis of economy the draperies departments are staging a corresponding boom, according to Russ Gausman, head of Universal property department. Where the drapery unit under Jasper Vail formerly had an average of six workers it now averages 25 due to fact draperies are available for set construction while other items are either hard to get or are on priorities.

First use of it was by Clifton Fadiman on the Information Please program on Tuesday and since then by other radio commentators.

SWG Appoints Board Members; To Elect Vice-President

The Screen Writers Guild has appointed a nominating committee to select candidates for vice-president, and has selected scriveners to fill four vacancies on the Executive Board. The nominating committee is composed of Leonard Lee, chairman, Claude Binyon, Francis Faragoh, Talbot Jennings, Howard Koch, Ring Lardner, Jr., John Larkin, Gladys Lehman, Frank Partos and George Seaton. The vacancy was created when Ralph Block resigned to go with the Office of Civilian Defense.

New members of the Executive Board are Boris Ingster, Marguerite Roberts, Paul Franklin and Allen Rivkin. This makes six appointments that have been made to the Board since the last election, the vacancies being caused by promotion of writers to producer berths and others entering military service. A total of 65 writers have entered the armed services since the Draft was instituted.

The nominating committee is scheduled to report to the Executive Board within the next two weeks, after which the Board will set a date for the election.

13 Players Entertain Army, Navy Men

A total of 13 Hollywood players were busy last night entertaining Army and Navy men. The schedule was headed by Linda Darnell who was appearing a top attraction of a USO-Camp Show unit.

Phil Silvers, Virginia O'Brien, Harpo Marx, Muriel Goodspeed, Peggy Ryan and Miller and Barlow comprised one group sent out by the Hollywood Victory Committee to entertain Navy men. Another group, which gave two shows yesterday and is giving another today, is comprised of Jerry Lester, Max Terhune, Georgia Carroll, Marilyn Hare and Jessie Colbert.

Radio activities for yesterday had Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell, and Kings Men on the 'Hello Mom' broadcast, while Edward G. Robinson broadcast a message to employes of all department stores as a part of the War Bond drive. Today Gloria Jean, Frank Wilcox, Stanley Ridges, Gene Lockhart and Dick Travis will appear on the 'Salute To MacArthur' broadcast, and Frank McHugh will appear on the 'Woman's Angle' show.

Rehearse 'Swing' Song

Dona Drake and Betty Rhodes yesterday took time out from their roles in Paramount's 'Star Spangle Rhythm' to start rehearsals in their dual song number, 'Swing Shift', written by Johny Mercer and Harold Arlen and staged by Danny Dare.

Busy Day For Extras

Universal called 339 extras yesterday for work in five productions. Largest group, 145, went to 'Off the Beaten Track.' 'Arabian Nights' used 100; 'Forever Yours,' 80; 'Between Us Girls,' eight, and 'Mug Town,' six.

Berke Cans 'Badlands'

First of a series of westerns teaming Russell Hayden and Bob Wills with his Texas Playboys, Columbia's 'Law of the Badlands', was washed up yesterday under William Berke's direction.

25 Propaganda Pix For South America Distribution

to be produced much in the same manner the Academy's Research Council makes its films for military training purposes.

Principally short films, but occasionally a feature production, these pictures are intended to acquaint South Americans with the cultural aims of the Western Hemisphere of the future. For the most part they will be shown in theatres, but to make certain that they are seen in the jungles and isolated villages, 16mm. versions will be made from regular 35mm. negatives and special miniature equipment carried in trailers and other mobile equipment will be provided for tent shows and out-of-door projection.

These new South American shorts will receive the production counsel and cooperation of top stars, directors, cameramen and writers in addition to the regular theatrical releases of the major studios. Many scriveners have volunteered a number of story outlines and scripts through the wartime cooperative group known as the Writers Mobilization Committee. When ideas are accepted and given titles, writers put them into motion picture script form. Studio planning groups arrange for settings, sound equipment and a technical staff.

Writers who have already contributed ideas to the Society's film program include Dalton Trumbo, Jane Murfin, Guy Endore, Mary C. McCall, Jr., David Hertz, Lars Moen, Tess Slesinger, Frank Davis, J. Robert Bren, Maurice Rapf, Richard Collins, Anthony Veiller, Allen Rivkin, Gene Towne, Robert Lees and Fred Rinaldo.

In addition to films dealing with commerce, manufacture, agriculture and education, a number of realistic fact-revealing war shorts are to be made and distributed throughout Latin America. These films will call a Nazi a Nazi, expose totalitarian propagandizing and, on occasion, employ actual Nazi propaganda film to prove the falsehoods invented by the German propaganda machine.

Heading the Motion Picture Society are Y. Frank Freeman, prexy of the Producers Association; Walter F. Wanger, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences; E. J. Mannix, Metro general manager; and David Hopkins, who acts as the direct representative of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. IT'S RUSSIAN VOGUE NOW; SIX PIX IN PREPARATION Prominence of Russia in the daily headlines is leading to a cycle of pictures coming up from various studios, playing up the Russian side of the fight and using colorful incidents both from the current war and from the history of the country. Productions are understood to be looked on with favor by Washington and the Soviet government with collaboration by Hollywood in presenting the proper angles of Russia's position lending favorable morale aid.

At least six such pictures are in various stages of preparation now at four studios, with Warners' 'Mission to Moscow' likely to be the first of the major productions to be ready. Both 20th-Fox and Metro have two Russian films each down for future filming. Former lot will have the Boris Morros-S. P. Eagle 'The Russian Marines' and 'Ski Patrol.' At Metro Arthur Hornblow, Jr., is plotting 'The Song of the Red Army' and Joe Pasternak has 'Scorched Earth' in the mill.

Warners has alloted 10 weeks time for starting of 'Mission to Moscow,' which includes getting the script written and okayed in Washington, cast and director set, and putting story before the cameras. Based on the book and personal memoirs of Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to the Soviet, picture angle will be less biographical, stressing the memoirs. Studio hopes to have picture ready in time for an October release.

Story departments at other studios are paying careful attention to originals, etc., dealing with the Russian situation and locale to make sure a screenable property doesn't slip through their hands. In the independent field Producers Releasing Corp. has the forthcoming George Merrick production, 'Miss M. From Moscow,' a femme spy yarn, which will join the cycle of Russian features.

Freedom Dinner For Film War Captives

A Free Peoples benefit dinner sponsored by a group of Hollywood personalities headed by Philip Merivale has been arranged for the night of July 20 at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Proceeds from the affair will be used to free Europe's outstanding anti-Axis film, stage and radio artists from French concentration camps, with the idea of having them launch a campaign by short wave broadcast and printed media to the Axis subjugated countries. Merivale said the plan is to arrange a civilian second front in Europe to coincide with the opening of an armed second front by the United Nations.

Nelson Poynter, associate coordinator of government films, and Paul Robeson, guest of honor, will be the principal speakers.

Included among the sponsors of the dinner are Claudette Colbert, Charles Boyer, Frederic March, Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens, Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Sheridan Gibney, Ronald Colman, Tyrone Power, the Rev. Russell Clayton, Mrs. L. B. Mayer, Rudy Vallee, Rosalind Russell, Edward G. Robinson, Senator Robert W. Kenny, Franchot Tone, Elizabeth Bergner, Basil Rathbone, James Hilton, George Cukor, Miriam Hopkins, Alexander Korda, Charles Einfeld, Ira Gershwin and Jerome Kern. The Joint Anti-Facist Refugee Committee is arranging the affair to which all United Nations consuls will be invited.

Cutting Pic Finale Title Credits at Par

All end cast titles on pictures hereafter will be eliminated at Paramount as film conservation measure. Features already getting the tail snipping are 'Road to Morocco,' 'Lady Bodyguard,' 'Happy Go Lucky,' 'I Married a Witch,' 'Great Without Glory' and 'Wake Island.'

UNGER SLATED AS RKO GENERAL SALES MANAGER

New York, July 2.—Joe J. Unger looks now to be the next RKO general sales manager under Ned Depinet. Unger is resigning his post as eastern division sales manager for Paramount, and is understood will come into RKO in a high executive distribution capacity, which undoubtedly will be the job vacated by Andy Smith.

Unger is one of the most widely-known distribution men in the film industry, having started in pioneering days with First National. Attracting attention of Sid Kent, he was brought into Paramount in 1924. He worked his way up from branch to district manager and then to eastern division manager over that period in the Paramount organization.

Official announcement of Unger's resignation from Par is expected to be made tomorrow on return from Chicago of Neil Agnew, who, in turn, will also announce that Hugh Owen, Southwestern district manager for Paramount, will take over the post being vacated by Unger.

ON the heels of sorely aggravating Office of War Information for use of a secret government document in Broadcasting magazine, the publishers have circulated a letter among stations and networks apologizing for the inadvertent inclusion of the material and asking that information it contains not to be used in any sense. Publication was thoroughly denounced in a press release from the OWI last week for release of the material in its June 22 issue. Communique to broadcasters states: 'The management of Broadcasting, at the request of the Office of War Information, urgently asks that radio stations, networks, agencies, producers and others identified with the business of broadcasting, do not under any circumstances utilize, for promotional purposes or otherwise, any of the information contained in the article titled 'U. S. Finds Radio Is Main News Source' published in our June 22 edition. The publisher of Broadcasting regrets extremely the appearance of this story, which was printed without his knowledge during his absence from the city (Washington). While the story admittedly does not offer aid and comfort to the enemy, its source definitely was restricted by a government agency.

DESPITE limitations on newspaper space available to motion pictures as a result of the war, Hollywood is going all out in giving utmost publicity and exploitation to big productions. Two or more men are being assigned to handle single films by studio praiseries, where flacks not long ago frequently had two or three pix simultaneously. Indicative of trend, Warners is sending two men, Carlisle Jones and Bob Fender, to Tampa, Fla., and other Eastern locations of 'Air Force.' Paramount has both Teet Carle and Bernie Kamins working on 'Star Spangled Rhythm,' while a trio of publicists, John Wolfenden, Idwal Jones and Floyd Simonton are assigned to 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.' These three pictures also have two still photographers assigned, instead of the normal single shutter-snapper.

ENDING for 'The Flying Tigers' at Republic will be decidedly different from finale in original script. Studio had intended having John Wayne and John Carroll in a plane crash, with Carroll later arriving at the Flying Tigers' China base in the company of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Madame Chiang. Hays office warned studio delays would probably result while necessary permission was obtained for use of actor and actress to double for the noted Chinese leaders, so solution to problem was to kill Carroll in the crash and end the film on Wayne.

WHERE studios once sedulously concealed marriages of their glamour boys, married leading men today are at a premium in the studios. RKO, in fact, has a special corps of talent scouts out right now, combing the country for benedicts with possibilities of being developed into leading men. Ben Piazza, talent department head, says more than half of prospects signed up last year are now in the armed forces, many of them getting into uniform before they ever donned greasepaint.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

You thought he was a stuffy old man,
Swinging his arms up there in the band stand
Under the elms at the Soldiers' Home
And depriving you of a precious hour
On the morning of the Fourth of July
When the burning ambition of your young life
Was to touch off a string of firecrackers.
You fidgeted through a dreary hour
With your father's restraining hand on your arm
While the old fellow in the long black coat
Got his starched collar all sweated up,
Spouting about the defense of our liberties.
You were listening then, although you did not realize it,
To one of the world's great human documents,
And you took it for granted, in your childish way.
You never dreamed that in some far day
A sinister force would arise to challenge it.
That day has come, but the document still rings out
As a heartening voice to a world in turmoil—
The Declaration of Independence.

Men of Texas

(Drama)

Universal production. Stars Robert Stack, Brod Crawford and Jackie Cooper. Features Anne Gwynne, Ralph Bellamy, Jane Darwell, Leo Carrillo, John Litel. Supporting cast: William Farnum, Janet Beecher, J. Frank Hamilton, Kay Linaker, Joseph Crehan, Addison Richards. Director, Ray Enright. Producer, George Waggner. Original screen play, Harold Shumate. Additional dialog, Richard Brooks. Photography, Milton Krasner. Dialog director, Gene Lewis. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Richard H. Riedel. Film editor, Clarence Kolster. Musical director, Edward Ward. Gowns, Vera West. Sound director, Bernard B. Brown; technician, William Fox. Set decorations, R. A. Gausman; associate, R. S. Webb. Assistant director, Fred Frank. Previewed at the studio, July 2, 1942. Running time: 81 MINS.

Universal draws a capital example of what national unity means in 'Men of Texas,' a saga of Texas reconstruction following the War Between the States. The message, while garbed in frontier costume, is still timely, carrying the patriotic appeal now finding response at the ticket window. Produced, directed and played expertly, 'Men of Texas' will give a capable account of itself.

A young Chicago newspaperman and a photographer go to Texas after the Civil War, meet with a chilly welcome from the fiercely state-conscious Texans and cross the path of a pseudo lover of Texas freedom, who is fanning hatred of the Yankees while his guerrila band line their pockets with federal gold. Harold Shumate's original script, with additional dialog by Richard Brooks, supplies plenty of action and an apparently authentic historical background for the good story.

Stack, the reporter, makes a first rate appearance, all the more pleasing because he is allowed to play the role without the high heroics and gang-busting actions that usually mean a celluloid newsgatherer. Brod Crawford is the Texan with ambitions to be bigger than Sam Houston, and delivers his usual expert heavy performance.

Jackie Cooper does adult work as a young Texan led astray by Crawford's outward appearance. Anne Gwynne continues to grow in ability as an actress, getting the most out of her femme lead assignment. Ralph Bellamy does intelligent work as the Union officer in charge of Texas. Leo Carrillo, the photographer, Jane Darwell, the aunt, and John Litel, Confederate officer, complete the excellent featured cast. William Farnum uses impressive voice for his enactment of the spirit of General Sam Houston. Janet Beecher, J. Frank Hamilton, Kay Linaker, Joseph Crehan and Addison Richards are others in the capable cast.

Production guidance of George Waggner is showmanly and advantageously presents the smart Shumate script. Latter avoids depicting the Yankees as conniving gloaters over the South's defeat, a fault common with most reconstruction day stories. Ray Enright's direction keeps an eye on the action and story, obtaining first rate results in combining the many elements. Milton Krasna's camera work, the art direction, sets, etc., are craftsmanly credits. Edward Ward accounted for the spirited musical background.

She's In the Army

(Melodramatic Comedy)

Monogram production. Cast: Veda Ann Borg, Marie Wilson, Lyle Talbot, Warren Hymer, Lucile Gleason, Robert Lowery, Maxine Leslie, Charlotte Henry, Marcella Phillips and John Holland. Produced by Ted Richmond. Directed by Jean Yarbrough. Assistant director, William Strohbach. Art director, Frank Sylos. Photography, Clark Ramsey. Editor, Jack Ogilvie. Recording engineer, Glen Glenn. Screenplay, Sidney Sheldon. Reviewed at Hawaii theatre, July 2, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

Title alone will help this latter day curio of what the distaff side is doing in uniform. And while it may not be an altogether true documentary on the girls since they dropped powder puffs (not literally) for gunsmoke puffs, it does contain a partial peek at what the girls—and boys—have been wondering about. Its humor helps the moderately interesting war twist given the mildewed mistaken identity and misunderstood-though-true-blue-underneath dillietante debutante theme. With support it cannot cause spending regrets.

Original screenplay by Sidney Sheldon just twirls the yarn of the harried babe born to the purple. Now she is in the Army, gets off on the wrong foot as usual, but manages to save herself by saving lives. It's then that the hardboiled disciplinarian captain (Lyle Talbot) finds that he has saved some heart for her and all ends well.

Miss Borg, former model, does a nice job, considering her former posey background. Fits her part and acts it out for generally good result. Vet Talbot, too, is smooth in his assignment now that he's back from Broadway boards. Wacky Warren Hymer, and Zany Marie Wilson hold up their end in the senseless sector, while remainder jog along in other speaking parts. Only John Holland, in the role of a columnist, doesn't jell. He's supposed to be the kind of newspaperman who can afford to make $5,000 wagers. There ain't no such caracter. It's obvious that he doesn't believe it either, doing a very unconvincing job.

Business being bad at the nitery she yodels in, Miss Borg corns up an entrance into the ambulance corps, expecting to pack it in shortly after attendant publicity. Finding she likes it, she wantsto stick but it's made tough an she is exposed. No man's Army would permit the goings on encountered here, but that's Hollywood, and she comes out on top, after a little suspense.

Director Yarbrough set a speedy pace and maintained it, interpolating comedy in right spots and ultimately making quick entertainment of an average quickie. Producer Ted Richmond who made this mild budgeted opus appears to know topical entertainment qualities and need have no qualms about what he accomplished with this film.

There is a total of better than $51,000,000 that will be due this country's film makers in November, and Hays is anxious to get the eight major companies who have the credits over there most of their coin before that time.

Hays likely will head for Hollywood from here.

PETRILLO PLATTER BAN HITS BAND BOOKERS HERE

Coast end of band booking agencies expect to be hardest hit by the recent edict of James C. Petrillo, AFM head, which makes agencies responsible for monies guaranteed bands on booked dates. Reasons for Coast pessimism are many but the war accounts for most.

Whereas orchestras formerly took it on their fiscal chins when promoters failed to meet guarantees against percentages, or went south with the funds, or folded, or otherwise didn't meet agreed figures, union demands after September 1 that agencies make up shortages and complete payments when complete payoff is light or skipped.

Blackouts, dimouts, transportation worries, etc., enter on this end to further complicate conditions that always existed for other reasons. Questions of who will hold the sack when dimouts or blackouts knock off business and expected gate is not reached is current concern. Too, possibility of trains or busses being sidetracked or taken over by troops, causing failure of bands to reach destination, is a headache. Drafting of promoters has already caused some situations, also.

Agencies may seek escape through 'act of God' interpretation in such instances. But matter still remains open, and will certainly result in keeping bookers on their toes, hustling around trying to fill in last minute cancellations and frustrations.

KQW In Oakland Studios

Actors Name Leaders For Combined War Relief Drive

The Screen Actors Guild has appointed the following studio captains for the film industry's combined campaign for Navy Relief and Russia, China, Dutch War Reliefs: Columbia, Leslie Banks and Bruce Bennett; 20th-Fox, Linda Darnell, Betty Grable, Laird Cregar, George Montgomery; Paramount, Walter Abel and Paulette Goddard; RKO, Dennis O'Keefe, Bonita Granville and Dorothy Lovett; Warners, Humphrey Bogart; Universal, Deanna Durbin and Charles Boyer; Metro, Ann Sothern and Nelson Eddy.

Two military heroes of the Dutch Army will be introduced without names at the mass meeting to be held Monday night at Paramount to launch the fund appeal. The anonymous introduction will be because the families of the two still live in occupied Holland.

Troy Saunders of the Paramount Music Department, is training a chorus of 90 sailors from the San Pedro Naval Base for the big meeting. Stage 15 is being decorated with flags of the four nations represented in anticipation of the formal presentation of the colors of the United States, the Netherlands, Russia and China as the four appointed representatives arise to present their respective causes.

F-WC Academy, Pasa First Night Gross To Army Relief

Gross receipts for tonight's opening of the Academy theatre, Pasadena, will be turned over to the Army Relief Fund, with figure expected to hit above the $1,200 mark.

House, formerly the Colorado, which was acquired by Fox West Coast circuit in January, has been refurnished and remodelled at cost of around $70,000, and, with seating capacity of more than 1,600 loge seats, will be operated as ace F-WC theatre of Pasadena. Lou Harris will manage, under supervision of district manager Terry McDaniels.

Tonight's attraction will be 'Reap the Wild Wind' on single bill basis, with management figuring two complete night shows for top gross via the turnover route. Charles P. Skouras, president of F-WC, is donating the house, staff, film rental and all other operating expenses for the opening night, so that Army Relief can obtain the maximum amount of coin.

The opening night was first offered to the Pasadena war bond group with suggestion that seats be scaled for public war bond purchases in similar manner to that used for opening of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' in New York several weeks ago, but the local committee turned down the idea—with Skouras then offering the night's receipts to the Army Relief.

EXCHANGE, TEC-COLOR DEALS MAY HALT FILM PRODUCTION

the companies had nothing better to offer to check the situation up to the SOEG Executive Board at its meeting Monday night. The Exchange Collarites indicated they were ready to pursue any course suggested by the Board.

Negotiations with the Exchanges bogged down yesterday when company executives reported they had no counter classification proposals to offer; that they felt it was impractical to classify their clerical employes. The executives then renewed their offer of a flat 5% boost, without any classifications. This was promptly nixed by the Exchange Collarites at a meeting with their negotiating committee.

SOEG officials admitted that if either the Technicolor or Exchange unit voted in favor of drastic action, that matter would be taken to the Conference of Studio Unions. A walkout order would involve some 2,000 Collarites employed in the studios, as well as those employed at Technicolor and in the exchanges.

Since the SOEG is affiliated with the Conference of Studio Unions, it is practically certain to have the complete support of all other Conference crafts. These include the Studio Painters, Laboratory Technicians, Cartoonists, Machinists, Set Designers and Sketch Artists. It is understood the Machinists are already marking time on their deal with Technicolor pending a settlement between the company and the White Collarites.

Failure of eastern exchange representatives to make any headway toward reaching an agreement with the SOEG was reported to be disturbing studio heads. The latter were closely watching developments, and it was reported that Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, might be called in to handle the situation if it became apparent that the studios would become involved, with the possibility of interfering with production.

Silent Stars Defer Drive for Jobs

Plans of a group of former silent film stars, featured players and directors to formulate statistics on their annual earnings for presentation to studios with request that the oldtimers be given a more equitable share of extra work, have been abandoned for the time being. This was made known last night by a spokesman for the group, who said no further meetings would be held until fall.

It was pointed out that the former filmites—all of whom were doing extra and bit work—had compared notes on individual annual earnings, and it was felt that if the figures disclosed were brought to the attention of the producers, more consideration would be given them when sets were being filmed.

Par Sales Force Shift

New York, July 2.—Saul Frifield, branch manager of New Orleans exchange, becomes manager of Cleveland branch, replacing George Elmo, and E. B. Price moves from managership of Atlanta branch to the New Orleans post, in personnel realignment announced today by Paramount. Lift Ban on Buses For Location servation ruling will reduce to almost one-fourth the vehicular mileage for location trips. On an average location trip, one bus can carry an entire party that otherwise would require six or seven autos, resulting in a tremendous saving in both rubber and gas.

The ruling stated that 'the transportation of employes from a motion picture studio to an outdoor set or location in connection with their work' is permissable, and added: 'Likewise if employes are housed at a hotel they may be transporetd between the hotel and such location by charter bus. Such charter service may be used only in connection with the work of the studios, not for purpose of excursion or pleasure travel, and only when common carrier service is not readily available.'

Since the charter of outside buses was prohibited, hundreds of extras have been traveling in their own cars, while others have been transported in studio trucks along with various equipment.

Another move to save rubber was inaugurated this week, when directors instructed extras using their cars in scenes not to drive them in rehearsals. The auto is not put into use until the scene is rehearsed and the cameraman is ready to shoot. In addition prop men are saving all tape which is removed from license plates and other bright objects after the scene has been shot. Heretofore this tape was thrown away and new tape used for the next scene.

Siodmak Sells Novel

Kurt Siodmak's new mystery novel, 'Donovan's Brain,' has been taken by Knopf for publication in the fall. Story is also coming out as a serial in Black Mask magazine, starting with the September issue. Siodmak is now working on script of 'The Son of Dracula' at Universal.

Canada Theatre Biz Up 25% To 35% Over Last Summer

New York, July 2.—Wolfe Cohen, in charge of distribution in Canada for Warners, stated today that attendance above the border was up 25-35% over the past summer due to the war activity, increased employment, etc.

According to Cohen, the large first runs and other theatres charging 50c and more are doing proportionately better than houses in the lower admission brackets. This is due, in his opinion, to the fact that the common classes have more to spend now. Cohen, who two years ago showed the best sales results in Canada in a Warners sales drive, returned to Toronto today.

20th Protects Self; Adds Contract Men

To increase its actors pool against wartime drainage of young men, 20th-Fox yesterday signed James Ellison to term contract and added to reserves of character thesps Matt Briggs, William Eythe and Aubrey Mather. Including Anthony Quinn, as leading man, and Phil Silvers, comics, also recently pacted to terms, 20th's male roster now stands at 42, heaviest studio has carried in over three years. Ellison's contract is exclusive with 20th, after he finishes one more commitment at RKO.

Femme list at 20th has remained static since Jan. 1, 29 women players being under contract. This numbers several less than were on pact during most of last year.

Military Discharge Legal Substitute For Birth Proof

An honorable discharge from the United States Armed Services, which shows the owner to have been born in America, may now be used in place of a birth certificate to establish citizenship, it was announced yesterday by the committee in charge of the film industry registration. The new Federal law, according to the Committee, will be followed in the citizenship registration now being conducted in the studios and for casual motion picture workers at 5512 Hollywood Blvd.

The law, which is applicable to the motion picture industry, was approved June 22, and states, in part:

'Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that no defense contractor shall deny employment, on account of failure to produce a birth certificate, to any person who submits, in lieu of a birth certificate, an honorable discharge certificate or certificate issued in lieu thereof from the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard of the United States, unless such honorable discharge certificate shows on its face that such person may have been an alien at the time of its issuance'.

Officials said they expected this ruling to speed up the registration, as many extras and other casual workers who served in the military forces, have experienced difficulty in getting a birth certificate or other proof of citizenship. The registration office for casual workers closes July 9, after which identification cards carrying photograph and fingerprints will be required for admission to a studio.

TRAINMAN HEADS UNITY FOR VICTORY COMMITTEE

the Screen Publicists Guild, and Sorrell is business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

Frank Merihad of the Retail Trades Council (teamsters) was named vice chairman as representative of the American Federation of Labor, while Ralph Dawson of CIO Industrial Council was named a vice chairman as representative of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. John Cooper, of the State Culinary Alliance, who will soon enter military service, was named honorary chairman.

The following permanent committees were named:

Industrial Disputes: George Bradley, chairman, vice president of the Building Service Employes International Union (AFL); Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 (AFL); Thomas Ranford, Retail Trades Council (AFL); Lesley Mason, president Screen Publicists Guild (independent); Edward Barnes, United Rubber Workers (CIO); L. B. Thomas, International Longshoremen and Warehousemen Union (CIO).

War Program: Ralph Dawson, chairman, CIO Industrial Council; Kenneth Beight, Torrance Committee CIO Industrial Council; Dick Stovall, Culinary Workers Alliance (AFL); C. J. Hyan, Federated Amusement and Allied Crafts (AFL); George Campbell, Musicians Protective Association Local 47 (AFL); Earl Smith, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Finance Committee: W. J. Bassett, chairman, Allied Printing Trade Council; F. B. Miller, Southern California Allied Printing Trades Council; Frank Pellett, secretary California Legislative Board of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Charles Pfeiffer, Joint Board of Warehousemen (CIO).

Jurisdictional Disputes: James Garrow, Pomona Central Labor Council; Frank Ryan, Teamsters Public Relations Department; Willis J. Hill, Carpenters Local 634; Charles Pfeiffer, Joint Board Warehousemen CIO Union; Jerome Posner, Amalgated Clothing Workers Joint Board (CIO); F. B. Miller, Southern California Conference Allied Printing Trades Council.

War Production Committee, John Allard, CIO Oil Workers; James Thimmes, CIO Steel Workers; Everett Johnson, Glendale Central Labor Council; Ed Lentz, Transportation Workers Division 1277 (AFL); Vern Cannon, Teamsters Union; W. P. Nutter, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Legislative Committee: Frank Pellett, Brotherhood Railroad Trainmen; Ray Leheney, Teamsters Union; J. C. Tutt, Pasadena Central Labor Council; W. J. Bassett, Allied Printing Trades Council; Oscar Fuss, CIO Industrial Council Legislative Department; Al Fearin, United Brotherhood of Telephone Workers (independent).

It was understood the question of getting Culber L. Olson to appoint a State War Labor Board would be referred to the Industrial Disputes Committee, of which Herbert Sorrell and Lesley Mason are members. It is understood the governor is receptive to the idea and that the Board will be named within a short period after the request is received.

Approximately 10,000 are already represented in the Unity for Victory Movement, with indications that thousands of others will shortly join. Those already in include the Studio Painters, Machinists, Publicists, Actors, Set Designers, Laboratory Technicians, Sketch Artists, Cartoonists, etc.

Purpose of the Committee is to aid the War effort, keep down jurisdictional disputes and prevent wildcat strikes and other work stoppages that might interfere with the War effort. Disputes between employer and employe would be referred to the proposed State War Labor Board for arbitration.

SUE Local 724 Votes To Put 10% of Pay Into War Bonds

Members of Studio Utility Employes Local 724 have voted as a body to participate in the payroll savings plan for the purchase of War Bonds on a 10%-of-salary basis. The action was announced yesterday by Business Representative L. C. Helm in a report to the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood War Savings Staff, Treasury Department, which is conducting the film industry campaign.

This group of workers is among the first to set an example of unified support of the 10% investment in War Bonds for higher-salaried employe organizations. The action is in keeping with a decision recently made by representatives of all studio unions and guilds to ask members for a vote to authorize 10% salary investment in Bonds. The SUE vote brings into the payroll savings plan not only regular studio employes but casual workers as well.

The 10% proposal is now before many other unions, with indications that before the drive is completed most of them will be cooperating 100%. Local 724, which is setting the pace for other crafts, has a membership of more than 1,000.

Mull Lombard Likeness On War Stamps

Washington, July 2.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., is considering a proposition put before him of printing a likeness of Carole Lombard on war saving stamps. Broadway Legit Does Usual Holiday Dive

New York, July 5.—Expected visitor influx for the Fourth was not up to expectations with only two legit matinees tabbing capacity sell-outs, 'The Star and Garter' at the Music Box and 'Stars on Ice' at the Center.

Very warm weather sent the localites out of town to the beaches and mountains with grosses dropping all along the line in the legit fields except for the newer sock successes. Such a condition, however, is traditional on Broadway, as the national holiday sees the lowest ebb of summer biz.

Schaefer Hot After Film Liaison Post

New York, July 5.—Though close friends of George Schaefer here are advancing the thought that the former RKO head is likely to go into film production on his own, inside industry sources say that he is endeavoring to get an appointment as the film industry liaison chief with Wash. Schaefer claims he knows his way around the capital including the short cuts to Governmental

VAUDE UPSWING STARTS NEW CYCLE IN FILMS

Vaudeville upswing in several key cities will find Hollywood ready to take advantage of a new cycle, even before its possible widespread acceptance. Warners and Metro each have a picture completed that uses vaudeville as the story basis, and any number of other studios have films either completed or shooting that feature a number of vaude routines and names in their general entertainment linepu.

'For Me and My Gal,' topped by Judy Garland and Gene Kelly, is Metro's entry into the vaudeville race, featuring the routines popular during World War One. Warners has 'The Hard Way,' with Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Joan Leslie and Jack Carson heading the cast. Miss Leslie and Carson lay claim to a vaude background. Actress, formerly known as Joan Brodell, did both theatre and night-spot routines with her sis-

$40,000 Record Take

New York, July 5.—'This Is the Army,'. with premium seats such as $10,000 from Kate Smith for a choice pair, got $40,000 gross for premiere, a legit record for one night. Sunday matinee is a sell-out and tonight's already almost a sell-out. At $4.40 scale, if capacity, house can do $48,000, so first week gate of $75,000 is envisioned. Show stays four weeks only on Broadway, then tours, although run may be extended on return here if business warrants.

LEASE PART OF FOX WESTERN LOT TO ASSEMBLE WAR FILMS

Expansion of the Research Council training film production, with part of the Fox Western Avenue Studio being taken over for the work, was announced yesterday by Darryl F. Zanuck, Council chairman. The program calls for immediate start of production of several documentary and orientation films to be made for the education and training of the Army.

These pictures will be made under the supervision of Major Frank Capra, who will be stationed in Hollywood representing the Special Services Branch of the Army. Offices, projection rooms, film vaults and cut-

PAY 250G ADVANCE ON PIC RIGHTS

New York, July 5.—Taking the play away from Paramount, regarded as having the inside track, and other Hollywood producing companies, Warner Bros. has acquired the film rights to Irving Berlin's Second World War soldier musical, 'This Is the Army.'

Warners stole a march on Paramount, 20th-Fox and Columbia, all of which were in the bidding with non-profit offers to film this sequel to Berlin's 'Yip Yip Yaphank' of the last war, by submitting deal which Army regarded as giving Army Relief Fund best break in figuring distribution terms.

Terms of Warners deal provide for immediate payment of $250,000 to Berlin, who already has turned their check over the Army Relief Fund to meet urgent needs, with this advance payment being included in the production cost of the film. Warners will put up all production money, getting this and production costs off the top of the box office, with the whole balance of proceeds going to the Army Relief Fund.

Paramount and other producers in the bidding were agreeable to similar terms, but the deal swung to Warners when Army officials, in whose hands final decision rested, came to the conclusion that distribution terms proposed by Lieutenant Colonel Jack

Benjamin Batiske has purchased the nabe Capitol theatre from Morris Barsky.

Sam Wolf locked up his law books for the week end to get some Balboa sun-tanning.

B. F. Zeidman has been assigned production reins on 'The Road Home,' Lili Hatvany original, at Metro.

That was Lt. Leslie Taylor with the tank corps in the July 4th parade. He is the son of Harry Taylor of Film Row.

Al Rogell ran dolly shot half a mile around City College campus to get what he wanted on Republic's 'Chatterbox' in one film-saving take.

Minors' contracts of Adelaide Delgrado, Freddie Bartholomew and Virginia Gettman with Columbia Pictures were filed in Superior Court for legal approval.

Peter Jamerson, 19, for over two years with the stage company of 'Life With Father,' has been signed for first film role in Universal's 'Between Us Girls.'

Sam Hearn (Schlepperman) will guest on Rudy Vallee program July 9 but will not play usual role. He'll do a rube character from his old vaudeville routine.

Lindsley Parsons leaves Memphis, Tenn., today for Cincinnati after attending Monogram regional sales meeting over the weekend, to look over hillbilly talent he will use in a forthcoming production at Monogram.

Tracy Moore, sales head of Blue net, vacationing following session at Pacific Ad convention at Rainier National Park. He gets life membership and gold watch on his return when presidency of L. A. Ad Club terminates.

Art director assignments at Universal, made by Jack Otterson, have Robert Boyle on 'On the Beam;' Harold MacArthur on 'Raiders of San Joaquin;' Martin Obzina on 'Nightmare', and Richard Riedel on 'House of Mystery.'

Special classes on operation, etc., of the motion picture camera are being held at Metro three nights weekly for 20 members of the U. S. Signal Corps. Course, sponsored by the Research Council of the Academy, is being conducted by John Arnold.

Benny the Gouge sez — Oliver Goldsmith never heard of a motion picture, but his ancient poem, 'The Deserted Village,' is a dead ringer for Hollywood on a holiday.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

METRO had the ace in the hole when it came to sale of screen rights to the Philip Barry play 'Without Love', that Katharine Hepburn brings into New York in the fall. La Belle Hepburn insisted that Spencer Tracy with whom she appeared in 'Woman of the Year' be cast opposite her. Metro has Tracy, so in spite of more alluring offers from other studios Metro got the break. Miss Hepburn prior to doing 'Without Love' is doing 'Keeper of the Flame' with Tracy at Metro. However, a clause in the agreement of screen rights to 'Without Love' provides that in case Tracy does not play lead opposite La Belle, the screen rights can be sold to another bidder, who had waived his rights to the picture rights due to his inability to get Tracy. And from current indications Tracy may be in the army before Metro is set to start the film.

SAM GOLDWYN after his present RKO releasing deal, will be out on a limb in case he tries to get a similar one from any of the major companies. The film executives assert that deal given Goldwyn by George Schaefer, recent head of RKO, was done in desperation to get prestige product, with Schaefer knowing the distribution company could not make profit on its handling. The deal though reported as being 17½% distribution costs to the producer, with RKO not collecting distribution until Goldwyn had gotten his investment out first, also had another angle that really makes it 15½% as Goldwyn is allowed adjustments on prints and advertising that gives him the extra two percent edge from the top.

STRAIGHT newsreel policy was established Saturday in the Strand, Pasa- dena, by Fox West Coast, with the 750 seat house running continuous from 11 to 11 at 25c admission scale. Strand was formerly a moveover first run in Pasadena, with that policy now going to the Tower and United Artists. The new Academy will be circuit's ace house in the town. Other run changes in Pasadena in general switch of F-WC moves up the nabe Washington from third to second, and the State from fourth to third. The Pasadena drops back from second to fourth run in the shuffle.

'Outlaw' Distrib Pact Cancelled by 20th

New York, July 5.—Cancellation of its agreement to distribute 'The Outlaw' for Howard Hughes was served on him by 20th Century-Fox end of last week. The company after repeated requests for delivery of the film to it by June 15 by Hughes, decided it would wait no longer for him to clear up his censorship troubles.

The film was given the Hays office seal but ran into snags with the censors in New York, Maryland and Ohio. These troubles still remained after repeated cuts, and the fact that the film had the Hays okay and that of Chicago censors had also passed it.

Hughes while deciding as to whether or not he will tangle legally with 20th-Fox over the release reneg, is going ahead with plans for roadshowing the picture on his own.

British Film Men Oke Release of U.S. Coin

Dave Rose, Paramount managing director in the British Isles, planed in yesterday from New York where he had landed from England on the Clipper ship Friday. He will remain here for several weeks of conference with studio officials.

Rose stated that the entire British film industry is in accord with the American industry that the coin frozen belonging to the latter should be released and turned over to them by Great Britain. He has been putting up a strong battle along these lines against the British Government freezing policy, and is of the opinion that particularly at this time when not only the entire United States, including the film industry are contributing so much to the war effort, the tight little isle should be willing to yield on the position it has taken. Rose says his company has around $8,000,000 frozen in England.

Time was, when a Hollywood scout appeared
In the midst of a Strawhat glen,
The youthful thespians always feared
To be known as married men.
They never admitted the marriage vow,
But actors boast of their children now.

Today when the studio talent scout
Is making his contract bids
He asks in a voice of hope and doubt:
'And have you any kids?'
And when the thespian answers 'Six,'
He signs a pact in the motion pix.

Producers who used to mourn be- cause there were too many old familiar stars on the screen are mourning because so many old familiar stars are going into the Army and Navy.

We have had 'The Invisible Man' and 'The Invisible Woman,' and now comes 'The Invisible Front.' Just one blackout after another.

Tut-ankh-Amen stirred in his mummy case as the big guns boomed in the offing.

'After all these centuries,' he said, 'I'm back on the big time.'

Goetz Given New Ten Year Contract By 20th-Fox

operations, as first official act Sypros Skouras, performed on his initial visit here as company prexy. The contract runs concurrently with that signed by Darryl F. Zanuck, three months ago, and also provides that Goetz continue as a member of the corporation board of directors.

Goetz with Zanuck and Joe Schenck was one of the organizers of 20th-Century as a partner ten years ago and worked closely in association with his partners straight through the period to date and including the period since the merging of the company with Fox Films in 1934 as 20th Century-Fox.

While Zanuck has been occupied on Army business here and abroad, Goetz was in entire charge of studio operations and was recently highly commended at a dinner of studio department heads and executives for the many innovations he brought about in his operations and conservation measures he had taken for the benefit of the studio. It is likely that his one man operation of the studio will continue pretty much in the future, with Zanuck subject to call and likely to get assignments that would keep him away from Hollywood for long periods.

Goetz has been in the industry for 17 years, working his way via the assistant director and production manager route to important executive posts with major companies until he went into the 20th Century setup.

United Artists Meet Off Till Wednesday

Meeting of Ed Raftery, Arthur Kelly and Grad Sears with United Artists member owners scheduled today at Pickfair has been postponed until Wednesday afternoon. In meantime Raftery and his aides will confer with the producers on proposed product they plan delivering. There will be no wholesale addition of outside producers to the field regardless of what will or not be forthcoming immediately in product. Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and Dave Selznick insist that only producers of top calibre, with worth while material and personnel be brought in and that the so called 'fly by night' promoters be given the third finger left hand.

executive departments, and that at this time he can be of service to both in a coordinating contact capacity.

His friends say that Schaefer got the production bug while at RKO, and that he has sufficient coin himself as well as connections to enable him to establish a production unit.

Though Schaefer is reported to have gone to Louisiana with his wife to visit their son in an Army Camp, it is authoritatively understood that he is off one of the Canadian capes on a fishing expedition and will return here the end of this month.

ter, Betty Brodell. Latter also appears in the picture.

Warners also figures that 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' falls into the vaude classification, since it shows Broadway during the time of vaudeville's heyday and contains a number of such acts. 'Casablanca' also has several routines spotted. 20th-Fox has on schedule 'Coney Island,' although not set for filming until late August, which will make generous use of song - dance - and - patter routines. Studio's recently released 'My Gal Sal' also had the old-time vaude flavor, although variety musical show side was stressed by the plot.

The Nicholas Brothers, typical vaude dance team, will do their specialties in 'Springtime in the Rockies.' Same picture has Doodles Weaver, piano monologist, showing a typical vaudeville act. Republic is figuring the Weaver Brothers and Elviry and their rural routines for a comedy backgrounded against vaudeville. Studio also has a standard turn in 'Joan of the Ozarks,' with Joe E. Brown, Eddie Foy, Jr., and Anne Jeffreys doing a 'two-a-day' skit. Sequence was first intended as a good-natured jibe at vaude corn, but audience reception at sneak showings led Republic to believe ticket buyers liked it as laugh entertainment.

Columbia has 'Something to Shout About,' the Gregory Ratoff production backgrounded against the old Winter Garden and the specialties that made their name in the show spot. Already set is 'The Bricklayers,' dog act currently doing okay on Broadway. Ratoff is now in New York testing other acts to fill the bill. Don Ameche, Jack Oakie and William Gaxton head the cast. Also at Columbia, working in 'You Were Never Lovelier,' is Douglas Leavitt, formerly Leavitt and Lockett. Rita Hayworth, film's femme lead, did vaude time as a member of the Cansino Family, and Fred Astaire and his sister Adele also started on the circuit.

RKO features Marcy McGuire, femme singer-dancer and personality clown; Lynn, Royce and Fanya, comedy dance act; Peter Lind Hayes, impersonator, and Sergio Orta, the roly-poly rhumba expert and his drum act. They are all working in 'Sweet or Hot,' as is Harold Peary, now known as radio's Great Gildersleeve. Fibber McGee and Molly, and Edgar Bergen, now radio and film names, are old vaude workers clowning in 'Here We Go Again.' Universal used the Pina Troupe, acrobats, in the Abbott and Costello feature, 'Who Done It?' and troupe also goes into 'Arabian Nights,' along with the Johnson Brothers, jugglers. 'Off the Beaten Track,' Ritz Brothers and Carol Bruce starrer, features several vaudeville routines.

New York now has Ed Wynn's 'Laugh, Town, Laugh' satisfying the customers, while locally the Biltmore is doing okay with 'Show Time.' Other legit vaudeville presentations around the country include 'Blackouts of 1942' at the El Capitan in Hollywood; 'Priorities of 1942,' the short-lived Chicago presentation of 'Headliners of 1942,' etc. New variety show scheduled for New York in the fall is 'The Big Time,' for which talent is now being set.

Arnold Gets UMPI's New Sales Proposal

New York, July 5.—UMPI committee in charge of the new sales plan, headed by Austin Keough and William Rodgers, have returned from Washington after presenting their lengthy report to Thurman Arnold and latter's assistant, Robert L. Wright. Neither affirmation nor opposition to the plan was expressed by the Department of Justice officials, who stated they would advise of any revisions, approval or rejections within a week.

After getting expression from DJ the new plan must be presented to Federal Judge Goddard for okay of the legal document, which Keough formulated. What the result will be is anybody's guess. That goes for the expressed SIMPP opposition, as well as the fact that a majority of exhibitors around the country seemingly want the new sales system of blocks of twelve instead of groups of five as was the policy of the five consent decree companies during the past season. Keough and Rodgers were accompanied to Washington by five exhib representatives to the confabs with DJ heads.

Sandrich Returning

New York, July 5.—Mark Sandrich returns to Hollywood tomorrow, followed by Allan Scott, his scripter, who is still in Washington researching Red Cross film, their next for Paramount.

Launch Relief Drive At Mass Meeting Tonight at Par

The film industry's appeal for Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Reliefs will be launched tonight at a mass meeting to be held on Stage 15 at Paramount. A feature of the meeting will be the appearance of the U. S. Navy Band from San Diego, while a chorus of 90 sailors will sing.

Jacob H. Karp, chairman of the drive, has announced that one speaker will represent each cause at tonight's meeting. They are: for Navy Relief, Rear Admiral Joseph R. Defrees; for Dutch Relief, Dr. Adrian Hartog, counsel for the Netherlands; for United China Relief, T. K. Chang, consul for China; for Russian Relief, Mischa Auer. A film, 'United for Victory', will graphically present all four causes.

The 1,200 studio colonels and captains of the money gathering appeal will additionally see and hear a program representative of the four nations. Two Dutch Army heroes will talk. William Thunis, Netherlands concert tenor, will sing. Concert violinist Toscha Seidel will play his $80,000 Stradivarius. Seidel, appearing for Russian Relief, recently enlisted in the U. S. Army and has been given leave from the San Diego Base for this show. David Chow, Chinese actor, will demonstrate Chinese dramatic technique.

WARNERS LANDS BERLIN 'ARMY' SHOW

Warner and Major Albert Warner were 'better' than those of their competitors.

When insiders at Saturday night's July Fourth premiere of the show heard that Warners had walked off with a prize regarded as already in Paramount's grasp, common attitude was that Warners was not merely buying a film property for $250,000, but was also buying 'a million dollars worth of goodwill' for itself.

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, told VARIETY that it actually is debatable whether distribution terms offered by Warners were superior to those proposed by Par, but Balaban said there's no question that the best interests of the Army Relief Fund will be served by whichever company should make the film.

General impression that Paramount would do the film has been based, in part, upon collaboration of Berlin and Mark Sandrich on that studio's 'Holiday Inn.' Warners, however, stepped into the bidding Tuesday and, without stalling a moment, tendered its $250,000 check as down payment.

While Berlin was somewhat partial to Paramount because of his feeling that Sandrich, who was willing to donate his services as director, could do a good job, the composer quickly decided the disposition of film rights was entirely out of his hands and strictly a matter for the Army to decide. Berlin, of course, is donating his services 100%, both to the stage and screen shows.

When VARIETY at inception of 'This Is the Army' esitmated that Army fund might net $1,000,000 from stage, film, radio, music and other rights, people kidded Berlin. But today, after the resounding click of the soldier stage musical at its premiere, Berlin says that estimate may well be exceeded.

When Berlin himself came on for reprise of 'Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning' at 1,1:15 Saturday night, in one scene which harks back to 'Yip Yip Yaphank,' his First World War soldier show, a rousing ovation stalled the proceedings. Audience remained seated at close, waiting for author and ex-soldier Berlin to come out in response to 'Author! Author!' plaudits, but he didn't come. Instead, from backstage, were heard cheers by the cast for Berlin, Sergeant Ezra Stone, who staged the show, and all concerned with the production.

Berlin musical started first of three previews Wednesday night, prior to premiere, which is destined for historic significance, and after the first preview (since there could be no out-of-town break-ins), Paramount got hot all over again. Only to learn, however, that Major Warner on the day before had virtually consummated the negotiations, which Lieutenant Colonal Warner had inaugurated previously.

Warners' plan is to make 'This Is the Army' on scope and caliber of 'Sergeant York' and 'Yankee Doodle Dandy.' It will probably be in color and will likely be augmented by film marquee names now in the Army or likely to be in service two or three months hence. Enough freelancers and others, like William Holden, Burgess Meredith, Wayne Morris, Ronald Reagan, et al, will be available, even if Metro might balk, perhaps, at Clark Gable or Robert Taylor going to Warners for the film.

It is regarded as very likely that Gable, shortly to be commissioned in the Army Air Corps, will appear in the picture, although there is some question whether Taylor will be in the service in time for its start. Also available, in all probability, will be Rudy Vallee, who is understood to be enlisted as an Air Corps private this week.

Army officials take the position that all private contracts of players in the service are invalidated for the duration, as was demonstrated in the case of James Stewart, when he went to Warners to make a recruiting short, with the Army over-ruling Metro protests that star should do this chore on his pre-war home lot.

Berlin's insistence on the Army Relief Fund getting a quarter-million dollars, pronto, hastened consummation of deal with Warners. Y. Frank Freeman, B. G. DeSylva and Balaban were delayed in working out Paramount's distribution percentage proposition by fear that stockholders perhaps might object that they were 'giving away the company.' Balaban called in Price, Waterhouse and Co., accountancy firm, at Par's expense, to prove to Army officials how distribution percentages are peculiar, but the Army's own statisticians meantime decided Warners' proposition was better and closed the deal.

'This Is the Army' is a smash of variety, novelty, comedy and 100% Americanism. Its impact on American morale and manners is undeniably potent. And among the manifold talents, there's one understander in the Allon Trio who probably could win the war by himself. Talk about 'a beautiful hunk of man' (from the Victor Mature billing of the same name), this guy supports seven others in pyramids and amazing holds and lifts that suggest he could open up a breach in any enemy line, without any assistance.

Without too much detail, since such shows defy reviewing (fuller details in VARIETY, out July 8), the talents contained in show had every manager, agent and talent scout at the Broadway Theatre last night mentally pencilling in whom they'll sign up—but quick—as soon as the kiddies settle their scores with Adolf, Benito and Hirohito. With the show goes Berlins' free services, plus some excellent new songs, of which 'I Left My Heart at the Stage Door Conteen,' 'This Is the Army,' and 'I'm Getting So Tired I Can Sleep' are cinch hits, and again plus the screen rights to 'Mandy' and 'Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning.' There are devastating satirical numbers and sequences in the best Berlin style, such as 'That Russian Winter' and 'Undersized Japs'; plenty of goodwill stuff, such as a Salute to the Navy and to the Air Corps (from the Army), and, last but not least, a well-deserved curtsey to the colored troops titled 'What the Well-Dressed Man in Harlem Will wear'—meaning a uniform.

Intent is to film the musical with some of the stage cast—most of whom probably will be overseas by then—and prime it for a general industry goodwiller.

Michael Curtiz, who did 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', probably will direct, donating his services as Sandrich wanted to do.

One factor in Paramount's negotiations as to distribution charges was the fact that company's vice-president in charge of studio operations, Y. Frank Freeman, also is Producers Association prexy. Freeman's position was difficult because of fear that distribution percentage set for this deal might establish a precedent, since other producers envisioned Navy, USO, Red Cross and similar film ideas which could lead to financing by industry of manifold film ventures. Warners, however, went all out on this one.

Harold V. Smith Is Appointed To Unity Committee Boards

Sketch Artists. Approximately 200,000 county workers are represented by the committee.

Harold V. Smith, business representative of Sound Technicians Local 695 and chairman of the IATSE Business Representatives Committee, has been appointed to membership on the industrial disputes and jurisdictional committees set up by the Unity Committee, qualifying him as a delegate to the Committee's Executive Council.

Appointment of Smith gives the picture unions and guilds five posts in the Unity setup, which is comprised of representatives from the American Federation of Labor, Congress of Industrial Organizations, Railroad Brotherhoods and independent unions in Los Angeles County. Other representatives of the picture industry are Bernard Lusher, officer of the Screen Office Employes Guild, who was named secretary-treasurer of the Unity Committee Executive Council; Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, who is a member of the Industrial Disputes Committee; George Bradley, vice-prexy of Building Service Employes International Union, who is chairman of the Industrial Disputes Committee, and Lesley Mason, prexy of the Screen Publicists Guild, who also is a member of the Industrial Disputes Committee.

Purpose of the Committee is to bring unity among the various labor groups in the county, and to prevent wildcat strikes and other work stoppages that might interfere with the War effort. The State War Labor Board, which the Committee will ask Governor Olson to establish, would arbitrate disputes between employer and employee in non defense industries.

THIS IS A JAPANESE CRUISER . .

Official U. S. Navy Ph

This ship is in a hell of a shape . . . thanks to a gang of gallant American bluejackets!

There's a sister ship to this one rotting at the bottom of Macassar Straits. Fighting Dutchmen, who didn't know when they were licked, speeded her on her way.

The tortured earth of China is littered with the wreckage of Japanese tanks and guns and planes that broke against the bare hands and indomitable spirits of the Chinese . . . and half-way around the world, on the blood-soaked plains of the Ukraine, more blasted tanks, more twisted guns, more shattered planes testify to the unbreakable courage and heroism of the Russians.

They've taken plenty, these American fighting men, these Chinese, Russians, Dutchmen . . . but they've dished out plenty, too!

Now its our turn to dish out . . . for them!

All they're asking from us is money. Money to safeguard the children of an American sailor who didn't come back from sinking that cruiser. Money to keep a Chinese child from starving! Money to save the life of a Russian soldier pocked with Nazi shrapnel. Money to help an escaped Dutchman to a place of safety.

Today the Motion Picture Industry launches a drive for money for all of them . . . the FINAL War Drive of 1942.

Your own Guild or Union representative will ask you for contributions to any or all of four great funds . . . the Navy Relief Society, Russian War Relief, Inc., United China Relief, Inc. and Dutch War Relief.

We're not going to tell you we've got to give till it hurts. We're always giving . . . and it always hurts. But it hurts a hell of a lot less than a Nazi bullet . . . or a Japanese bomb!

Universal Will Make 7 Features a Month For Three Months

Universal has laid out a schedule to produce seven features monthly for the next three months, maintaining a sustained summer peak on its 1942-43 season.

First two start today, 'House of Mystery,' with Irene Hervey, Leif Erikson and Don Porter, and 'Raiders of San Joaquin,' a Johnny Mack Brown-Tex Ritter starrer. Others set for July launching are 'Sherlock Holmes In Washington,' 'On the Beam,' 'Flesh and Fantasy,' and 'Moonlight In Havana.'

August quota will include 'Pittsburgh,' a Robert Fellows production with Marlene Dietrich, John Wayne and Randolph Scott, and the Alfred Hitchcock production, 'Shadow of a Doubt,' also 'Don Winslow of the Coast Guard,' a serial; the Ritz Brothers comedy, 'School for Jive,' and another Brown-Ritter actioner.

Crash of TWA airliner which killed Carole Lombard and Otto Winkler, with 20 others on January 16, is blamed by House committee in report issued in Washington on combination of a reckless pilot, military blackout regulations and failure of TWA to establish a safe flight operation in vicinity of crash near Las Vegas, Nev.

SHOWDOWN DUE TONIGHT ON SOEG WAGE NEGOTIATIONS

A showdown on wage negotiations between the Screen Office Employes Guild and Technicolor and the major film exchanges is expected tonight when the SOEG Executive Board meets to discuss the situation. The SOEG Exchange unit has already checked the matter up to the Guild Executive Board, indicating it will take what ever action the board suggests.

The Technicolor unit at a meeting Friday morning is said to have expressed itself as being in favor of a walkout if the company persisted in its refusal to make its 8% wage increase retroactive to Jan. 15. The company offered March 15, but shoved that back to June 1 when Guild representatives did not immediately accept it.

Both situations are certain to be brought before the Conference of Studio Unions if the SOEG is unable to get together with the companies. Union officials admitted that a strike order in either the exchanges or Technicolor would be certain to involve the studios, with the probability that production would be halted.

Marco Wolff in N.Y.

Marco Wolf, of Fanchon & Marco, left for New York Friday night on biz connected with his theatre interests and to wind up his operation of the Roxy, New York, for 20th-Fox. Roxy will have A. J. Balaban as managing director after Aug. 28, but F & M will still book stage shows for the house.

'Miniver' 5 First Run Simultaneous LA Dates

'Mrs. Miniver' will get a five theatre first run opening in Los Angeles on July 23, with picture set for fiveply first week showing simultaneously at Loew's State, Grauman's Chinese, Fox Wilshire, downtown United Artists and the Carthay Circle.

Deal, inked Friday, provides for picture to play one week in the five houses, continue for a second sesh at the UA, Wilshire and Carthay—and go indefinitely beyond that point at the latter house.

'Miniver' gets pre-release bookings at the United Artists, Portland, starting Thursday, and Loew's Warfield, San Francisco, starting Friday. Both will holdover if biz justifies. Picture has also been set for day-date first run in Seattle at the Paramount and Fifth Ave. theatres.

Actress Sells Bonds

Loretta Young headed East Friday for dual purpose of sealing War Bonds and meeting her husband, Major Tom Lewis. During her three-weeks stay she will attend a War Bond rally for colored people in Cleveland and may also go to Washington to sell bonds.

Scanlon Judgment Of $77,658 Against Henie Upheld

New York, July 5.—Sonja Henie was ordered to pay $77,658 as agent fees to Dennis Scanlon in a jury verdict of the Appellate Division of New York supreme court rendered Friday.

A three to two vote by the judges made valid an oral contract which Scanlon had made with Henie in France during 1936. The agreement as claimed was to net him 10 per cent of Henie's earnings for his efforts to get her in pictures. Scanlon brought suit against Henie on these points in 1940 claiming her film earnings up to then had been $600,000. The case was appealed when the jury before Justice Aron Steuer favored Scanlon.

A dissenting opinion of the court stated the contract should have been in writing and that it felt the decision contrary to the weight of the evidence. The opinion also pointed out that the decision makes Henie subject to the contract for life.

White House Call By Hays Ends Short Capital Stay

Washington, July 5.—Will Hays climaxed several days of conferences here with numerous Governmental heads regarding problems of the film industry by calling on President Roosevelt at the White House on Friday. He spent half an hour with the President.

Though he is understood to have talked about Government Industry relations, Hays had nothing to say about the possible consequence of the centralization of Federal war information activities under Elmer Davis or any policy changes that will be reflected in screen product. He was not quite as mum as usual. He said after his huddle, 'The motion picture industry believes it is doing all it can for this country and the United Nations. But I wanted to be sure. So I came in to check with the president. All pictures are good—some are better.'

Hays also conferred at the Treasury Department regarding possibility of immediate release of film company coin that has been frozen in Britain. He asked the Department to submit plan of the industry for 'unfreezing' of around $40,000,000, which the American companies at this time could conveniently use. Hays also conferred with Lowell Mellett, Federal film coordinator, before leaving here.

Olman's First Trip To Hollywood in 20 Years

Abe Olman, managing director of Robbins, Feist and Miller music companies arrives here today for his first visit to Hollywood studios in 20 years. His mission is to contact executives at Metro, Universal and 20th Century-Fox to discuss publishing plans in connection with forthcoming musical productions. He probably will renew contracts with various writers and composers now associated with the companies.

Olman will remain here for three weeks and on return to New York will stop over in Chicago to look over the music situation there with Jack Robbins.

Strotz Hosts Critics

Sidney Strotz, NBC v-p, will play host to local music critics on July 19 for western hemisphere premiere of Shostakovich's seventh symphony over NBC. Critics will be partied in NBC conference rooms while listening to the heroic music story of the Leningrad siege. Music was flown from Soviet on micrafilm and transcribed in New York for broadcast from that end.

Story Buys

Columbia has purchased 'I Walked With a Zombie,' by Inez Wallace, Cleveland Plain Dealer film columnist. Story, published in American Weekly, concerns an American girl who claims a sugar plantation on a lonely Caribbean Island as her inheritance and encounters voodoo, mystery and an army of zombies. Cal Lawton has been assigned to produce.

Radio Plans Recruiting Military Personnel

Radio execs are figuring to approach armed services on use of radioites already in uniform to handle camp and base remoted shows to help cut down the manpower shortage among technicians, announcers, production men, et al., instead of drawing on industry's supply.

Since armed forces have drawn many from radio's ranks because of their special abilities, who remain at nearby bases for most part, officials feel they could utilize the experts at home bases in preference to drawing on their own limited staffs. This would be especially true in the Fall, following further depletion of industry's ranks and return of more shows, particularly the touring name shows which play camps, etc.

Not likely that many really hotshot commercials would be entrusted to just another announcer or engineer, but in cases where a recognized good bet is in khaki or blue, it would be practical to hand over reins to lad on hand for less risky assignments such as special events, regular Armyavy features, sustainers, and kindred lightweights. Move would represent coin savings to stations and nets, too, it's figured.

Donohue For Owen Spot

Chicago, July 5.—James Donohue, Paramount branch manager here, is reported to be the successor to Hugh Owen in the Dallas district for the company. Owen goes into New York as eastern division manager succeeding J. J. Unger, who resigned to take top sales berth with RKO.

Cobina Wright at Col

Cobina Wright goes to Columbia on loan-out from 20th-Fox for featured role in 'Something to Sing About.'

Flacks Not Included In Paramount Bonus

New York, July 5.—Peeved over failure of Paramount to include Screen Publicists Guild of New York members of its publicity and advertising department in a quarterly box paid Friday to other home office and exchange employes, the SPG has consulted its attorney as to possible action. Question is whether a clause in the SPG contract relating to discrimination against its members would have any weight in the circumstances.

All other employes, excepting the 32 executives who are on the Paramount pension plan list, received the equivalent of 8% of the first $100 of salary and 4% on the balance not exceeding $100, multiplied by the 13 weeks of the second quarter ended Saturday. Bonus is based on the U. S. Bureau of Labor figures showing the average increase in living costs for the second quarter was 8% compared with a year ago.

Members of the SPG, however, received a 10% wage tilt when Par signed a contract with them six weeks ago, retroactive to Oct. 1.

Goodman Due Weekend To Succeed Braly

New York, July 5.—Del Goodman, former Paramount general manager of distribution, heads for Los Angeles on Wednesday to become the company district manager on the coast.

Goodman says he got out of Canada just in time to escape the new taxes there, and said the new levies worked terrific hardship upon everyone. Goodman who had the Canadian post for a year will replace Hugh Braly who has been transferred to Denver from the coast.

ting rooms are being leased at the Fox Western lot to be utilized in the assembly of the films.

Under arrangements now being negotiated between the Research Council and the studio attorney, 20th-Fox will lease this studio space to the Council for the duration of the War for $1 per year. Production of the films will be handled in the various studios under the existing arrangements between the studios, the Research Council and the War Department by exactly the same procedure under which over 200 reels of training films have been produced in Hollywood during the past 15 months.

Bergen, McCarthy Double in Brass

Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy doubled in brass yesterday for patriotic purposes. The pair teamed with Lionel Barrymore on a broadcast for the Office of Facts and Figures, then joined Don Ameche and Janet Blair for the Victory Parade broadcast.

Saturday night Paul Whiteman, Bing Crosby, Dinah Shore, the Kings Men, Harry James and Bill Goodwin took to the air on the Gershwin Memorial show for the Treasury Department. Other activities of the Hollywood Victory Committee for Saturday included the finals of the beauty pageant at the Victory House downtown with Maria Montez and Jon Hall acting as judges.

Expect Film Delivery Key Plan Tomorrow

New York, July 5.—New York Film Board of Trade met again on Friday to work out the formula for cutting film deliveries which may be made adaptable to other key situations, though not the small towns.

Exchange managers, bookers, shipping heads and carrier representatives huddled all day with plans that are likely to be ready on Tuesday for adoption by the Board meeting that day.

TWENTIETH Century-Fox cancellation of distribution contract for Howard Hughes' 'The Outlaw,' which was handed Hughes last week, was apparently taken under clause in the original agreement signed early last year which provided that Hughes deliver two productions within a year to the 20th-Fox distribution department. Failure of Hughes to get the second picture under way—combined with the censorship trouble he ran into in several states—gave the distrib a legal 'out' on its agreement. Hughes, who retained roadshow rights to 'The Outlaw' before turning it over to 20th for general release, is going ahead with his roadshow plans in metropolitan cities regardless of the distrib cancellation—and may await results before making a distribution deal on national basis. There is an outside chance that Hughes might decide to release his production after roadshow datings through independent state rights exchanges.

MONOGRAM will stress topical subjects in a large portion of its 1942-43 commitments, figuring pictures built around the headlines will find a quicker market and turnover. Under company's production setup, it is able to rush some significant headline into the writing mill and have it ready for the cameras before the news becomes stale. It now has two such films already on the market, 'She's In the Army' and 'Rubber Racketeers,' both of which cash in on nationally significant subjects. Others will be scripted as events occur, but subjects chosen will be those that won't involve lengthy research or production delays, a factor of considerable importance when early releases must be met. Company will also try as near as possible to anticipate national events so that films dealing with topical matters can be ready for the market at the time news is hot.

COLUMBIA is using pickup system for recording of music in 'The Talk of the Town' that eliminates necessity of solo instruments to increase or decrease tonal volume in obtaining musical balance. System, called a multiple channel pickup, uses 10 microphones spotted at strategic points throughout the 35-piece orchestra. Mikes lead to a 10-dial master control panel where music from each instrument is given the proper valuation in the score. System is improving tonal qualities and will be used on subsequent films at the studio.

IN remaking 'Manhattan Melodrama,' which originally starred Clark Gable, under the new title of 'Gambler's Choice,' with James Craig in the Gable role, Metro is moving locale of the story from Manhattan to the Yukon. This amazing jump is being staged, however, for very practical reasons. With WPB restrictions on set construction, it behooves Metro to move its remake outdoors and Metro reasons, with admitted clarity, that there's no place that has quite as much outdoors as the Yukon.

Joe Listener, the dial fan,
Was highly thrilled when war began
To hear the tidings on the air
Of far-off battles here and there.
Home from his work at eventide
He sat and pondered, open-eyed,
As tidings wafted on the breeze
Of noble actions overseas.
Tonight he bends his eager ears
And every quarter-hour he hears
The tidings from a foreign shore
That he has heard an hour before.
And when he wakes at break of day
To snatch his meal of shredded hay
He scans the news that he has read
Last night before he went to bed.

Footlight Serenade

(Comedy Drama With Music)

20th-Fox production. Stars John Payne, Betty Grable, Victor Mature. Features Jane Wyman, James Gleason, Phil Silvers and Cobina Wright, Jr. Supporting cast: June Lang, Frank Orth, Mantan Moreland, Irving Bacon, Charles Tannen, George Dobbs. Directed by Gregory Ratoff. Produced by William LeBaron. Screen play, Robert Ellis, Helen Logan and Lynn Starling. Based on story by Fidel LaBarba and Kenneth Earl. Lyrics and music by Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger. Dances staged by Hermes Pan. Photography, Lee Garmes. Art direction, Richard Day and Albert Hogsett. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Robert Simpson. Costumes, Earl Luick. Musical direction, Charles Henderson. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 6, 1942. Running time: 81 MINS.

The flesh appeal of both Betty Grable and Victor Mature is strongly, and in some scenes daringly emphasized, in this entertaining comedy, saturated with music, and as authentic in atmosphere, people and incident as any of the better Broadway backstage filmusicals. Femme legs and manly chests are all over the place — on the rehearsal stage, in dressing rooms, in training quarters. Betty Grable is a dancer, on the make for a Broadway career. Victor Mature is a champ fighter and leading man in the stage musical, on the make for the dancer. John Payne is secretly married to Betty, and, as a stop-gap job, works as Mature's sparring partner in a fight feature of the show. All he wants is to proclaim to the whole world—and especially to the arrogant and intrusive Mature—that the dancer is his bride, that they love each other and merely wish to be let alone. The director, Gregory Ratoff, and the cameraman, Lee Garmes, miss no bets in pointing up the physical qualities which are presumed to be the chief box office assets of Mature and Miss Grable. Even John Payne gets in on the dishabille in a pair of shorts during a song with Miss Grable.

Picture looks like a good entry for summer show top rating in the general run of situations. It has a lot of easy comedy, lot of eye appeal, good music with some genuine novelty production angles, a well-staged slam-bang fight, a couple of outstanding dances, and generally smart production, with regard for the common taste.

Story is ample to collate the singing, the dancing, the romancing and the funning for the entertainment levels set by William LeBaron as his production objective. Robert Ellis, Helen Logan and Lynn Starling concocted the bright and picturesque screen play from Fidel LaBarba's and Kenneth Earl's original yarn. The timeworn premise for the complications, namely that the star dancer can't afford to reveal her secret marriage until after the show is established, can be disregarded because of the way it's been handled.

Mature gives an excellent account of his expanding and not-yet-fully-used talents, both along romantic and comedy lines, and, when called upon in a few key scenes, a denite demonstration of his latent gifts as a serious actor.

John Payne does very well by his sympathetic young husband role, with strong audience support to see him knock the ears off the cocksure fighter-actor.

Betty Grable is cast to exercise all her femme allure, but also manages to supplement that very obvious natural advantage with a display of dancing ability and romantic fervor which are especially effective in filmusicals.

Topping the support are Jane Wyman as the show girl pal of Miss

A-Haunting We Will Go

(Comedy)

20th-Fox production. Stars Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy and Dante, the Magician. Supporting cast: Sheila Ryan, John Shelton, Don Costello, Elisha Cook, Jr., Edward Gargan, Addison Richards, George Lynn, James Bush, Lou Lubin, Robert Emmett Keane, Richard Lane, Willie Best. Directed by Alfred Werker. Executive producer, Sol M. Wurtzel. Screen play, Lou Breslow. Original story, Lou Breslow and Stanley Rauh. Photography, Glen MacWilliams. Art direction, Richard Day and Lewis Creber. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Alfred Day. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 6, 1942. Running time: 69 MINS.

Combination of characteristic Laurel and Hardy clowning and hocus-pocus by Dante, the magician, works out well to give the addicts of slapstick and stage trickery an extra portion of lively entertainment. The antic manner of the comedy team and the showmanship of the illusionist are blended and counterpointed for plenty of laughs in the novel setup. Revelation of some of the principles behind classical magician's tricks, as part of the story, add interest to the hilarity. 'A-Haunting' will be relished wherever the customers go for the Laurel and Hardy brand of amusement.

The tale gets a bit confused at times, but the gist of it is the trouble the boys wade into when they undertake to deliver what they believe is a corpse to a distant city, whereas in reality they are helping smuggle a wanted crook through police lines via the coffin. The sarcophagus gets mixed up with a magician's props at the depot and results eventually in the death of the coffined crook at the hands of a fellow gangster. Meantime Laurel and Hardy are the comical victims and stooges of the magician's stage illusions. Situation created by Lou Breslow and Stanley Rauh provides basis for a lot of fresh and novel gags, carried out neatly in Breslow's script and smartly punctuated in Alfred Werker's direction.

Sheila Ryan and John Shelton handle the romantic element pleasingly. Don Costello, Elisha Cook, Jr., George Lynn and Lou Lubin comprise the gangsters group. Addison Richards, James Bush, Robert Emmett Keane, Richard Lane and Willie Best are capable in support.

Werker's crisp direction shows the veteran's knowledge and skill in handling comedy values. To do full justice to the magician and his important billing, as well as to the comedy stars, in a script packed with incident and gag routines, required careful and sure craftsmanship. Werker wraps it up handily.

Sol Wurtzel's presentation gets the benefit of sound technical support and carries more than the usual production values for a Laurel and Hardy.

NY Holiday Biz Great; Jumps 10% To 20% Over Last Year

New York, July 6.—Heavy influx of out-of-towners, plus large proportion of natives who didn't get away for the Fourth of July weekend; plus servicemen with more money in their pockets as a result of the first $50 minimum payday for privates — jumped business for the picture houses in the downtown area 10 to 20% over same weekend of a year ago. Even the smaller houses did a landoffice take.

Music Hall led the street in gross with 'Mrs. Miniver' in its fourth week, while 'Magnificent Dope' and 'Beyond the Blue Horizon' with Vaughn Monroe on second week, at the Roxy and Paramount, respectively, ran second.

Most unusual—but proving again that out-of-towners favor stageshows —was done by Loew's State with 'Reap the Wild Wind' and holdover of Milton Berle on the stage. Gross was one of the biggest Saturdays ever tabbed in the history of the house.

In Loew nabe operations, also, 'Reap' was tremendous with Thursday openings that brought highest biz for the houses in many years. In the downtown area, as in the nabes, the gates were better on Saturday than Sunday, but not more than 10% behind in most cases—despite the fact that Sunday always falls off up to 25% on any weekend. Friday biz was above normal, with many visitors getting in town that day for the holiday weekend.

out of general circulation are being donated by the film exchanges. Employes, including operators, give free services for the extra shows, with F-WC providing all house expenses; and admission is only via donation at the box office of at least one pound of rubber material that can be salvaged in the national stockpile.

Early returns of recouped rubber show theatre returns as follows: Los Angeles city houses (to date), 15 tons; San Bernardino, excess of one ton; Ontario, more than one ton; Pomona, one and a half tons; and Santa Ana, two tons. Policy is to space out the shows in each town or district so that two nearby circuit houses will not compete with each other too closely.

Paramount, Monogram, Columbia, Universal and Republic are far out in front in providing gratis prints for the rubber matinees—it is disclosed by checkup of bookings. Other distribs are far behind in number of pictures supplied for the drive.

F-WC six Los Angeles first runs—Loew's State, Grauman's Chinese, Wilshire, United Artists, Carthay Circle and Four Star—will conduct rubber matinees Friday, with children being admitted to the regular shows via delivery of the rubber requirement up until 6 p.m.

Success of the rubber salvage drive in circuit theatres of the southern California division will likely extend the plan to other subsidiaries of National Theatres throughout the country. Inquiry has already been received from the San Francisco division on details of the drive, with expectation that it will be put into effect in the northern sector of the circuit within the next week.

Frisco Plans Free Weekly Show For Service Men

San Francisco, July 6.—Supervisor Robert Green today proposed to board of supervisors that entertainers be recruited for a mammoth show every Monday night in Civic Auditorium for service men. Civilians attending would be charged up to $10 or be required to make a donation to USO.

Green said niteries would be unable to furnish the entertainment inasmuch as many of them are closed on Monday night.

Green also recommended that anyone renting Memorial Auditorium for presentation of any show be required to put up $500 as guarantee for a faithful performance. In this connection he mentioned the light opera fiasco of a year or so ago during which some performances were cancelled and complaints from advance ticket buyers that their money was not refunded. Both suggestions were referred to a committee.

Industry Additions To Armed Forces

Bunch of industry names were prominent in reports from armed services yesterday. Lieut. Gene Smith, former film stunter known as Gene Clark, and Lieut. Jack Watson, former wrangler for Harry Sherman, are in parachute training at a southern Army camp.

Glenn Miller, son of Earl Miller, head of RKO electrical department, joins the Army tomorrow.

Edward A. Blatt, former New York producer, and dialog director on Warners' 'Watch on the Rhine,' goes to the Army in next few days.

James Hall, World War vet and RKO driver for past seven years, has returned to Army as an artillery officer.

Bob Burns Airs For Lifebuoy In Fall

Bob Burns returns to the air early in October over CBS for Lifebuoy. He will use the 'Arkansaw Traveler' formula, which proved successful for Campbell soup, recently terminated. No producer for the program will be set until Don Stauffer, radio head of Ruthrauff & Ryan agency, has conferred with Burns. Stauffer auditions two new programs in the next two weeks, the first being Arch Oboler's horror series, 'Lights Out'. Likely that the agency will have four or five programs originating here next season.

Army Relief Gets $700

Despite widespread exodus of Pasadenans from town for the week-end holiday, Academy theatre in that city grossed $700 Friday night on opening of the house. Entire receipts were turned over to the Army Relief in line with previous arrangements made by Charles P. Skouras, prez of Fox West Coast, to turn over all receipts of premiere to Army Relief.

Frisco Chatter

San Francisco, July 6.—Six radio technicians at KQCE, Contra Costa county sheriff's station, are threatening July 15 walkout unless substantial wage increase is forthcoming. Rejecting offer of county Supervisors for nine per cent, technicians cited wartime demand for radio technicians, and consequent pay increases elsewhere.

I. Magnin and Co., sponsor of KYA's 'Opera Curtain Time' during 1941 San Francisco Opera season, has signed for similar program this year, October 9 through November 1.

'Eagle Squadron' is still clicking along at terrific pace, at $16,000-$17,000, in its second week at the Orpheum, after chalking up sensational $22,000 house record — $5,000 greater than previous mark —on first stanza.

William Roddy has been promoted from guest relations staff at Radio City to KPO announcer. Frank Barton goes to Hollywood NBC.

Platter 'Command'

Tonight's recording of 'Command Performance' for the War Department will be made at the Vine Street theatre with Bob Hope as emcee. Other talent comprises Lena Horne, Ginny Simms, Shaw and Lee, Rosalind Russell and the orchestras of Victor Young and Les Brown. As an added feature to comply with a soldier request, a hurdy gurdy will be played. Next week's plattered program will slant toward the classical, with Jascha Heifetz as violin soloist. Series is being produced by Maury Holland, with Glenn Wheaton supervising and editing the scripts.

SCG To Join CLC

The Executive Board of the Screen Cartoonists Guild voted unanimously last night to recommend to the general membership that the SCG affiliate with the Central Labor Council. It will be suggested that the time and arrangements for affiliation be left up to the Executive Board. The next general membership meeting is scheduled for Monday night.

Hopkins Slated For War Manpower Job

William Hopkins is said to have the inside track for appointment as Coast representative of the U. S. War Manpower Commission. Selection of Hopkins is being urged on the government by practically all studio guilds and unions. Appointment of a Coast head is expected to be made this week when a Commission representative arrives from Washington.

Herb Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and Attorney George E. Bodle were in San Francisco yesterday, presumably to line up support for Hopkins. It is understood that Hopkins also has the support of Frank Carothers, secretary of the Motion Picture Internationals Committee.

Mischa, Great Lover

Mischa Auer will be depicted as 'the great lover,' in the second of his 'Mischa the Magnificant' sustaining series Sunday over CBS broadcast from KNX. Collection of fictional memoirs is the basis of new type of comedy programs being written by Carl Hertzinger and produced by Paul Pierce. In Auer's supporting cast are Bea Benadaret, Frank Graham, Lurene Tuttle, Lou Merrill and Earle Ross. Music is directed by Bill Hatch with choral background by the Music Maids.

Radio Co-op Meet

New York, July 6.—International Film Relations Committee met at the Hays office today to outline new plans for film and radio cooperation with Office of War Information and Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. Sam Boals, representing OWI; Fortune at Baronat, Universal; Michael Hoffay, RKO, and John Angell, Columbia, were named to the sub-committee to work out the radio project with William A. Hillport of CIAA.

Out of Bound Taverns

San Francisco, July 6.—Three more large downtown taverns, Silver Dollar, Pirate's Cave and Silver Rail were declared 'off limits' by the army, and the navy immediately concurred, designating the establishments as 'out of bounds.'

Benny Wants 20th To Change 'Meanest Man' Script

Jack Benny is refusing to go ahead with his 20th-Fox starrer, 'The Meanest Man In the World', unless a considerable number of changes are made in the script. William Perlberg, who will produce, was taken by surprise yesterday at the Benny beef, but later admitted that a check-up indicated that Benny was unhappy about a number of matters related to 'Meanest Man' and that the situation would be taken into executive conference today with Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz.

Benny's complaints were made to friends outside the studio and reached Perlberg only indirectly. Start on picture had been set for July 13th, after original date, July 6, had been abandoned when it was found Benny would be delayed several weeks in finishing in Warner's 'George Washington Slept Here'. Rehearsals were slated for this week.

Script on 'Meanest Man' has been turned in by Morrie Ryskind as completed. Just what changes or amendments might be made, in line with Benny's demands, were to be determined at the executive conference today.

Phil Harris or Hoff Head C. G. Band

It's a tossup between Phil Harris and Carl Hoff as to whom will swing the baton for the Coast Guard Band. Both orchestra leaders have made a pitch for the maestro job. Harris, recently notched at IA, had been ordered to take his physical but asked for deferment until September which was denied. He is now in Chicago on tour with his band.

Launch 'Pay Day Quiz'

New audience participater, 'Pay Day Quiz,' will be launched tonight from stage of the downtown Paramount theatre. Series airs over KHJ at 8 p. m. on Tuesdays under sponsorship of Barbara Ann bakeries. Stu Wilson presides as emcee and Tom Dale produces and announces.

Texas Playboys Record

Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys will record four sides for Decca, using tunes from Columbia's 'Law of the Badlands'. Songs are 'The Plain Old Plains', 'Salt River Valley', 'Ridin' for the Rancho', and 'Fiddlin' Men'.

Gottlieb Is Assigned Three More A & C Pix

Alex Gottlieb has been assigned to produce three more Abbott and Costello comedies at Universal in addition to the Olsen and Johnson comedy, 'Crazy House.' Gottlieb is currently readying the A and C South Seas yarn, 'Pardon My Sarong' for August release and 'Who Done It?' for November release.

First of the new trio of Abbott and Costellos is 'Hold Your Horses,' by Damon Runyon, skedded to go before the cameras in September. Meanwhile, Gottlieb plans a vacation in August with a hop to New York for the opening of 'Pardon My Sarong.'

Grable, James Gleason as the harried and plaintive producer, and Phil Silvers in a bright revelation of his own comic gifts. Cobina Wright, Jr., is the socialite leading lady whose jealous walkout gives Betty Grable her chance at the top femme spot in the show. June Lang, Frank Orth, Irving Bacon, Charles Tannen, George Dobbs and Mantan Moreland ably complete the cast.

Hermes Pan dances with Miss Grable in one of the highlights of the show. Miss Grable scores again in her solo number with a shadow of herself on a background screen. Shadow steps from screen and boxes with the star in one phase of the 'I Heard the Birdies Sing' number, written by Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger. Cluster of catchy songs by Robin and Rainger, who supplied all lyrics and music, includes 'Except With You', 'Are You Kidding?', 'I'm Still Crazy For You', 'I'll Be Marching to a Love Song'. Ditties are neatly interpolated in story.

Gregory Ratoff's sprightly direction socks the elements of gaiety, comedy and melody as adult entertainment for the air-conditioned season. Hermes Pan staged the dances. Charles Henderson presided on musical direction. The production is unstinted, without being overly lavish, and maintains backstage atmosphere validly.

CITIZENSHIP OATH SAVES WAR JOBS

chairman of the Manpower Commission.

The order going out to defense factories will allow an applicant for a job in a plant producing tanks, airplanes, etc., to swear in the presence of an Army or Navy plant representative that he or she is a citizen. It was stated the applicant will be reminded that the penalty for misstating his status is a fine of $10,000, five years imprisonment, or both.

Many film workers have reported they are unable to get birth certificates because records were not kept in their state, have been destroyed, etc. Scores of these also have found it impossible to get secondary proofs because of separation of families, etc.

One studio executive said if the government is willing to admit workers into defense factories on a sworn oath as to their citizenship, such oath should be sufficient to qualify a studio worker for registration. It was pointed out that even after taking the oath, the worker would be photographed and fingerprinted before being issued an identification card. Since these records are sent to the FBI, he said it would be a simple matter to check on the status of workers registered under an oath of citizenship.

Whether the policy will be extended to the motion picture industry is expected to be decided today when the matter is taken up by the committee handling the Central Registration Bureau for casual employes. The new ruling of the government also has been called to the attention of Howard R. Philbrick, general manager of Central Casting Corp., who issues work calls for some 6,500 extras.

Navy explained theatre turnstile upon which Burns based his contention was not for stage entertainment. The turnstile for 10 cents admission, the Navy said, was used only for motion pictures other than Navy issue, obtained at the request of the sailors and with their consent for 10 cents charge to defray costs.

'Village' For Mid-August

'Greenwich Village' will get the go signal at 20th-Fox in mid-August if Alice Faye is able at that time to resume work in films after time out for motherhood. William LeBaron will produce. In case Miss Faye wants to delay her return, LeBaron will schedule 'Improper Relations' and 'Bird of Paradise' ahead of 'Village.' Robert Ellis and Helen Logan are scripting 'Relations' and Noel Langley is writing 'Paradise,' a Gene Tierney starrer.

Goldsmith at Columbia

Columbia has signed I. Goldsmith, formerly connected with British International Pictures in a production capacity, to a term producer contract. No Basis For Charge—

Deputy City Attorney Kenneth Holland yesterday refused to issue a complaint against Leon Mojica, orchestra leader, for allegedly falsifying a robbery report, according to police at West Los Angeles station. Last Thursday Mojica reported to police he'd been robbed of $550. Investigation proved Mojica paid a hotel bill twenty minutes after the purported holdup. Complaint was refused on basis that police had failed to establish that a crime had been committed.

Going, Going G - - - —

Latest accounting of estate of $1,000,000 which William Guggenheim left to four showgirls reveals dwindling to $3,632. Expenses, claims and commissions to be passed on next Monday may erase that, too, according to the New York surrogate's court. Lillyan Andrus, of Hollywood, Mildred Borst, Mary Alice Rice and Florence Sullivan, beneficiaries, are permitted to contest claims.

Tully Absolved of Charges—

Thomas Alton Tully, son of novelist Jim Tully, was freed yesterday in Superior Court of attack charges of Mrs. Mary Baird. July deliberated 12 minutes on testimony that she was forced to submit to Tully's attentions after leaving a Hollywood bar.

Rubinoff Announces Engagement—

Back form U.S.O. Camp tour, Dave Rubinoff, violinist, yesterday in New York announced his engagement to Martice Ashby of Wichita Falls, Tex. Having no ring, Dave substituted a diamond-studded medal as clincher for non-professional fiancee.

Skirball Hires Benson

Sally Benson, author of the Broadway play 'Junior Miss,' has been signed by Jack Skirball to write additional dialog for 'Shadow of a Doubt,' Skirball production which Universal will release. Script was written by Thornton Wilder. Miss Benson will do her writing in New York. Alfred Hitchcock will direct.

Planes Drop Appeal For Combined War Reliefs

The motion picture industry's combined appeal for Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Reliefs was officially launched last night at a massed meeting at Paramount. The campaign will be accelerated today, however, when Navy aircraft from Roosevelt Base, Terminal Island, will fly over the various studios and drop pamphlets descriptive of Navy Relief.

The planes will fly under the direction of Commander Knefler McGinnis. One will cover Metro, 20th-Fox, Hal Roach and RKO Pathe. The second will drop its peaceful missles at Warners, Walt Disney and Universal. The third is to visit Paramount, RKO, Columbia.

Last night's affair was attended by the 1,200 appeal Colonels, Captains and others who will supervise the industry's final war relief appeal of the year. Campaign chairman Jacob H. Karp introduced the following speakers who presented their cause: Navy Relief, Rear Admiral Joseph R. Dufress; For Dutch Relief, Dr. Adrian Hartog, Consul for the Netherlands; For United China Relief, T. K. Chang, Consul for China; For Russian Relief, Mischa Auer. Radio announcer Ken Carpenter acted as emcee.

Presenting pictorially all four causes was a special film, 'United For Victory and United For Humanity'. The script was written by Joseph Catanich. Art Gilmore did the commentation.

In addition to the talks on the four causes, an entertainment included songs by Willie Thunis, violin selections by Toscha Seidel, dramatic selections by David Chow. Music was provided by the Navy band from San Diego, and a chorus of 90 U. S. sailors.

Stang Wants To Stage

Arnold Stang, New York radio comic brought here by RKO for 'Sweet or Hot,' expects to remain on the Coast for further film and radio chores instead of returning east. He has joined cast of the 'Josephine Tuttle' summer show on the Jack Benny time. Stang was written out of seven eastern air shows to do the RKO film assignment.

Producers Defer Meet

Scribbling

Jack Natteford has turned in first draft on his script on 'Here Come the Marines 'at Monogram. Picture goes before the cameras later this month with Robert Lowery and Guinn Williams in the leads.

F. Hugh Herbert assigned to collaborate with W. R. Burnett on script of 'Galveston' at Paramount after completing stint on screen play of 'The Incomparable Alfred'.

Barney Dean loaned by Paramount to work on Bob Hope gags for 'They Got Me Covered' at Goldwyn's.

Paramount loaned Warren Duff to Columbia to script 'Cover Girl'.

Studio Gaffers To Join Top Lensers Under IBEW

fers had decided to come in after meeting with the cameramen and being advised that they would have a separate unit in the local, with complete autonomy, and would be permitted to manage their own affairs and elect their own officers. The gaffers are now affiliated with the IATSE, and any move to switch over to the IBEW probably would result in a jurisdictional fight between the two crafts.

It was indicated that the ASC was awaiting a decision by the National Labor Relations Board on its unfair labor practice charge against Producers before moving for Conference affiliation, etc. Director William Walsh, of the NLRB, said data in the ASC case is now being assembled and that a decision as to whether an official hearing will be ordered is expected to be reached this week.

Herbert Aller, business representative of International Photographers Local 659, was keeping a close watch on developments, but apparently was withholding action for lack of a go ahead signal from Prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE. The IA International is said to be reluctant to move against the first cameramen because of their five-year contract with the major companies.

Drivers Transfer to Defense Projects

There is no unemployment list in Studio Transportation Drivers Local 399 despite the curtailment of film transportation to save rubber. More than 25 teamsters have been transferred to defense projects by Business Representative Joseph P. Tuohy. Latter said that while many runs had been discontinued, there is an almost steady call for drivers in the War industries.

'Dawn' Co-Stars Set

Paramount has shoved 'The Hour Before Dawn' ahead on its production schedule as result of public interest in the book by Y. Somerset Maugham. David Lewis has been handed production assignment and Tess Slesinger and Frank Davis start on script today. Zorina and Ray Milland will co-star.

As All Could Do

Motion Picture Magazine, one of the Fawcett Publications, is donating publisher's profits from the August issue to the Navy Relief Society. Quota for magazine field in NRS drive is $15,000 and donation from Fawcett fan publication is expected to equal quota contributions.

Harve Foster, assistant director, along with construction and art department crew, left yesterday for British Columbia to prepare for location troupe of 'The Commandos', Lester Cowan production for Columbia, which heads for Victoria next week.

Cast Autry Pic

Virginia Grey is spotted opposite Gene Autry in Republic's 'Bells of Capistrano,' last of the Autrys for 1941-42 season, starting today. Smiley Burnette has the co-star place and featured is Morgan Conway. William Morgan directs for associate producer Harry Grey.

SOEG PLANS 'VACATION' STRIKE IN WAGE DEALS

with refusal of the exchanges to agree to classification of employes.

Union leaders were reluctant to disclose their plans, but it is understood that if a work stoppage order is issued it will call for all clerical employes of Technicolor and the exchanges to take vacations. While tentative plans do not call for picket lines the 'vacation' strike probably would extend to other crafts which are affiliated with the White Collarites in the Conference of Studio Unions. These include the Machinists, Studio Painters, Set Designers, Sketch Artists, Laboratory technicians, and Cartoonists.

Unless a speedy agreement is reached it is probable the 'vacation' strike would involve the studios because of their close tie-in with Technicolor and the exchanges. It is also likely the 2,000 White Collarites in the studios would take 'vacations' in support of the other Guild units if necessary, since the general membership has always supported the individual units in their negotiations with the companies.

The beef with Technicolor is over the payment of retroactive pay. The company has agreed to an eight per cent wage increase, but the Guild is holding out for a January 15 retroactive date. The company offered March 15, but moved this back to June when SOEG representatives did not immediately agree to accept.

A showdown with the film exchanges is scheduled this morning when the Guild will insist on classification of Exchange Collarites along the same lines as the studios. It is understood the Executive Board last night instructed the negotiating committee to take the minimum base rates of pay, classify the individuals and submit them to the company representatives. If the answer is no, the Exchange group is certain to join in the 'vacation' strike move.

Union leaders said they were not asking any more of Technicolor than it had granted to other crafts, and that the arbitrary stand taken by the Exchanges made it impossible to get together on a basic agreement. Officials of the SOEG were reported in conference last night with Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions and business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644.

Technicolor officials were keeping in close touch with the situation, but up to last midnight had made no new effort to get together with the Guilders. Earlier in the day the company representatives called Guild headquarters to ask the meaning of the 'strike action' voted by the Technicolor unit and whether it was planned to establish picket lines.

Under military regulations, audiences will be limited to 5,000 per performance.

Lil Day Sues Benson; Charges Plagiarism

New York, July 6.—Lillian Day, writer, filed suit today in Federal court, claiming plagiarism against Sally Benson, author of 'Junior Miss', and also naming the publisher, Random House, together with Max Gordon, producer of the current stage hit, and the adapters, Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields. The action seeks a restraining order and an accounting of the profits.

Miss Day's complaint alleges that the book and play infringed her series of eight copyrighted stories which appeared in Photoplay, a Macfadden publication, between September, 1938, and November, 1940. Miss Benson's book was published in May, 1940.

Zorina In 'Bell Tolls'

Paramount yesterday announced that Vera Zorina had been finally set for the role of Maria in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls', playing opposite Gary Cooper. Actress leaves later this week for picture's location at Sonora. Delay in giving actress final nod on role resulted from need for additional tests.

Fairbanks Insists On Election In Local 727

Despite a legal ruling that the election scheduled for Thursday to select a business representative of Studio Laborers and Utility Workers Local 727 is unconstitutional, Zeal Fairbanks, incumbent business agent, is waiving any claim to the office and insisting that members be permitted to ballot. Although attorneys held that Fairbanks was entitled to remain in office until November, 1943, he said he felt the question should be submitted to the members.

In a letter going to the general membership, Fairbanks said in part:

'At our last meeting it was decided that we should hold an election to fill my position. Such an election, it has been determined by legal authority, is unconstitutional, details of which you may obtain by contacting your business office. I believe, however, that in spite of the fact that an election is unconstitutional, that I should submit myself for reelection and let the membership make the decision as to whether or not they wish to retain me in office. Since the issue has been raised, there is no fairer way to arrive at a successful conclusion, therefore I respectfully submit to the election, which will be held Thursday, July 9, 1942.'

A total of 10 candidates had announced in opposition to Fairbanks, but three of them have already withdrawn from the race.

GENERAL adoption of fine grain prinistock for release prints by most of the major companies to increase photographic quality on theatre screens, has developed temporary projection problems for exhibitors. The fine grain stock—although within 1-10,000 of an inch thickness of former coarser-grain positive—has been found to be more pliable than its predecessor in the case of one big manufacturer. In addition, quicker drying in laboratory processing accentuated this pliability. Result has been condition in theatres where pictures have momentarily gone out of focus for a second or two, with some managers getting complaints from the cash customers. The manufacturer has corrected its end of the problem in the manufacturing end, and corrected the excess pliability through slower laboratory drying—with a spokesman for the company stating that exhibitors should not change lenses or attempt to readjust projectors for correction—as the out-of-focus moments will only be encountered on relatively few pictures that have been released during the past three months.

ECONOMY of saving time in one phase of production is resulting in need to increase manpower to keep set construction coming along faster. Conserving of negative and resultant speedup of production at Universal is forcing Al Richards, superintendent of construction, to expand efforts to keep ahead of script on five currently shooting pictures. Over 200 additional nail and hammer men had to be taken on to supplement department's roster of 540 employes to take care of set work on these five films. Fewer takes by directors and faster completion of sequences called for earlier striking of set and movement of manpower to sets under construction. Richards wanted more men but union was said to be unable to supply them, two previous calls having depleted roster of available workers.

film deal with 20th. First pic was 'Charlie's Aunt'. The material was from the stage play by Augustine McHugh in which George M. Cohan starred. The screen play was by Morrie Ryskind and William Perlberg had the production reins.

20th officials stated that they had conferred with Benny on writer, producer, director and cast and he approved of all. Then suddenly he informed them he did not think it was funny enough material for his talent, as well as not liking several of the production phases. This was somewhat of a shock to the studio officials, who had already had sets constructed, and also borrowed Priscilla Lane from Warners for the femme lead.

Conferences yesterday resulted in the shelving of the picture, with studio probably, during the summer, choosing another male lead for it.

Nothing was mentioned after the session about another story assignment that would enable Benny to fulfill his contractual relations with the studio.

Efforts to contact Benny last night proved of no avail.

Far off on the heat-haunted Libyan sands
Where the tanks are as busy as bees
The warriors toil while the mercury stands
At a hundred and thirty degrees.

There isn't a grove or a glen or a glade
To be found in the African mazes.
Outside of their tanks there is no sign of shade—
Inside it is hotter than blazes.

The gentle breath from a Hollywood hill
Is cool in the eventide.
In fact, the breeze would resemble a chill
On the Libyan countryside.

But the boys in the studios tear their hair
And plaintively they bleat,
And in the depths of their hot despair
Complain at the Hollywood heat.

The Loves of Edgar Allan Poe

(Drama)

20th-Fox production. Stars Linda Darnell, John Shepperd, with Virginia Gilmore, Jane Darwell, Mary Howard, Frank Conroy, Henry Morgan. Supporting cast: Walter Kingsford, Morris Ankrum, Skippy Wanders, Freddie Mercer, Erville Alderson, Peggy McIntyre, William Bakewell, Jr., Frank Melton, Morton Lowry, Gilbert Emery, Ed Stanley, Francis Ford, Harry Denny, Hardie Albright. Director, Harry Lachman. Producer, Bryan Foy. Screen play, Samuel Hoffenstein, Tom Reed. Additional dialog, Arthur Caesar. Photography, Lucien Andriot. Art direction, Richard Day, Nathan Juran. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Fred Allen. Costumes, Dolly Tree. Sound, Eugene Grossman, Harry M. Leonard. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, July 7, 1942. Running time: 67 MINS.

'The Loves of Edgar Allan Poe' is a tastefully done picture of the man who made his mark on American literature. The more lusty faults of the poet-author-editor are avoided, story concentrating on his struggles to become famous and his fight against a weakness for liquor. Just how receptive audiences will be to subject matter is problematical, figuring current entertainment trends, but on any count picture reflects credit upon the makers and players for their skillful contributions. Feature is a venture out of the ordinary for Bryan Foy, usually associated with high action film doings, and an excellent producer credit.

Story picks up Poe as a lad of three as he is taken into the home of a wealthy Richmond merchant, spans his educational periods and writings to his death after complete surrender to the bottle. Highlights are covered quickly in some instances by narrated passages, permitting story to skip offensive portions in Poe's life while paying strict attention to those sequences dealing with the loss of a childhood sweetheart, his marriage with his cousin and periods of prosperity and poverty as his writing fortunes ebb and flow.

John Shepperd as Poe gives the character magnificent reading, using to the fullest his rich voice and unusual talents to register an outstanding performance. Linda Darnell's beauty graces the role of Poe's young wife, the girl who gives him his greatest inspirations, climaxed in 'The Raven'. Virginia Gilmore is the lost love, the best of the femme assignments. Jane Darwell, Poe's aunt, is a robust character, gifted with a ready tongue. Mary Howard, Poe's foster mother, does creditable work. Frank Conroy, the foster father; Henry Morgan, Walter Kingsford, Morris Ankrum, Gilbert Emery; a choice bit as Thomas Jefferson; and the others are most capable. Appealing are Skippy Wanders and Freddie Mercer as Poe at the ages of three and 12 respectively.

Harry Lachman's direction of the Samuel Hoffenstein-Tom Reed script makes effective use of the dramatic contents, giving depth and feeling to the characterizations for a first rate job. Script and additional dialog by Arthur Caesar is an expertly understanding piece of work, occasionally taking poetic license with episodes and characters in Poe's life. Lucien Andriot's photography; the art and set decorations; the film editing, costumes and musical direction are all of high order.

Little Tokyo, U. S. A.

20th-Fox production. Features Preston Foster, Brenda Joyce, with Harold Huber, Don Douglas, June Duprez, George E. Stone. Supporting cast: Abner Biberman, Charles Tannen, Frank Orth, Edward Soohoo, Beal Wong, Daisy Lee, Leonard Strong, J. Farrell MacDonald, Richard Loo, Sen Yung, Melie Chang. Director, Otto Brower. Producer, Bryan Foy. Original screen play, George Bricker. Photography, Joseph MacDonald. Art direction, Richard Day, Maurice Ransford. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Harry Reynolds. Costumes, Herschel. Sound, Bernard Freericks, Harry M. Leonard. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, July 7, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

'Little Tokyo, U. S. A.', makes advantageous use of a topical subject to rate itself as okay supporting screen fare. Its story concerns Nazi and Japanese espionage work on the west coast, disclosing tricks of the spy trade now public knowledge since Dec. 7, 1941. Bryan Foy gives the story experienced production guidance and the direction of Otto Brower plays for the melodramatic in the best thriller action style.

Plot centers around a Los Angeles policeman, alone in his belief that something sinister is going on in LA's Little Tokyo prior to Pearl Harbor. His efforts to find some tangible evidence of skullduggery put him on the spot, along with his girl friend, a radio news commentator. Cop finally corners his prey, clearing himself of a phoney murder charge, framed by the espionagers, and exposes the little yellow flower and vegetable peddlers in their true light.

Preston Foster makes his usual, pleasant appearance as the cop. Brenda Joyce capably fills the femme lead role. A number of sterling Hollywood character players are hidden under Japanese makeup, such as Harold Huber, George E. Stone, Abner Biberman and Leonard Strong. All are good. June Duprez makes an interesting appearance in the regalia of a Japanese Mata Hari. Don Douglas, a Bunder, Edward Soohoo, Beal Wong, Daisy Lee, Richard Loo, Sen Yung and Melie Chang are other villians. Frank Orth gets some macabre humor out of his role as keeper of the police morgue.

George Bricker's original screen play fills every requirement of the picture's market. Joseph MacDonald did the good photography. Art direction, sets, etc., help the atmosphere.

The Pied Piper

(Drama)

20th-Fox production. Features Monty Woolley, Roddy McDowell and Anne Baxter, Otto Preminger and J. Carrol Naish. Supporting cast: Lester Matthews, Jill Esmond, Ferike Boros, Peggy Ann Garner, Merrill Rodin, Maurice Tauzin, Fleurette Zama, William Edmunds, Marcel Dalio, Marcelle Corday, Odette Myrtil, Jean Del Val, Robert O. Davis, Henry Rowland, Helmut Dantine, George Davis. Directed by Irving Pichel. Produced and written for the screen by Nunnally Johnson. Based on novel by Nevil Shute. Music, Alfred Newman. Photography, Edward Cronjager. Art direction, Richard Day and Maurice Ransford. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Allen McNeil. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 7, 1942. Running time: 87 MINS.

Here is a combination of sheer drama and incidental propaganda so potently delivered that it may well serve as a model of what the screen can say to quicken the morale of free allied folk and at the same time provide absorbing entertainment. The word 'morale' has been so casually used as almost to have lost its meaning. 'The Pied Piper' exerts its persuasions through innate quality of the characters and their approach to the problems of life and death in the face of supreme challenge. It deals with horrendous things committed by the Nazi in his conquest of France and Belgium, but the picture's final effect is wholesome, inspiring, reassuring: A document of courage, rather than terror, of insurmountable humanity in the face of militant, callous statecraft. And it should fare very well at the box office, despite lack of name strength, on pure dramatic merit and word advertising.

'Pied Piper' is a beautiful translation from the Nevil Shute story by Nunnally Johnson, who both scripted and produced. It tells the thrilling adventure of an aging Londoner, caught in the war's outbreak in France, in getting a group of refugee children of various nationalities back to England and America. The simple but eloquent narrative relates the courage of the fearless Briton, as he risks his own life over and over to aid his helpless, trusting charges.

It's a great emotional tale, and Monty Woolley as the 'Piper' gives it great characterization, every inch the old school Englishman, ashamed of showing any tenderness. And the kids, too, are splendid in their understanding of what is required and their intelligent response to the fine direction by Irving Pichel. Roddy McDowall, as the eldest of the youngsters, and Peggy Ann Garner, as his sister, set the pace. Ann Baxter plays with strength the role of a young French woman who aids Woolley in his dangerous task—dangerous because he is held as spy and his humanity questioned as some dark plot against the German invaders. Otto Preminger does a remarkable job as the Nazi commandant who, after threats of torture, finally frees Woolley and the youngsters on ironic condition that they take his own niece along to England. Excellent roles are contributed by J. Carrol Naish, Lester Matthews and Jill Esmond, little Fleurette Zama, Marcel Dalio, Marcelle Corday, Odette Myrtil and half a dozen others in lesser parts.

MAJORS DEADLOCKED ON CURTAILMENT OF FILM

New York, July 7.—Major distributors are still deadlocked on plans to establish a basis for curtailing raw film stock via print ceiling; with distrib representatives meeting again—but only to discuss methods of simplying the existing War Production Board forms on which they are to report amount of celluloid footage consumed monthly; giving figures for corresponding month in 1940 and 1941.

The film companies are on a week-to-week basis insofar as government regulations are concerned, and the WPB will judge from the monthly reports whether sufficient progress is being made. Metro, meanwhile, is cutting prints horizontally on a 20% basis, but most of the other large companies find this procedure impractical.

Minneapolis, July 7.—Local film exchanges are receiving fewer prints, and prospect is that many theatres now getting first run classifications in nabes will have to be content with second or third slots. Branch managers are so notifying the trade generally. Plan now being advanced is to stagger runs generally from top to bottom.

NY Carriers Map Plan For Trucking Films To Meet Play Dates

New York, July 7.—Faced with disruption of film delivery services due to curtailment of transportation, exchange managers, bookers and film carrier reps met at New York Film Board of Trade today to work out a plan for cutting trucking services in the local territory.

It was finally agreed to curtail deliveries Sunday nights and Mondays, and make earlier daily deliveries so that subsequent shipments each day would be unnecessary. This system will be tried for 10 days to see how much mileage can be saved—and then the combined groups meet again to see if further measures will be necessary to meet the Office of Defense Transportation ruling cutting transportation by at least 25%. Exhibs and distribs now have an appeal pending with the ODT asking for modification of the regulation governing callbacks and one-a-day deliveries.

Rosson was named to direct the corvette patrol stuff because of his familiarity with this type service through previous Metro assignment. Edward Chodorov has turned in completed script, now on its way to Ottawa. Lt. Sturdy was assigned by Canadian Navy to assist on technical matters.

Plan Studio Surveys In Savings Drive

The Film Conservation Committee last night voted for an immediate survey for all studios to see that all departments and individuals are following the new practices recommended by the Committee and ordered put into effect by the General Conservation Committee. It also was announced that an industry-wide system will be set up to police the industry and stop any violations of new rules and regulations.

It was stated that the Hollywood Talent Council comprised of actors, directors and writers, had asked for more time before any definite action was taken on the proposed elimination of screen credits. The Committee spent about two hours discussing highly technical changes in production, many of them radical, but they were referred back for further study. These include proposed changes in processing, developing, editing, printing and shooting.

Recommendations far savings received last night included that the number of still negatives be cut. The Public Relations Committee reported that it had a sub-committee working on the proposal and would have a report ready at the next meeting.

Other recommendations were that greater use be made of the interchange between studios of stock shots for backgrounds to avoid shooting new material, reduction or elimination of developing tests through close collaboration between the laboratories and the cameramen, closer collaboration between the writers, directors and associate producers, more careful editing, elimination of unnecessary sequences and cutting of script before shooting starts.

ence yesterday with SOEG representatives had indicated company would pay retroactive coin rather than face 'vacation' strike, but that action would nullify contract clause providing for wage boost when living costs increase. Such action would prevent additional raises until major studio contracts are reopened in 1944.

SOEG had given Exchanges until noon today to answer its demand for classification of collarites and minimum wage scales. Attorney Paul Watkins advised Guild he did not read demand until 5 p. m. yesterday and that it would be impossible to get an answer by that time.

Showdown on both Technicolor and Exchange situations is scheduled tonight when they are called to the attention of the Conference of Studio Unions. Techicolor unit has already authorized strike action, and strike strategy committee was set up last night. If walkout order is given, it is understood plans call for Collarites to take vacations. The strike strategy committee will determine time of the walkout downtown. Fear also was expressed the walkout would extend to the studios. If support of Conference is voted tonight, move would involve Studio Painters, Laboratory Technicians, Machinists, Cartoonists, Set Designers, Sketch Artists, etc., all of whom are affiliated with the Conference.

Margaret Bennett presided as SOEG prexy last night for the first time. Verna Moran resigned as a trustee because of her election as lot chairman at Metro, and was replaced by Pat Gallagher of RKO. The Guild accepted 55 new members and renewed contract for one year with attorney George E. Bodle.

Alexander Korda will have any American produced pictures for the coming year. Korda is expected to head for New York next week following the executive conclaves here and head for England. He has several story properties on hand which it is likely he will use for production in London. Also he might look over the field there for films that UA can handle American distribution on.

Then another phase as to his future is fact that since being knighted recently he may devote a good part of his time to war effort work in England, and probably defer starting production in the near future.

Reports around that UA will utilize product available from any producer, or make purported distribution deals on which production units can be built is termed as ridiculous by the UA delegation from the east as well as by Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford. They also laugh at the thought that UA would sign up and pool talent.

Another For Wallis

Warners has bought the Charles Nordhoff-James Hall tale, 'Men Without a Country,' dealing with American counter espionage activities, as a Humphrey Bogart starrer. Michael Curtiz will direct, and Casey Robinson is on the screen play. Picture will feature five other male players. Hal Wallis has been assigned production.

FILM ATTORNEYS NIX OATH CITIZENSHIP FOR WORKERS

With Producer attorneys nixing a proposal to accept an oath of citizenship in lieu of a birth certificate, it was announced last night that the Central Registration Bureau for studio casual employes will be kept open the remainder of this week. The closing date was deferred when it was disclosed that up to 6 p.m. yesterday only 7,200 of the estimated 12,000 casual workers had been photographed and fingerprinted.

Attorneys are said to have advised against taking any cognizance of the War Manpower Commission ruling on citizenship oaths unless an official government order to that effect is received. It was pointed out that if official birth proof was waived and later aliens were discovered working in the studios the industry might have a hard time explaining why it had not demanded birth certificates.

The War Manpower Commission through Chairman Paul V. McNutt has notified defense industries to permit job applicants to take an oath of citizenship when they are unable to obtain birth certificates.

More than 1,000 workers who have visited the Bureau but have failed to establish citizenship have been told to obtain additional proof before returning. For the benefit only of these workers and those who are away from the city or who have temporarily withdrawn from their guilds or unions a date will be set some time in the future when they may apply for citizenship cards.

Officials in charge of the census again warned film workers that when the registration is completed no person will be admitted to a studio unless he is able to display an identification card carrying his or her photograph and fingerprints.

WB Wants To Send Crew To Moscow

Negotiations are going on in Washington to secure permission from Union of Socialist Soviet Republics to send a Warners technical and camera crew to Russia to film backgrounds for 'Mission to Moscow'. Robert Buckner, who will produce, has just returned from capital, where the entire plan of production from memoirs of ex-Ambassador Joseph E. Davies was discussed with American and Russian officials.

Erskine Caldwell yesterday was signed to prepare the screen play from Davies' book and experiences. Caldwell, together with his wife, Margaret Bourke White, photographer, has been in Russia most of the past year.

If permission is granted for Warners to send film unit to Russia, five possible routes for transport have been laid out by William Guthrie, head of the location department. One would be across Africa and Iran via Brazil; one across Siberia by plane from Alaska base; a third by bomber ferry to England and British convoy to Murmansk; a fourth by U. S. convoy direct to Murmansk, and a fifth by military plane across China along the Mongolian caravan route.

Vandeleur Here For Manpower Talks

Edward Vandeleur, secretary of State Federation of Labor, was here yesterday for conference with Fowler Harper, assistant to Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the Government's War Manpower Commission. Harper is expected to name a Coast head for the Manpower Mobilization Program before returning to Washington. William Hopkins is said to have inside track for job.

Allvine's Wash. Setup

New York, July 7.—Glenn Allvine, secretary of the Public Relations Committee of the motion picture industry, goes to Washington Monday to set a similar committee with industry representatives from theatres and exchanges there. New group would cooperate with the other two industry committees, in New York and on the Coast.

Moody Seeking Major Release for Horror Pic

Mark L. Moody, who shot 16mm. pictures of the Japanese invasion and resultant horrors inflicted on the Chinese, and recently had his film blown up to 35mm. size for theatre display, is casting about for a major release of his documentary picture.

Moody, non-professional, happened to be in China during the Japanese invasion, and successfully got the negative out of the country to enlarge and edit it into feature length under title of 'Ravaged Earth'. Far from entertainment, it's a gruesome display of the invaders' tortures of the natives, and this factor will undoubtedly mitigate against issuance of a Purity Code seal to permit it to be distributed by a major company or to be exhibited in any house controlled by a major circuit.

Artists Entertain at Naval Stations

Jascha Heifetz entertained at Terminal Island Naval Receiving Station last night under auspices of the Hollywood Victory Committee. The Committee also announced that Georgie Jessel, Mary Healey, Lois Andrews and Bobby Gilbert will appear at a Naval Armory in the Los Angeles area tonight.

Recordings will be made today for a Latin-American broadcast under direction of Jack Runyon. The artists are Adolphe Menjou, Mona Maris and June Marlowe. Headliners on this week's Office of Facts and Figures program Saturday will be Fibber McGee and Molly.

AMG in Short Meet

The Artists Managers Guild held its regular monthly meeting last night at the Beverly Wilshire hotel, but adjourned before 10 o'clock. It was reported session was devoted largely to discussion of war activities as related to the film business and allied industries. John McCormick explained the agents had been asked to talk with their clients about the 10% payroll plan for purchase of War Bonds.

Ingersoll's Tiff With Draft Board Will Be Detailed in Variety

New York, July 7.—As weekly Variety will detail in this week's issue, Ralph E. Ingersoll, editor of PM, after keeping mum personally regarding his local selective service board's decision to draft him, opened up with at least one barrel last Monday. Heralded by Walter Winchell's announcement on the air Sunday night of a nation-shocking story concerning Ingersoll's drafting in Tuesday's PM, editor called about 15 New York radio commentators together Monday, gave them galley proofs of the Tuesday piece and answered all questions.

PM piece is a 4,000-word letter to the draft board, pointing out, via their own words, the draft board's prejudices to PM. Ingersoll, skeded for hearing before the draft board tonight, asked in the piece that members of the board disqualify themselves and let less-prejudiced board decide the case. He added verbally to radio commentators, 'If I were on the board hearing Capt. Patterson's appeal I'd certainly disqualify myself'. (Patterson is publisher of New York Daily News, isolationist tab which has repeatedly struck at PM and Ingersoll.)

Gibbons Role in Film May Go To Pat O'Brien

Minneapolis, July 7.—Sale of film rights to life of late Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and radio commentator, may swell his estate considerably, according to Donald Gibbons, his brother. Though company likely to produce the picture was not named, Gibbons stated that Pat O'Brien will probably play the lead.

Final accounting of the estate in New York last week revealed Gibbons left $225,122. Brother here gets $49,980, sister in Boston receives $64,000; another brother in Washington benefits $50,929, and Julia Alter, Floyd's secretary, in New York, receives $13,600. All staff employees will get a year's salary.

Free Peoples Dinner Draws Support Of Governor

Governor Culbert L. Olson will aid the group of Hollywood personalities which is sponsoring the Free Peoples dinner to be held at the Beverly Hills Hotel on the night of July 20. Announcement of the governor's support of the event was made yesterday by Philip Merivale, chairman of the dinner, following word from Olson's headquarters in Sacramento.

Proceeds from the dinner are to be used in an effort to free foremost anti-Axis film, stage and radio artists from French concentration camps so they can launch a second front campaign by short wave broadcast and pamphlet to the Axis subjugated countries. Speakers at the dinner will include Nelson Poynter, associate coordinator of government films, and Paul Robeson, who will be guest of honor.

Sposors of the affair include Claudette Colbert, Herbert Marshall, Frederic March, Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens, Katharine Hepburn, Ronald Colman, Tyrone Power, Mrs. L. B. Mayer, and Rosalind Russell. The dinner is being arranged by the joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee.

Keith in 'Nazti' Pic

Ian Keith was set at Hal Roach yesterday for one of the top spots in 'Nazti Nuisance,' Streamlined feature for United Artists. Also signed were Ed 'Strangler' Lewis and Abe 'King Kong' Cashey, both wrestlers who will portray bodyguards.

Trio of Film Pacts Approved—

Trio of adolescents had new film contracts approved in Superior Court yesterday. Freddie Bartholomew, 18, gets $2,250 weekly on one year Columbia contract. For her three-year Republic contract, Jane Withers, 16, will receive from $10,000 to $20,000 per picture, depending on contractual terms. Nancy Gates, 17, graduated from RKO lot high school yesterday and was given a new ticket, approved by court.

Granted Stay of Execution—

Maurice Louis 'Mike' Briggs, convicted slayer of Nat Ross, one time film producer, was granted a 30-day stay of his execution by Governor Culbert L. Olson yesterday. Was scheduled for execution Friday, after conviction on July 23, 1941, for rifle slaying due to Ross' assertedly 'going around' with Briggs' estranged wife, Betty Susan Briggs.

Follies Permit Cancelled—

Theatre permit of Follies at 337 So. Main St. was cancelled yesterday by L. A. Police Commission, auguring shuttering for all burlesque and strip shows, following complaints about failure of girls to wear covering. Marvin L. Harrison, theatre manager, contended girls did not completely strip.

cided drop in calls for $5.50 players.

May was one of the biggest months for extras, when 25,500 jobs were passed out with a dollar value of $313,000, including overtime and adjustments. There were 19,036 calls in January, carrying a dollar value of $227,803. Placements jumped to 22,500 in February when extras were paid $237,000.

March saw only 21,300 placements, but the dollar value was $240,000, or $3,000 higher than in February. Central passed out 23,600 jobs in April, carrying a dollar value of $273,500. The recapitulation for June has not been completed, but jobs were estimated at 23,852, with a dollar value of approximately $260,000.

Most of the calls for both male and femme extras have been in the younger age brackets, with soldiers, sailors, etc., being kept busy on practically every lot. June 1 was the only day in the month in which calls for extras fell below the 500 mark, with calls on many of the days crowding or exceeding 1,000.

Central and studio officials refused to make any estimates as to the number of extras to be used during the second half of the year, but admitted that if the present ratio keeps up atmosphere players will have a take of more than $3,000,000 for the year.

Calls for June were distributed as follows:

Indie Operator Wins Consent Decree Case

importance to the exchanges and distribs of the southern California area, revolved around fact that the first run houses of Burbank — Major, Loma and Magnolia — all operated by the Minor estate, had a 63 day protection over the San Val, despite condition that latter was charging admish price of 30c, as against the first run scales of 28c. Complaint was filed against four of the majors operating under the consent decree —Paramount, Warners, RKO and Metro (San Val was not buying 20th-Fox product)—asking for clearance reduction off of first run to seven days.

Before the arbitration hearing, the Minor trio of houses increased admission prices to 33c, but arbitrator Rust considered the case on the basis of date of filing of the complaint, and disregarded the subsequent raise in price. In allowing the San Val clearance reduction from 63 to 28 days, Rust stated in his findings, 'This clearance is based on the admission prices obtaining on March 5, 1942' (date of filing by California Drive In Theatres).

Albert J. Law was attorney for California Drive In Theatres in the arbitration proceedings, successfully sustaining his original complaint that section VIII of the consent decree was being violated by the distribs concerned giving the Major, Magnolia and Loma theatres unreasonable clearance of 63 days.

Landis Gives Douglas Clean Bill of Health

Washington, July 7.—Refutation of charges that Melvyn Douglas, actor, had participated in a political 'purge' meeting in New York to fight reelection of isolationist senators and congressmen was voiced by James M. Landis, Douglas' superior, and director of the OCD. Charge had been made by Sen. Wayland Brooks, R., Ill., against Douglas, now head of OCD's volunteer talent unit.

On Monday Brooks read a letter which he said linked Douglas to the dinner meeting in New York, during which Brooks and Rep. Stephen Day, R., Ill., were mentioned as 'Chicago Tribune candidates'. Following Brooks' request to Landis for investigation, Landis stated 'no such dinner was held on the appointed date or thereafter'.

Local 47 Pushes Drive For 300 More Camp Band Musicians

Continuing drive for enlistment of musicians to play in bands at nearby Army camps and Naval bases, the Musicians Mutual Protective Association has started an intensive canvass of membership to fill up requests for 300 more for six camps and two coast guard stations. Local 47, Los Angeles and western area, has already recruited some 750 members into the armed forces.

The only local so permitted, 47 has issued blanket instructions all over the country for the drive. Members must come to L. A. for enlistment, and at their own expense.

Army appeal states that members desiring khaki should contact the MPPA in L. A., which is working in conjunction with the Army is securing services of talented musicians. Office this week acquired Hal Grayson, leader; two from the Cincinnati Symphony, and one from the Pittsburgh Symphony, in addition to others. Applicants are interviewed Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sufficient numbers of drummers and pianists have been obtained, it's reported, and drive is directed at other instrumentalists. Boys get ratings from first class privates to technical sergeants after three months basic training. Nineteen out of every 28 are eligible for stripes, following classification of ability by bandmasters. Union's eager to fill gaps due to expectation that specialist enlistments will soon be eliminated.

Pressburger In $3,000 Distribution Suit

New York, July 7.—Arnold Pressburger and Gregor Rabinovitch filed suit today against Joseph Auerbach in supreme court, seeking $3,000 asserted to be due on a distribution agreement. Action arose through alleged agreement made in 1937 wherein the plaintiffs were commissioned by Auerbach to induce Cine Alliance Tonfilm of Berlin to grant the German distribution rights for two Auerbach pictures, 'An English Marriage' and 'So Ended a Great Love.'

Pressburger and Rabinovitch claim the rights were granted and a fee of $3,000 established.

ACTUAL scenes, showing how the always-intriguing Russian governmental machine functions, are to be photographed for Warner Bros. by its crew of technicians inside Russia for the Ambassador Joseph Davies picture, 'Mission to Moscow.' The technicians, soon to leave Hollywood on this far flung assignment, plan to make interior and exterior shots of the Kremlin; of Josef Stalin's offices and Maxim Litvinov's chateau, or 'datcha,' outside Moscow where Ambassador Davies spent some week ends. There will be authentic scenes, too, of the Russian war machine rolling off production lines at armament factories, and inside views of War Commissar Voroshilov's staff at work on urgent problems of the day. Naturally, no military secrets will be revealed. Neither will the itinerary used by Warners' special detachment, even after it lands in Russia.

PICTURE at a major studio has been undergoing an orgy of title changing in an effort to satisfy players, directors and production tops. Original handle on film, although perfect in the director's opinion, was dropped when the two male stars objected. One asserted it tossed the emphasis to the other actor, while latter claimed title was not suitable because it 'aged' him. From that start picture picked up another handle, later dropped when studio discovered it was too similar to title previously used at another lot. A third title was placed on film, but lasted only a short time when switch back to original title was made by director, unofficially. After a few days feature was given a fifth christening which will probably stick since studio has loosed a high-powered campaign to ballyhoo forthcoming release.

You are taking a chance when you plant
Seeds in your vegetable garden,
You may sow potatoes, tomatoes,
Beans, broccoli and whatnot,
And they may come up weeds,
Snails, cutworms, ants and whatnot
In various forms of flora and fauna.
But if you plant dollars in War Bonds
You are planting a hardy perennial
That will laugh at droughts and floods
And bugs and slugs and fifth-column muggs
And bloom in golden splendor
Without the aid of a rake, hoe,
Spade, backache or irrigation.
You toss your dollars into Uncle Sam's Garden
And up comes Victory.

Speaking of gardens, the most prolific of all is the front page of a newspaper. An eight-column head is dragged off to a film studio and turned into a quickie before the ink is dry.

'Pittsburgh' has the best lineup since the days of Honus Wagner, the bowlegged shortstop. Batting order leads off with Marlene Dietrich, who is not bowlegged.

Film players lead a tough life, particularly the artistic slaves in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' who were dragged away from the hot pavements of Hollywood to the cool hills of Sonora, where they can throw snowballs in July.

In 'The Talk of the Town' there are two endings, permitting Joe Public to decide whether Cary Grant or Ronald Colman will get the gal. A noble idea in peacetime, but right now all the world is wondering who will get Little Egypt.

While the film producers are welcoming elderly thesps with open arms, Bill Saroyan is breaking out with a play titled 'Get Away Old Man.'

Another tough Hollywood problem is to send a camera crew to Russia to shoot backgrounds for 'Mission to Moscow.' If the Warner boys get away with it, they will accomplish something that Hitler and all his generals couldn't do.

Who drives his sled in fields of snow.
He gets his oil from walrus blubber

Showing how swiftly fashions change in Hollywood—Babies are not called Shirley any more.

No one gets by on a name alone
In Hollywood's film array,
But you always find a gal named Joan
In almost any play.

Financing Plan For TDB Expected To Be Oked Tonite

Permanent financing of the Theatre Defense Bureau is slated to be set up at meeting of the council tonight in Fox West Coast offices, when recommendations of committee comprising Clarence Juneau, Rodney Pantages, Sherrill Cohen and Robert Poole will be acted upon. Up to the present time, entire expense of the TDB has been borne by Fox West Coast circuit, and council members for some time have been considering idea of spreading operating costs among the theatre circuits and independents who are deriving benefits of the bureau.

Council will also be advised tonight that — of the 208 theatres within Los Angeles city limits—all but nine have been inspected and classified by fire department inspectors; and only one theatre in the city has not complied with the TDB regulations for safety factors of patrons, and failed to cooperate with the police and fire departments.

Clarence Juneau, who has been acting as alternate for Maury Cohen, takes his place as a councilman tonight as result of election to spot last week.

Dead Enders Hit Dead End in Pic Careers

Predicted washup of the Dead End Kids as an organization of several years standing will probably occur after one more picture, to be made at Universal under Ben Pivar's supervision, following their current 'Mug Town.' Billy Halop and Gabriel Dell have made application for Officers Training School, and Huntz Hall and Bernard Punsley are of military age.

Polo Hired by U

Eddie Polo, silent days serial name, has been set at Universal to act as technical advisor on stunts for several sequences in 'Arabian Nights'. He will also do a role in the film. Studio starts using 150 extras today on a three-day call for crowd scenes on the gates of Bagdad set for the picture.

U SWITCHES DESIGNATION ON BROWN-RITTER SERIES

Universal is switching designation on its Johnny Mack Brown-Tex Ritter western series to 'outdoor adventure' pictures. Classification change will allow company to switch usual western formula to any type of outdoor action yarn, although present title lineup for this season's seven oaters still bears the western brand.

Switching classification will not take Brown and Ritter entirely out of western regalia, but merely allows studio to change to another type story if one that would appeal to the western market presents itself.

It is expected some savings in location costs can also be made by an occasional switch in locale for the film wranglers, so production can be made entirely on the lot. Transportation regulations have boosted costs slightly due to necessity of hauling entire cast and crew to location points in one trip, regardless of whether all of company would be required to work a full day.

Brown and Ritter have already finished 'Deep in the Heart of Texas' and 'Little Joe, the Wrangler', and are now busy on 'Raiders of San Joaquin'. Other announced titles, which could easily be switched if another type story gets an okay, are 'The Old Chisholm Trail', 'Tenting Tonight On the Old Camp Grounds', 'Cheyenne Roundup' and 'The Lone Star Trail'.

Grant, Babs Hutton Married Yesterday

Barbara Hutton, heiress to the Woolworth dime store fortune, and Cary Grant were married yesterday at the Lake Arrowhead retreat of the groom's agent, Frank Vincent. Marriage license recorded Grant's age as 38 and the bride 30. After the ceremony, performed by a Lutheran minister, the pair left for a honeymoon at an undisclosed destination.

Grant is expected to joint the armed forces soon. It was the third marriage for Mrs. Grant and his second.

STORY going the rounds as to Sir Alexander Korda's position in British inner circles is that about five years ago Korda was going to make a film on the 'Coronation Jubilee'. He got hold of Winston Churchill, current major domo of the British Empire, and had him do a story idea outline for it. Korda paid Churchill around $50,000 in American coin for it. He invested another $25,000 in preliminaries. However, the film was never made and the acquaintanship with Churchill ripened into a strong friendship that exists today. . . . Dr. Herbert T. Union Tops Huddle On Labor Council Withdrawals

An effort to halt further withdrawals from the Central Labor Council and to persuade those who have moved out to return to the fold will be made today at a conference of Los Angeles County labor tops at a Nikabob Cafe luncheon. Representatives of the Labor Council, as well as the Unity For Victory Committee, are expected to take part in the discussion.

The parade out of the Central Labor Council was started when Musicians Local 47 withdrew its 6,000 members. Since that time a big majority of the Teamsters Locals, representing 42,000 drivers, have followed the lead of the Musicians. The fireworks was touched off when J. W. Buzzell, secretary-treasurer of the CLC, attacked the Unity For Victory movement and advised his affiliates to stay away from it.

His attack immediately resulted in the Screen Actors Guild, representing 8,000 actors and extras, appointing delegates to the Unity For Victory Committee. Scores of other film unions followed suit, as well as nearly every County group represented by the American Federation of Labor, Congress of Industrial Organizations, Railroad Brotherhoods and Independent unions. Leaders in the Unity For Victory movement ignored Buzzell's attack, explaining the Unity Committee was in no way a dual organization since it was comprised of every labor group in the County.

It was pointed out that while Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, is one of the leaders on the Unity For Victory Committee, his conference has recommended that its affiliated unions join the Central Labor Council and State Federation of Labor. Two of these unions, the Cartoonists and White Collarites, have already voted in favor of CLC affiliation.

A showdown in the situation is expected today. If the CLC lifts its opposition to the Unity movement, further withdrawals from the Council probably will be cancelled, with the possibility some of those now out will return. On the other hand, if the Council insists on opposing the movement supported by all other A F of L Labor Councils in the County, a real fight may develop.

CLAIM IATSE MEN DENIED FILM JOBS BY LOCAL 728

discriminated against in favor of outsiders and laborers who have been transferred from Local 727.

Following protests to Carl Cooper, IA international representative, and Business Representative Mickey Moran, the union finally issued 30-day work permits to members, but these were cancelled Monday night and the men were put back on the daily permit. Workers explained they are often required to drive 20 to 30 miles to pick up this permit each day before accepting work in a studio, and are not allowed to accept call back even if the studio wants to employ them the next day.

Group claims that work permits are being issued to outsiders because of the labor shortage, yet the union refuses to admit them to membership or to permit them to transfer their membership from eastern locals. Several of them posted a $250 fee, but say their application for membership of transfer has never been placed before the union.

The fact that the men are required to drive 20 to 30 miles daily to pick up these permits has been called to the attention of Government authorities in charge of the rubber conservation. It is understood they are investigating the situation with the idea of acting if the union persists in requiring them to pick up a daily work permit before going to work. The situation is also being called to the attention of the Conciliation Service of the U. S. Labor Department.

The group say they have always supported the IA International and are hopeful that Walsh will insist upon them being given at least an even break with outsiders. They claim the action of Local 728 is rank discrimination, and a violation of the IATSE Constitution.

Obituary

ROBERT GOLDEN

Robert 'Red' Golden, 48, veteran Metro assistant director who died of a heart attack Tuesday night will be buried tomorrow in Calvary Cemetery, with Rev. John O'Connell officiating at Requiem mass. Rosary will be recited tonight at 8 p.m. in the Cunningham and O'Connor chaper.

Born in Savannah, Ga., Golden has been in the picture business for the past 20 years. He started with Harold Lloyd and has been with MGM for the past 16. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. William Pratt, Mrs. E. W. Wrigley and Louise Golden.

Wind Up Rubber Appeal

Film players will participate in four programs on KNX Friday to speed up rubber collections on the final day of the drive. On the quarter hour broadcasts from Hollywood Victory House will be Andy Devine, Jean Parker, Wendy Barrie and John Howard. Music will be directed by Lud Gluskin.

Minor Changes Asked By the D. of J. In UMPI Pact

New York, July 8.—Department of Justice has asked the UMPI committee which presented the new sales plan for consent decree companies last Friday in Washington, to make some minor changes in its verbiage —and then return the plan with legal phraseology revisions to the DJ.

Since DJ did not raise any opposition to the sales and other features of the plan, the assumption of UMPI leaders is that the Department favors it and will arrange for an early hearing before Judge Henry W. Goddard in Federal Court here to put his official okay on adoption. However, up to today, the DJ has expressed no attitude to the new UMPI plan, and those interested from the industry side figure the combination of silence plus requests for minor changes in verbiage indicates favorable attitude by the DJ officials.

Porter Dreams Up Titles For 'Shout' Ditties

Cole Porter, writing the score for Columbia's 'Something to Shout About,' filmusical which Gregory Ratoff is aiming for Aug. 1 start, has set titles for eight of the nine numbers to be used. They are 'Hasta La Vista,' 'Through Thick and Thin,' 'I Can Do Without Tea In My Teapot,' 'Lotus Blossom,' 'You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To,' 'I Always Knew,' 'It Might Have Been' and 'Something to Shout About.'

Lastfogel Asks Aid Of Agents For Camp Shows

Abe Lastfogel in a talk to the Artists Managers Guild told members there has been a laxity on the part of agents and the Hollywood Victory Committee in cooperating with USO-Camp Shows, Inc. Lastfogel, who has been serving as USO-Camp Shows head without pay, taking his entire time out from the Morris Agency, where he has been operating head for many years, said he had a big problem on his hands and needed help, which he added had not been forthcoming in a manner that could be considered satisfactory.

He pointed out that the functions of USO-Camp Shows, Inc., are important to the morale of the armed services and should be taken more seriously by the agents and other groups who are in a position to furnish talent. He urged that all agents cooperate more closely in aiding to provide talent for this important war cause.

ROTATING COMMC'L NEWEST AIR WRINKLE AS COIN SAVER

items serve on a program where one served before. Shows chiefly affected will be those whose advertised commodity has been put under rationing by the government.

While it appears evident that such a doubling up of commercials would invariably lessen the number of sponsored shows this fall, proponents of the innovation challenge such reasoning. They insist peak time on the major networks will never be without a market and that the only possible damaging effect might be in the shrinkage on spot announcements and transcribed shorts. Many advertisers have been using these media on station breaks because of peak time unavailability, and once time opens up in the early evening hours there would be a half dozen takers. For years lines have formed awaiting cancellations on preferential time.

Though the practice of rotating commercials is mildly in effect on some programs now, largely dictated by sections and seasonal buying, it will broaden progressively as the war and the new season wear on. It is generally known that one of the chain's biggest billers is contemplating such a course on at least three programs. Such a commercial companionship on a program as tea and coffee is not as incongruous as it seems. Nor canned this and bottled that. Where the spending becomes too weighty for one item, another by the sponsor will be alternated. Some speculate that there may be two or three different products on hour-long shows. Such food-packing outfits as General Foods and Standard Brands are definitely interested in the rotating commercial. Big soap makers, such as Lever Bros., Procter & Gamble, Colgate-Palmolive-Peet will be guided by the sampling process. Once the trend is set by the heavy spenders, other radio-minded advertisers with more than one marketable commodity will climb on the bandwagon.

Network sales heads are not fretting over the offshoot of the verboten double sponsorship, holding that loss of business will be negligible. Nor are the chains blind to the curtailment of time available to advertisers due to the many periods required by the government to further the war effort and bolster home morale. Doubling-up process has its other favorable aspects, such as opening up time to new advertisers who have been biding their time awaiting such a thaw in the freeze-out.

Advertisers and networks are generally agreed on the advantages to be gained by such a bundling of product. For the time buyer it spreads the advertising dollar and to the webs it fits snugly into their campaign—keep your product before the public so that its institutional value won't be lost. The latter appeals to underwriters of network programs only in proportion to its dollar value. It'll take more than rotating commercials to disturb the complacency of the networks, what with fall billings indicating income from time sales comparable to last season's all time high.

Plan Welfare Work For Variety Club

Heart Committee of the Variety Club, tent 25, which will carry out the primary purposes of the organization to dispense charity in this area, has appointed Dr. Marcus Rabwin, Lou Anger and B. Luber to investigate several plans for operations of the club in the welfare field. Trio will consider various propositions, and then map a program for submission to the Heart committee for adoption as a permanent policy.

One outlet for the club charity activities being considered is establishment and underwriting of upkeep of a premature baby clinic installed in the Cedars of Lebanon hospital. This idea has received favorable comment from members of the committee familiar with the suggestion.

Harry Sherman, Rodney Pantages and Anger comprise the Ways and Means division of the Heart committee, and will be responsible for raising the coin required for the various charity activities of the club.

months in the voluntary execution of Government assignments, the mobilization has expanded with such projects as publication of Communique, a War-effort organ for writers, and the arranging of seminars of writing groups with Nelson Poynter, associate coordinator of Government Films.

Further expansion of the Writers Mobilization to national and international activities was placed before the enlarged steering committee for discussion by Rossen. Reorganizational machinery is now functioning under the following setups:

Contact committee to establish closer cooperation with the Office of War Information: Marc Connelly, Tom Alfred (SPG), Bill Roberts (SRG), Sam Moore (RWG).

Planning committees for national conference of writers in cooperation with the War Writers Board: John Howard Lawson, Henry Myers, George Oppenheim (SWG), Hector Chevigny (RWG), Cameron Shipp (SPG).

Exploratory committee on application of labor-management cooperation in the public relations industries: Paul Franklin (RWG), Bill Oliver (LANG), Sidney Buchman (SWG), John Weber (SRG), Louise Hudson (SCG).

Organizing committee for educational program: Jack Jungmeyer, Jr. (SWG), Milton Merlin (RWG), Al Levitt (SRG).

Hunter, Par Down Under Head, Returning Home

Harry Hunter, Paramount's managing director for Australia and New Zealand, here on final conferences with studio executives before returning down under, says there is no difficulty getting negative across the Pacific. Product is being given long runs to get greatest possible returns in major houses in Sydney, Melbourne and other Australian cities.

In Prince Edward Theatre in Sydney, cited by Hunter, only 17 programs, all Paramount, were played during 1940. In 1941 only 12 programs were run, and for the present year it looks like not over eight or nine programs.

of the time conferring with major company executives and officials of the Hollywood Victory Committee and War Activities Committee.

Weil explained picture support has nothing to do with appeals for fund, but is aimed to keep the American Red Cross before the public generally. Producers have been asked to keep Red Cross posters in picture scenes where they can be fitted in without interfering with the story continuity.

The two officials said the Red Cross is facing a terrific job with the rehabilitation of Europe, the far-flung American battle lines, calls for blood, etc. The annual Red Cross drive will be made in March. Brown and Weil will plane back to Washington Friday.

CONFERENCE STUDIO UNIONS PLEDGES SOEG FULL SUPPORT

With noon today set as the deadline for major film exchanges to meet demands of the Screen Office Employes Guild, studios for the first time since 1937 are facing the possibility of serious interference with operations. This became apparent last night when the Conference of Studio Unions approved the proposed 'vacation' strike action of the White Collarites and pledged them full support.

The Conference appointed a strategy committee to advise with a similar group from the SOEG on the walkout plans. These committees, it was said, will decide the time for the walkout, whether the employes of all the exchanges will be pulled simultaneously and whether the 'vacation' move will be extended to the studios and theatres.

The Conference committee is composed of Herbert Sorrell, Conference prexy and business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644; D. T. Wayne, business representative of Studio Machinists local 1185; William Pomerance, business representative of Screen Cartoonists Guild; and Norval Crutcher, secretary of Film Technicians Local 683. The SOEG will be represented by prexy Margaret Bennett, business representative Glenn Pratt, Bernard Lusher, and attorneys George E. Bodle and Louis Stein.

The Guild agreed to extend the deadline until noon today when Paul Watkins, attorney for the exchanges, said that he would not be able to submit an answer by Wednesday. The Guild has demanded minimum wage scales, classification of employes, inclusion of bookers in the bargaining unit, vacations, severance pay and sick leave.

The Conference of Studio Unions after listening to a detailed explanation of the Guild's attempts to reach an agreement with the exchanges, adopted the following resolution:

'Whereas, the film exchanges have refused to grant their employes a living wage or any form of union security; and

'Whereas, the conditions demanded by the Screen Office Employes Guild have already been granted to 1,800 clerical workers in the studios; and

'Whereas, the stand of the exchanges in the present negotiations with the SOEG constitutes a threat to the maintenance of decent wages and union conditions in the studios;

'Therefore, be it resolved, that the Conference of Studio Unions approves the action of the SOEG to obtain its just and equitable demands and pledges its full support to the SOEG in any action it may take'.

Leaders admitted that the action was taken in the face of the realization that if a strike is called in the exchanges in all probability it would spread to the studios and possibly the theatres. The Conference strategy committee today will confer with leaders of other studio unions and Guilds and urge their complete cooperation if the Collarites are forced to strike in order to get a satisfactory wage agreement.

Business representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG issued the following statement last night after conferring with Conference heads:

'The president in setting forth his Seven Point Program stated that substandard wages should be raised to a decent level. Many of the girls in the exchanges, after from 10 to 20 years of service, are receiving $18 to $22.50 per week, which is below the sub-standard referred to by the President.

'It is the unpatriotic refusal of the exchanges to correct these conditions that is forcing our members to go on "Vacation". If this arbitrary attitude by the Exchanges and their refusal to comply with the President's request forces our boys and girls to walk out they will spend that time selling War Bonds on the streets for the War Department'.

The Conference also voted full support to the SOEG Technicolor unit in its wage dispute with the company, but it was reported Technicolor was prepared to grant the Guild demand rather than face a strike. Company has agreed to an 8% wage tilt, but fixed March 15 as the date for retroactive pay. The Guild is insisting that the retroactive payment be as of January 15.

Endorsement of the Conference gives the White Collarites support of the Studio Machinists, Painters, Cartoonists, Laboratory Technicians, Set Designers, Title Artists, Scenic Artists. Other crafts also will be asked to cooperate in the event the strategy committee decides to establish picket lines.

So It Does

One of the few airshows that doesn't sign off with the point of origination is NBC's 'One Man's Family.' Tag is 'this program comes to you from California.' Idea is to preserve the illusion that it emanates from Frisco, it's former stamping ground, although it is fed to the network from Radio City here.

REQUISITIONING of the schooner, Metha Nelson, by the U. S. Maritime Commission leaves Paramount without a boat to use for its 'Story of Dr. Wassell.' Studio had recently completed conversion of schooner into a motorship by installation of Diesel engines and demasting, planning to use it to portray the old wooden Dutch motorship, Janssens, on which Lieutenant Commander Corydon M. Wassell and his charges made a 1,500-mile trip from Java to Australia. Paramount used the Metha Nelson in 'Reap the Wild Wind,' and another ship, Cecil B. DeMille's Gloucester schooner-yacht, the Seward, which appeared in the film, was requisitioned three months ago by the Navy. The Metha Nelson was the ship chartered by the Countess di Frasso and Marino Bello several years ago for an adventure cruise to the South Seas that ended in near-mutiny and other mis-adventures.

TO give Mr. and Mrs. Joe Public an insight of the workings of a news broadcast, Fox Case, CBS public relations director here, has installed a complete news bureau setup in a Seventh street display window of Bullock's. Three KNX femme staffers operate the exhibit, which will show Associated Press teletypes pouring out wordage from the war fronts, direct wires from all CBS news bureaus and short wave listening stations and reports from CBS correspondents in the far flung war theatres. Display will be backgrounded by a mural showing photographs of the chain's news analysts and reporters. Exhibit will be in operation from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. beginning July 16. Large maps have been posted so that passerby may follow the war's trend from the bulletins received.

The Brontosaur
In days of yore
Was big and strong and lazy,
And when his wife
Predicted strife
He figured she was crazy.

His neighbors warned,
But they were scorned,
For he was huge and hearty.
'No guy,' said he,
'Will pick on me—
You mean some other party.'

But smaller chaps,
Like prowling Japs,
Attacked the Brontosaur.
He wouldn't buy
A Bond—that's why
He roams the fields no more.

Texas Trouble Shooters

(Western)

Monogram production and release. Stars Ray 'Crash' Corrigan, John 'Dusty' King and Max 'Alibi' Terhune, with Julie Duncan, Glen Strange, Roy Harris, Eddie Phillips, Frank Ellis, Ted Mapes, Kermit Maynard, Gertrude W. Hoffmann, Steve Clark, Jack Holmes. Produced by George W. Weeks. Directed by S. Roy Luby. Production manager, William L. Nolte. Photography, Robert Cline. Sound engineer, Corson Jowett. Story by Elizabeth Beecher. Screenplay by Arthur Hoerl. Musical direction, Frank Sanucci. Editor, Roy Claire. Reviewed at Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 9, 1942. Running time: 56 MINS.

Opening and closing with the perennial chase, the 15th in the Range Busters series has some novelty in its story. It's just as full of bad acting, very bad men and is likely to mean bad business unless aided. Not the least of its shortcomings are some laughable suspense scenes.

Probably the weakest of the bovine beaus, these lads rely on a lot of action in hard riding and fast shooting to help them along the lone prairie. Actually, it's only when they are in action that their efforts register as entertainment.

A once pop, now hackneyed tune, 'Deep in the Heart of Texas' and another, best left unidentified, are thrown in along with other asides for dressing. John King handles the vocals as usual, doing best with the former. Ventriloquism, trick riding and assorted asides take up where shooting lets off—but the shooting is better. Only Ray Corrigan and the femme foil, Miss Duncan, make like actors.

Oil for the pockets of the town villain, a lawyer, who would mulct the sweet young thing and her always-in-danger cousin, Roy Harris, who know not of the petrol, motivates. The Busters enter the crooked circle through devious methods to frustrate the evildoers while posing as cohorts. As usual none of them gets the girl because the call of action is too strong and Monogram has to keep them foot loose and fancy free to continue collecting more coin.

Corrigan virtually carries the film as well as the fisticuffs. He's a lumbering and likeable type, probably more typically a herdsman than many others but too good to be true to the till. He guides the counter-plot while the rest follow the leader—but literally.

Little loving time and much action time was made by director Roy S. Luby, who while keeping the film popping in time with the guns couldn't get much out of his people unless they were doing the shooting.

Bombs Over Burma

(Melodrama)

Produced by Alfred Stern and Arthur Alexander for Producers Releasing Corporation. Features Anna May Wong, with Noel Madison, Leslie Denison, Nedrick Young, Dan Seymour, Frank Lacteen, Judith Gibson, Dennis Moore, Connie Leon, Hayward Soo Hoo, Richard Lo and Paul Fung. Directed by Joseph H. Lewis. Screenplay by Milton Raison and Joseph Lewis from original by Milton Raison. Assistant director, Seymour Roth. Photography, Robert Cline. Sound engineer, Corson Jowett. Settings, Fred Preble. Editor, Charles Henkel, Jr. Musical direction, Lee Zahler. Reviewed at Vogue, Hollywood, July 9, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

This one is a near-carbon of 'A Yank on the Burma Road,' but offers more action, more stark and grim drama and pathos. There's so much that one is almost sympathetically inclined toward the Nazi spy as he meets his end at the wrong end of pick-axes, hoes and other rough implements in the hands of aroused Chinese at the climax. Should do moderately well on the war side of double headers, plus possible Wong draw.

School teacher Anna May Wong is sent to Lashio to find out who is tipping the Jap bombers on truck convoys. Getting in a bus with a lot of loose-end characters, she finds herself almost in a whodunit situation when everyone suspects the other of espionage. After seeking refuge in a monastery she finds it's a companion's wireless-equipped electric razor that transmits messages and not the shortwave set of the monk. Latter is really an ally.

Already a patriot, Anna is impelled to more direct action when one of her little Chinese charges is mowed down by low flying plane while he plays gunner through the school window. These and other Jap disregards for life and property are played up throughout. Haywood Soo Hoo, Chinese mite who plays the unfortunate child, does a little trouper's job of his assignment and will make many firends. Rest of acting is pretty unimportant, except for flashes from Miss Wong, Leslie Denison and Nedrick Young. However, there is sufficient action to compensate for acting shortage.

What appears to be stock shots from 'Burma Road,' the truck caravan scenes, are used. Story, too, has little to do with Burma, concerning itself with Chunking and China mostly. But since we are all in it together, this will undoubtedly be overlooked.

Photography is above average, particularly in the plane scenes. Direction could have been a smoother and shorter job. But on the whole, it's digestible film fodder.

Prisoner of Japan

(Melodrama)

Produced by Arthur Ripley for Producers Releasing Corp. Features Alan Baxter, Gertrude Michael, and Ernest Dorian, with Corinna Mura, Tommy Seidel, Billy Moya, Ray Bennett, Dave O'Brien, Ann Staunton, Gilbert Frye, Kent Thurber. Directed by Arthur Ripley. Production supervisor, Leon Fromkess. Based on story by E. G. Ulmer. Screenplay and dialogue, Robert Chapin. Associate producer, Andre Dumonceau. Photography, Jack Greenhalgh. Sound, Percy Townsend. Assistant director, Herman Pett. Editor, Holbrook Todd. Reviewed at Vogue, Hollywood, July 9, 1942. Running time: 55 MINS.

Strongest point in favor of this slap-the-Jap yarn is the manner in which it presents the rice lice as a cruel and cunning enemy. Not well done but pointed enough to have meaning for even the thickest skulls, and startling enough in spots to cause comment that should echo to the box office. Weak names give it weak knees, perhaps, but being the kind of thing that will create talk, however unflattering, it should hold its own—but not alone.

It contains a lesson in loose talk, and will rouse audiences who are given sights to remember, with Japs manhandling white women and indulging in extreme cruelties and calousness. American frame of mind being what it is at present, the imagined will take on forceful reality. Slightly overdone on the melodramatic and never subtle, it will escape titters, however, because no picture of the Nip can be too low.

Alan Baxter, as a young scientist who has gone the way of the bottle, finds himself harboring operators of a Jap shortwave station on his little island. Kept under guard when not myopic, he thinks himself powerless to overcome them until a young native friend is murdered, a rescued and wounded American officer is shot and a former girl friend gets slapped. That slaps him into action.

A new twist is given the fade when he and Gertrude Michael give up their lives by directing battleship fire to their position in the secret radio station they wrested from the Japs. Both do good jobs, Alan giving a sensible portrayal of the lush-turned-man, and getting off nice acting in the heavier scenes. Miss Michael plays an acceptable bombastic showgirl who inadvertently gets into the middle. Ernest Dorian, a newcomer, lends weight to the Jap master mind by careful under-playing in the manner of the two-faced Japs.

Stress throughout is laid on the downright nastiness of the Japs, story presenting them in worst possible light the most possible times. In normal times feeling might be that no one could be such a louse. But war is here, here we are, so anything goes, and it does here.

Direction and photography rate a nod despite inclusion of some obvious library lifts.

Actors Give and Take In Debate On Victory Group

mittee turned this criticism aside by proving the affairs had not been okayed by the Committee and that the players had appeared on their own. This also applied to the appearance of a star in Kansas City without sanction of the Committee. It was pointed out that the actors were represented by Edward Arnold and Kenneth Thomson. There was an immediate cry to name another actor, with Pat O'Brien shouting 'Give us Bette Davis.' Joan Blondell, George Murphy and others are said to have taken part in the debate.

Edward Arnold said that at one period because of the lack of cooperation by players he was in favor of disbanding the Victory Committee to see what would happen. The debate finally ended with the group adopting a resolution urging the appointment of another actor or actress on the Executive Committee of the Victory group. This will be taken up today when the Victory Committee meets.

At the same time it was disclosed that 25 additional actors and actresses have been added to the Actors Sub-Committee with the idea of increasing interest and cooperation. The committee originally was composed of 20 members. Members added to the committee are:

Headed For Service

Two more Hollywoodians have joined up. Seymour Friedman enlists in the Marine Corps as soon as he completes his assistant director chore on 'The Boogie Man Will Get You' at Columbia. Corporal Paul Renay, former Hollywood and legit player, is undergoing instruction at the Officers Training School at Fort Sill, Okla., preparing for a commission.

SOEG STRIKE CALL READY; EXCHANGES FACE WALKOUT

as to whether all the exchanges will be pulled simultaneously the first of next week, general feeling is that two or more of them might be struck before tomorrow night. It was announced that exchanges struck would be notified that if strikers places were filled studio tied in with that exchange would be immediately struck.

A special meeting of the SOEG has been called for Monday night at the Roosevelt hotel, at which time a strike assessment will be voted. Strike headquarters have already been rented on film row and plans made to staff it. Committees have been appointed to handle publicity, welfare, finance and public relations.

The SOEG strategy committee is being advised by a strategy committee from the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell. All unions affiliated with the Conference have pledged full support to the Collarites which means that the Painters, Film Technicians, Set Designers, Machinists, Cartoonists and other groups will respect any Guild picket line.

Pamphlets were being drafted last night for distribution in front of downtown and Hollywood theatres, although time for their distribution had not been set. Guild and Conference leaders were contacting other studio unions and Guilds for support in event the walkout spreads from the exchanges.

Plans for strike were hurried yesterday when noon deadline for companies to answer the SOEG demands passed without any word being received. General belief last night was that if the exchanges are pulled the strike will soon spread to the studios and theatres with picket lines in front of the plants.

Strike is over refusal of exchanges to agree to establish minimum wages for Collarites and for classification of their employes.

Reported plans of exchange executives to bring workers in from San Francisco were blocked yesterday when business representative Glenn Pratt of the Guild and attorney Louis Stein planed to the bay city to organize the exchange workers there. The Frisco employes had petitioned for affiliation with the SOEG and asked that an organizer be sent there when it was reported an effort might be made to put them in the IATSE.

Settlement of dispute between SOEG and Technicolor is expected over the weekend, the company having indicated that it would meet demand rather than face a strike. Technicolor has agreed to an 8% wage tilt, but SOEG is insisting on January 15 as retoractive date. Company had offered March 15.

Studios Contributing Big Rubber Salvage

More than half a ton of scrap rubber was collected at headquarters of the Producers Association and Central Casting Corp. The collection included all rubber covers for typewriter keys, rubber mats under desk chairs, rubber tips to chairs, rubber seat mats, erasers, rubber protectors for telephone cords and rubber door bumpers.

Reclamation of rubber from studios for 1942 will run into hundreds of tons. Studio rubber salvage has not been confined to the current campaign, but has been collected from month to month. At the same time salvage of nails has been stepped up 300% since adoption of a nail straightener, developed at one of the film plants.

20th Has Payroll 3600

To keep manpower pace with heaviest production slate at studio since fall of 1939, 20th-Fox has increased its employee list from a previous normal of around 2800 to a current 3600.

Heavy production schedule has 12 pictures in work now, and seven more will be started before end of July, to replace those finishing up. New ones will be 'Crash Dive,' 'The Meanest Man in the World,' 'The Light of Heart,' 'Seventh Column,' 'Corregidor,' 'One Man Army' and 'The Undying Monster.'

Sam Spewack To Head Film Production For War Info

New York, July 9.—Sam Spewack will head up the film production for Official War Information, working out of New York, at request of Lowell Mellett, Coordinator of Government Films. Spewack has just completed a 62-minute production titled 'World at War.'

The picture includes clips of Nazi and Jap films which the latter tried to smuggle into this country. Flicker will bear credit tag, 'United States Government Presents,' and will deal with forces rather than personalities, which were in the play leading to Pearl Harbor. The picture is to be released commercially though terms and distributor deal has not yet been set. The understanding also is that profits from distribution may go to charitable causes.

The Office of War Information is giving up production of all pictures slanted for morale purposes and will concentrate on informative clips henceforth. The pictures will run shorter, around three minutes, and will deal with topical problems. Morale-building pictures of any dramatized war theme will be left to Hollywood.

Warners Will Have Six Regional Conventions

New York, July 9.—Warners will hold six regional sales meetings this year instead of a national convention. Move, which was expected, had approval today of district managers in huddle here for concentrated talks on WB sales policies and product for the 1942-43 season.

All regional meetings will be presided over by sales chief Ben Kalmenson with following dates: Boston, July 23-24; Pittsburgh, 27-28; Chicago, 30-31; Memphis, Aug. 3-4; San Francisco, 10-11. Sesh for the Canadian division will be set later for end of August.

Approximately $25,000 will be handed out in prizes covering the annual sales drive of this year at the various regional meetings; with district managers, branch heads, salesmen and bookers cutting up the melon.

MG Ties Caldwell's 'Vengeance'

New York, July 9.—Metro has optioned Erskine Caldwell's unpublished Russian yarn, 'Vengeance of the Earth,' paying $1,500 down on an eventual purchase price of $50,000 when deal is consummated. Author gets an additional 20 cents for every copy of the book sold, with a overall limit of $70,000. No publisher for tome has yet been revealed.

Real Cooperation

Denver, July 9.—Bernard Hynes, manager of the Denver theatre here, unit of the Fox Intermountain circuit, is smacking hefty figures in selling war bonds and stamps in the special sales booth installed in the theatre. Hynes is giving away a pair of passes with each $25 bond purchased, and his sales are far exceeding those of local department stores and commercial establishments that are currently driving hard to roll up impressive totals.

SDG Appoints Leaders For Studio War Relief Drive

The Screen Directors Guild has appointed 30 studio captains to aid in the current funds appeal for Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Reliefs. A director and assistant director will act as lot contacts for the SDG at each studio.

Jacob H. Karp, chairman of the industry drive, has been notified that the following captains will represent the SDG:

Samuel Goldwyn, David Butler and John Sherwood; Monogram, Jean Yarbrough and Don Verk; Producers Releasing Corp., Sam Neufield and Bert Sternbach; 20th-Fox, Irving Cummings and Jasper Blystone; Universal, Arthur Lubin and Joseph A. McDonough; Warners, Edmund Goulding and Raoul Walsh; RKO, Richard Wallace and Harry Scott; Republic, Joseph Santley and George Blair; Hal Roach, Glenn Tryon and Holly Morse; RKO-Pathe. A. Edward Sutherland and Edward Killy; Metro, Mervyn LeRoy and Horace Hough; Paramount, Ralph Murphy and Charles Coleman; Columbia, Sidney Salkow and Norman Demming; Larry Darmour, James P. Hogan and Carl Hiecke; Fine Arts, Joseph Berne and Doc Merman.

Karp has notified the studio colonels that the first report luncheon will be next Wednesday instead of July 22, as previously announced. Studio colonels also have been asked to inform contributors that specific amounts are to be set down for each of the separate reliefs.

Not As Promised Exhibs

Fox West Coast and Metro are lining up premiere performance of 'Mrs. Miniver' at the Carthay Circle for night of July 22, with reserved seats at $3.30 and proceeds going to funds of some organization devoted to entertainment of service men. Picture opens the following day on continuous basis in five first runs —Grauman's Chinese, Loew's State, Wilshire, United Artists and Carthay Circle.

Scribbling

Abem Finkel yesterday turned in his adaptation of Roland Dorgeles' dramatic narrative, 'Road to Moscow' at 20th-Fox and had it okayed by Darryl Zanuck. Story deals with the fighting prowess of the Russian guerrillas behind the Nazi lines.

Arthur Caesar is scripting 'Hot Rubber' for Bryan Foy production at 20th-Fox.

CENTURY CLEARANCE CLAIM RULED OUT BY ARBITER

Claim of Sidney Pink and Joseph Moritz, operators of the Century theatre, which asked for reduction in clearance under provisions of consent decree arbitration machinery, has been disallowed by Arbitrator H. Eugene Breitenbach. The five consent decree distribs — Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, Warners and Metro—were named as defendants, with intervenors including operators of the Manchester, Figueroa and Strand theatres.

Century operators asked in their complaint for day-and-date clearance with both the Manchester and Figueroa, and reduction in clearance after first run Los Angeles closing from 35 to 21 days. House had increased admission from 39c to 44c prior to filing the complaint; and contended that the Manchester, 1.8 miles distance, and the Figueroa, 2.1 miles away, were not competitive.

Arbitrator Breitenbach, in a lengthy opinion, commented that reduction or elimination of clearance of the Century over the Manchester and Figueroa might furnish a precedent and result in a chaotic situation and a breakdown of zoning and clearance in the city.

Albert J. Law, attorney for Pink and Moritz in the action, stated yesterday afternoon that the case would be taken to the Consent Decree Appeal Board in New York, as—in view of recent decision of the appeal board in a Kansas City case—the Century matter has many angles of similarity.

Unions Want Buzzell To Resign CLC Post

inists, White Collarites and Film Technicians.

Speakers at yesterday's session indicated they favored Council affiliation but were rather pointed in their criticism of Buzzell. One said he became sour on the CLC after Buzzell 'had tried to ramrod through a vote of confidence in Willie Bioff and George E. Browne', who are now serving penitentiary sentences for shaking down picture producers.

J. C. Tutt, secretary of the Pasadena Central Labor Council, presided at the session. It finally was agreed that Tutt appoint a committee to see if some harmony progarm could not be worked out that would stop the mass withdrawals from the Central Labor Council and build it into a real representative of the AF of L. J. K. (Spike) Wallace, head of the Musicians; Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and Pat Somerset, of the Screen Actors Guild, were named on the committee, with others to be added this week.

Talks were made by Sorrell, Wallace, Fred Kane, of the Jewelry Workers Union, John Hune of the District Painters, and J. Carrigan, of the Teamstesr. The real tiff with the Central Labor Council started when Buzzell attacked formation of the Unity For Victory Committee, which is comprised of AF of L unions, Congress of Industrial Organizations, Railroad Brotherhoods and independent crafts, representing a total of more than 200,000 workers. Unions representing more than 100,000 AF of L men are now affiliated with the Unity Movement, reportedly leaving a membership of only some 40,000 in the CLC.

It was hinted yesterday that if Buzzell is unwilling to step aside in the interest of harmony, AF of L tops may be asked to send in a national representative to iron out the situation.

Hays Yanks Lot Visas Of Axis Reporters

diately after the Pearl Harbor attack.

The list of those eliminated in addition to German, Italian and Japanese correspondents, includes men covering the lots for Belgium, France, Denmark, Poland, etc. The only foreign correspondents now carrying Hays office credentials represent either friendly or strictly neutral nations. And it was indicated that a close check will be kept on activities to see that no aliens get studio visas.

Executives said there was no need to register the correspondents, since the Hays office was well acquainted with the background of each individual. It was stated that the registration will be confined exclusively to regular studio employes, executives and casual workers. It is understood officials felt that any move to photograph and fingerprint correspondents might be interperterd in some quarters as attempting to interfere with Freedom of the Press.

Almost a Deal

A deal for Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra to appear in 'I Dood It,' Red Skelton starrer for Metro, awaits only final contract details before signature. Jimmy and Bill Burton, his manager, left yesterday for New York and contract will be forwarded to them after Louis K. Sidney and Tommy Rockwell, latter head of General Amusement Corp., work out details. Band will return here late in the summer or early Fall on closing a theatre tour. Likely the Palladium will be played here then, too.

Al Spar has joined Columbia's Screen Gems cartoon unit as personnel manager. He was formerly associated with the Fleischer studio in Miami, Fla.

No Theatre Building Edict Brings Lease Snipers on Run

New York, July 9.—Elimination of all new theatre construction during the war period by government edict, has started sniping procedure at theatre leases of established operations. Although only a few instances have been uncovered so far, chances are that the program of attempting to cut in under present lessees when theatre lease deals are up for renewal, will blossom into an aggravating situation for those exhibitors and circuits who have renewals coming up.

Efforts of the snipers so far in the instances reported, have been confined to smaller theatres with moderate lease terms, and those interested in grabbing off profitable operations do not want to crack at the large deluxers due to amount of coin involved both in overhead and rental.

Attitude of the raiders of theatres is that elimination of further theatre building makes expiring leases fair game, and houses of both circuits and independents will be fair game. Procedure used in recent weeks has been to tab a profitable name theatre which has lease expiring within a few months. Approach is then made to the building owner, offering a cash deposit for guarantee of performance, and a substantial rental increase on a new lease when that of present tenant expires.

New F-WC Skouras Drive To Start

With the fourth annual Spyros Skouras showmanship drive for all divisions and districts of National Theatres finishing tomorrow, the Fox West Coast organization launches a third quarter drive among its own districts Sunday.

With one more week to be reported in the 14 week Spyros Skouras biz campaign, three California districts were in the forefront. Charles Thall of San Francisco; Stan Brown and Stan Meyer of districts three and four, respectively, of the Southern California division, seem to be entrenched in money positions among the first six places. District managers, bookers and theatre managers of top ranking positions in the drive will be handed bonuses.

COOPERATION accorded Nat Wolff's radio division of Office of War Information here by film and radio stars in setting up the Victory Theatre and Victory Parade series over NBC and CBS in behalf of the war effort has brought note of appreciation from W. B. Lewis radio head of OWI in Washington. Hollywood's effort has been little short of all-out, with every top show here but one (justifiably excused) volunteering for the two series even though most of the air toppers are now on their quarterly layoff. Of the 12 shows on NBC's Victory Parade, 10 have their home base here. Columbia's eight in the Victory Theatre series adds another four to the Hollywood string. Indicative of Hollywood's response to the government programs is the case of Meredith Willson, who, asked to lead the orchestra on the Jack Benny broadcast Aug. 23 in the absence of Phil Harris, on tour, immediately accepted. Others have been equally cooperative and generous with their time and talent.

SO far Republic is stymied on putting a heavy into 'Heart of the Golden West,' initial Roy Rogers special to be produced and directed by Joe Kane. When the Mauri Grashin-Robert Shannon script was submitted to the Hays office it was sent back with eight pages of suggested changes and notice that there are no villains in Mexico. Yarn, with a modern background, is located in Lower California around Ensenada. According to Hays office, picture must not show any particular race as the heavy, apparently meaning bad men of any type are not found below the border. Kane will take matter up with Mexican consulate here to see if its attitude on heavies is the same as the Hays office.

WITH entry of Gene Autry into the Army, Republic is in a quandry as to what use it will put Smiley Burnette, chief comic in all the Autry westerns. Burnette has considerable following himself among patrons of prairie sagas. Studio isn't considering Burnette for its Three Mesquiteers westerns, produced on a budget below what comic's paycheck would justify, and the Roy Rogers series has George 'Gabby' Hayes entrenched as the co-lead. Carrying Burnette on in the same number of westerns slated for Autry would mean the digging up of a young film waddie who could handle the romantic portion of a script, but such players are hard to find at present.

JIMMIE FIDLER is now telling Elmer Davis how to run the show. He thinks that the head of War Information should have previewed for him films of war nature that have titles relative to major war incidents. He took slap at 'Remember Pearl Harbor' complaining on his air show last night it was not commemorative of the occasion and would be bad influence on young audiences. All in all, Fidler just does not want films to make capital of current war events, or anything that does not satisfy his personal vanity, an old trait of hollering copper.

Col Hits Peak With Eight Pix Working

Production pace at Columbia hits a new peak this week with eight pictures before the cameras when 'go' signal is given to 'The Commandos', Lester Cowan production which John Farrow will direct on location in British Columbia, starting Thursday.

Currently at work are 'You Were Never Lovelier', 'My Sister Eileen', 'The Desperadoes', Columbia's first Technicolor production; 'The Daring Young Man', 'The Boogie Man Will Get You', 'Shall I Tell 'Em?' 'The Fighting Buckaroo'. Before the end of the month Gregory Ratoff expects to get his 'Something to Shout About' started.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

Time was when cowboy heroes romped across the picture screen
And slew the wicked heavy in the final shooting scene
And all the western plays were built on one unchanging plan—
The villain of the drama was a scowling Mexican.
But now the diplomatic theme is hands-across-the-border
And tales of no-good Mexicans are strictly out of order.
The rustlers of the bygone days are relics of the past
And westerns will be made without a villain in the cast.

Victory Group Talks Expanded Program With Army Top

Plans to extend the war and patriotic activities of motion picture stars and featured players will be worked out here this week at conferences between the Hollywood Victory Committee and Colonel Marvin Young, aide to Brig. General F. H. Osborne. The enlarged program also will include USO-Camp Shows, which has given a total of 3,819 performances through 1,541 separate visits of entertainment units appearing before 2,149,338 men.

A brief meeting of the Victory Committee was held Friday, but no definite action was taken because of lack of a quorum. Proposed changes in the Committee by-laws which would permit the addition of at least one actor or actress to the group have been sent to all members for approval. A committee meeting will be arranged this week, at which time the members will discuss future plans with Colonel Young.

It was stated Friday that the addition of some 40 players to the Actors Sub-Committee would insure a more active cooperation by the actors. Chairman Kenneth Thomson expressed the hope that in the future the Actors Sub-Committee will be expanded until its membership includes 100 to 150 performers.

Costs for the winter program of Camp Shows totaled $1,304,563.01, of which 3.68% was spent on administrative costs. While talent participating in Camp Shows programs has been engaged on a paid basis, the entertainment voluntarily contributed 204 performances at post and station hospitals.

The expanded program of the Victory Committee, as well as USO-Camp Shows, will include personal appearances, roadshow units and broadcasts.

COLLARITES TO PICKET STUDIOS; WALKOUT SPREADS

United Artists exchanges would leave their jobs today.

Members of the Screen Office Employes Guild at a special meeting tonight will set a deadline for the exchanges to make a settlement, after which picket lines will be established at the major studios. Some of the leaders are said to favor setting the deadline for noon Tuesday, with others inclined to give the Producers 24 hours' notice.

Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, notified Pat Casey, Producer-labor contact, yesterday that unless the dispute is satisfactorily adjusted his organization is 'prepared to pull every studio in the business'. All crafts affiliated with the Conference, including Painters, Machinists, Cartoonists, Scenic Artists, Laboratory Technicians, etc., have pledged full support to the Collarites. Sorrell's letter to Casey follows:

'At 10:15 this a.m. the office workers struck the Columbia and RKO exchanges. Other exchanges will follow according to plan. This communication is to notify you that in the event non-union people are hired to replace the strikers in any exchange, it will automatically cause us to strike the corresponding studio making pictures for that exchange.

'I am in hopes that it will not be necessary to tie up all of the studios.

'The Producers have seen fit to hire a union-hating lawyer by the name of Paul Watkins and we do not think a satisfactory adjustment can be made with Watkins in the picture. We are prepared to pull every studio in the business within the next few days unless this dispute is satisfactorily adjusted.'

Producers Association meets today and is expected to consume most of the time discussing the strike. Several top executives are reported to favor taking the negotiations out of the hands of the New York representatives who have made no headway toward a settlement. It is probable that proposal will be made to submit the dispute to arbitration, with the workers returning to their jobs in the meantime. This probably would be accepted by the union, although workers probably would not agree to arbitrate the question of union shop, exchange executives having approved National Labor Relations Board elections in which the workers designated the Guild as their bargaining agent.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG issued the following statement last night:

'It is difficult for us to understand the attitude of the major companies, since our relations with the Producers and studio heads have always been entirely harmonious. All of the exchanges agreed to elections by the NLRB. But almost the minute the workers had voted to name the SOEG as their bargaining agent, the exchanges adopted dilatory tactics, and when forced to start negotiations, adopted an arbitrary stand on all questions, leaving nothing to negotiate. They started off by employing an attorney to direct their negotiations who has built up a reputation for being anti-labor, and as a result their attitude throughout has been to hell with the low-paid workers, they'll take what we offer or get nothing. This is entirely contrary to our relations with the Producers, who have just signed contracts covering wages and conditions for 1,825 studio clerical employes. The studios are directly involved, since the exchanges distribute their product. Hence, if it is necessary to protect our union security in the picture industry, picket lines will be established at the studios.'

There was some talk last night that the Producers might ask the government to step in, but this was opposed by some studio tops who said it would result in a long drawn out fight and engender dissatisfaction in all union ranks. Some of the Exchange executives opposing a settlement were reported to have hoped that the IATSE would organize the front office workers and assume jurisdiction. Workers in San Francisco, however, refused to join the IATSE and affiliated with the SOEG.

Lethargy Ends at RKO; 7 Pix Now in Work; 6 More on Deck

Displaying the most activity in 18 months, and undergoing a shortage of stage space, RKO has seven pictures in production and six others set to start work by the end of July. Not only is the death of stage space affecting the Gower street studio, but the Pathe lot in Culver City is maintaining capacity usage of its available floorage. The shortage has forced the use of General Service studio, where Leo McCarey directed several days' footage on 'Once Upon a Honeymoon', with Cary Grant and Ginger Rogers.

When 'Name, Age and Occupation' hiked to Kernville location, Allan Dwan immediately moved in at Pathe on the released space for scenes of 'Here We Go Again', with Fibber McGee and Molly, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. Edward Sutherland is directing most of 'The Navy Comes Through' at Culver City. The Gower lot is housing 'Sweet and Hot', Tim Whelan musical with Victor Mature and Lucille Ball; 'The Falcon's Brother', featuring George Sanders, Tom Conway, Jane Randolph and Charlotte Wynters, and the Tim Holt western, 'Red River Robin Hood'.

Monogram Starts Four More This Month

Monogram gives the starting gun to four pictures between now and the end of the month, starting off this week with 'Foreign Agent', first of the Martin Mooney-Max King productions for the company. William Beaudine will direct from script by Mooney and John Krafft, based on a Mooney original.

'Bowery At Midnight', Bela Lugosi feature, rolls July 21; with Wallace Fox directing and Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz producing. Next will be 'Dogs of War', George W. Weeks special, with Billy Lee in the top spot, going July 22 under direction of S. Roy Luby. 'Here Come the Marines' is down for a July 28 start. Lindsley Parsons produces with Jean Yarbrough directing Guinn Williams and Robert Lowery in the leads.

Company has five pictures awaiting release, three editing, and 'Man and the Devil' in its final stages before the cameras.

MacDonald Tours

Jeanette MacDonald will make a four weeks tour for USO Camp Shows, Inc., starting July 20, it was announced yesterday by the Hollywood Victory Committee. Miss MacDonald will give a popular two-hour concert at camps in seven states. The tour will be exclusively in the 'heat' belt. Her accompanist will be Margaret Hart.

PAR HAS 30 PIX BACKLOG; 10 START WITHIN MONTH

Paramount has acquired the biggest backlog of features in the company's history. With the editing and scoring of six recently completed productions, studio now has 30 features ready for release. Ten more are set to roll within the next month. Features now in the vault will furnish Paramount with sufficient product release to last until the end of the year.

Included among the completed features are: Irving Berlin's 'Holiday Inn', starring Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire; 'The Palm Beach Story', starring Claudette Colbert and Joel McCrea, with Mary Astor and Rudy Vallee; 'The Forest Rangers', starring Fred MacFurray, Paulette Goddard and Susan Hayward; 'Young and Willing', starring William Holden; 'American Empire', starring Richard Dix, Leo Carrillo and Preston Foster; 'Dr. Broadway', 'Night In New Orleans', 'Wildcat', with Richard Arlen and Arlene Judge; 'Tombstone, the Town Too Tough to Die', with Richard Dix and Kent Taylor; 'Are Husbands Necessary?' with Ray Milland and Betty Field; 'Street of Chance', with Burgess Meredith and Claire Trevor; 'Undercover Man', featuring William Boyd; 'Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch', with Fay Bainter, Carolyn Lee, Hugh Herbert, Vera Vague; 'Henry Aldrich, Editor', with Jimmy Lydon, Charles Smith, Rita Quigley and John Litel.

'My Heart Belongs To Daddy', with Richard Carlson, Martha O'Driscoll and Cecil Kellaway; 'The Glass Key', starring Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd; 'The Road To Morocco', starring Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour; 'Priorities On Parade', with Ann Miller, Betty Rhodes and Jerry Collonna; 'Wrecking Crew', with Richard Arlen, Chester Morris and Jean Parker; 'The Major and the Minor', with Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland; 'Silver Queen', with George Brent, Priscilla Lane; 'Lady Bodyguard', with Eddie Albert, Anne Shirley and Roger Pryor; 'Wake Island', with Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston and MacDonald Carey; 'I Married a Witch', with Fredric March and Veronica Lake; 'Great Without Glory', with Joel McCrea and Betty Field; 'Happy Go Lucky', with Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Rudy Vallee; 'I Live On Danger', with Chester Morris and Jean Parker; 'Lost Canyon', with William Boyd, Lola Lane and Andy Clyde; 'Submarine Alert', with Richard Arlen and Wendy Barrie; 'Border Patrol', with William Boyd and Jay Kirby.

Features currently shooting are: 'No Time For Love', with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray; 'Star Spangled Rhythm', with most of the studio player roster among 70 others; 'For Whom the Bell Tolls', starring Gary Cooper and Zorina, and 'The Leather Burners', with William Boyd, Andy Clyde and Jay Kirby.

Reject Ladd for Army; Starts 'Glory' July 20

Alan Ladd has been deferred by the Army for physical reasons after taking his second physical examination Saturday morning. Rejection permits Paramount to go ahead with its plans to start actor in 'Prelude To Glory', putting it before the cameras July 20, as well as other stories which studio expected would have to be sidetracked when Ladd's induction seemed imminent.

Ladd was scheduled to appear on the 'Stars Over Hollywood' CBS radio show Saturday morning, but was forced to cancel out when draft board sent notice to report on that date for the second physical. Wallace Ford took over the guest spot vacancy.

Didn't Belong Here

Picket placard carried in front of the RKO exchange Friday and Saturday caused plenty of chuckles along film row, with most of the onlookers figuring that particular card should have been reserved for either Metro or Paramount. Wording read 'They distribute FILM, Why not PROFITS.'

Seek Time and Half For Night Work

Members of Film Technicians Local 683 yesterday adopted a resolution demanding time and a half for workers employed on night shifts between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m. Membership was indignant over a proposal for a 15% wage premium for night workers and instructed its negotiating committee to reopen the parley and demand time and a half. Local also voted a 50c per member assessment to fight the Hot Cargo Bill.

Finally Lands In 'Desert'

'Long Live the Night,' Sigmund Romberg tune, originally cleffed as part of the score for 'The Desert Song' but never used, has been revised for inclusion in the Warners picturization of the operetta. Revision was done by Mario Silva, including a complete new verse with lyrics by Jack Scholl.

LeRoy's 'Best Foot'

Mervyn LeRoy will direct 'Best Foot Forward,' one of five musicals to be produced by Arthur Freed for Metro this season.

Metro's Three-Year F-WC Franchise Expires Aug. 30

Metro's three-year franchise deal with Fox West Coast circuit expires Aug. 30, after which time the distributor will sell product to F-WC in blocks on same procedure as applies to other exhibitors.

The original pact was signed between circuit and distrib in 1939, and covered exhibition of all Metro porduct for a three-year term in F-WC houses operating at that time. Theatres acquired subsequent to the franchise ticket by the circuit were not included in the overall deal, and separate contracts had to be negotiated from time to time for Metro product booked into those houses. Operation of the consent decree selling policies precludes possibilities of renewing franchise deals by the five majors, although term franchise contracts in effect when the consent decree was instituted were allowed to run until expiration.

Sergt. Gene Autry

Gene Autry goes to the Federal building tomorrow morning to be inducted and sworn in as a technical sergeant in the Army. Actor is rushing through 'Bells of Capistrano' at Republic now in time to make a July 23 opening at Soldiers Field, Chicago, where he does a week's personals before checking into active service at Washington, D. C., on Aug. 1.

Play Review

NEVER THE TWAIN

Reminding of racial and religious differences, this reversed 'Abie's Irish Rose' is not an especially good theme these days. And without the benefit of good acting or smart staging, 'Never the Twain' concludes as a weak and wobbly apology for a race and its people, rather than praiseworthy or even noteworthy entertainment.

Author Leonard Black attempts to demonstrate the evil of prejudices that prevent assimilation of peoples. He only succeeds in pointing up the problem that is best left unmentioned. Of course his Gentile hero and Jewish heroine do bridge the gap for the play's sake, but without conviction due to forced writing.

Successes like 'Abie's' and 'The Goldbergs' on the air belie the impression that this may be too colloquial. The homey philosophies and idiomatics indulged in bring it too close to the Second Avenue theatre type to be popular with other audiences. True, much of it is pretty well done by Black himself. He plays the father, bringing much to the role, and very much to the play. But the rather thick idea is spread on too thickly throughout.

Seemingly familiar enough with racial idiosyncrasies and dialect, etc., Black seems just as unfamiliar with his lower east side New York flat. He got in some good timing in the three-act dramatic comedy, but failed on sets and cast. Only he and Ken Lundy as the kid brother get any meat to chew—and are able to do it. Ann Chandler as the grieved and prejudiced mother does fairly well.

Registration Bureau Will Remain Open Through July 15

With more than 4,000 of an estimated 12,000 film casual workers still unregistered, it was announced that the Central identification Bureau at 5512 Hollywood Blvd. will remain open through Wednesday. Many of the workers had to write to other states for citizenship proof and the records are just now beginning to arrive.

Registration of casual employes had dropped to a low of little more than 100 applicants a day and previously it had been decided to permanently close the bureau Saturday.

Registration of full-time workers in the studios virtually has been completed and identification cards bearing photographs and fingerprints will be issued in a few days.

Army Doings Of Show Folks

James Stewart, joining as private, has received his first lieutenancy in the Air Force. Other armed service news over week-end has Louis Hayward sworn in as first lieutenant in the Marine Corps, and leaving this week for Quantico; Irwin Shaw, author of 'Bury the Dead,' and giving his occupation as free-lance playwright and scenarist, inducted into Army in New York; Garrett Graham, author and playwright, getting a captaincy in Marines; Mike Spector, manager for Carol Bruce, to join the Army end of this week; Joe Weston, former Warners publicist, going into Army as wireless operator; Eliot Daniel, former pianist with Rudy Vallee, preparing for induction; Rouben Arvanoff, maitre d' hotel at the Ambassador, a first lieutenant in Army Air Force, and going to Miami Beach for training.

Tivoli Frisco Reopens With Vaude-Pic Policy

San Francisco, July 12.—Joe Blumenfeld is planning to reopen the Tivoli theatre with combination vaude-film policy at pop prices and continuous showing. House would compete with the Golden Gate, which has similar policy generally.

It is reported that Blumenfeld is making a tieup with Sherrill Cohen, operator of the Orpheum, Los Angeles, whereby Orpheum shows of one week will be routed into the Tivoli the next. Tivoli plans to open on Thursdays with new show, which would make the swing from the south easy as the Orpheum finishes Tuesday. Harry Goldenberg, former manager of vaude houses for RKO and now operating a Blumenfeld circuit house in Berkeley, will be installed as Tivoli manager.

UA POW WOW HELD UP BY ILLNESS OF COUNSEL'S WIFE

United Artists owners and top executives, meeting at Pickfair on Friday, did not bring any conclusive results or decision. Illness of the wife of Loyd Wright, attorney for majority of UA owners as well as for the campany, resulted in meeting being adjourned until tomorrow or Wednesday.

Meeting, which lasted several hours, brought disclosures that Charlie Chaplin would produce and direct one film, 'Shadow and Substance', for release around end of December; that four could be expected from Hunt Stromberg, one from the Cagney Brothers, with James to star in a melodramatic yarn; that David O. Selznick hoped to deliver two, and Arnold Pressburger and Edward Small also two each.

Hal Roach will continue to make his Steramliners, though he himself has been called to duty as a lieutenant colonel in the Signal Corps, reporting for assignment to the Astoria studio on July 25. However, his organization will continue the productions, which have proved to be healthy coin getters. Sir Alexander Korda also is figuring on making two pictures here following his return from England, where he goes to have his knighthood bestowed.

There are four new producer deals up with the company. Jules Levey, who headed Mayfair that released a number of films through Universal, last being 'Pardon My Sarong', wants first to release a wild animal film that was made in South America, tying in Frank Buck with the footage. As well he wants to make a film version of the Olsen and Johnson stage show, 'Sons of Fun', with the two stars appearing in it as they did in 'Hellzapoppin', for Universal release, that is grossing a substantial profit.

Another deal has Reeves Espy associated with Tay Garnett to produce two yarns latter has under his belt and wants to direct. The duo now is negotiating with Security First National for financing of the proposed producing unit. Two other deals are currently in formative stages, but it is expected answers will be given on them at the next meeting, one being with Gregory LaCava.

Those who attended the Friday meeting were Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, David O. Selznick and Sir Alexander Korda, member owners; Ed Raftery, prexy; Gradwell Sears, Arthur W. Kelly, George Bagnall and Dan O'Shea, member of the UA production committee.

Kelly had planned leaving here for New York on Saturday, but is now remaining over for the next session.

Monroe Greenthal got in from New York on Saturday to look at 'Moon and Sixpence' and 'One of Our Aircraft Is Missing', film which Korda brought over from London for cutting release here. He will work out advertising and exploitation campaigns on these films as well as look at few others the company is liable to acquire.

Scribbling

Helen Deutsch set at RKO to work on the script of 'The Cat People' for Val Lewton, and Curt Siodmak goes on the screenplay of 'I Walked With a Zombie' for same producer.

Lenore Coffee scripting 'Marriage Is a Private Affair' at Metro. At same studio Arthur Wimperis will work on the screenplay of 'If Winter Comes'.

Lawrence Kimble set on the screenplay of 'Johnny Doughboy' at Republic.

Hold Trio Together

Universal will continue Maria Montez, John Hall and Sabu, now doing the leads in 'Arabian Nights,' as top trio in at least two other productions. Studio has assigned Scott Darling to write an original screen play under the title of 'Cobra Woman,' formerly slated for Miss Montez alone. Second one for trio will be 'White Savage,' which Gene Lewis is writing. George Waggner will be associate producer on both features.

Lieut. Lynn Missing

Second Lieutenant William C. Lynn, 27, formerly in the RKO studio reading department and mail room, has been listed as missing in action after his plane failed to return to English base after participating in a raid on Europe. Lynn enlisted in Air Force in April, 1941, and was sent to England last May. His wife and parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Lynn, reside here.

Music Hall Not Liable For Security Tax

Collector of Internal Revenue here, Jan. 30, 1939.

Analyzing the status of actors involved, the opinion of Judge Bright was: 'Special artists, who have no regular employer, and never have had, and are dependent upon the merits of their particular act to sell it in the amusement market, were never intended to be benefitted by the accumulation of reserves to be paid them in time of unemployment. Neither the person engaging their services, nor the time of their engagement, are stable or fixed. Their ability to sell depends entirely upon the amusement value of the commodity which they sell, and their earnings depend not upon the fact they are able or willing to work, but upon the fact that their particular performance has some appeal to the entertainment seeking public.' The court held that actors were 'merchants selling in the amusement market and nothing else.'

Judge Bright regarded an employe relationship in these circumstances to be identified as one where the employer sees to details and means whereby the accepted result of work is accomplished.

Yarbrough On 'Marines'

Jean Yarbrough will direct 'Here Come the Marines,' Lindsley Parsons production at Monogram which rolls July 28 with Robert Lowery and Guinn Williams in the cast.

Goldburg Will Distrib 'Yank in Australia' Made by Goulding

Negative of picture, 'Yank In Australia', is in final editing stages in Sydney, Australia, by Edmund Goulding, and will be shipped immediately to Jesse J. Goldburg, who holds American distribution rights to the picture. As soon as Goldburg gets a print of the picture he hops east to negotiate release deal with a major company, and has already lined up two companies interested in handling the feature.

According to Goulding in telephonic conversation with Goldburg, picture cost around $220,000, but could not be duplicated at this time for 10 times that outlay. Goulding claims that inserts of General MacArthur, not yet filmed, have been arranged for and will be shot at a propitious time. Antipodes producer now is figuring on second feature under title of 'Blitz Down Under'.

VACS Gets 'Miniver' Preem Proceeds

Special premiere of 'Mrs. Miniver' at the Carthay Circle July 22 will have a $5.50 top, with proceeds going to the Volunteer Army Canteen Service. Regular opening of Metro picture following day at the Carthay and Chinese, Loew's State, Fox Wilshire and United Artists will be at popular prices. Premiere will be formal, according to announcement.

Rep Borrows Drew

Ellen Drew has been borrowed by Republic from Paramount for 'Ice-Capades Revue'. Picture resumes shooting on dramatic portions July 27, after having washed up ice skating sequences with the 'Ice-Capades' troupe. Loan of Miss Drew now gives Republic three Paramount players, studio having earlier borrowed Martha O'Driscoll and Charlie Smith for 'Chatterbox'.

IB Claims Majority Of Top Lensers In Studios

National Labor Relations Board, in which the Producers Association, the Producers Negotiating Committee, and Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, are accused of unfair labor practice in dealing with International Photographers Local 659 for first cameramen, while the Producers had a contract with ASC.

Prexy Jackman stated that 122 studio directors of photography had joined Local 1318 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. He said that this was a clear majority of the 164 paid-up ASC membership, explaining that some 15 were in the armed services and about 20 away on location.

After the regular ASC meeting was adjourned, Jackman called a meeting of IBEW Local 1318. He explained the various moves and stated if the cameramen wanted to act in concert it was up to them. He said that about 70 had joined prior to the meeting, and that before last night's session was over the total had reached 122.

Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative, explained that the IBEW with its 400,000 members was 100% behind the lensers. Both he and Jackman explained that immediate application would be made for affiliation with the CSU. It was explained that the ASC for the present would retain its identity because of its pending case before the NLRB, but it was indicated the organization later would be merged with IBEW Local 1318.

The amended charge filed with the NLRB clarified the previous charge by showing that the contract negotiated with Local 659 for top lensers has now been put into effect. The NLRB has now completed its investigation, and belief was expressed yesterday that within a short time it will issue a formal complaint against the Producers and order a hearing before a trial examiner.

The camera situation was further complicated when Local 659 protested employment of Edward Cronjager on a 20th-Fox location in Utah because he does not carry a 659 card. Studio solved situation by agreeing to hire a standby member of Local 659 and leave Cronjager on the job. Standby job was offered to Gus Peterson, head of 659, but he turned it down.

Heath Quits Columbia

Lance Heath, head of Columbia studio publicity department since departure of Lou Smith several months ago, checked off the lot Saturday, day on which his resignation became effective. Heath tendered resignation a number of weeks ago, but had been requested to remain on until a new head could be named. He agreed to stay until Saturday. Department is still without a head, but it is understood Robert Taplinger, executive assistant to Harry Cohn, expects to reach a decision within next two weeks on a new publicity director. In the meantime Arthur Zellner will take over management of department details.

Patriotic Themes For Two Republic Pix

Republic has scheduled three new titles for forthcoming pictures, two with a patriotic theme, 'Conquer We Must' and 'Flying Fortress'. Third is 'Meet the Kid Sister', a Mary Lee starrer in which studio plans to put young singing actress on her own for a buildup.

'Conquer' will be the story of Francis Scott Key, writer of 'The Star Spangled Banner', from which picture gets its title. Story will play down the British angles in Key's life, dealing instead with adventurous phases. 'Flying Fortress', to be produced by Armand Schaefer, will have an all-male cast. Studio is dickering for use of a Boeing bomber for latter picture, subject to military regulations.

Ask Court Approval of Garfield-Lyons Ruling

Application has been filed in Superior court for approval of Screen Actors Guild-Artists Managers Guild arbitration decision in case of John Garfield and A. & S. Lyons agency. Garfield had discharged Lyons office as his agent, but arbitration board held the action unjust and ruled the agency shall continue in its present capacity as long as Garfield is at Warners. Law firm of Gang and Kopp, in association with Byron Hanna, represented the Lyons agency.

Pair For 'Flicka'

Preston Foster and Rita Johnson will play Roddy McDowall's parents in 'My Friend Flicka,' 20th-Fox Technicolor production. Filming on feature starts today on location at Cedar City, Utah, for shots of horses. Cast leaves here July 18 for location. Harold Schuster is directing the Ralph Dietrich production.

Goldwyn's Sales Pitch Greek To Skouras have taken the picture away from the Pantages and Hillstreet. Skouras informed Goldwyn the only circuit house that could be scaled on that basis was the Carthay Circle, and he would be willing to roadshow 'Yankee' there on roadshow policy, and at same terms and percentages given other producers for similar bookings in the past.

Skouras let Goldwyn know he was not interested in putting the picture in any other F-WC first run in the city, as Goldwyn was on RKO release and picture was slated for the Pantages and Hillstreet.

RKO sales department has not yet been handed selling terms and percentage demands of the producer for booking the baseball drama, and under terms of the consent decree selling cannot start discussions with exhibitors on deals until after the picture gets tradeshow treatment for exhibitors on Wednesday.

Goldwyn left for New York Friday night to supervise premiere of 'Yankees' at the Astor and 40 nabe New York houses at $1.10 top for a single showing, and to attempt to get RKO home office theatre execs to give him unusual terms for first runs at the Pantages and Hillstreet here. Although Goldwyn may attempt to pressure RKO to tilt Los Angeles and Hollywood first runs to the $1.10 figure, it is understood that theatre operators on the west coast will refuse this increase, but are willing to increase prices from 65c to 75c nights and 44c to 50c for mats. If Goldwyn tries to pressure beyond that scale he's likely to run into opposition.

Mexican Air Training Films Being Planned In Hollywood

Milton M. Golden, Hollywood attorney, is back from Mexico City, where he formulated deal to produce training films for the Mexican Air Force. Golden states that, following lengthy conferences with officials of Mexico, program has been mapped which will be patterned after U. S. air training films, and advance cooperation in the project has been assured by Washington officials. Dialog will be in Spanish for instructional purposes.

Plan provides for production of the training reels in this country, with Mexican planes, equipment and pilots coming up from the south when needed for filming. Golden will line up production staff locally, with Mexican government putting up production cost. Under cooperative arrangements between the two governments, U. S. air fields in the western sector will be used, in addition to Mexican air cadets who now are receiving training here, Golden states.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT

OF THE UNITED STATES

Dear FDR:

We went out on strike last Friday, and we think you should know why. This might seem trivial, compared to a raging world war, but we're sure you want to hear about it, because we believe that it's all part of the same problem. We're fighting -- with the only weapon left us -- for Freedom From Want and Freedom From Fear. And that's what the war's about, isn't it?

You see, Mr. President, we can't meet the 13 percent increase in the cost of living with the 5 percent raise offered us. We can't be free from the fear of losing our jobs when the security of union shop is denied us.

And we can't buy bonds on $20 a week...

The War Labor Board could help us settle our problem peaceably, if motion pictures were considered an essential industry. Our employers are unwilling to deal with us on a fair and reasonable basis. We have tried. We have had no success. So, being forced into this fight, we mean to see it through, because we believe, with you, that no one has the right to deprive loyal, patriotic citizens like ourselves of these Freedoms.

That's why we're on strike.

Very sincerely yours,

UA DISCUSSES PRODUCTION OF FOUR TO SIX PIX ON ITS OWN

United Artists owners and executives will decide this morning whether they will meet at Pickfair later today or continue adjournment of the meeting for a day or two. One of outstanding and important elements that must be disposed of is whether or not United Artists itself goes into production as insurance for continuity of product, while its owner producers or contributory producers are lethargically minded about making pictures. Company, should it go into production, would turn executive operations reins over to George Bagnall,

U. S. BANS EXCESS PROFITS, AIRCRAFT WAGE INCREASES

Studio executives are making a careful study of the Government ban on general wage increases and excess profits in the aircraft industry, announced yesterday by Richard Gilbert, deputy administrator of the Office of Price Administration, to determine what, if any, effect it will have on wages in the film industry. Several executives expressed the belief it would apply directly to workers employed on War Department pictures, while others seemed to think it may be expanded to non-defense industries generally to aid in preventing inflation.

Chatter

Sam Marx returns to his desk Friday from combo vacation and biz trip to New York.

Republic has lifted option on term contract of Judy Clark, 17-year-old singer-dancer.

Judy Garland, ending Manhattan holiday, is back at Metro to prepare for 'Presenting Lilly Mars'.

Bill Thompson, comic with the 'Fibber and Molly' airer, does a guest shot on the Sealtest program Thursday.

20th-Fox has picked up options on Laird Cregar and John Sutton. Both are now playing in 'The Black Swan'.

Marie Whelen, sec to Martin Murphy at Universal, shoves off for vacation trip to San Francisco and Tahoe.

Noel Langley, writer at 20th-Fox, is leaving next week for England, where he intends to enlist in the British army.

Barbara Britton has been chosen as the National Victory Corsage Girl, bally for the Treasury Department's War Savings campaign.

George Robinson will handle photography on Universal's 'On the Beam', while Lester White will be in charge of cameras for 'Sherlock Holmes In Washington'.

Marjorie King, secretary to head of Metro's legal department, made her screen debut, playing herself as a notary, in Metro's trailer on 'The War Against Mrs. Miniver'.

William O'Sullivan's next associate producer assignment at Republic is the serial 'G-Man vs. the Black Dragon.' Four writers, Ron Davidson, Joe O'Donnell, Joe Poland and William Lively, are working on the chapter screenplay.

Seymour Stern has sent to Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, copy of an original screen treatment, based on the Walt Whitman poem, 'To You,' as possibility for government-subsidized shorts projecting cultural and ideological traditions.

George Sherman, associate producer of the Don 'Red' Barry westerns, has been upped to producer and director of feature films at Republic. His first, 'X Marks the Spot,' starts camera work next week. Edward White, Sherman's assistant, temporarily takes over reins of the Barry cliffers.

CAMPAIGN to popularize score of 'You Were Never Lovelier' has been started by Columbia, studio figuring on having the Jerome Kern-Johnny Mercer tunes climbing into the pop ranks by time picture is given its release in October. Another stunt being set is a 'Jerome Kern Week' on the radio, also timed for October. Eight albums will be recorded of score by as many bands, four of which have already been set, Andre Kostelanetz, Paul Whiteman, Xavier Cugat and an orchestra with Fred Astaire. Kostelanetz used score on his regular Sunday broadcast yesterday with Astaire and Rita Hayworth cutting in from Hollywood doing scenes from the picture. Tomorrow Cugat is giving a cocktail concert at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, introducing tunes to musical critics, editors, song pluggers, etc. Columbia is lining up other stunts to acquaint public of songs.

PREVIEWS of his Luckies broadcasts have been decreed for Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge by Headman G. W. Hill of American Tobacco when the bandman resumes his originations from NBC here July 27. Contrary to the customary excuse for pre-broadcast warmups, reason for the Monday night dress rehearsal is to try out contestants for the Kyser quizzer. Quality of those drawn haphazardly from the studio audience just before the broadcast has proved unsatisfactory and tended to slow down the show. Idea of the preview is to try out several types and those who make the grade will be invited back for the Wednesday night broadcast. Kyser's next stand here is expected to be a brief one as he is anxious to make as many camps as possible along the coast.

FIRST popular price showing of Warner's 'Sergeant York' at the Utah theatre in Salt Lake City is reported by exchange here to be breaking the house record. In its first four days, film is attracting new tops in money and attendance. However, 'York' is not doing as well on top price re-issue locally at Downtown and Hollywood theatres. Reasons for luke warm reception are believed traceable to the film having played too many of the second and subsequent runs at prices beneath current re-issue prices of top houses. Film holds second week in Salt Lake.

Natl. Theatres Execs Will Base in LA Office

New York, July 13.—Balance of National Theatre executives, still in New York and formerly on staff of Spyros Skouras, move to the Coast in August to take up same positions under Charles P. Skouras, new NT president. Treasurer H. C. Cox switches his department to Los Angeles, and entire film booking and buying department under Ed Zabel also goes westward. Zabel already is on the Coast.

Dan Michaelove and A. S. Gandy, vice-president, will remain here as eastern reps for Skouras, mainly functioning as contacts with the 20th-Fox executives and board of directors. All circuit supervision and operation will be handled from Los Angeles, including the only two NT houses in the east, Detroit and Philadelphia.

Write Around a Title

Harry Langdon has been given story assignment at Columbia to write yarn around title, 'Absence Is Bliss'. Deal, set by Hal Cooley, is in addition to his regular series of comedies.

Goldwyn's Come Down; $1.10 'Pride' Preem

'Pride of the Yankees' will get $1.10 reserved seat premiere treatment at both the Pantages and Hillstreet theatres night of Aug. 19. Picture goes on continuous run the following day in the two spots, with increased general admish prices for both matinee and night shows. Although tilted scales have not been definitely set, it is reported that discussion is for 55c admish for matinees and 75c nights. RKO theatre operating heads apparently are making this concession to Producer Sam Goldwyn, but will not raise prices beyond that level to disrupt operating policies through major raise.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

The cowboy rides the plains no more—he's in the Army now.
His ten-quart hat no longer rests upon his sunkist brow
The buckaroos have left their steeds to ride in planes and tanks
While cowgals gallop on the screen to fill the empty ranks.
At dawn the brave but dainty femmes, devoid of male companions,
Go chasing outlaws in the hills, the deserts and the canyons.
With nickel-plated pistols they uphold the frontier laws
And often fight a battle with a band of Injun squaws.

Gene Autry is going into the Army but there will be no shortage of horseback riding in the films. Up comes 'Cheyenne,' with Jean Arthur twirling a lasso as a rodeo champion. One day you will see a femme posse pausing at the crossroads, and a soprano cowpuncherette will yell: 'They went thataway, Mrs. Sheriff.'

Male leads are growing so scarce that Jack Carson finally winds up in a romantic clinch with the heroine.

'Winnie Went To Washington' makes it unanimous. We were wondering what was holding Winnie back.

Hal Roach will have plenty of realistic acting in his new streamlined picture, 'Nazti Nuisance.' He has hired two wrestlers to show the thespians how to thesp. A wrestler is a muscular guy who can strangle his best friend seven nights a week and make believe he means it, even on pay-night. Nobody in pictures can act like that.

If you aspire to sign a picture pact
Don't waste your hours learning how to act.
Procure a saxophone and learn to blow it.
The studios will sign you when they know it.

Actors, writers and even producers are often pushed around in Hollywood, but none of them ever gets pushed around as much as a film title. It is like a tennis ball, nudged from one set to another until it cannot recognize its own picture. At the present moment 'Johnny Doughboy' is in the midst of a volley and doesn't know whether it is coming or going.

Sometimes a title is an important factor in a picture and sometimes it is a humble hitch-hiker, thumbing its way to glory on a 12-cylinder story. 'Mrs. Miniver' is like that.

A mystery picture is one in which everyone but the detective knows whodunit.

Stars Travel 788,895 Miles on War Bonds, Camp Show Tours

Film stars traveled 788,895 miles during the first half of 1942 to entertain men in the armed services, sell war bonds and make other patriotic appearances, it was disclosed yesterday in a Hollywood Victory Committee report submitted to Col. Marvin Young, aide to Brig. Gen. F. H. Osborne. Colonel Young is here to confer with the committee on its schedule for the remainder of the year.

The Committee announced that 723 players made 3,198 appearances in the past six months. In addition they made 422 radio broadcasts. In travelling the artists used planes, trains, busses, their own autos and in some instances motorcycles. These appearances include Army and Navy shows, Red Cross benefits, Infantile Paralysis Drive, War Bond Sales, etc.

The report prepared by the Talent Committee of which Charles K. Feldman is chairman, shows the stars presented thrillers ranging from mystery thrillers to vaudeville skits. A breakdown of the appearances shows that one star made 160, and that 39 individuals made more than 30 appearances, while eight of these passed the 50 mark. The most spectacular achievement of the Victory Committee was the Hollywood Victory Caravan, when 32 stars toured 12 cities to raise funds for Army and Navy Reliefs. In submitting the report to Colonel Young, Kenneth Thomson, Committee chairman, stated.

'The sole purpose of the Victory Committee is to serve as a clearing house for all requests for free star appearances, so that the greatest good for America's War effort can come out of Hollywood's great talent pool, which is eager to serve.

'The committee itself is a cross-section of motion pictures and radio, its 50 members representing every branch of those two industries in Hollywood. All of Hollywood has guaranteed the committee its complete cooperation. Practically every name personality has signed a pledge to consider charity or patriotic appearances only when approved by the Victory Committee, with the end in view of getting maximum results from the star talent available and thereby accomplishing the most efficient, effective job possible in the national war program.

Hundreds of requests clear through our offices, many for a series of appearances. All are given full and sympathetic consideration, and we have approved practically 50% of the requests received. As a general practice, we approve only those requests from national government agencies, and from such national organizations as the USO, Community Chest, Red Cross, Navy Relief Society, Army Emergency Relief, Russian War Relief, and China War Relief in addition to such important requests of a local nature as can be approved without too great a drain on the talent pool available.

'The stars of Hollywood have served eagerly. They have gone wherever we have asked them to go, have worked unbelievably long hours, have endured actual hardships gladly, with the restriction of time and human endurance the only limits to their efforts.'

who would select producers to make from four to six films a season.

Another phase that will come to light will be David O. Selznick's intent to start into production. It was expected at time he joined UA as a producer owner he would to date have two films completed for delivery. The company execs and other owners feel that Selznick should set an example to others and get his first picture under way, as he already has received a $300,000 bankroll from Bank of America for the film, and the balance up to $1,000,000 would be supplied him by UA. As a result of Selznick's indecision to get under way, he and Charlie Chaplin were at loggerheads during the past two weeks.

The New York crowd, it is said, is ready to close deal with Jules Levey to distribute a South American wild animal film he and Frank Buck have, and also is anxious that a couple of producers be brought in to start immediate production. Also, this group, which includes Ed Raftery, Gradwell Sears and Arthur Kelly, want to wind up the meet and get definite commitments before end of this week, as they have urgent biz in New York next week.

Three-Guild War Plan To Producers

the Film Conservation Committee, Hollywood Victory Committee, War Activities Committee and other groups. The following announcement was made by representatives of the talent guilds last night:

'Organization of a group to function as a Hollywood Motion Picture Advisory Committee to coordinate all industry war efforts in the film capital was approved last night by the Actors, Directors and Writers Guilds. The plan was worked out at a meeting last week attended by Kenneth Thomson, Sidney Buchman, George Stevens, Y. Frank Freeman, Loyd Wright, Herbert Prefton, Maurice Benjamin, N. D. Silberberg and Bert Allenberg.

'The plan now goes to the Producers Association, and as soon as they have approved it and details can be worked out, it will be put into effect. Leaders in the film colony feel that such a central organization will serve to make more effective the various wartime activities now functioning in Hollywood.'

Charges $50,000 Pact Breach of Autry

Charging evasion of contract, Harry Wurtzel has filed two suits for arbitration against Gene Autry with Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of Radio Artists, asking total damages of $50,000. Autry has volunteered to join Army aviation recruiting service.

Action placed before Guilds will be watched as test case whether or not artists-agents contracts remain valid and in force when the artist joins military service for duration of the war. Cases of this nature must be submitted to Guild arbitration before being taken to court, in case settlement cannot be satisfactorily reached.

Autry's contract with Wurtzel, according to complaint, still has to run for two and one-half years, the duration of the actor's pact with Republic. His annual intake from all sources, radio, pictures, records, etc., is said to run close to $500,000 per year. He had been under contract to Wurtzel since 1936.

Arbitration action is expected to be taken up in both SAG and AFRA within week to 10 days. Autry is due for induction into the Army as a sergeant within next two weeks.

Show Shorts July 21

Date of the war effort short subject showing has been switched from July 22 to July 21 at the Filmarte theatre. Special permission has been secured from the Army and Navy Departments for the special training films to be presented as part of the presentation. Consuls from all the Allied countries will be special guests.

F-WC NIXES ADV. FILM ON THEATRE CANDY BARS

Plans of Fox West Coast circuit to install automatic 16mm. and slidefilm projectors on all the candy bars in F-WC houses to display advertising film and slides for added revenue is in the washup stage. Total of 25 candy bars with the projectors installed have been put out during the past several months on experimental drive, with F-WC ready, if initial group proved successful, to put the dual advertising machines in all houses of the circuit and then attempt to get national advertisers to pay coin for the privilege of displaying minute movies and slidefilms on the candy bar machines.

In addition to discovering that theatre patrons were mostly concerned with the purchase of candies when stopping at the counters, and few gave the projected slides a tumble, F-WC officials discovered the machines were continually getting out of order mechanically, and cost of keeping them running was too great an item.

Several managers who have encountered continual mechanical difficulties with projectors on their candy counters, have already installed permanent cards in space used for ground-glass screen on which to project the advertising plugs. The projectors for tryout purposes cost F-WC an estimated $13,000, with circuit heads now conceding that the experiment hit a rock and the idea is a washout.

Biow May Pitch Several Network Shows Here

Vick Knight, recently named executive producer of the Biow agency, is here from New York to conduct several auditions, including Ginny Simms for a musical script show, and a new caller for Philip Morris ciggies to emulate the diminutive Johnny. If quest of the latter is successful, likely that the agency will move the three Morris shows here from New York. Program starring Miss Simms, if approved by the sponsor, would replace one of the cigaret outfit's three current entries, 'Johnny Presents', 'Playhouse' and 'Crime Doctor'. Milton H. Biow, prez of the agency, gets in later in the week to sit in on the audition and fly the platter back to New York. While here he and Knight will pick office quarters in Hollywood.

Biow company may originate programs other than those for Philip Morris here, as auditions for other clients will be held later. Company recently got a slice of the Procter & Gamble business. Knight will supervise all Coast shows for the firm, with individual directors assigned to each program.

Future status of Gene Autry's 'Melody Ranch' air series will be settled next week when he confers with his sponsor, P. K. Wrigley, in Chicago. Understood cowboy star will prevail on the chicle magnate to keep the program going, whether it be from an army camp or in its present commercial form, provided permission is granted by Army officials for him to get time off to come here for the Sunday broadcasts. Latter move would not be precedental, as Ezra Stone has been accorded such privilege to continue 'Aldrich Family'. Autry started the series for Wrigley two and a half years ago.

Induction of Autry into the Army Air Corps as a non-com technical sergeant, originally set for this morning, has been moved back for two weeks until finish of westerner's current feature, 'Bells of Capistrano'. New setup dispenses with granting of immediate furlough after induction to allow Autry to complete the picture.

Season Fade For Lux

Last night's Lux broadcast proved a double finale, marking the season's fade for the soap show and the washup as a commercial announcer of Mel Ruick. Before taking leave to pour himself into an Army Air Corps captain's uniform, he drew the cash equivalent of two months' pay from J. Walter Thompson agency, and was variously gifted by co-workers on the program.

U. S. Bans Excess Profits, Aircraft Wage Increases

Gilbert at the aircraft wage stabilization conference in progress at the Roosevelt hotel, where representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have been talking with the aircraft management. The management previously had been urged to make increases ranging up to 65 cents per hour in order to stabilize Coast wages with the shipyards and other parts of the country.

Deputy Gilbert made it plain that:

The Government will find a way to claim high profits, prevent swollen management salaries, and unwarranted dividends or wages.

What salary adjustments are made will be only for workers in substandard brackets, and it was indicated that average wages in the aircraft industry 'can scarcely be considered sub-standard.'

Living standards of the American people will be reduced below the level prevailing at the bottom of the 'great depression' by the end of the war.

Labor tops said it appeared the Government intended to halt collective bargaining for the duration, but efforts were being made to continue the parleys in the hope of reaching some agreement that could be applied by the War Production Board throughout the nation.

Obituary

JACK WHITE

Jack White, 59, comedian and singer, and operator of the Club 18 in New York, died at his home there yesterday of a heart attack. In ill health since March, White had operated the well-known celebrity rendezvous in New York for the past several years. He made an unusual success of lampooning all and sundry who visited the place where he, Pat Harrington and Frankie Hyers ad libbed nightly performances. A former resident of Los Angeles, White had appeared in vaudeville as a singer and comic. He began in the cabaret field during the prohibition era, but became best known after establishing his own club. Film work was included in his career, and more recently he had been dabbling in radio. His widow, Edith, daughter of the late Sigmund Lubin, Philadelphia film producer; a son and daughter survive.

Screen Actors Guild Issues Extra Cards To College Boys

The Screen Actors Guild has issued extra cards to 46 college students who have a military rating, but who have been deferred pending completion of their college training. Action was taken to meet studio demands for atmosphere players between the ages of 18 and 25 years.

The SAG stated 'These admittances equalize the lack in Guild in that specific group; no additional admittances will be made, at least until the situation again warrants it.' Players admitted to Class B membership include:

All Workers To See Victory Picture

Studios are staggering work hours to permit every employe time to go to a projection room and see the short feature film entitled 'United For Victory and Humanity'. Picture scored such a hit with studio colonels at the mass meeting last week opening the appeal for Navy, Dutch, China and Russian War Relief that plans were made to show it to every worker.

Plans for further progress of the appeals campaign will be outlined tomorrow noon at the Hillcrest Country Club when Chairman Jacob H. Karp entertains the studio colonels at the first report luncheon.

PAT CASEY IN STRIKE DEAL WITH SOEG; PICKETING ENDS

Nicholas M. Schenck and E. J. Mannix.

At a conference with Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions, Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG, and other strike leaders, Casey asked that further action be deferred pending arrival of Mannix from the east at 10 a.m. Thursday. Sorrell, whose Conference has voted full support to the Collarites, agreed to the request, and 1,000 members of the SOEG at a special meeting last night at the Roosevelt hotel unanimously approved the action.

The Guilders then voted full authority to its strike strategy committee to take any action it may deem necessary, and approved a 5% strike assessment. An amendment to defer action pending another special meeting of the Guild Thursday night was turned down overwhelmingly. The strategy committee is composed of Prexy Margaret Bennett, Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Bernard Lusher and Attorney George E. Bodle. This group is working in unison with a strike strategy committee from the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell.

Sorrell, Pratt and other leaders made it plain they had agreed to defer further action because of their confidence in Casey and Mannix, with whom they negotiated a deal covering wages and conditions for 1,825 workers in the studios. Negotiations are expected to be taken out of the hands of the New York exchange representatives immediately after arrival of Mannix, with the possibility that he and Casey will work out a deal with the Guilders or else suggest the matter be submitted to arbitration.

SOEG had made it plain in a communication to Casey that there was no hope of reaching an agreement as long as Paul Watkins, attorney for the exchange group, remained in the picture.

Phyllis Lambertson of the Screen Cartoonists Guild, and Ed Mussa, business representative of the Screen Set Designers, appeared before the Guilders to promise support to their organizations.

Prexy Margaret Bennett presided, with Glenn Pratt and Herbert Sorrell reporting on the situation to date, and the agreement made with Casey.

Prior to reaching the agreement with Casey, White Collarites employed at Paramount and United Artists had been called out. Workers at RKO, Columbia and Metro had been called out the day previous. Pickets will not return to work, and agreement provides that no strikebreakers will be hired and that work will not be assigned to non-Guild members still on the job.

to comment on the expansion drive of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Big question in minds of studio labor tops was whether the International would go all out in backing Local 659 to retain its lenser jurisdiction. The recent IATSE convention instructed Walsh and the general executive board to extend every aid possible to the Local in maintaining its jurisdiction and in dissolving the American Society of Cinematographers, with which directors of photography are now affiliated.

Walsh also is said to have talked with other IA locals here with reference to his move in the east to take over clerical workers in the exchanges, such workers here and in San Francisco having refused invitations to join the IA, affiliating with the Screen Office Employes Guild after being certified by the National Labor Relations Board.

Agfa-Ansco 100 Anni Celebration July 23

New York, July 13.—Display of collections of historical photographs and photographic equipment, tracing the art and science of photography, will be displayed at Centennial celebration honoring Edward Anthony here July 23. Shortage of Releases For July, Aug. Has Exhibs Worried

Shortage of product, insofar as releases of the majors generally are concerned, for July and August availabilities, is giving subsequent exhibs headaches at this time of the year. The first run operators are stretching runs in the California territory to the maximum in order to get through the summer months, while the indies are using pencil and paper to solve their own particular problem of apparent picture shortage in the subsequent runs during the months of September and October.

Checkup of releases by all distribs for period between July 1 and Aug. 15 discloses that United Artists will draw a blank, with no pictures slated for national release dating. RKO has only one, 'Magnificent Ambersons', and to fill the gap is reissuing 'King Kong' and 'Gunga Din'. Warners issues three pictures, one being a rerouting of 'Sergeant York' at regular prices.

Universal has six pictures down for national release during the seven-week period, two of which, however, are program western dramas. 20th-Fox has six also down for national release dates to cover the seven-week stretch, while Paramount finishes up entire year's program with approximately the same number to supply the exhibs during the summer season.

Metro has three blank release dates during weeks of July and August, having no pictures slated for exhibs on weeks of July 10, 24 and Aug. 28. Columbia will have five releases, of which one is a western, while Republic has set two features and one western. Both Monogram and Producers Releasing each have four releases set for July-August, with each releasing three regular features and one western.

Reagan Presides at Par Sales Meeting

Charles Reagan, assistant sales manager at Paramount, conducted special sales meeting yesterday at the Ambassador hotel comprising the four branch managers in the western district; Robert Gillham, Paramount advertising chief; Hugh Braly, western district manager who gets transferred to the Inter-Mountain district, and Del Goodman, in from New York to succeed Braly on the Coast. Exchange managers present included Al Anderson, Portland; Maury Segel, Seattle; Neal East, San Francisco, and M. R. Clark of Los Angeles. The three northern managers returned to their respective offices last night.

Braly and Goodman pull out today for tour of the northern offices with Braly continuing to his new Denver post from Seattle.

dear mr. sherman...

am in receipt of your note re our mutual friend "hopalong".

hopalong has long been my favorite western character and whenever we do a western skit it is only natural that his name comes to mind and some mention of the illustrious chap creeps into the activities.

it will take a bit of executive and writing "doing" to get "hopalong" out of the 1890 period. that is where he feels at home and while we would enjoy seeing the gallant gentleman listening to one of our programs i wouldn't want to have him become a party to an anachronism just on my account.

we will go along paying tribute to "hopalong" in our frustrated way knowing that the old boy appreciates our attitude and that, if the time ever comes when we want a sponsor taken out of town on a buckboard, "hopalong" will be ready to oblige.

thanks a lot for your kind words and we, in turn, wish you and "hopalong" every success in the bewildered future.

sincerely...

CBS announcer, whose yearly take runs deep into five figures, was called upon last week along with other staffers to help out in a series of programs to accelerate the rubber drive. Their job done, headman took the spielers out for dinner and libation and ran up a sizeable tab which the network took up. Lads felt well repaid for their labors until the chap, one of the net's top barkers who has oodles of commercials, upped and demanded to be paid for his stint. At first it was laughed off as a rib, since the payoff at scale would be less than $10, but the barker pressed home his point with vigor. To avoid further unpleasantries, top man put through the voucher and announcer got his coin. When asked to sign over the check to war relief, as the money was earned on a war mission by the network, he shrugged off the suggestion and pocketed the negotiable reader. Hereafter spieler will be totally ignored on free shows tied in with the war effort.

CANDY shortage is making itself felt in theatres which introduced the accommodation a few years back and saw it grow to an important income item involving establishment of whole departments to handle it. Chocolate items, cocoanut, etc., all on the import list, are getting scarce already, it's said, and the future predicts definite rationing. Late Fall and 1943 will see a real pinch and consequent concern over equipment outlays, etc. Rationed sugar being base of all, any drastic change will present a definite problem. Some hope for suitable substitutes. But advent of maple sugar or something similar to which public is uneducated may not be a solution either.

Film Previews

Joan of Ozark

(Farce Comedy)

Republic production. Stars Judy Canova and Joe E. Brown. Supporting cast: Eddie Foy, Jr., Jerome Cowan, Alexander Granach, Anne Jeffreys, Otto Reichow, Wolfgang Zilzer, Donald Curtis, H. H. Von Twardowski, Harry Hayden. Directed by Joseph Santley. Associate producer, Harriet Parsons. Original screenplay, Robert Harari, Eve Greene and Jack Townley. Added dialog, Monte Brice and Bradford Ropes. Photography, Ernest Miller. Supervising editor, Murray Seldeen. Film editor, Charles Craft. Art director, Russell Kimball. Interior decorator, Otto Siegel. Music director, Cy Feuer. Songs, Mort Greene and Harry Revel, Dave Ringel and Fred Meinken. Orchestrations, Gene Rose. Dance director, Nick Castle. Previewed at Los Angeles, July 14, 1942. Running time: 80 MINS.

Judy Canova has her dependable and important following. Joe E. Brown is a name which excites positive like or dislike in various audiences. Here, in combination, their pull is extended beyond ordinary in a picture which measures up fully to what the partisans expect.

In a farce dealing with espionage, the vociferous pair really extend themselves. Only question as to its reception may lie in coincidence of the trial of Nazi saboteurs now in progress in government tribunal, and ludicrous screen treatment of the very serious business of alien spies operating in America. Generally, the ludicrous elements in the picture may be expected to overbalance any other considerations.

In a slapstick incidence, Judy Canova and Ozark Hillmanny uncover a clue to operations of a group of alien spies. Joe E. Brown, theatrical agent posing as a G-man, brings her to New York's night clubs as the nation's number one patriotic heroine, expecting to promote his own and Eddie Foy, Jr.'s interest. Foy is his theatrical chum. Spies try to have gal bumped off enroute as a deterrent to other spectacular patriots, but change their tactics when they discover that the Ozark Joan is a big attraction at their nitery. From then on its a succession of threats and escapades, sprinkled with catchy hillbilly music, some glamming on Miss Canova's part, masquerade by Brown as a Gestapo chief and a fight-and-chase finale.

Eddie Foy, Jr., Jerome Cowan, as head spy, and Harry Hayden, the mayor, give out with sound support, while Alexander Granach, Otto Reichow, Wolfgang Zilzer, Donald Curtis, and H. H. Von Twardowski keep the threats going as Cowan's musclemen.

Joseph Santley directs with proper slam-bang emphasis to give both stars full leeway for their stuff, and keeps the action at sweep pace, without failing to get complete benefit of songs by Mort Greene and Harry Revel, 'Pull the Trigger,' 'Dixie', 'Backwoods Barbecue' and the topical 'Lady at Lockheed', and 'Wabash Blues' by Dave Ringel and Fred Meinken.

Harriet Parsons turns in a well supervised piece of audience entertainment for average dual billing as her first production job at Republic.

Screen play by Robert Harari, Eve Greene and Jack Towley with added dialog by Monte Brice and Bradford Ropes, is well tailred to fit the characteristic comedy of the two stars. Cy Feuer does a good job on the music direction.

Produced by Jack Schwarz for Producers Releasing Corporation. Features Mary Carlisle and Richard Cromwell, with Robert Armstrong, Chick Chandler, Warren Hymer, Charles Judels, Vince Barnett, Ralf Harolde, Toddy Peterson, Hal K. Dawson, Pierce Lyden, Kenny Chryst, Sam Bernard, Patsy Moran, Emmett Lynn, Roberta Anderson, Jim Blaine, Ray Parsons, Jack Kenny, Bobby Stone. Directed by Arthur Dreifuss. Leon Fromkess in charge of production. Story by Oscar Brodney and Jack Rubin. Screenplay by Edward Dein and Jack Rubin. Production supervisor, Arthur Hammond. Photographed by Art Reed. Sound, Ben Winkler. Music score by Leo Erdody. Musical direction, David Chudnow. Art director, Frank Dexter. Editor, Dan Milner. Previewed at the Vista, Los Angeles, July 14, 1942. Running time: 65 MINS.

What appears to have been a travesty on the age-old gangster film story, 'Baby Face Morgan' falls short of its original intention, and is mild supporting material. Where laughs are intended in a kidding manner, they just don't register, and the more serious basic story carries through tenaciously without any force or convincingness. The picture is not well put together and in spots is extremely weak, a sort of newsreel atmosphere permeating the entire footage.

The baby face gangster, in this case, doesn't even know his own reputation, having been inducted into gangdom through circumstances with which he is unfamiliar. While unknown to him he is head of a mob of racketeers, who at the same time do not know his identity. It's a crisscross all the way until finally the innocent racketeer catches wise to his predicament and comes out with flying flags. And of course there is a girl who drums the facts of life into his rather dull head.

Richard Cromwell plays the young and innocent dupe for the smarter gangsters, and does remarkably well considering some of the sap scenes handed him. Mary Carlisle is the pure girl friend and is acceptably attractive and able, but she really hasn't much to do.

The other players in the piece carry comparatively strong roles. Robert Armstrong tops this group as the gangland fixer, while Warren Hymer, Charles Judels, Vince Barnett stand out as henchmen. Ralf Harolde gives another of his smooth heavy portrayals. Toddy Peterson draws several chuckles as the secretary. Hal K. Dawson is a detective again, and players include Pierce Lyden, Kenny Chryst, Sam Bernard, Patsy Moran, Emmett Lynn, Roberta Anderson, Jim Blaine, Ray Parsons, Jack Kenny and Bobby Stone.

Story by Oscar Brodley and Jack Rubin, with screenplay by Rubin and Edward Dein is spotty and the direction of Arthur Dreifuss is paced with scene after scene fading out on a supposedly blackout wisecrack, most of which are weak and wanting in punch or point.

Art Reed's photography rates a bow, as does the sound work of Ben Winkler, musical score of Leo Erdody and musical direction by David Chudnow—even if 'Baby Face Morgan' is lightweight stuff, even in the quickie class.

A Desperate Chance For Ellery Queen

(Comedy Melodrama)

Columbia production. Stars William Gargan and Margaret Lindsay. Features Charley Grapewin, John Litel, Lilian Bond and James Burke. Supporting cast: Jack LaRue, Morgan Conway, Noel Madison, Frank Thomas and Charlotte Wynters. Produced by Larry Darmour. Director, James Hogan. Screenplay, Eric Taylor, from story by Ellery Queen. Associate producer, Rudolph Flothow. Photography, James S. Brown, Jr. Film editor, Dwight Caldwell. Art director, Richard Irvine. Musical score, Lee Zahler. Reviewed at Pantages theatre, Hollywood, July 14, 1942. Running time: 70 MINS.

There's nothing especially new or different about this latest in the Queen series that bears a very unimaginative title. But then, the titles on whodunits never mean very much so long as they contain the tag of the heralded 'name' supersleuth. And so it is with Queen's latest. It's moderate mystery entertainment, hypoed with some humor, but will need the hypo of help at the b.o.

'Desperate Chance' follows the established pattern of hanging the crime on everyone, or nearly everyone, contains the same stupid cops and brash reporters, all in their proper places, but adds the touch of two separate police forces playing cops and robbers with themselves by trying to outsmart each other. Now they've got reporters openly stealing bottles of whiskey. Whew!

Ever since the Thin Man decided he was 'through with the racket' and started to retire or vacation, all his cop counterparts or their creators decided that was the proper opening. Hence, we find William Gargan planing from New York to Frisco on opening, but not before he unwillingly picks himself the casual assignment of finding out whether a socialite is really dead, as the latter's wife doubts. The Golden Gate opens up much in the way of action and fun for Gargan and his distaff disturber, Margaret Lindsay. They, of course, know that John Litel is innocent; no one knows who is guilty in the hide-and-seek with money and murder, while a red-hot hundred grand goes transcontinental and its carrier is hammered to death.

Gargan unravels the rumpus, but not before almost getting into the Frisco gaol himself as a buttinsky outside copper. Shots fly thick and fast as he finally hangs it all on Lillian Bond, widow of the bumped torpedo and her cabaret cohorts. Litel is exonerated of original theft and the subsequent murder.

Gargan makes a much better plain, old-fashioned flatfoot than he does a suave criminologist. But nonetheless and without particularly fitting those kind of clothes, he does a pleasantly acceptable acting job. Charley Grapewin is second only to Gargan, and the rest manage well enough with minor parts. More accustomed to leading things of late, John Litel seems unhappy in his minor role. Screenplay lends little to trite theme, except in a 'few fun spots. Direction is average.

Par Peeved at Shoving Around of 'Reap' By WB in Pitt

Pittsburgh, July 14.—Paramount is burned at the Warner-Loew theatre pool here over the runaround the exchange alleged 'Reap the Wild Wind' was getting last week. Exchange pulled the DeMille picture at the last minute out of the small-seater Ritz theatre, where it was to have moved for fourth week downtown. Paramount flatly refused to permit the switch, demanding another week at the larger Warners theatre, or nothing.

'Reap' played a fortnight at the Penn theatre at advanced prices and did a blazing $41,000 for the engagement, and was then moved to the Warner for holdover, which is customary for all big clicks at the Loew house. But Paramount refused to go along when Warners wanted to shift the picture to the small Ritz, claiming discrimination in favor of Warners own film, 'Juke Girl', which was set for continued run at the larger house.

Concert Exploits Col 'Lovelier' Film

New York, July 14.—Special concert of the musical score for Columbia's filmusical, 'You Were Never Lovelier' was staged here for more than 200 exhibs, music critics, band leaders, etc., as pre-release exploitation stunt for the picture.

Xavier Cogut and his orchestra appearing in the picture played the score, with Deems Taylor acting as master of ceremonies. Score is by Jerome Kern, with lyrics by Johnny Mercer.

Three Ringer Releases It's Air Talent

Options were passed on the three leads in Ballantine's 'Three Ring Time', indicating that the ale bottler won't underwrite a full show next fall. Lapsed contracts were those of Milton Berle, Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby. Reason for withdrawal is said to be constricted supply of bottle caps. Likely that sponsor will use only spot announcements next season.

UA ADDS TWO PRODUCERS; SEARS, KELLY RETURN EAST

what production owners, Charlie Chaplin, Sir Alexander Korda and David O. Selznick, plan to do for the next season.

Gradwell Sears, company sales chief, trains out today for New York; Arthur Kelly planes out, and Monroe Greenthal will remain until Friday before heading east.

Two new production deals that have been agreed upon are expected to be signed by the owners at their session next week. One is for Gregor Rabinovitch, former UFA producer, to deliver 'Russian Girl', taken from the Soviet production, 'Girl From Leningrad'. Rabinovitch will only use the basic story idea of the Russian pic for his opus, and has Howard Koch and Aben Kandel working on the new treatment. Deal with him was made by Arthur Kelly.

The other deal is one with Jules Levey of Mayfair, made by Sears. Its initialer will be a wild animal film that originally was to have been turned out for Monogram. Latter company has dispatched Jeffrey Bernard, former London film distributor, to South America to get shots on wild animal life. Around $80,000 was expended on the mission, with narrative portion not completed when film was brought back here. It will require another $100,000 or so to complete the film, which is of the 'Bring 'Em Back Alive' type. Plan is for Levey to reimburse Monogram coin it has in film, and give them 50% of his share of the distribution profits after total cost has been gotten out. This pic is to be completed here with Frank Buck worked into the story.

Several other outside deals that are in the formative stage will be completed by Raftery and George Bagnall after the other eastern execs have left.

Hunt Stromberg last night entertained Raftery, Sears, Kelly and Greenthal at dinner at his Brentwood home.

Autry's Loss Forces Rep Adjustments

James R. Grainger, head of Republic's sales force, returns Friday from San Francisco for final confabs with Moe Siegel, studio operating chief, before going to New York to discuss with Herbert J. Yates policy and production adjustments company will have to make as result of Gene Autry going into the Army. Grainger is due to head east over the weekend.

Some major changes, it is admitted, will have to be worked out on the coming schedule to compensate for loss of Autry from the Republic programs for the duration. Company has slated and expected to produce four regular and four special Autry features during the 1942-43 season. None of these has yet been started, and none is likely to be made unless the Republic saddle ace were permitted picture production furloughs from the Army Air Corps, in which his enlistment becomes effective after he completes his current 'The Bells of Capistrano' and a scheduled rodeo in Chicago for Army and Navy Relief two weeks hence.

Autry expects to be inducted immediately after his Chicago rodeo, July 23-29.

Be Sure and Catch Me

Arbiters Named For Wurtzel, Autry Case

With arbiters named to consider Harry Wurtzel's charge of evasion of contract against Gene Autry before Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of Radio Artists, agent yesterday made it clear his action seeks recovery only of $19,175 in commissions which he claims Republic star has owed him for over a year.

Attorney Charles Milliken will represent Autry in the arbitration, while Lou Anger will appear for Wurtzel, and the two are to name a third.

Second cause of action asked by Wurtzel in connection with Guild arbitration seeks accounting of monies Autry has earned from all sources up to time he is to be inducted into the Army Air Corps. Clarifying his complaint, Wurtzel said it was never his intention to ask any payments from his client while actor is in Army, but only later in case Autry should be permitted to make pictures during that time. Actor-agent pact still has over two years to run.

Smaller Productions Results in Saving Of Raw Film

New York, July 14.—The film industry will be able to show the War Production Board a large reduction in the use of raw film stock this year as compared with 1939-40 and 1940-41, despite the fact that no uniform print ceiling acceptable to all major film producers has been adopted. It is estimated curtailment of several hundred million feet annually does not take into account the studio production conservation program.

The reduction is largely due to the trend the past two years toward smaller production schedules at Warners, Paramount and RKO. This policy dictated on theory that bigger production outlays on more 'A' pictures and fewer 'B' pictures would maintain rental levels. Metro, on the other hand, with virtually the same number of regular program releases, and 20th-Fox also with relatively the same number as in previous years, plan cutting on prints as well as studio production. In the case of these two majors, print reduction is understood practicable because of generous quantities made available in the past. Greatest hardship in reduction of prints would fall on companies such as Universal, Columbia and United Artists, whose release schedules have been increased the past two years.

Figuring westerns, foreigns and reissues, Columbia had 66 films scheduled for 1940-41. United Artists had scheduled 22 for 1941-42 as against 19 in 1940-41, and 21 in 1939-40. Universal had 63 scheduled in 1941-42 as against 59 in 1940-41 and 59 in 1939-40. In addition Universal now services 2,000 accounts more.

The total number of releases for the eight majors doesn't vary greatly. For the 1941-42 season, combined total, including westerns, foreigns and reissues, was 378, as compared with 337 for 1940-41 and 382 for 1939-40. However, 39 of the 1941-42 crop are westerns, nine foreigns, seven reissues, on all of which distribution can easily be staggered without serious disruption to booking schedules.

Record Cash Gifts For Industry's Relief Drive

Two contributions for the Navy, Dutch, China and Russia War Reliefs which break all past fund appeals records for cash contributions will be reported by Jacob H. Karp, chairman of the industry relief drive, today at the first report meeting to be held at the Hillcrest Country Club. Karp said:

'The two men who made these contributions have, in setting a new giving record, far exceeded their own always generous contributions of the past. I have no idea what the individual reports will be as made this noon by the various studio colonels.

'The two contributions I have mentioned, however, convince me that the rank and file of studio employes deeply appreciate the great needs of Navy Relief and Russia, Dutch, China Relief. There is no question but that this appeal, touching as it does three embattled Allies, and our own Navy, has very special strength as the captains representing the various studio unions, guilds and crafts approach their members with pledge cards.'

Meyer on 'Scattergood'

Abe Meyer has been signed by Jerry Brandt to supervise music on 'Scattergood Swings It.' Pre-scoring on film begins tomorrow under baton of Paul Sawtell. Musical features of picture are to be exploited before release. Harry James will use 'I Heard You Cried Last Night' as an air plug. The Ted Grouya number will be featured in 'Swings It.'

TEST OF POWER SEEN IN PETRILLO DISC CRACKDOWN

New York, July 14. — Observers in radio and recording trades believe that controversy ignited by James Petrillo's edict against musicians making recordings after July 31 may touch off the first test of power between organized labor and the broadcasting industry. They foresee a general showdown involving not only American Federation of Musicians, but American Federation of Radio Artists and various technicians' unions. They believe Petrillo's recent moves have placed him too far out to enable him to retreat, and the only thing to prevent a bitter clash between radio and the unions would be intervention by Washington.

Situation became more explosive today when Petrillo ordered NBC to cease immediately feeding remote band programs to KSTP, St. Paul, affiliated in a controversy for some time with St. Paul AFM local over contract difficulties. KSTP has refused to accept a clause guaranteeing employment of staff musicians throughout the year, and NBC has already indicated it proposes to back up the station on this issue.

Following refusal of AFM to permit broadcast of its music on NBC, the Interlochen (Mich.) National Music Group yesterday appealed to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, camp director, wired Green for reconsideration of the AFM ban on the amateur symphony being aired, stating he wanted to prevent damage to American music education in public schools.

New York, July 14.—There is night and day activity in the phonograph recording studios as companies near the July 31 deadline set by James Petrillo. Nobody knows how complete the threatened shutdown will be, so companies are piling up a backlog of nearly everything and anything. Publishers find the companies ready to record any song upon assurance it's intended for fall radio exploitation. Record firms see themselves supplied commercially well into December.

Small Will Try Legit

New York, July 14.—Edward Small is another producer who, for more reasons than merely wanting to insure film material, is planning intensive Broadway legit production. Long absent from Broadway for any extended period, Small likes his home town so well he's deserting Hollywood to do several plays here. Meantime he's readying his 'Life of Rudolph Valentino' and other film scripts.

pearances at rallies to be held throughout the country.

With the amusement field all ready for what figures to be an all-out campaign to aid the Treasury Department in War Bond and Stamp sales, the picture industry is being asked by Duffus to make an even greater effort between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15. That period will be designated as 'show business month'.

Duffus also discussed generally plans to expand activities in behalf of the Department during the last half of the month. The Victory Committee through Chairman Kenneth Thomson is said to have pledged its full support. Lists will be checked this week to determine what players will be available for Treasury Bond drive next month.

Minn. Fussy About Its Stadium; Turns Away Big Army Show

Minneapolis, July 14.—This town is excited because it will lose the big Army war show, 'Here's Your Army'. Regents of Minnesota university refused the use of the 60,000-seat stadium, only suitable site in the Twin Cities for the spectacle, which had originally been scheduled for Aug. 16 to 18.

Banning action was taken in face of pleas from Governor Stassen, city officials, business groups, the American Legion and labor unions, which resulted from agitation in the local press.

College heads based their refusal on fear that explosions and vibrations set off by the show might injure delicate instruments in the university laboratories, and the war equipment used in the spectacle might injure the stadium turf.

Donohue Par Dist. Boss

New York, July 14.—J. J. Donohue, former branch manager for Paramount in Chicago, draws promotion to head of district three in further switches of Par distribution manpower. Grover C. Parsons, former Hawaiian sales rep for the company, assumes branch manager post at Atlanta.

Major W. S. Holman Leaving RKO Soon

William S. Holman, studio manager at RKO and previously with Columbia for many years, gets a major's commission in the United States Signal Corps, and reports to the chief signal officer in Washington for assignment to active duty on July 27. He winds up business and personal affairs here within the next 10 days.

Holman's duties will be taken over for the time being by Sid Rogell, who returned to the studio executive staff recently.

Scribbling

Samuel Hoffenstein has been signed at Universal to work on the screenplay of 'Flesh and Fantasy', which Charles Boyer and Julien Duvivier will co-produce.

Harold Lamb and Emily Barrye have been assigned to screenplay on 'War of the Wildcats', a Leonard Fields production at Republic.

Earl Felton is writing script for first of the Roy Rogers 'A' productions for the new season at Republic, 'Heart of the Golden West'.

Boris Ingster and Leo Townsend wind up writing chore on 'Forever Yours' at Universal on Saturday, and check off the lot.

Delmer Daves has been signed by Sol Lesser at RKO to write original screenplay to the title, 'Stage Door Canteen'.

Walter Ferris is polishing script for Edmund Grainger's production, 'Pride of the Commandos', at Republic.

John Grant is writing on the forthcoming Abbott and Costello comedy, 'Hold Your Horses'.

John K. Butler is doing treatment on an original, untitled, for Edmund Grainger at Republic.

Spyros Skouras East

Spyros Skouras, 20th-Fox prexy, planes for New York today, having completed huddles with studio and distribution executives regarding current product and plans for new pictures. Skouras was tendered a farewell banquet last night by Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz, with major executives attending.

One of the principal subjects discussed by Skouras, Tom Connors and 20th-Fox studio execs is the possibility of the readjustment of production schedules to reduce consumption of raw stock. Loss of talent and other manpower, it is believed, are the factors that may lead to revision of studio production plans.

Film Propaganda Cost Is Debated In U. S. Senate

Washington, July 14.—Administration plans to turn over more than $28,000,000 to Nelson Rockefeller for motion picture and other propaganda in South America was challenged today by Senator McNary, Oregon, Republican. McNary said the fund, which is included in the $1,856,801,710 War agencies appropriations along with funds for the OPA and Manpower Commission, was being appropriated 'on the pretext that it is for the war effort.' McNary was bitter over failure of committee reports to show just how the money was to be spent.

Senator K. D. McKellar, Tennessee, Democrat, said much of it would go for radio, motion pictures and entertainment of South American officials. McNary then said:

'The senator has read a long list of things, and then branched off into a eulogy of those people in Hollywood who are conducting this industry. What is this, a subsidy?'

McKellar then replied: 'Everybody knows that the motion picture is the best form of propaganda known to man. Mr. Rockefeller appeared before the committee for several hours, and I want to say that he is one of the most capable and best informed young men I have ever met.'

Three Players Leave For Relief Rodeo

Ralph Bellamy, Allen Jenkins and Jean Parker checked out last night for Montana, where they will participate in a three-day War Relief rodeo beginning Thursday, the Hollywood Victory Committee announced.

It also was stated that during the first two weeks in July motion picture personalities from the Victory Committee staged 15 network radio programs, put on 12 free Army Camp shows and made 11 personal appearances. A series of transcriptions were made to be shortwaved to South America in observance of Argentine Day, and three transcriptions were recorded for shortwave broadcasts to overseas military units.

Plan To Eliminate Screen Credits Is Tabled

The Film Conservation Committee last night dropped proposal to eliminate film screen credits and submitted 20 recommendations for savings to the General Committee. Recommendations will be put into effect immediately if they are approved by the producers.

The Committee said that it agreed to table consideration of the elimination of screen credits because in most instances such credits were a matter of individual contracts and were not within the jurisdiction of some of the talent Guilds. It was decided the matter was so involved the question of elimination was not worth while in view of the comparative small saving.

Major recommendations approved last night were:

Elimination of rerecording of musical playbacks.

For directors to camera cut as much as possible and where needed have film editors on sets.

Only usuable film to be shot for dissolves and fades.

Where possible trailers be made from out scenes or trim.

That all possible leaders be salvaged from previous pictures.

That sound effects be used over again.

Use of both sides of negatives for dubbing for preview purposes and when dubbing not cut for preview, preview dubbing be used in place of release dubbing.

Writers make a synopsis of a story and thumbnail sketch of ace character so each artists engaged from bit player up may be given it.

Full reels be used for both preview and release dubbing regardless of changeover.

The Public Relations reported an average saving in all studios of 30% on still negatives.

The National Screen Service reported the adoption of a maximum of 200 feet had been set for trailers for AA pictures, 200 feet for A's and 150 feet for others.

The next meeting between the Film Advisory Committee and the War Production Board will be held in Washington July 28. It also was announced that all studios have sent to Washington for receipt today a report on the amount of film used during the first six months of this year.

FILM UNIONS SET FOR FIGHT IF IA MOVES ON COLLARITES

to take the exchange Collarites here or in San Francisco will result in an immediate drive by the Carpenters to take over the Grips, with the Propertymen joining the Painters and the Juicers, Lensers and perhaps the Soundmen switching over to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. If the blowoff comes, it was said, Laboratory Technicians would be offered an IBEW charter.

To add to the confusion, Federal agents were reported checking the situation to determine whether any deal had been made to the IATSE to organize the front office workers in the exchanges. Frisco workers reported a move to organize them into the IA, but they demurred and insisted on affiliation with the Screen Office Employes Guild, a local of the Brotherhood of Painters.

Los Angeles exchanges have been organized 100% by the SOEG, and latter organization has been certified by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining representative for the Collarites. Members are now on strike at RKO, Columbia, Metro, Paramount and United Artists exchanges, but agreement was made with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, by Glenn Pratt, SOEG business representative, and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, to hold walkout in staus quo pending arrival of E. J. Mannix from the east at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The SOEG strike strategy committee, composed of Glenn Pratt, Bernard Lusher, Prexy Margaret Bennett and Attorney George E. Bodle, has been given authority to take any action deemed necessary. It is understood that if a quick settlement is not reached, remainder of exchanges will be struck and picket lines extended to studios and theatres.

Prexy Dick Walsh of the IA is up against a tough proposition in pushing his claims for either the first lensers or Collarites. The Cameramen have an IBEW charter and the Collarites are in the SOEG. The IA convention, however, instructed Walsh and the IA general executive board to extend every aid possible to IA Local 659 in its move to take over the directors of photography. The latter now have a charge of unfair labor practice pending against the Producers with the NLRB, claiming they negotiated with Local 659 for first cameramen, although they had a five-year contract with the American Society of Cinematographers.

The IBEW claims it has a majority of the first lensers and yesterday asked Herbert Sorrell for information as to how to apply for affiliation with the Conference of Studio Unions.

Walsh indicated he would have nothing to say until he received complete reports on the situation. He arrived Monday afternoon and spent most of his time conferring with Pat Casey, Carl C. Cooper, IA vice-prexy on the Coast; John Martin, business representative of Film Technicians Local 683; Herbert Aller, business representative of International Photographers Local 659; Harold V. Smith, business representative for Sound Technicians Local 695, and Bill Ring, business representative for the back office workers in the film exchanges.

There also is considerable dissension in many of the IA locals, a big portion of the membership still being peeved over the George E. Browne-Willie Bioff regime and failure of other IA officers to kick them out. Set Electricians Local 728 is torn by inter-union strife, with membership reported bringing charges against officers. Another group of old-time IA members in 728 were reported employing an attorney to force the Local to live up to the IA constitution on the question of recognizing members outside the IA jurisdiction.

Men claim they are being forced to work on daily permit and are not permitted to accept callbacks in violation of the IA constitution. Situation flared up again yesterday when Business Representative Mickey Moran tried to force permit men to accept a call to 20th, although some of them had a callback to Universal. Union was having trouble filling the call. Permit men have filed a protest with Prexy Walsh, but have not yet received a reply from him.

Walsh was reported attending a meeting of back office workers in exchanges last night, called by Business Representative Bill Ring. There has been considerable dissension in this craft, with some of membership criticizing Ring for failure to cooperate with the SOEG.

IBEW Will Ask $175 Week, Vacations For Gaffers

Demand for a $175 weekly minimum for studio gaffers is being drafted by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers for submission to Producers if a majority of set technicians vote to join with first cameramen in IBEW Local 1318. Group now is affiliated with the IATSE, but several leaders have been talking switch over with Gene Gaillac, IBEW international representative, and George H. (Curly) Davis, IB business manager.

Davis, in a memo going to all studio gaffers, stated:

'You, no doubt, have read in Daily Variety that the ASC has become affiliated with the IBEW and Local 1318 of the IBEW (your cameramen) wants you to come in under its charter. An affiliation of this kind will give you much more prestige and put you in a salary bracket almost equal to that of the first cameramen, which is something that should have been done years ago. But you have had too many Bioffs and Brownes to negotiate for you. The IBEW has set a salary bracket for all of the gaffers in the major studios in the motion picture industry of $175 per week. Each major studio will retain eight or 10 gaffers or more at $175 per week the year 'round. This the IBEW is prepared to go to the Producers and get for you just as soon as you become affiliated with Local 1318. You gaffers are now and always have been valuable men to the Producers and there is no reason why your salary should not be up to at least $175 per week and two weeks' vacation with pay.'

Davis also advised the gaffers that the IBEW had been granted jurisdiction of all electrical work in the studios. He said this includes voice, sound, vision and all electrical effects.

BACK alimony payers, and there are quite a few of them, may eventually find an out when Uncle Sam calls up their draft numbers. There is quite a number of directors, writers and players who are behind in their financial marital raps. Most of them are free-lancers and have an alibi when it comes to paying off. Many are so far behind in their court allotments that when they go into the army it will be a relief from grief. Attorneys are now trying to figure out what is the legal status in such cases, especially should children be involved. Technically they are known as comic strips but most of them are daily continuances of the nickel novels your old man wouldn't let you read when you were a kid. Today the old man is one step ahead of his child, grabbing the morning paper to learn how Dick Tracy and Flash Gordon are dong in their battles against iniquity. At the same time, the old man still has a soft spot in his heart for Nick Carter and Old King Brady, who trailed crime to its lair with nothing but their ingenuity and a horse-and-buggy.

The Pride of the Yankees

(Drama)

RKO release of a Samuel Goldwyn production. Stars Gary Cooper. Features Teresa Wright, Babe Ruth, Walter Brennan, Veloz and Yolanda, Ray Noble and his orchestra. Supporting players: Dan Duryea, Elsa Janssen, Ludwig Stossel, Virginia Gilmore, Bill Dickey, Ernie Adams, Pierre Watkin, Harry Harvey, Robert W. Meusel, Mark Koenig, Bill Stern, Addison Richards, Hardie Albright, Edward Fielding, George Lessey, Edgar Barrier, Douglas Croft, Gene Collins, David Holt. Director, Sam Wood. Production design, William Cameron Menzies. Art director, Perry Ferguson. Film editor, Daniel Mandell. Associate art director, McClure Capps. Set decorations, Howard Bristol. Costumes, Rene Hubert. Sound technician, Frank Maher. Assistant director, John Sherwood. Special photographic effects, Jack Cosgrove. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, July 15, 1942. Running time: 129 MINS.

Lou Gehrig played 2,130 consecutive big league baseball games. 'The Pride of the Yankees' could well stand as his 2,131st. Big league all the way, whether as a picture of large boxoffice capabilities, or as a faithful chronicle of the baseball idol's life, 'The Pride of the Yankees' is entertainment for all, baseball fan or not. Gary Cooper IS Lou Gehrig, a performance that certainly is that star's best of many fine enactments. Those Gehrig fans who will critically scan every phase of Cooper's interpretation will find no allowable fault. Film fans, male or female, with scant knowledge of the diamond, will be greatly moved by an honest, natural story of a young man's fame with a baseball bat, and his unassuming acceptance of the honors and homage such fame brought.

Sam Wood, with simple dignity in directorial story telling, achieves the full punch of the simplicity and modesty that marked Gehrig's life, from a baseball-crazy kid to the moment in 1939 when he walked off the Yankee Stadium field after saying goodbye to his fans—and to life. Of such high quality is Wood's guidance there is scarcely an instance where direction noticeably intrudes on the unfoldment of Gehrig's story. To him must go all the credit for the distinction that is stamped on this production.

The fidelity which Cooper gives to his characterization is duplicated by Teresa Wright's performance as Mrs. Gehrig. In neither is there any reflection of the actor or actress, a distinguished achievement that bespeaks unlimited talent. They will make an audience relive the Gehrigs' happy marriage, arousing chuckles and tears through courtship, the sudden wedding, baseball triumphs and the courage with which they both face Gehrig's impending death.

Walter Brennan is Sam Blake, baseball writer who follows Gehrig's career from start to finish, a performance marked with the ability that has earned him Academy awards. Babe Ruth plays himself as another baseball great who figured in Gehrig's career, but story does not probe too deeply into many phases of their contact on the diamond. Veloz and Yolanda bring

COOPER MORE GEHRIG THAN HIMSELF AS YANK'S PRIDE

By DAVIS J. WALSH

Editor's Note: By-liner Walsh, one of baseball's most outstanding writers during Gehrig's diamond career, knew Larruping Lou intimately from the first day he broke into the big leagues to his sorrowful passing from the national pastime. For years sports editor of International New Service, Walsh had a special fondness for baseball and closely followed its fortunes for the many years that spanned Gehrig's long career with the Yankees.

There are those, no doubt, who will continue to deride Hollywood's boast that it can do practically anything it sets its glib and ingenious mind to. But they weren't among the witnesses leaving the special trade showing of Samuel Goldwyn's 'The Pride of the Yankees' still a little baffled by the fact that Hollywood had successfully made a right-handed actor into a left-handed ball player. And still in considerable doubt as to where reality left off and art had taken over, so consummately fused were both.

Perhaps that's a mild distortion. Perhaps it was all art from first to last, by Gary Cooper as Lou Gehrig, by Sam Wood as the director, and by the technicians with their cameras.

They took an ex-cowpuncher with a considerable talent for portrayals, surrounded him with the simple facts of a simple man's full but hurried life, and, before they were finished they did more than make Cooper look like a ball player. They even made him look a little like Lou Gehrig.

But any baseball technician who saw Cooper in 'John Doe' will agree that the first achievement was the greater of these. In fact, the transformation of Cooper from an actor without even outward baseball sophistication in the 'Doe' picture to his wholly acceptable rendition of the Gehrig role on the ball field came not only as a pleasurable surprise, but one that added stature to Cooper's imitative sense.

He had somehow picked up the Gehrig mannerisms at the plate; his flatfooted stance, his forearm hitting as opposed to the wrist technique. If there was anything wrong with the swing the discrepancy was slight; such things as Cooper having a 'hitch' in the swing like most ball players, whereas Gehrig had none, and Cooper's tendency not to meet the ball out in front of him, but instead letting it ride the bat.

But that's little to be wrong in the case of a man using abnormal movements, i.e., from the left side, and who had only a few weeks in which to successfully simulate action that most men acquire tediously, and some never at all.

He does this so amazingly as to make people remember Gehrig, and forget it's Cooper they're looking at. The whole picture, as to that, is athletically without technical blemish.

The processing of the Yankee Stadium, Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, and the other backgrounds are so expertly done that the story fits snugly into its action. The dressing room at the Stadium is lifelike, authentic; so is the training camp scenes at St. Petersburg, Fla., where Gehrig first exhibited symptoms of the disease that marked him for death.

Babe Ruth, playing himself, was jocular instead of hoarse-voiced and grumpy, but that doubtless was a Ruthian interpretation of the role. Bill Dickey was himself to such purpose as to indicate a possible future in films when his ball field past comes up to meet him. The Gehrigs, pere and mere, were the same old German couple who used to dodder around behind Lou, gaping upon him blissfully.

Even the shadow of the elevated structure falling upon Jerome avenue produced nostalgic twinges, and as for Lou Gehrig Day, it was so real that a party who witnessed both found himself gulping all over again. It was the day in 1939 when a great-hearted young man stood alone among 70,000 people and, over a loud-speaker, haltingly said goodbye to all the things he loved. It took time, for these were a great many. He was that kind of a young man.

BEST DRESSED GIRL OF THE WEEK—

Dorothy Lamour dining at the Hollywood Brown Derby looked most smart in one of the new 'War-time White' dresses. Hers was in a creamy white bengaline (creamy white as no chlorine bleach had been used in its finishing) and a matching creamy white turban which revealed a brunette pompadour in front and a low chignon in back. Her frock featured smooth shoulders, a fitted midriff, center front skirt drapery and a curving hemline slit. She added wine doeskin pumps, bag and gloves, while to one side of turban was clipped a delicate flower with a moonstone center and diamond covered petals.

KATHARINE BROWN has resigned her post as eastern representative of David O. Selznick. She had been with Selznick since formation of his International company. No replacement has yet been made in New York office. . . . Irving Pichel steps in to direct added scenes and retakes tomorrow on 'Girl Trouble' at 20th. Dunphy Asks Theatres To Salvage Vital War Materials

New York, July 15.—Cooperation of 16,000 exhibitors and legit theatres in salvaging critical materials and the conservation of all supplies was asked today by Chris Dunphy, chief of the Amusements Section of the War Production Services Branch.

Following a war appeal by Donald Nelson for an intensified nationwide salvage campaign, Dunphy particularly stressed the necessity of salvaging copper vital to all phases of the war program and urged every theatre manager to scrap all unused pieces of copper and save for distribution by salvage centers all carbon butts and drippings from carbon.

Dunphy has made arrangements with supply companies to sell all salvage material to scrap dealers and to donate proceeds to the Red Cross or other welfare agencies.

MG Putting 26 Dancing Girls Under Contract

Metro will organize a dancing unit of 26 girls, to be carried on stock contracts, to assure studio showgirl talent for the flock of filmusicals being lined up for production during the coming year. Anticipating that talent in the required line is scarce, studio will use radio stations for spot announcements and daily classified columns to round up candidates.

Six filmusicals on the Metro schedule for early start are 'Presenting Lily Mars,' 'DuBarry Was a Lady,' 'Best Foot Forward,' 'Girl Crazy,' 'Lucky Number' and 'Very Warm For May.'

Abandons Remoting

Remoting of bands by NBC over the network has been abandoned here until contract difficulties between KSTP in St. Paul and the musicians local there is adjusted. Chain has wires in the Biltmore here, St. Francis in Frisco and Pasadena civic auditorium, the latter on Saturday nights when name bands play the weekly hop.

'Reveille' Airs Daily

Jean Ruth, radio's original 'Beverly at Reveille,' 5:30 a. m. cheererupper of early-rising soldiers and sailors, starts a daily series on KNX July 20. She'll give out with glib pleasantries between spinnings of platters.

FIGHT OPENS FOR LENSERS; ASC ASKS OUSTER 659 MAN

implication that IA cameramen would not work with non-card men after the deadline.

Richard F. Walsh, IA International prexy, was in conference with Business Representative Herbert Aller of Local 659, and other leaders most of yesterday and last night. Vice-Prexy Floyd Billingsley and Steve B. Newman, former Coast head of the IA, came in from San Francisco to discuss developments.

Simultaneously, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with whom the directors of photography now are affiliated, was defying the IATSE edict that lensers could not work location jobs unless they had 659 cards. Len Smith, member of the ASC, is directing a Metro location near Wenatchee, Wash., and it was stated the IBEW is moving in on the location today to protect its jurisdiction.

Washington IBEW leaders have been meeting in Wenatchee for several days. It was announced that when the session adjourned last night the group, headed by Vice-Prexy Joseph Milne, planned to visit the Len Smith location with the idea of being on hand if any move was made by the IATSE to withdraw technicians working with the directors of photography.

The 20th-Fox situation developed when Ed Cronjager, ASC director of photography, was sent to Utah to shoot location for 'My Friend Flicka'. Local 659 insisted one of its men be used, but when Cronjager drew the job Local 659 demanded a standby photog. The studio agreed and the standby was offered to Gus Peterson. The latter declined, and Local 659 then handed the assignment to Milford Anderson. The ASC claims Anderson is not a member in good standing.

Fred Jackman, ASC prexy, learned of the assignment yesterday and sent a demand to Studio Manager Fred Meyer that Anderson be removed. He stated that Anderson was not a member of the ASC in good standing, having been suspended for non-payment of dues, and that his employment would be a direct violation of the five-year agreement between the Producers and the ASC.

Meyer had not replied to the demand last night, but it was understood he planned to consult with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, before taking action. Members of the ASC, while retaining their ASC identity, have accepted a charter with the IBEW and are said to have been promised full support of the IBEW International in any fight by the IATSE to force them into Local 659.

It was considered likely that a showdown in the camera situation might develop today or tomorrow, with IATSE Prexy Walsh notifying Casey all directors of photography must have 659 cards. The only drawback to such action was the unfair labor practice charge filed by the ASC against Producers and now pending before the National Labor Relations Board.

The ASC has complained that the Producers negotiated with Local 659 for wages and conditions for first cameramen while their five year contract with the Society was still in effect. An amended charge was filed with the NLRB last week, and a ruling is expected soon as to whether a formal complaint will be issued and a hearing ordered before a trial examiner. Labor tops expressed belief the IATSE might delay its ultimatum pending NLRB action, but others expected Local 659 to move immediately before action could be taken on the IBEW's move to affiliate with the Conference of Studio Unions.

IBEW Units Backing White Collarites In Wage Dispute

Cameramen's Local 1318, with the possibility of similar action being taken by IBEW Local 40.

Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative, and George (Curly) Davis, business manager of B-11, said instructions would be issued for IBEW members to respect the SOEG picket lines if they are established at the studios. In a joint statement, Gaillac and Davis said:

'We certainly intend to recommend that no IBEW members cross a picket line if they are established at the studios by the SOEG in its fight to get decent living wages for clerical employes in the film exchanges. We are seeking affiliation with the Conference of Studio Unions, which is on record as supporting the office workers 100%, and naturally will go along with unions in that organization.'

Showdown in the exchange walkout is scheduled for this morning when E. J. Mannix, Metro general manager, arrives from the east. The SOEG and Studio Conference agreed with Pat Casey to hold further action in abeyance pending a talk with Mannix. Pickets were called from in front of the exchanges, but workers are still out at Metro, Columbia, RKO, United Artists and Paramount exchanges.

Situation was complicated by arrival of Prexy Richard F. Walsh of the IATSE, who is claiming front office workers in the exchanges. It was generally conceded, however, that the IA stood no chance of getting the White Collarites here and in San Francisco, who have joined the SOEG and have been certified by the National Labor Relations Board.

The SOEG has made it plain that unless a quick agreement is reached the pickets will be extended to the studios. Dispute is over refusal of the exchanges to meet SOEG wage demands and agree to classification of clerical employes.

Trio Army Bound

Readying for military service are George Weiss, of 20th-Fox advertising staff, as lieutenant in the Army Signal Corps; Irving Schoenberg, cutter at Republic, who reports for duty as an enlisted Marine within three weeks, and Robert Miller, for six years with Walter Lantz, going into the Army.

James Band Records

Harry James and his orchestra started recording on six Harry Warren-Mack Gordon tunes for 'Springtime In the Rockies' at 20th yesterday. Band will be busy for a week sound tracking the numbers.

Joins Berlin Music

Dick Arnold, longtime with Feist, checks in Monday as professional manager here for Irving Berlin publishing firm. Also joining Berlin is Jeanette Goldenberg, who moves over from Broadcast Music.

Flynn Collapse Halts Work on 'Corbett'

Following a collapse on the set yesterday, Errol Flynn was rushed to the Good Samaritan hospital last night and is under the care of Dr. Leland Chapman. Actor wilted at Warners during the Sullivan-Corbett fight sequences in 'Gentleman Jim' while boxing with Ward Bond. Production has been called off pending Flynn's recovery. Flynn's physician reported last night that he plans to keep the actor in hospital for three or four days but does not expect Flynn to return to work for at least a week.

Brown's 'Show Off'

Joe E. Brown will make stage appearance in 'The Show Off' at Shubert Lafayette theatre, Detroit, for Henry Duffy next month. Producer wants comedian for 12-week engagement, which will likely be shortened due to previous film committments.

Merry Macs to Chicago

The Merry Macs shove off for Chicago tonight after their broadcast on the Kraft air program to open a week, starting Friday at the Oriental theatre. They will miss the Kraft show July 23 but will return for the succeeding week.

Freight Cars Shortage Bumps Road Shows

New York, July 15.—Road show business for next season seems seriously threatened by shortage of freight cars and choked rail transportation. Several companies which had slated tours are now indefinite as to plans. One-night stands especially are apparently out for the duration. 'Life With Father,' for instance, with only one-nights left to show, will not go on road. Big shows like 'Lady in the Dark,' 'Let's Face It' and similar ones, need from three to four baggage cars.

MG Signs Monroe Ork

Vaughn Monroe, another of the currently 'hot' orks has been signed by Metro to do a picture. Band in the East now will come to Hollywood early in 1943 to do the musical. Sam Katz and Louis Sidney signed the band through the William Morris office. No assignments have been made yet.

Tansey Megs 'Bataan'

First of the new series of Range Busters, 'Texas to Bataan,' will be directed by Robert Tansey at Monogram. Production is slated to start July 21 with George Weeks producing. Davey Sharpe, John King and Max Terhune head the cast.

Theatre Repair Parts Supply To Continue; No New Equipment

facture of parts for replacement, while manufacture of above items in complete form is out.

Supply houses will be permitted to continue the same amount of supplies in most cases as previously ordered by customers. Mazda lamps have been cut 50%, but essential carbon continues being supplied at last year's pace. New customers may not be sought, it's said, Government restricting suppliers to established lists. Companies therefore see themselves operating strictly as service stations for their customers for the duration. Income from conversion to defense work will maintain business until such time as it can be normally resumed.

Theatres with bulb marquees are the hardest hit on the light situation, it appears. New plastics that involve no defense priorities make possible letters for signs illuminated from single back panel of light and also attend other sign needs.

Majority of suppliers have a four-year supply of material on hand with which to create necessary parts, and are permitted to draw for more. Only on government order for Lend-Lease, Army or Navy are projectors and other equipment allowed for manufacture.

Reported that talks now are in progress with the War Production Board in Washington to permit an annual national output of a certain amount of new equipment which would be split among manufacturers according to their former percentages of production. Figure would be arrived at after an inventory to ascertain what already is on hand.

Metro Loans PRC, Bill Roberts For 'Yanks'

Bill Roberts comes over from Metro on loan to Producers Releasing Corporation for featured role in musical comedy, 'The Yanks Are Coming,' to be produced by Lester Cutler. Alexis Thurn-Taxis, director, is slated to start picture July 23.

Five songs by Lew Pollack and Tony Stern are spotted for 'Yanks'—'The Yanks Are Coming,' 'There'll Be No Blackout of Democracy,' 'I Must Have Priority On Your Love,' 'Don't Fool Around With My Heart' and a special number, 'Zip Your Lip.'

RCN Okes 'Corvettes'

Notification from the Royal Canadian Navy was received at Universal yesterday to roll 'Corvettes in Action.' Approval was forwarded by Admiral Percy Nelles, commander-in-chief of the RCN. Richard Rosson, director of the Howard Hawks production, plans to leave within two weeks for a Canadian port from where he and his camera crew will sail with an Atlantic convoy.

Kane Reins 'Sunset'

Joe Kane starts production tomorrow on 'Sunset Serenade' at Republic. Joan Woodbury, Onslow Stevens, Frank Thomas, Roy Bancroft and Jack Kirk have been added to the cast. George 'Gabby' Hayes has the comedy lead and the Sons of the Pioneers will do several musical numbers.

CONCERN FELT OVER POSSIBLE LETDOWN AFTER PROD. BOOM

of Government pictures are adding to the rush, but on the inside it is hinted the unusual backlog is being built up against any possible curtailment of production or vital supplies because of the war effort. Rapidly decreasing manpower, affecting men in all departments of film production, is given by execs as another reason for the accumulation of product.

Technical organizations, such as cameramen, art directors, etc., are in such a dither as to the future of this year that they have refused to open their membership to newcomers. As a result, outsiders are employed on daily permits and many regulars are double-shifting.

Paramount leads the backlog march with 30 completed pictures, six cutting and 10 more to get before the cameras within a month. This sets a new high for studio. Metro has a hefty list of pictures completed and ready for release. 20th-Fox, while already having accumulated a heavy load of releases, is slated to step up production even more briskly within the next few months. RKO is hitting highest activity in more than a year and a half, with seven pictures in production and six more set to go this summer. Columbia hits a high peak with eight in production. Warners has accumulated a large number of films completed and unreleased and is unusually active with six films working.

Universal, while maintaining a steadier pace than most of the majors, is above its usual quota. Other studios are zooming production in all phases and the tremendous activity is of deep concern. Those in charge hint there will be a genuinely serious letdown in studio calls by the end of the year.

Scribbling

Anna Louise Strong joins the Metro writing staff to work on screenplay of 'Scorched Earth', drama of Russian destruction in front of the advancing Germans.

20th-Fox has purchased James O'Hanlon's original, 'Brother Mike', with Producer Walter Morosco assigning author to write the screenplay.

William Calkins, U. S. Navy sub expert, will provide technical advice for Jo Swerling on script of 'Crash Dive' at 20th-Fox.

Frank Gruber assigned by 20th-Fox to prepare script of 'Ground Pilot', which Ralph Dietrich produces.

Art Arthur is writing screenplay for Paramount's 'Very Hot In Haiti'.

Will Tap High-pay Boys For Relief

Plans to speed up the film industry's drive for Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Reliefs by appealing to the higher salaried personnel to contribute quickly were announced yesterday at the first report luncheon of the drive at the Hillcrest Country Club. Following the encouraging reports made by the colonels, Chairman Jacob H. Karp said the drive could be brought to an early close if the higher-bracket people respond without delay.

Variety Club Drive

Variety Club will launch a new membership drive this week with a total 400 aimed at to hypo present 175. Special committee of ten men will be named to spread the word in their respective branches of show business. When Club started list was limited to 100 but it has expanded twice since. With charities being assumed exclusively is not practical nor fraternal, is the thought.

McDonald at Par

Marie McDonald, whose option was not renewed at Universal, has been signed to term contract at Paramount. She will go into 'Prelude to Glory' opposite Alan Ladd.

S. E. SNYDER

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. for Silas Edgar (Si) Snyder, 72, press agent in early picture days and later editor of technical publications connected with the American Society of Cinematographers. He died Wednesday at Gardena, Calif., after a long illness. In Hollywood pioneer days Snyder was publicity man for Ruth Roland and the Rockett Brothers. More recently he was editor of the American Cinematographer and the International Photographer.

J. A. HIBBS RITES

Funeral services for Jesse Albert Hibbs, 66, of Glendale, will be conducted at the Little Church of the Flowers at 11 a.m. Friday, after which the body will be interred at the family mausoleum in Forest Lawn. Deceased was the father of Jesse Hibbs, former All-American football star of USC in 1928, and Gene Hibbs, both now studio employes at Warners.

ERNEST D. WOOD

Funeral services for Ernest D. Wood, 55, veteran actor, will be held at 11 o'clock today at Pierce Brothers Hollywood chapel, with cremation to follow. Wood, who died Monday night of a heart ailment, was an actor for 40 years on the stage and in pictures. He is survived by his widow, Grace.

Neumann Megs 'Yanks'

Fifth of Roach studio's army series, 'Yanks Ahoy,' goes before the cameras today with Kurt Neumann directing and Fred Guiol producing. Marjorie Woodworth has been assigned the feminine lead while Bill Tracy and Joe Sawyer have already been set to head cast.

Navy Ok For U 'Guard'

Navy Department has put the okay on Universal's serial, 'Don Winslow of the Coast Guard,' and chapter play is slated to roll next month with Henry MacRae as associate producer.

Bill Hopkins Drafted By Government As Manpower Head

William K. Hopkins, industrial relations director for Columbia, has been drafted by the Government as regional director for the War Manpower Commission in California, Oregon, Washington, Arizona and Nevada. He has been granted an indefinite leave of absence by Columbia, and leaves immediately to establish headquarters in San Francisco.

Hopkins organized the Training Within Industry Unit of the Office of Production Management, which later became the War Production Board. He came to Columbia from the oil industry and was popular with both company executives and labor because of the manner in which he handled negotiations and adjustments.

Trumbull Returns As Will Hays' Assistant

New York, July 15. — Walter Trumbull, who has acted temporarily on the Motion Picture Public Relations Committee since Kenneth Clark was commissioned in the Army, has returned to his former duties as assistant to Will Hays. Arthur Debra, who heads Education Public Forum activities of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, has been appointed to the committee and also will be on PRC executive committee headed by Barret McCormick. Debra will be permanent representative of the Hays office on PRC.

'Big Street' Finished; Runyon Off RKO Lot

Following two sneak previews of his RKO production, 'The Big Street,' Damon Runyon has turned the picture over to studio officials for final trimming and dubbing. Runyon moves off the lot in the next few days, and reports to 20th-Fox on Aug. 1 to start term ticket at the Westwood plant as writer-producer.

Although Runyon has not yet decided on first picture to be made for 20th, it will be either an original or published story of his own.

It's 'Life Begins at 8:30'

'Life Begins at 8:30' is new title for 20th-Fox picture prepared under tag of 'Light of Heart.' Monty Wooley and Ida Lupino have the leads with production slated to start July 23.

Gage's 'Alcatraz'

Erford Gage has a major assignment in 'Seven Miles From Alcatraz'. Broadway actor made his film bow in 'Name, Age and Occupation' at Gower street lot.

PETRILLO'S DISC BAN FLAYED

Theatre Owners Hit By Fast Turnover In Personnel

Though the labor situation in theatres is plenty flux these days, a real shortage of operational help is anticipated when fall recalls now employed youngsters to schools. Circuits as well as the indies are not feeling too great a pinch now, though small houses are hardest hit, but all have the feeling of being on a merry-go-round due to the turnover and parade of new faces.

Draft, enlistments and defense work have consumed help at a rapid pace. Only those with little or no business sense or realization of defense work opportunities are available. Others who take a job leave so fast on the first next best offer it has managers and operators dizzy. Situation is true up and down the Pacific coast, especially in defense areas like San Diego, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Huntington Park, etc.

Theatre defense problems are making the difficulty more keenly felt, with exhibs concerned over building permanent safety brigades, etc., now a demand.

While girls have proven themselves as capable as others in war emergency work, etc., the problem is to find the girls to do it. They, too, are going into defense work as fast as they know of it.

Problem goes down the line from assistant managers to porters. Managers, of course, are less voluntarily inclined but just as often called. Complaint is that any youngish help cannot be looked at askance as likely to exit shortly because there is not enough around to be choosey. Older men are being sought as less capable of doing more strenuous things and more likely to stay for the reasons of security and less liklihood of armed forces call.

Col Hires 8 Writers; Has 25 Working

Eight writers have been added to Columbia studio's staff. New addition to the scriveners' department will work on original stories as well as adaptations of already acquired story properties.

New scripters are Alfred Neumann, Paul Schiller, Paul Frank, Joseph Than, Heinz Herald, Adele Comandini, Paul Elbogen and Detleff Sierck. This brings Columbia's writer roster to 25.

Metro's 22 Shorts

Metro has 22 shorts, listed as 1942-43 product, in various stages of production. Two, one a Carey Wilson Miniature and the other a two-reel special, are before the cameras. Preparing are two Pete Smiths, two Miniatures, two Passing Parades and two Our Gang. Editing are three Passing Parades, three Specialties, two Our Gang comedies and four Miniatures.

Wants Vaude Acts

Auditions for vaude acts to be spotted into Jerry Brandt's 'Scattergood Swings It' for RKO are scheduled for tomorrow at RKO-Pathe lot.

WON'T MEAN MORE WORK FOR MUSICIANS, SAYS NAB HEAD

Chicago, July 15.—Neville Miller, prexy of National Association of Broadcasters, today met with the NAB board of directors, and after a long discussion of James Petrillo's ban by American Federation of Musicians on recordings after July 31, issued the following statement:

'James Petrillo has instructed members of his union to stop making records after July 31. His order will affect all those who listen to music and will have a very serious effect on the broadcasting industry. This industry does not employ musicians to make records, and the musicians it employs are engaged on union terms as the result of a series of great inventions. Americans, wherever they live, have become accustomed to the best entertainment provided by radio, motion pictures and the phonograph.

'Order by Petrillo amounts to a statement that only those people who live in large cities and can afford to see the great artists in person are entitled to enjoy their performances. If Petrillo can make his order effective, hundreds of broadcasting stations, which are necessary to the public interest and for national defense, will have their usefulness to the public greatly curtailed. Petrillo is mistaken if he thinks that his order will bring more employment to musicians. All it means is that millions of people will hear less music.

'Even if Petrillo's theory were correct, his order at this time would not only be arbitrary and illegal, but unpatriotic as well. Music plays a vital part in war morale and this is not the time to destroy the phonograph record and electrical transcription, which bring the best in music to the people of this country. This is no time to have any part of the nation's manpower engaged in performances of artificially created entertainment taken from their tasks. Radio employs thousands of musicians and millions of dollars are paid annually to make recordings. Therefore, we call upon Petrillo and the members of his union to reconsider the course of action which has been proposed.'

Trade Showing

their dance artistry to the picture for one sequence that figured prominently in the Gehrigs' life—their first date. The dance number, with Ray Noble and orchestra playing Irving Berlin's 'Always', is an unexpected pictorial highlight of grace and motion.

In the supporting cast the standouts are Elsa Janssen and Ludwig Stossel as the parents of Gehrig. Miss Janssen gives tender, heart-warming understanding to the mother assignment, while Stossel makes the father an appealing, humorous delight. Others who register notably include Dan Duryea, a sports scribe; Virginia Gilmore, an early-day Gehrig romance; Ernie Adams, Pierre Watkin, Harry Harvey, Addison Richards, Hardie Albright, Edward Fielding, George Lessey, Edgar Barrier and Douglas Croft, Gehrig as a boy. Gene Collins and David Holt do a lame youngster to whom Gehrig gave inspiration, at the ages of eight and 17, respectively. Both are good. Playing themselves are Bill Dickey, ball player, who also is no mean shakes as an actor; Robert (Bob) W. Meusel, Mark Koenig and Bill Stern.

Paul Gallico's original story expertly follows the Gehrig pattern, as does the screenplay by Henry J. Mankiewicz and Jo Swerling. Writers included all the warmth and color of the ball player's career to rate most favorable mention. Rudolph Mate's photography is another of the picture's top achievements, giving movement and scope to the excellent production design by William Cameron Menzies. Leigh Harline's musical direction is excellent and astutely accomplished, the art direction by Perry Ferguson and his associate, McClure Capps; set decorations by Howard Bristol, Jack Cosgrove's special photographic effects, and the other technical contributions are important functions, ably done.

So Sears, Kelly, Ed Raftery and Monroe Greenthal still are standing by, despite some of them having biz to transact in New York this week.

Metro, 20th-Fox Trading

Dicker is on between 20th-Fox and Metro for an exchange arrangement on Walter Pidgeon and Roddy McDowall. 20th wants Pidgeon for 'Blind Man's House,' which Milton Sperling will produce from the Hugh Walpole novel, and which is now in scripting stage. Metro is considering borrowing young McDowall for its boy and dog picture, 'Lassie Come Home.' McDowall will be busy in 20th's 'My Friend Flicka,' boy and horse tale, at Kanab, Utah, location and at studio for next 30 to 40 days.

Switch 'Fury' to 'Men'

'Isle of Missing Men' has been set by Monogram as release title for picture made under tag of 'Isle of Fury,' produced and directed by Richard Oswald.

Picture Stars Open Summer Tour For War Effort

With Frank McHugh and Marjorie Weaver opening in Kansas City today with the 'Roxy Theatre Review', and Ilona Massey making Coast camps with 'Full Speed Ahead', the Hollywood Victory Committee is swinging into its summer tour program. McHugh and Miss Weaver will be in Kansas and Missouri until the end of the month, and Miss Massey will be away the same length of time.

Jeanette MacDonald's concert tour for USO Camp Shows, Inc., opens in El Paso next Monday. Her tour will carry her through Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois. She will return to Hollywood the second week in August.

Abbott and Costello will leave Tuesday on a tour through the middle west and southwest which will keep them on the road until the first part of September. The Treasury Department tour by the comedians will include more than 25 cities and is expected to result in heavy War Bond purchases at each stopover.

Bob Burns leaves Aug. 4 to join the 'Roxy Theatre Review' in Illinois and will remain on the Camp tour until Aug. 19, when he will leave the company in Massachusetts.

Musicians Okay Shows At Treasure Island

San Francisco, July 15.—Continuation of professional entertainment for sailors at Treasure Island Naval Base was assured when the Navy convinced Eddie Love, business agent of Musicians Local 6, that no charge would be made for the shows.

Love had threatened to block shows when he learned a 10-cent turnstile was in operation at the door to the Base's theatre. Navy explained the admission charge was only for motion pictures, other than Navy issue, obtained at the sailors' request.

Lang Megs 'Surrender,' Pressburger UA Pic

Fritz Lang will produce and direct 'Never Surrender,' written by himself and Bert Brecht, for United Artists release under the Arnold Pressburger label. It is a story of the Nazi oppression in Czechoslovakia. Negotiations are on for collaborator to work with Lang on screen play, and shooting is expected to get under way in four weeks. Three-way deal was set by Sam Jaffe.

Lang is understood to get substantial interest in film as part of his writer-director-producer setup.

Morrow Off Benny Pic

Bill Morrow, radio scrivener for Jack Benny, had a speedy career as dialog writer on 'Meanest Man in the World' at 20th-Fox. He was put on the picture to do some new dialog for Benny at the latter's insistance on Monday. Wednesday night Bill Perlberg, producer of the film, closed him out. Morrow was getting double his radio salary on the scripting job.

Darling In 'Woman'

Scott R. Darling checked into Universal to prepare original screenplay of 'Cobra Woman,' which will be first starrer on the lot for Maria Montez. George Waggner is producer on the picture.

MORE than 100 former members of Universal studio staff now in various branches of the armed forces, are being supplied with frequent letters and monthly boxes including cigarettes, cookies, candies, etc., through the Universal Service League. Letter group includes practically all girls in secretarial, clerical and production departments on the lot; with necessary financing coming from donations and monthly contributions by producers, executives, directors, writers and department heads. Forty girls comprise the letter-writing committee—with each being assigned to write to specific group of associates now in service at least twice monthly. Letters include general gossip of the lot, pictures in production, and newsy items that are interesting to men in camps or overseas. Supply division provides an initial kit with razor, blades, knitted sweater, and other basic requisites. Monthly shipments to each man consists of smokes, cookies, candies, etc.—with the girls packing and wrapping on their own time. Men in service getting the letters go from producers to mail clerks and boys on the back lot.

RADIO and agency execs yesterday congregated at the Biltmore hotel to hear a report on surveys by C. E. Hooper, whose coincidental system is in high favor with time buyers and agencies. Main object of the session, called by Hooper, was to clarify the use of his system to avoid criticism due to its improper application. He defended the accuracy of his ratings against those whose programs failed to reach anticipated levels. Hooper gave particular emphasis to minor differences in listener percentages, saying they carry no particular significance. Most of his discussion was concerned with the history of established reports, changes and improvements in operations of his system and limitations of its use. Also pointed up by Hooper was 'superiority of the coincidental over the the recall,' or his system of calling while programs are being dailed against the Crossley plan of asking listeners what they had dialed earlier.

DESPITE James Petrillo's ultimatum to NBC to cease feeding remote band programs to KSTP, St. Paul, which is embroiled in difficulties with the musicians union there, pickup bands here will be put back on the line tonight even though situation at St. Paul is unchanged. Orchestra came through Wednesday night over NBC from New York but whether it was fed to KSTP is not known. Local order affects the Biltmore downtown, St. Francis in Frisco and Pasadena civic auditorium Saturday night. Controversy between NBC and Petrillo involves network policy, the chain refusing to accept dictation by Petrillo as to which of its affiliates can not be serviced. Local band remotes don't affect the full network as the music is aired only in this section.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

When bearded heavies rode the plains in days of Forty-Nine
You knew that they were villains and their actions were malign.
The hero was a beardless youth, no matter what his age,
And there was felony behind a chin of human sage.
But now the villains march to war and villainesses ride
Amid the canyons of the west to scourge the countryside.
The kids who dote on western films are chivalrous young guys
Who look on pictured womanhood through chivalrous young eyes.
One way to make the villainess as deadly as the male
Is to hire the Bearded Lady from the oldtime circus trail.

You can understand why the birds arise at sun-up and fill the tress outside your bedroom window with their cheerful twitterings. They are actuated by a primeval urge. In other words, they couldn't do anything else if they tried. It is a tough job for a human lark to go into her song at 5:30 every morning, but Jean Ruth does it as 'Beverly at Reveille' over KNX. Jean's job is to spread vocal sunshine among the soldiers, sailors and marines who gotta get up when the bugler blows. Unlike the birds in yon acacia tree, she does not disturb the civilian sleepers, but twitters cheerfully to the lads who need a bit of cheering—as who doesn't when shunted from a comfortable couch at pearly dawn? It is easy enough to be cheerful in the home stretch of an evening at a night club, but it takes fortitude to arise and sing at 5:30 a. m.

Colossal bathtub scenes are obliterated by the $5,000 limit on dramatic plumbing bills, but the soap-and-suds producers can still go back to nature—down by the old mill stream.

When Sleeping Beauty wakened from her lengthy magic snore
Prince Charming felt romantic thrills he never felt before.
And in the film producer's heart the selfsame feeling stirs
When sleepers waken on the screen to charm the customers.

Sons of the Pioneers

(Western)

Republic production and release. Stars Roy Rogers. Features George 'Gabby' Hayes, with Maris Wrixon, Bradley Page, Bob Nolan, Pat Brady, Hugh Farr, Karl Farr, Tim Spencer, Lloyd Perryman, Hal Taliaferro, Forrest Taylor. Associate producer and director, Joseph Kane. Assistant director, Art Siteman. Cameraman, Bud Thackery. Original story, Mauri Grashin and Robert Shannon. Screenplay, M. Coates Webster and Grashin and Shannon. Editor, Edward Schroeder. Reviewed at Hitching Post theatre, Hollywood, July 16, 1942. Running time: 61 MINS.

Maybe Republic is jumping the gun on planned screen credit elimination by omitting the writers in the screen lineup, and also from its credit sheet, for this saddle saga. Or maybe it was just an oversight. But whatever the reason, it is an injustice because the boys who dreamed it up should get some credit for their fresh twist on the western pattern. They have modernized the mavericks by bringing criminology to the cactus country, a feat perhaps a mite indigestible for grown-ups but one to give the kids more room for imagination and appreciation. Its newsness does not extend to the till, however, and it'll need the same old help usually accorded the heroine.

As far as this'n is concerned, the war hasn't affected the availability of men for hard-riding gangs, nor powder for the shooting. It roots and toots and shoots all over the great divide to furnish enough action for the most demanding. Only when Roy goes into an occasional and brief yodeling bit does the action lessen. That makes for some nice pacing, anyway. Vet western foreman Joseph Kane kept his herd jostling on the directorial end, giving the novel yarn zip from his end.

Rogers is retired to a New York farm where he took to science and microscopes for the opening. But the badlands wouldn't keep good and the townsfolk recall him to the post of sheriff. New auto and all, he shows up to give the hombres a dumb dude impression of himself. The mask fools the baddies while he goes about scientifically solving the mystery of poisoned herds, night raiding and assorted arson. When the end comes, the town's big industrialist is exposed as the ringleader of the hoodlums.

Hayes and his sidekick, Pat Brady, make for some humor as the two interfering but well-meaning pals, and execute their roles in good order. Bradley Page as the slick evildoer also accounts for himself. Rest are standard, and the photography is rather good for a quickie, particularly in the night shots.

FILM EXCHANGE WAGE DISPUTE SHOWDOWN TODAY

and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

The IATSE was reported weakening on its claim to jurisdiction over White Collarites after learning that SOEG had been certified by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining agent for all exchange clerical employes. Collarites in San Francisco also have affiliated with the SOEG, but it is understood the Guild is not interested in organizing other parts of the country, leaving that field to the IA.

Sorrell conferred briefly with Mannix upon his arrival from the east yesterday morning. It is understood Sorrell told him the Collarites would not resume negotiations so long as Attorney Paul Watkins remained in the picture. He said the question of a union shop would not be debated, but that the Guilders were willing to talk wages, classifications and conditions.

Mannix then called a meeting of exchange heads for 3 p.m., and is reported to have been anything but pleased at their attitude and the manner in which the situation had been handled. Mannix directed the negotiations which led to an amicable agreement with the 1,800 Collarites employed in the studios, and is thoroughly familiar with the picture.

Sorrell expressed satisfaction with developments yesterday, and indicated there was a possibility of a tentative agreement being reached at today's session. Business Representative Pratt said if deal is reached employes will immediately return to work in Metro, RKO, Columbia, Paramount and United Artists exchanges.

Producer representatives were discussing situation last night in preparation for today's conference. Several of company heads are said to have taken stand that deal should be made rather than risk possibility of production being interfered with over the question of whether exchange employes are being paid a living wage.

Winkler Voids RKO Pact Returns To Agency Biz

Danny Winkler, who has been at RKO on three-year contract as talent commitment chief, tendered his resignation yesterday and made settlement on seven months of unexpired time of deal.

Winkler was brought into company by George Schaefer from the Myron Selznick agency, of which he was an exec, and fulfilled his task until taken ill last winter. At that time Joe Nolan, who formerly held the spot, was brought back into the organization and absorbed most of Winkler's chores. Upon his return Winkler had little to do, and finally convinced studio execs to give him his release.

Winkler, who has been considered one of the top execs in the agency field, will probably return to that biz within next few weeks with one of the top concerns.

Pearl Harbor Pilot To Advise 20th 'Texas'

Mel Van Keuren, American sailor who downed first Jap plane at Pearl Harbor, is on special assignment here for week with Commander A. J. Bolton, Navy liaison officer. He is collaborating with Steve Fisher, his cousin, on aviation sequences for 20th-Fox 'Texas Volunteers.'

Buys Out Nathanson

Monogram has acquired its exchange franchise in Minneapolis from Ben Nathanson, who has held Minnesota rights for Monogram product since company's re-start five years ago. Independent company currently owns and operates franchises in New York, Philadelphia and Washington; besides part ownership in the Seattle and Portland offices.

Rubinger in Army

Chicago, July 16.—Monroe Rubinger, salesman with the local Warner exchange, has resigned to enlist in the Army Signal Corps. He reports Monday for instruction in radio communication.

Scribbling

Julian Harmon and E. Maurice Adler have completed script on 'Pier 77', Metro Crime Does Not Pay short dealing with combating of sabotage.

Leonard Hoffman and Herman Ruby are scripting 'The Four-Star Murder Case', original whodunit, for Brian Foy production at 20th-Fox.

Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano are writing screenplay for 'The Shocking Miss Pilgrim' for William LeBaron at 20th-Fox.

Seiler Replaces Lubin On U 'Pittsburgh'

Lewis Seiler will direct 'Pittsburgh' at Universal, instead of Arthur Lubin who had the original assignment. It is understood Lubin and producer Robert Fellows were not in accord on development of the screenplay. Picture goes into work shortly with Marlene Dietrich, Randolph Scott and John Wayne in top spots.

Lubin is likely to get directing job on 'Night Mayor,' Dwight Taylor's initialer as a producer after graduating from the writing ranks.

Writes Own Scripts

Joseph Mankiewicz will write practically all scripts which he produces at Metro hereafter under new double-deck contract going into effect today. First of the scripting-producing assignments is Erskine Caldwell's 'Vengeance of the Earth,' story of Russian guerrillas.

Wants To Be a Soldier

George Plympton, veteran writer at Universal who has been assigned to serials for the past several years, has enlisted in the Army and is awaiting call to report for active duty.

Kern Quits Columbia

Completing 18 months as a writer at Columbia, James V. Kern has checked off the lot. His last scripting assignment was 'Look Out Below.'

Wants Nomination Certification—

Mrs. Cecil Bosworth, wife of Hobart Bosworth, has filed suit in Superior court seeking a writ of mandate to compel M. J. Donoghue, registrar of voters, to certify her nomination papers on the Democratic and Republican list of candidates for Congress from the 20th District. Mrs. Bosworth contends that she filed papers containing the required signatures, on June 20, but that certification was refused until the June 25 deadline had expired. A show-cause action in the matter will be held today in Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson's court.

Marchetti Must Pay—

Hearing on an attempt to have set aside a judgment of $767 obtained against Milo M. Marchetti, theatrical agent, by Rita S. Warner, talent scout, was denied in State Supreme court yesterday. Judgment was obtained on the contention that Marchetti had not lived up to an agreement by which he was to pay the talent scout 50% of whatever commission he obtained for placing her discoveries. One of the latter, it was claimed, is Suzanne Larson, later known as Susanna Foster, now under contract to Paramount.

Serlin Announces Wedding Plan—

The marriage of Oscar Serlin, producer of 'Life With Father' and other Broadway shows, and Mrs. Babette De Sheim will take place within a month, the producer announced yesterday. The ceremony will be performed at Charlesvoix, Mich., at the home of the bride-to-be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Block. Mrs. De Sheim is the widow of Charles De Sheim, actor. Serlin is enlisting in the Army as soon as he completes production on his newest show, 'Strip For Action'.

Petrillo Edict Checked On—

Chairman James Lawrence Fly, of the Federal Communications Commission, has directed its attorneys to determine whether legal action can be taken on the recent cancellation of broadcasts from the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich. NBC announced the cancellation of the Saturday feature after James C. Petrillo, president of American Federation of Musicians, had protested the participants were not professional musicians.

Seeks To Divorce Mature—

Suit for divorce and alimony of $510 a month was filed against Victor Mature yesterday in Superior court by Martha Stephenson Kemp Mature. The action charged Mature with 'extreme mental and physical cruelty'. She seeks a temporary order tying up Mature's salary of $1,000 a week from RKO and community property in excess of $25,000.

EXTRA SHORTAGE HITS FILMS; PLAYERS NIX $5.50'S

Guild for players between 18 and 24 years, but is finding it more and more difficult to get older extras for mob scenes on a $5.50 call. At least once during the past week a major studio had to hike the pay to $10.50 and in other instances Central was unable to get sufficient players to fill calls.

Casting directors were sent downtown, along Main street, etc., but after working four hours were able to grab only three men willing to get up at 6:30 a.m. and work for $5.50. The studio was notified, and promptly told Central to get extras even if it had to offer $10.50. Big calls were coming in for Metro's 'The Man On America's Conscience', Warners 'Gentleman Jim' and from Republic and 20th-Fox. Casting directors scoured the Midnight Missions, but it was no dice. Even the loafers scoffed at $5.50, or didn't get up early enough to report at 6:30 a.m.

Only 200 male extras out of the 6,500 Class B membership of the Screen Actors Guild are willing to work on $5.50 calls, it was disclosed by a survey of available players listed with Central. The result is that $5.50 players have been shifted from one studio to another in an emergency in order to prevent any delay in shooting.

The situation is expected to be taken up by the Producers when they open negotiations with the SAG on requests for wage adjustments for extras, freelance, contract and day players. There has been a general demand for elimination of the $5.50 call, extras contending the Producers would get a better class of player, with more experience, and one more willing to cooperate with directors. Producers have opposed the move because of the added expense, but with it becoming next to impossible to fill $5.50 calls, some of them were reported as beginning to take a different attitude toward the proposal. Many of the extras who formerly were glad to take the $5.50's now are drawing down heavy coin in defense plants.

Secret Parleys Held In Union Play For Cameramen

At the same time IATSE Local 659 employed Dave Sokol to keep a close watch on developments of the ASC case before the National Labor Relations Board, and IA officials, headed by Prexy Richard F. Walsh, were planning a counter move to block efforts of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers to hold the top lensers. Walsh was reported discussing the situation with IA attorneys, Vice-Prexy Floyd Billingsley, Steve D. Newman, Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper, Herbert Aller and Producer representatives.

It is understood the IA group is looking for some way to get around five-year contract which ASC holds with the major companies. Belief was expressed that if other moves failed, IA would refuse to let its members work with any cameraman who did not have a 659 card. Walsh and IA, however, are committed to a no strike policy, having publicly endorsed such a policy as laid down by Prexy William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

It was reported last night that demand of ASC for removal of Milford Anderson as standby cameraman would be discussed today at conference between 20th-Fox heads and Business Representative Aller of Local 659.

Withers Debuts at Rep In 'Johnny Doughboy'

Jane Withers' first picture at Republic, the musical extravaganza, 'Johnny Doughboy,' has been moved up on the production schedule by John H. Auer in order to have young star's role completed before school starts. Date now is Aug. 1. School requirements would permit Miss Withers on the set only four hours during the day and would lengthen shooting schedule considerably. Script is about two-thirds completed by Frederick Kohner, writing directly from the song title. Auer will both produce and direct.

Show How Films Used To Speed Training Of Army, Navy

How the Army and Navy are speeding training over the first World War by the use of educational films will be illustrated to the press Tuesday night when industry will screen special formative and educative short subjects being made by the industry to aid the war effort. Pictures will be shown at the Filmarte theatre.

Pictures will include non-theatrical films made for training the Army and Navy, informative American documentary films prepared for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Office of Civilian Defense and other Government agencies, the part played by the cartoons in the war effort, and subjects of direct assistance in creating cordial understanding between the Americas.

Two subjects, 'Vigilance' and 'Air Raid Warden', are American documentary films made, as are the training films, under the direction of the Academy Research Council. One subject warns the public of the danger to lumber, vital war material, through forest fires caused by carelessness. The second pictorially explains the duties of an air raid warden and how the public should cooperate with him.

Purpose of the showing is to present a cross-section of the film industry's war effort, short subject production, distribution and releasing program.

PRODS. REPORT 41% SAVING IN VITAL WAR MATERIALS

$12,000,000 monthly pay in War Bonds.

An average of 21 motion picture personalities were engaged each day during June in touring Army camps, visiting Navy and Marine Bases, entertaining in hospitals, selling War Bonds or performing on special radio programs.

The industry put 13 economy orders into effect in studios to conserve film. These ranged from shortening trailers to elimination of rehearsals with loaded cameras, and covered both positive and negative stock. Suitable substitutes were found for more than 50 vital war materials used in production. Technicians found ways to replace copper and brass with ferrous metals, iron and steel with wood, virtually eliminated the use of rubber and put glass and plastics to work in place of aluminum and tin. When kumer stockpiles began to shrink from use of wood, technicians started using plaster, masonite, felt, gypsum and vitreous materials. They released manila rope for war needs by using sisal.

A breakdown of savings shows a reduction of 30% in film, 90% cut in use of rubber, 35% reduction in transportation, 40% conservation of nails, 50% in lumber, 30% in costume materials and 35% in metals.

A total of 638 artists were actively engaged in aiding the war effort. Of that number, 102 made personal appearances at 34 camps and cities, 173 participated in special war service radio programs, 64 entertained servicemen in hospitals and 299 staged dramatic shows at 35 camps.

The industry produced 13 War Training films and nine War Effort entertainment shorts. Further recommendations for savings have just been made by the Film Conservation Commission and are now being put into practice.

Milliner Sues Dietrich

New York, July 16.—Claim for $4,151 against Marlene Dietrich was filed in a Supreme Court suit today by Lilly Dache, Inc., chic milliners. The plaintiffs state an agreement existed during July and August of 1941, whereby articles of dress-wear were to be especially designed by them and shipped air-express to the film star in Hollywood. Dache further claims that payment was repeatedly refused and seeks the full amount, with costs.

Miss Dietrich has filed a petition for removal of the case to Federal Court, due to her residence in California.

MPRF Committee Set

The Motion Picture Relief Fund Executive Committee has appointed the following members of a Finance Committee for the ensuing year: Prexy Jean Hersholt, George Bagnall, Fund treasurer, and Sol Lesser.

Dare Hobbles 'People' Unit; Presses Claim For $8,536 Share

Restraining order has been granted Danny Dare against continued showing of the tab version of 'Meet the People', which was touring the east on lease to Irving Yates. Dare also is seeking payment of $8,536 as his share of the 18-week take of the show's tour under the Yates banner.

In suit filed in Superior court, Dare claims to have received only three weeks' payment of his 50% of the net profit, with a minimum guarantee of $484 weekly. Charles Katz is attorney for Dare. Show last played Montreal before order was slapped on this week.

Col Publicity Moves

Columbia has started reorganization of its publicity staff. Gail Gifford has been placed in charge of all fan and national mag contacts. Bea Bangs is set in full charge of fashions.

Ill in Pix

VIRGINIA LINDSEY, Coast manager of Tom Fizdale publicity outfit, is in Hollywood hospital for dental surgery.

MORRIS COHEN, managing director of the Palladium, recovered from arthritis attack after week's confinement.

UMPI PLAN READY FOR COURT OK

Indie Prods. Double Jackpot for Joint War Reliefs

Independent producers already have contributed to the film industry drive for Navy, Dutch, China and Russian War Reliefs almost double the amount they raised for USO. This surprising record was announced yesterday by Chairman Jacob H. Karp, following receipt of the initial report from I. E. Chadwick, who holds the post of campaign colonel for the indies.

Other encouraging reports received yesterday show that one major studio has reported more than its final USO total and that seven organizations, including several major companies, show an increase of approximately one-third over their standing at the same stage of the USO drive.

Despite these reports, the total relief drive to date is only a little ahead of the USO showing at a similar time in its campaign. This is due to the fact that some studios and other groups have been slow in getting under way, and large contributors, whose generosity is always counted upon to put over industry campaigns, have also been slow in responding. Chairman Karp said:

'We are urging all colonels and captains to take full advantage of the impetus the drive now has, because the next week or 10 days will tell the story. We must reach a much higher goal than we did in the USO drive because we now have four drives combined in one. When we decided to make this the last war appeal of the year by combining the four in one, we felt certain that this would be welcome news to all studio employes and that in making their contributions they all would keep in mind that they are giving to four separate reliefs which must have our support. Thus far all those who have been approached have indicated by their response that we were correct in this belief.

'The unions are doing a magnificent job and every indication is that their showing will be a spectacular one. It must be remembered that no matter how marvelously they cooperate we must have the quick and enthusiastic support of the higher bracket people. This I am sure we will get.'

AMENDMENTS TO DECREE SEEN AS PROTECTION FOR EXHIBS

New York, July 16.—Amendments made to the UMPI sales plan have been placed in legal language and complete document is now in the hands of UMPI leaders. It is expected that hearing on the plan by Federal Judge Goddard will be held momentarily for his okay and incorporation into the consent decree in place of the former blocks-of-five method of selling.

Various highly technical provisions are inserted, including necessity of publication in trade papers having general circulation among exhibitors, announcements of features to be tradeshown, with dates and identification. In the cases of 20th-Fox and RKO, special provisions carry on all features released between Aug. 1 this year to July 31, 1943, since these two companies start release seasons earlier than others.

Each feature required to be tradeshown must be screened within the exchange district in which public exhibition is to be held, preceded by advance trade paper publication, as provided under the consent decree.

With respect to identification on unscreened films in blocks up to a maximum of 13, the following clause has been inserted: 'In the event an identified feature, as produced, deviates substantially from identification thereof contained in the original announcement, distributor defendant may correct announcement of such feature properly, identifying it in the same manner herein provided for making the original announcement, and such corrected announcement shall then be deemed to be announcement thereof with respect to license agreements thereafter entered into.'

This provision has no application to westerns, foreign-made features and reissues, which are sold separately under the UMPI plan. Where an exhib wishes to cancel due to deviation on identification, he must give written notice to the distributor's home office within 21 days after conclusion of pictures' first public exhibition in the city wherein is located the exchange out of which the exhib is served, or within 14 days after mailing by such distrib defendant of first notice of availability, whichever period expires sooner. If the distributor does not answer within five days, its denial of claim and intention of arbitration license is deemed canceled.

Westerns may be offered in groups not exceeding six, but there is no necessity of screening any of them.

Legit Out For Camps, Soldiers Prefer Pix

Washington, July 16. — Stock companies are out so far as army camps are concerned, as the boys in o.d. prefer pictures, according to talk around the War department and unless some brass-hat changes his mind they will be a thing of the past.

General idea of having stock companies in the camps was to spot such companies in posts far removed from talent centers, that USO units shows are not routed, for four week engagements. The cost factor seems to have knocked out the idea.

Berlin 'Holiday Inn' Ditties Will Pour From All Sets

Paramount has set an extensive radio campaign for the release next month of Irving Berlin's 'Holiday Inn', Mark Sandrich production co-starring Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire. Three major networks are set to broadcast tunes of the film from New York, Chicago and Hollywood. Airshows to carry the numbers include Cities Service, Texaco Star Theatre, 'Take It Or Leave It', Kay Kyser, Quiz Kids, Manhattan Merry-Go-Round, Album of Familiar Music, Waltz Time, American Melody Hour, Philip Morris show, Kraft Music Hall and the Saturday Night Serenade.

Victor and Columbia records will release the dozen new Berlin numbers from the picture, and Decca will issue a special 'Holiday Inn' album. Top-flight band names recording the tunes include John Scott Trotter, Bob Crosby, Tommy Dorsey, Shep Fields, Sammy Kaye, Freddy Martin, Charles Spivak, Benny Goodman and Claude Thornhill. Vocalists to air melodies include Kate Smith, Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Ken Darby Singers and Dinah Shore.

As part of the radio exploitation campaign, Paramount has 12 recordings for use on stations throughout the country. Part of the ballyhoo includes the 'Singing Sam' program, which will introduce 'Be Careful, It's My Heart'.

New Berlin songs in the picture include 'Happy Holiday', 'I'll Capture Her Heart Singing', 'You're Easy To Dance With', 'White Christmas', 'Let's Start the New Year Right', 'Abraham', 'Be Careful, It's My Heart', 'I Can't Tell a Lie', 'Song of Freedom', 'Plenty To Be Thankful For' and 'Let's Say It With Firecrackers'. Two oldies in the picture are 'Easter Parade' and 'Lazy'.

Preem of 'Holiday Inn' is set for Aug. 4 at the Paramount in New York. Opening is under auspices of the Navy Relief Society and entire house is scaled at $5.50.

WHEN Sam Goldwyn first decided to produce 'Pride of the Yankees' he got a lot of ribbing that the public never went for pictures of baseball. Sam took it for awhile and then framed a story that it would be only about half baseball. Ribbing Continued. Then Sam said it would be little baseball finding ending up saying it would contain no baseball. So while Sam was making up his mind one way or another how to start the story, 20th Century-Fox announced it was going to make a baseball pic 'Dem Lovely Bums' which is released now as 'It Happened In Flatbush.' The great Goldwyn hit the ceiling, his blood pressure ran up to top level and he called Bill Goetz at 20th to protest. He told Goetz that he was a small indie producer, that 20th was an octupus trying to exterminate him, that he had invented 'Lou Gehrig' and now 20th wanted to cash in. Goetz who is pretty level headed, listened patiently and when Sam got through his rave replied 'Sam, we are making a picture of baseball, that doesn't interfere with what you are doing, so what's all the beef, we're not infringing on your invention.'

SOEG STRIKE OFF; PARLEYS WITH EXCHANGES TODAY

mands, SOEG announcing that it would not participate in further contract talks while Watkins remained in the picture.

Stage for ending walkout was set Friday morning when SOEG Business Representative Glenn Pratt and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, conferred with Casey and E. J. Mannix, Metro general manager and steering head for the Producers Labor Relations Committee. Pratt and Sorrell said there was no hope of reaching an agreement in view of the attitude of the New York reps and Watkins.

Mannix talked with Y. Frank Freeman, prexy of the Producers Association, and home office heads in New York. Sorrell and Pratt had explained question of union shop was not at issue, that negotiations pertained entirely to classification of employes and increase in wages to bring pay of exchange collarites up to a level of that paid in the studios. Mannix later talked with exchange representatives, and in a few minutes deal was set for workers to return to jobs and resume negotiations today in Casey's offices at the Producers Association headquarters.

Sorrell and Pratt said the SOEG would not insist upon same classifications as studios with yearly increases. It was indicated that workers would prefer to set a flat deal on pay and negotiate new scales yearly, the same as the Painters and other studio crafts. Another question to be settled in the current negotiations is date for payment of retroactive pay. The SOEG is asking for July 1, 1941.

Strikers were reluctant to return to their jobs pending a complete settlement, but agreed to go back on personal assurances from Pratt and Sorrell that matter would be handled satisfactorily. In the meantime, the SOEG strike strategy committee still had authority from the general membership to take any action it deems necessary as to renewing the strike and extending the picket lines to the studios and theatres in the event there is any further hitch in negotiations. The SOEG will be represented today by Sorrell, Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Prexy Margaret Bennett, Bernard Lusher and Attorney George E. Bodle. Pat Scollard arrives from New York today to represent Paramount.

SID STROTZ had one of those ultra, ultra shindigs over at NBC yesterday afternoon. He surrounded himself with the outstanding musical figures in this area to hear at a private session the rendering of Shostakovich's Seventh Symphony being premiered in America by Toscanini and a 100 piece NBC Symphony Orchestra from Radio City in New York. It was an 80 minute program and the 50 or more honored guests listened most attentively. Then for the discussion period afterward Strotz stage a cocktail party in NBC conference rooms at which Leopold Stokowski, Dr. Albert Coates, Dimitri Tiomkin, Meredith Willson, Eugene Zador, Miklos Rosza and other members of the party extolled the virtues of the Symphony and its creator. Importance of the Symphony was recognized by the Government which cancelled part of the Army hour to permit its presentation.

RKO Halts Lorentz Pic Pending Check Of Ingredients

RKO abruptly stopped production on the Pare Lorentz picture, 'Name, Age and Occupation', which was in work at the Pathe lot, with company execs wanting to gander rough cut of what's been shot to date, and get a definite idea of Lorentz's script to complete the picture.

Lorentz has been shooting for several months, and had taken key members of the cast with production crew to Tennessee for location work before moving into the Pathe studio around June 1. It is understood RKO execs figure check on further production cost and status of the picture is necessary to keep negative policy within bounds, and studio heads are unwilling to have negative outlay run up into the $700,000 bracket.

Picture has Lorentz as producer-director, with newcomer Robert Ryan sharing top billing with Frances Dee.

EXTRAS EARN AVERAGE $12.25 DAY IN JUNE; FEW $5.50 JOBS

The average daily wage earned by film extras during June was $12.25, according to figures released yesterday by Central Casting Corp. Out of a total of 23,400 job placements, only 1,800 calls were in the $5.50 bracket. There were 16,300 calls at $10.50 and 2,700 at $16.50.

Total earnings of atmosphere players reached $286,500, including $35,700 in overtime and adjustments. This was approximately $100,000 in excess of the total earned in June, 1941. The average daily wage for the month was up 75 cents over the same period last year.

The average daily number of extras working was 975, of which number Central Casting placed an average of 454.

There has been a gradual decrease in the number of $5.50 extras used, especially since Central has found it practically impossible to get regular extras to work for that figure. Several studios recently have upped their offer from $5.50 to $10.50 when Central reported it could not furnish sufficient atmosphere players to fill the call.

Hirliman Seeks 300G In Damage Suit

New York, July 19.—George A. Hirliman, roving indie producer, was granted privilege of examination before trial of General Aniline & Film Corp., Agfa Ansco Corp., and Agfa Raw Film Corp., defendants in a $300,000 damage suit he brought against them in the N. Y. Supreme court. Examination is set for Wednesday in the offices of his attorneys, Fitelson and Mayers.

Complaint charges 34,000 feet of alleged defective film was purchased by him from the defendants for use in a pic, 'Fight On Marines', in Coral Gables, Fla., on Oct. 12, 1941. As a result of the type of film he got, Hirliman alleges, the finished product was defective and unclear, and caused him to lose a deal to make six additional pictures. Damages also are sought for alleged breach of guarantees relating to condition and quality of film purchase.

Walsh Put on Spot In Camera Fight

thought that it was up to Walsh to immediately carry out instructions of the IA general convention which directed he aid Local 659 in taking over directors of photography.

Walsh has been here for several days conferring with Coast IA leaders and Producer representatives, but so far has made no move to assert the IA claim to jurisdiction over first lensers. Michael Luddy, Coast attorney for the IATSE, conferred with National Labor Relations Board officials on the unfair labor practice charge filed against the Producers, and in which the IA was made a party when the American Society of Cinematographers filed amended charges. The NLRB has about completed its investigations and is expected to decide this week whether a formal complaint will be issued. At the meeting of Local 659 yesterday it was brought out that Milford Anderson still was being carried on the 20th-Fox payroll as standby photographer, although ASC had demanded his removal on the grounds that he had been suspended for the non-payment of dues. He was put on as a standby lenser for Ed Cronjager, ASC man working on a Utah location.

Officials of IATSE locals who have been in conference with Walsh said the IA prexy was preparing to act in the camera situation. It was believed if he did move in it would be by notifying Producers that after a specified time all lensers would have to carry IA cards. The majority of directors of photography, however, have affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and are already seeking affiliation with the Conference of Studio Unions. If they are once accepted by the Conference, any move by the IATSE to take them over would be certain to lead to a jurisdictional fight that would involve nearly all the crafts in the studios and might seriously hamper production.

Watters Installed As TDB Chairman; OK USO Pass List

Weekly meeting of Theatre Defense Bureau, headed by Rodney Pantages, approved four new measures' installing the new chairman, George Watters of Fox West Coast; institution of training for all IATSE members in legitimate houses; inauguration of weekly free past list to USO, and approval of scrap salvage trailers in theatres for the Los Angeles area.

Starting Thursday, Watters assumes the chairman's post of the bureau, replacing Pantages, who has functioned for the past eight weeks. Effective immediately, theatres in the L. A. district will start showing trailers encouraging the salvage of all fats, rubber, metals and cloths. Also effective this week, all first-run theatres will contribute 100 passes weekly to the USO, which will be good for men in uniform only from Monday through Thursday. Deal will be worked out with distributors for the deduction of passes on percentage pictures. Announcement also was made of fire prevention instruction which will be given all local IATSE legit theatre employes so that all will be prepared in event of turnover in theatre personnel with arrival of new shows. Bureau further announced re-establishment of Red Cross training classes at the Ambassador hotel for theatre employes.

SWG Makes Appeal To High-Salaried Film Artists

The Screen Writers Guild has ordered 10,000 reprints of an appeal for Navy, Dutch, China and Russia War Reliefs, to be distributed through studio colonels to all high-salaried film workers and free-lance artists. Appeal was written by Francis Edwards Faragoh, chairman of the SWG drive group. Its appearance in the 20th-Fox Studio News brought such quick results that the Guild decided on reprints for all studios.

The Writers, Actors and Directors Guilds have started active solicitation on every lot, and all three organizations have sent out appeals to all free-lance members.

In discussing progress of the relief campaign, the final industry drive of the year, Chairman Jacob H. Karp said:

'Although we do not know yet whether the industry will go over the top, we are encouraged by the very evident disposition of all in the industry to look upon this as four campaigns, which is what it actually is, and to give accordingly. That very few employes of the industry regard this as a single drive is shown by the fact that more than 98% of the subscriptions analyzed thus far have made specific allocations to the various funds grouped together to make this the final War drive of the year.'

Chairman Karp has urged all drive colonels and captains to point out the fact that, because of the high income rates, a large share of any contribution made will be absorbed, so that the contributor who makes a heavy contribution will in reality be giving up only a relatively small amount of his taxable income.

Murphy, Lane, Landis Top 'Powers' Cast

Borrowing George Murphy from Metro, Priscilla Lane from Warners and Carole Landis from 20th-Fox Charles R. Rogers will star the trio in 'The Powers Girls', which he produces for United Artists release. Norman McLeod will direct on loan-out from Metro. Rogers had previously signed Benny Goodman and his orchestra to provide the musical section of the picture.

premiere at the Chinese, with proceeds to be donated to a war charity to be selected. Arrangements are being made to have all stars and featured players appearing in the Boris Morros-S. P. Eagle production attend the premiere for glamour purposes.

When Metro made deal for inaugurating the five-theatre opening of 'Mrs. Miniver' several weeks ago, consensus along film row was to effect F-WC would henceforth have the heat put on by both Metro and 20th-Fox for similar bookings of the topline attractions. It was admitted that both studio heads and producers would aim for such datings for showcasing the biggest pictures, and to secure personal or company prestige. 'Miniver' opens at the five houses Thursday, continuing for second week at the Carthay, Wilshire and United Artists, and then sticking at the Carthay until 'Tales' gets away for the five-house booking.

U Serials To Be Uniform Length of 13 Chapters

Universal has revamped its production policy on serials. Hereafter all of them will be turned out in 13-chapter length. Previous sliding scale on cliffers permitted some to be made in 15 chapters, some in 13, some in 12. From now on, the same total number of chapters in studio's four annual serials will remain at 52 for the year, but each of the four will get the same treatment as to length.

Next two of the continuals to hit cameras will be 'Don Winslow of the Coast Guard', to be produced by Henry McRea, with Don Terry in title role, and 'Adventures of the Flying Cadets', featuring the Dead End Kids, to be supervised by Ford Beebe.

Cohn Sets Studio Tours For Men in Uniform

Harry Cohn, chairman of the Sports and Special Events Committee of United Service Organizations, has arranged for men in the fighting services to visit major studios in weekly allotments. Schedule for visiting days is: Monday, Paramount; Tuesday, Metro; Wednesday, Columbia; Thursday, RKO; Friday, Warners; Saturday, 20th-Fox, Universal, Republic and General Service, depending upon production activity.

Applications for studio jaunts will be received at any local USO center, but only groups of 10 service men will be handled at a time, according to Capt. Frank Dunham, who will act as escort.

Flynn Works Today

Errol Flynn is expected to report back today on Warners 'Gentleman Jim' from week's rest in Good Samaritan hospital where he was taken after collapse from nervous exhaustion. At least two days of fight scenes for Flynn remain to be done, and production has couple weeks to go under direction of Raoul Walsh.

Flynn's rumored top male role in 'Mission to Moscow' with Bette Davis is not set, and he is reported to be willing to accept a supporting part. His next on schedule is 'Edge of Darkness.'

Lesser Crowded Out

Increased production activity on the RKO lot is slated to shift the Sol Lesser unit from the Gower Street plant to RKO-Pathe lot in Culver City. Producer is currently preparing script for independent release through RKO, 'Tarzan Triumphs,' in which Johnny Weissmuller will portray the Edgar Rice Burroughs character.

Service List Adds More Film Names

Cary Grant reports for army induction on Aug. 15, with Peter Lynn Hayes slated to report for military service July 23. William Lasky, son of producer Jesse Lasky, has passed his physical exam and goes into the Army July 30.

Loran Jones, Columbia grip, has three sons in the armed forces: Merrill, is an aviation cadet, Orville is in the navy, and Quentin in army medical corps.

demanded from the top-salaried exec of the industry.

They told a somewhat fantastic tale to the FBI men. Grace said that Lipton told him a fellow on the lam had left a package containing the coin at the Ambassador, and if he picked it up he would get $5,000. Then when Grace did not get the package, Lipton popped up at the desk. They got the package then, and the FBI men cornered them.

Lipton, outside of saying that Mayer had not done right by friends of his and that he would tell 'the other side of the story' today before Commissioner Head, remained mum for six days before the announcement of their arrest was made by J. Edgar Hoover in Washington.

The film industry was somewhat shocked when news of the alleged shake broke. Both men claim to be songwriters, but neither reached an important niche in this field, though Lipton for the past eight years has been writing and peddling compositions of his own. He has had a varied career around Hollywood, trying his hand at most anything associated with the picture biz, including working on a local trade paper for a while before taking a job about six months or so ago as a filling station employe, which, it is said, he tossed over his shoulder recently in an effort to get bigger coin—and quicker.

His father, Lew Lipton, has been around the pic biz since 1917 as a gag man and comedy constructor. In silent days he was well up in the earning bracket at Metro, but since the passing on of Irving Thalberg he worked at various studios, with his final job being at Metro in 1939 on 'Broadway Serenade'. Since then he is reported to have spent considerable time in Washington, reportedly telling friends he had been east to 'correct injustices' in the picture business.

Koster Doles Coin

Henry Koster handed $1,000 check to Robert Cummings, acting commander of Civilian Air Patrol 918-4 at Universal with request that donation would be used specifically for purchase of aerial bombs to combat enemy submarines. Members of CAP are paying own expenses and supplying own equipment until reimbursed later by U. S. Army.

Extras Romp At U

Universal used 350 extras over weekend. Henry Koster had 155 on 'Between Us Girls', John Rawlins, directing 'Arabian Nights', worked 145 on Baghdad scenes, and balance worked in 'Sherlock Holmes In Washington', 'On the Beam' and 'House of Mystery'.

ASST. DIRECTORS GET PAY TILT

IBEW DRIVE ON LENSERS IS PLANNED

A move to line up all studio directors of photography with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was started last night when IBEW Local 1318 adopted a resolution notifying first lensers that after Aug. 1 there would be a substantial increase in the initiation fee. Currently first cameramen are being accepted to membership on payment of a $5 initiation fee.

Members of Local also were noti-

SHELVE EXTRA CUT ALONG WITH STANDING COMMITTEE

Proposal to eliminate 2,000 casual film extras from the available list at Central Casting Corp. was permanently shelved with passing of the Producer-Screen Actors Guild Standing Committee, which made the original recommendation. Suggestion, made at an overhead cost of some $75,000, never got past the company attorneys who vetoed it as too dangerous.

Standing Committee, named to interpret the SAG Basic Agreement and handle arbitrations, has finally been dissolved, it was learned this

ARNOLD ATTITUDE ON UMPI PLAN PUZZLES FILM TOPS

New York, July 20.—A high UMPI figure who has been active in formulation of the so-called Unity Plan, characterized as probably speculation the strong inference that it will not go through, made by Drew Pearson in his syndicated Washington column Sunday. It was published in papers Monday but was not used in New York by the Mirror which gets the column.

Pearson wrote in part as follows, referring to Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general: 'He (Arnold) is refusing to be pushed around by POSITION of Department of Justice in the matter of gratuitous licensing of music by members of Ascap has been clarified in a statement by Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general. In a letter to attorneys for the Society, Arnold summed up the controversial issue thusly: 'The consent decree permits a member of Ascap to issue a "gratuitous" license to a user. However, such arrangement must be made between the member and user without aid or inducement from a third party. Any attempt by Broadcast Music, Inc., to induce an Ascap member to issue such a license, by whatever means, would violate the express terms of the decree. It was not the purpose of the decree to enlarge the BMI catalog at the expense of Ascap. The purpose was to foster competition between the two organizations for the benefit of users.' Dispute recently came to a head when Ascap threatened to penalize members who licensed their numbers direct to radio without payment of fee. Society spokesmen pointed the finger of suspicion at BMI but withheld official comment pending a clarification of the issue by Department of Justice.

Devised as a publicity plant by Hal Bock, NBC press head here, an item was inserted under 'personals' in the 33 cities where the Crossley ratings operate, reading 'if Joan Davis is in (blank) town, please come back to the Sealtest program.' Time mag, many dailies, syndicates and news services pursued the teaser to its source on the scent of a yarn. Slightly abashed, the inquirers admitted their gullibility and were willing to forget it all after Bock told them the purpose of the plant. So happens that Miss Davis is visiting with her folks in St. Paul on two weeks leave from the radio program. Bock suggested the idea when James McFadden, radio head of McKee & Albright agency, sought some means of wangling publicity on the Davis sabbatical.

fied that William Koenig, 20th-Fox production manager, had advised union that Milford Anderson was not on the studio payroll. Anderson had been assigned to studio by IATSE Local 659 as standby photographer for Ed Cronjager, member of the American Society of Cinematographers, now on location in Utah. ASC had demanded his removal on the ground that he had been suspended by ASC for non-payment of dues and that his employment would be a contract violation.

In the meantime, Prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE and his Coast aides were hunting for a move that would enable them to block the IBEW's organizing campaign without running afoul ASC-Producer contract or the unfair labor practice charge pending before the National Labor Relations Board. Steve B. Newman, who along with Vice-Prexy Floyd Billingsley, was called in from San Francisco to advise with Walsh, was reported to have contacted John Arnold, former ASC prexy and currently head of Metro camera department, to discuss the situation. It is understood meeting is set for today.

Although reportedly sympathetic with the IBEW campaign, Arnold is not a member of IBEW Local 1318. There's some question as to his eligibility because of the executive post he holds at Metro. It is understood IATSE tops also were contacting other ASC leaders in the hopes of pulling them away from IBEW.

Exchanges To Submit Classifications To SOEG Wednesday

Following a meeting at 5:30 p. m. yesterday between the Screen Office Employes Guild and representatives of the major film exchanges, latter group agreed to submit its idea of classification of exchange Collarites to the Guild by Wednesday. Exchange heads said they would spend all of today on classifications in order to have them ready by tomorrow.

When classifications are submitted, SOEG and exchange representatives will get together Wednesday in an effort to coordinate the classifications of each side. Wages and conditions will not be taken up until classifications have been settled.

Exchange group is represented by Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, Pat Scollard, Paramount; Tom Murray, Universal; Jack McLeod, Metro, and Al Schwalberg, Warners. Prexy Margaret Bennett, Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Bernard Lusher and Attorney George E. Bodle are appearing for the SOEG. Belief was expressed last night that entire deal will be cleaned up by last of this week.

and said that the public has not been reluctant to pay upped box office prices for them.

He advanced his old theory and cry that now is the opportune time for single bills and that it is up to the large circuits to take the lead in this direction. He also advanced the positive thought that regardless of feeling on this matter, with five of the major circuits operating under the defense decree, that both the majors and indie exhibs will be forced out of dual bills.

Then he did his famous crystal gazing by advancing his view that the Government will not try to dictate any such move due to war conservation, etc. To uphold his contention in that respect he added that Uncle Sam does not want to force such a move, through a law or otherwise, however he did not state whether his opinion was predicated on discussion of the matter with responsible and authoritative government agencies.

He said that he felt the end of the double bill policy would be a true solution for film waste so far as conservation is concerned, not a reduction of prints or elimination of credits. But, on the other hand, he said he himself, if he found a scene in a picture bad, would shoot and reshoot it until it's right, as otherwise a poor picture might result.

He did his usual rant about double bills curtailing long-run engagements for pictures, and that if they were killed producers would be encouraged in making fine productions for run engagements. He estimated the industry could get along on 40% fewer films a year, but failed to mention the fact that should this be the case there was a possibility that indie producers like himself might be frozen out by the major companies with theatre affiliates which would provide this amount themselves.

He said that plans to send Lillian Hellman and Major William Wyler of the U. S. Army to get background shots and other materials for a film reported dealing with Russian children in wartime, is under discussion, but further than that he would not discuss the project.

Having obtained his periodical press conference, Goldwyn has nothing further to take up his time here, so returns to Hollywood on Thursday.

Scribbling

Myles Connolly, Kay Van Riper and Robert Gordon have completed writing assignments at Universal and checked off the lot. Connolly handled 'Between Us Girls', Miss Riper scripted 'Three Smart Girls Join Up', while Gordon prepared screenplay for the Dead End Kids.

Emil Ludwig this week winds up original and screen treatment for 'The Hangman', which Seymour Nebenzahl expects to put into independent production within two weeks on same scale on which his 'Mayerling' was mounted.

Anne Wigton has been assigned to write screenplay of 'Women of Aberdeen', Paramount comedy based on girl munitions workers.

John Butler is scripting 'The Chisholm Trail', Edmund Grainger production at Republic.

Street Sale of Bonds

Street booth sales of war bonds and stamps, sponsored by the Theatre Committee for Southern California of the Treasury Department's War Savings Staff, starts this morning. Million Dollar, Roxy, Los Angeles and Tower theatres have been selected as initial test sites in campaign that will total 16 around L. A. area. Women volunteers will staff the booths from 10 a. m. until 8 p. m. daily. Howard D. James Simmons is stepping in as head of 20th-Fox trailer department to replace George Weiss who is reporting to the Army Signal Corps. Walter Temple, of Fox-West Coast exploitation department, will assist Simmons.

MacDonald Defers MG Offer Three Months

Jeanette MacDonald who has been a Metro star since 1935 will decide following an army camp and concert tour, whether she will continue to make films on that lot, or devote her time to concert tours, proceeds of which she would turn over to Army relief funds.

She just concluded a two pic contract at Metro with completion of 'Cairo', and it is understood was prone to sign a new deal until she decided what she would do while her husband, Lieut. Gene Raymond, is overseas.

She is currently on the army camp tour of 12 concerts, giving a two-hour show accompanied by her pianist, Margaret Hart. Then she goes on her regular concert tour of 12 dates for which she gives up her share of the profits to the Army Emergency fund and that concludes Oct. 4 in Washington.

However, it is understood, though she is holding the Metro continuance in abeyance, she has talked to two other studios who have been desirous of annexing her name to a starring contract. One of them was RKO where she lunched with execs last week.

the big movie moguls who want to increase block booking. Thereby increasing the quantity of film production, thereby eating into the nation's supply of nitroglycerine' (used in film, this is important to munitions).

While the Department of Justice has given careful consideration to opposition raised against the UMPI plan by the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and others, industry leaders last week were led to believe that the Department was unofficially in favor of the plan. The assumption was based on a request by the Department to make a few minor changes in the legal language, resubmitting the plan that had been done. The changes were made and the revised plan is now in the hands of Arnold.

While the SIMPP has complained about the UMPI sales proposals in blocks up to a maximum of 13, an UMPI official attacks its right to do so since only two producer members of SIMPP are making pictures for decree companies. These are Samuel Goldwyn and Walt Disney, both of whom distribute through RKO. It was added also that these producers sell their pictures singly and that the UMPI plan contains a provision permitting that, as in the past. So far as UMPI is concerned, neither Arnold nor anyone else has indicated, by inference or otherwise, that the Department does not favor the plan. However, it was pointed out that whether they are satisfied or not, they are extremely cautious in committing themselves.

Date for the hearing in Federal court in New York before Judge Goddard has been expected to be set by now but may be calendared this week, dependent, of course, on the official attitude of the Department of Justice.

Labor's Unity Group Meets Aug. 9 To Talk War Board

A full meeting of Labor's Unity For Victory Committee has been called for Aug. 9 at the Central Labor Council, at which time definite action will be taken on establishment of a State War Labor Board. At the same time a decision is expected to be announced on arbitration of a jurisdictional dispute in the furniture industry, involving crafts in the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The Industrial Disputes Committee of the Victory group has been studying the War Labor Board proposal and will make definite recommendations to the full committee. At that time a petition probably will be drafted asking Governor Culbert L. Olson to appoint the Board, which would arbitrate disputes between employers and employes in non-defense industries.

The Unity Committee now represents more than 200,000 workers, and it is reported that new affiliations are coming in daily. Group is composed of representatives from the AFofL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods and independent unions and guilds. More than 20,000 film workers are represented, including the Actors, Painters, Laboratory Technicians, Cartoonists, Set Designers, Machinists, Sketch Artists, etc.

De Seversky Starts New NBC Series Here

Alexander De Seversky, whose tome, 'Victory Through Air Power', has been vigorously debated in military circles, has joined NBC's staff of war commentators. Series takes off from here Aug. 1 and is heard at 4:45 p.m. on Saturdays. Program carries billing of 'War In the Air—De Seversky'.

New 'Command' Disc

'Command Performance', top U. S. Army program shortwaved each week exclusively to service men at outlying posts and battlefronts, will have its 15th transcription tonight at CBS. Hollywood Victory Committee has arranged for Pat O'Brien, Frances Langford, Cab Calloway and his band, Brenda and Cobina and Gildersleeve to perform.

Winchell Item Draws $55,000 Libel Suit On King Features

New York, July 20.—A paragraph in Walter Winchell's column in the Daily Mirror last year is the basis of a $55,000 libel suit filed in the United States District court here today by Emil Gauvereau, former editor of the Daily and Sunday Mirror, against King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Gauvereau claims defamation of character in the complaint and cites the Winchell column of Oct. 6, 1941, in which was printed a paragraph essentially a quotation from Ruth A. Phillips, formerly of the Mirror's editorial department. He alleges that this item made him appear indolent, incompetent, irresponsible, a plagiarist and a literary charlitan. He further charged that the paragraph was published and distributed with malice and forethought.

Although the item does not directly refer to him, Gauvereau claims he is identified as 'Govy' and as her former boss, among the citations in the paragraph, and that he is accused of plagiarizing the Daily Mirror columns in writings subsequent to his position on the Hearst publications.

New York, July 20.—A commercial advertiser, Pepsi-Cola, shares billing with a New York City Defense Recreation Committee and Federal Security Agency, an official government body, which opens tomorrow as the Times Square Servicemen Center at 47th and Broadway. It fronts on Duffy Square. New lounge and canteen is off-shoot of the NYCDRC building at 99 Park Avenue where enlisted men of the United Nations get free ducats for show, pictures, niteries, swimming pools, etc.

New plant opens with a splash tomorrow noon, with Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia, Marshall Field, Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, Walter S. Mack, Jr., prexy of Pepsi-Cola, and military brass hats speaking over the Blue Network, and John Golden, Helen Hayes, Ed Wynn and Irving Berlin providing entertainment. Berlin will bring along 19-piece orchestra from 'This Is the Army' and a quarter-hour of excerpts from the show.

NYCDRC offices at 99 Park Avenue will continue to handle distribution of ducats, while the new Broadway setup will provide lounge rooms, reading and writing facilities, showers, towels, shaving facilities, telephones, radios, pianos and grub at cost.

Pepsi-Cola went for about $100,000 to build and equip the plant and will finance the operation, with the NYCDRC handling the operation via volunteer workers. Pepsi-Cola will distribute free Peps to servicemen, but will get no other plug.

Ilka Legits, Lectures On NBC Layoff

Ilka Chase returns east tomorrow for a six-week layoff from her NBC series and a sortie into legit, playing in 'Susan and God' at Princeton, N. J., and Philadelphia. Her lecture tour through the northwest starts in late August.

Hope's Camp Pitch

Bob Hope's radio troupe will originate its Victory Parade broadcast Aug. 2 from nearby air center. Only substitution among the program's regulars will be John Scott Trotter for Skinnay Ennis on the music direction. Latter is on a theatre and ballroom tour. Backing up Hope will be Jerry Colonna, Frances Langford, Vera Vague and Six Hits and a Miss.

Wolff Follows Parade

Nat Wolff, liaison officer here for radio division of Office of War Information, goes east today for meetings with W. B. Lewis, radio head of OWI, and to be on hand for the next two broadcasts from New York in the Victory Parade string.

Town Meeting Coming

Blue Network's Town Meeting of the Air will pitch here for the July 30 broadcast. Panel composed of Major Alexander De Seversky, Major General Paul Malone and Captain Claude Mayo will discuss military operations.

Liz Patterson East

Elizabeth Patterson last night trained for New York to play one of the top roles in Gilbert Miller's fall production, 'The Rich Get Richer.' Actress just finished in 'My Sister Eileen' at Columbia.

War Relief Campaign Gains as Talent Groups Kick In

The industry's drive for Navy, Dutch, China and Russian War Reliefs is expected to go well past the half-way mark at tomorrow's second report meeting at the Hillcrest Country Club. All members of the campaign committee have been invited to attend. It was stated that advance reports reaching the offices of Chairman Jacob H. Karp indicate the drive has picked up momentum and that the industry has every chance of going over the top in the final war relief appeal of the year.

A check-up of contributions made up to yesterday disclosed a quicker response from freelance players, directors and writers than in any other campaign of the year. Contributions have been coming in daily to the Permanent Charities offices from those in these three classifications. Credit for the showing is given to the active participation of the three creative guilds and to the cooperation of the Artists Managers Guild.

At tomorrow's meeting J. J. Nolan will take his place as colonel for RKO, relieving Dan Winkler, who recently resigned his post at the studio.

Garfield, Tobias South On Air Pic Location

John Garfield and George Tobias pull out today for New Orleans, where they will spend a few days before continuing to Tampa to join cast and crew of 'Air Force' next week for location work on the picture. Director Howard Hawks and main unit of the production leave for Florida late this week.

Camera Assignments

Metro has set three cameramen for short productions; Sid Wagner will handle John Nesbitt's 'Dreamer of Mexico;' Walter Lundin lenses Pete Smith's 'Calling All Pa's;' and Charles Schoenbaum photographs Carey Wilson's miniature, 'Portrait of a Genius.'

Fred Jackman, Jr., will handle camera work on four Victory films being produced by Pine-Thomas for Paramount.

Arthur Martinelli gets camera assignment on Jerry Brandt's 'Scattergood Swings It,' being produced for RKO release.

Files Articles Inc.

Sacramento, July 20.—Arthur Ripley Productions, Inc., with capitalization of $25,000, has filed articles of incorporation here. Directors named include Rudolph Monter, Edward M. Gray, and Richard Monter, all of Los Angeles. Ripley has been a film writer in Hollywood for several years.

ASSISTANT DIRECTORS, UNIT HEADS GET PAY TILT

for second assistant directors. The minimum for second assistants the first year in the industry when employed on a daily schedule of 10 hours is $1.02 per hour. The second year in the industry the minimum for second assistants advances to $1.14 and the third year to $1.25 per hour. Minimum call is 10 hours, with time and half after six hours.

On a weekly guarantee of 60 accumulative hours, minimum drops to 90 cents per hour for a second assistant the first year in the industry. The second year the rate is $1 per hour, and the third year $1.10 per hour. Minimum call on weekly guarantee is eight hours, with time and half called for after 40 hours.

Scale for first assistants is effective as of March 13, and that of second assistants as of May 24. Contract provides that first assistants also may accept employment as second assistants at the minimum for the latter classification.

All contracts for first assistants must be for a minimum of 46 weeks, with a clause providing for two weeks' vacation with pay. Freelance first assistants will receive one week's severance pay if employed more than two consecutive weeks, and of three days if employed for two weeks or under, except in case of those employed on a daily basis for less than one week. If carried on salary after completion of his assignment no severance pay accrues until completion of final assignment, and then only for one week or three days, as case may be.

No layoff period for contract first assistants is to be for less than one week. No weather permitting calls are allowed. Contract also provides a first assistant must be employed on each feature, western, serial and short. Second assistants receive double time for Sunday, and two and one-half times the minimum for work in excess of 16 consecutive hours. Calls for second assistants may be canceled prior to 8:30 p.m. for next morning calls, and with six hours' notice on other calls. One-half minimum check is allowed for cancellation of weather permitting calls, subject to cancellation notice.

Overtime is provided between 40 and 72 hours for second assistants on location. Distant location is defined as any time assistant is required to remain away and be lodged overnight. Travel time begins when assistant reports for travel and ends on arrival at destination. Golden hours apply on distant location.

The new modifications for assistants have been incorporated in and made a part of the Producer-Screen Directors Guild Basic Agreement. Separate contract is signed by the Unit Managers Guild for its members.

Working Wives Quit Industry as Draft Threatens Hubby

Working wives in the picture business are fast becoming a thing of the past, it was disclosed yesterday in a check of married femmes available for bit parts, dress extras and other top-bracket atmosphere spots. Some of them who formerly earned from $1,500 to $3,000 yearly are now turning down studio calls with a curt, 'Thanks, I'm too busy keeping house.'

Group includes wives of studio casting employes, some married to players in the talent class, and many who are married to working extras. Big drop in those accepting calls started when the Government announced that married men with dependents capable of earning a living would be drafted for service with the armed forces.

Result has been that many extras in the dress class who seldom received calls are now being offered more work as some of the group were in what has been termed by the extras as the 'favorite class.' Many received direct calls from studios and seldom depended upon Central Casting Corp. for jobs. Names of many were included in the request lists submitted to Central by studios.

20th May Biog Chinese Creator of 'Tigers'

Dr. Margaret Chung, Frisco physician and creator and godmother of the American Flying Tigers, came south over the weekend for conferences with 20th-Fox studio executives. Latter are eyeing possibility of filming the life story of the noted Chinese medic, and are negotiating deal for permission to make picture.

Writer Group Meets

A meeting of the enlarged steering committee of the Hollywood Writers Mobilization has been called for 8:15 o'clock tonight at the headquarters of the Screen Cartoonists Guild to discuss reorganization of the Mobilization. Robert Rossen will preside as chairman.

'Tampico' For Gabin

20th-Fox has bought Ladislas Fodor's original yarn, 'Tampico', as Jean Gabin's probable next starrer. Robert Bassler is assigned production. Fodor will write the screenplay, dealing with the captain of an oil tanker and his revenge upon the submarine tipoff traitor.

Big Action Coin

With a company of 120, Columbia's 'Law of the Northwest' unit left yesterday for ten day location jaunt at Bartlett's Lake in the San Bernardino mountains. William Berke is directing. Charles Starrett heads cast with Shirley Patterson in the feminine lead.

Baker Out of Gas

Kenny Baker, for the past two years featured vocalist on Fred Allen's Texaco program, won't be with the show in the fall when it resumes in reduced half-hour form. Understood Allen and Baker weren't on speaking terms toward the end of last season.

Marj Mono's Topper

Lipton, Grace Are Held On $5,000 Bond In Extortion Case

Channing D. (Rex) Lipton and Meyer Grace, accused of attempting to extort $250,000 from Louis B. Mayer under death threat, appeared before U. S. Commissioner David B. Head at Federal building yesterday morning, and were each held in $5,000 bail for further hearing on July 30.

Delay was granted when Attorney William E. Ferriter of San Francisco appeared as representing the two defendants and asked that the case be set back for pleas, due to his entry into the case on short notice.

During the brief hearing, at which Lipton's parents were present, Ferriter disclosed that young Lipton has been accepted as a cadet in the Army Air Force and is under orders to report to a Tennessee flying school Aug. 1.

Following the hearing, Attorney Ferriter stated to newsmen that the case would have far-reaching repercussions, and the defense would have startling disclosures to make before the next hearing. Ferriter pointed out that Lew Lipton, father of one defendant, had been a title writer and scenarist at Metro studio for a number of years, but his inability to get consideration for employment at any studio now was apparently the result of a blacklist. This factor, the attorney stated, from his brief survey of the case could easily have played on the mind of the writer's son. He concluded that the defendants would base their case on the angle that 'this matter was motivated by persecution of the Lipton family by certain film interests.'

Scenarist Lew Lipton told reporters he would go the limit in defending his son against the charges.

Mann Pilots 'Havana'

Anthony Mann has been signed by Universal to direct 'Moonlight In Havana,' which features Allan Jones and Jane Frazee. Mann, former eastern stage and radio producer, recently directed 'Dr. Broadway' for Paramount.

Mono Changes Title

Monogram has selected 'The Phantom Killer' as final release title for picture filmed as 'Man and the Devil.' Film features Dick Purcell and Joan Woodbury with William Beaudine directing and A. W. Hackel producer.

SHELVE EXTRA CUT ALONG WITH STANDING COMMITTEE

week. Ewell D. Moore, attorney for the Motion Picture Relief Fund, now is handling duties formerly assigned to the committee. There was considerable criticism of the cost of maintaining the committee, and many company executives suggested nearly a year ago that it be eliminated.

Stewart McKee was chairman of the committee from its inception, with Murray Kinnell representing the Actors throughout the life of the committee. Lou Anger was originally appointed to represent the Producers, and when he resigned the post was given to W. T. Holman. Executives pointed out yesterday that the committee recommendation was no different from analyses made by Kenneth Thomson, SAG executive secretary, and others, who had continually pointed out that elimination of casual players would throw more work to the regulars who depended upon the industry for a living.

The same executives also pointed out that need for elimination of extras has now passed. They said that recently there has been an actual shortage in some brackets, with many extras entering military service and others working on defense projects.

Obituary

ROB WAGNER

Rob Wagner, 71, editor of 'Script' magazine, and distinguished as a writer, artist, film director and pioneer picture-maker died suddenly yesterday at the Santa Barbara home of his brother, James. With Mrs. Wagner, he has been a week end guest there and was about to return to his Beverly Hills home when he succumbed to a heart attack.

He numbered among his close personal friends the late Will Rogers, whose pictures he directed; Cornelius Vanderbilt, Police Commissioner Al Cohn, Charlie Chaplin and Stewart Edward White, the novelist. The latter's portrait, painted by Wagner, hung for years in the lobby of the Ambassador.

As a film critic, Wagner was generally accredited with being the first to call attention to Chaplin as a comedian of outstanding merit.

As a film director, he was under contract to Famous Players-Lasky, directing the Will Rogers travesty, 'Two Wagons, Both Covered,' which followed the nation-wide success of 'The Covered Wagon.'

A man of diverse talents, Wagner organized the old Writers' Club here and was one of its early presidents; taught drawing at Manual Arts High School. With the passing of the silent films, founded 'Script' in 1929, thereafter devoting his attention to the publication.

He was once a lightweight champion wrestler and maintained a keen interest in the sport, besides being famous as Beverly Hills first bicycle rider.

Born in Detroit, he was educated at the University of Michigan and studied art in Paris. While abroad, he collaborated in the publication of the Encyclopedia Brittanica in London.

Surviving, in addition to his widow, Mrs. Florence Wagner, and his brother are two sons by a former marriage; Leicester, a San Francisco newspaperman, and Thornton, pilot for the Chicago and Southern Airlines. Funeral arrangements are being completed at the Wagner residence, 608 North Crescent Drive, Beverly Hills.

MOSES ANNENBERG

Moses Louis Annenberg, 65, Chicago newsboy who became a multi-millionaire publisher, died yesterday at St. Mary's hospital in Rochester, New York, from pneumonia contracted after major operation. Publisher of Racing Form, Movie and Radio Guide, and of the Philadelphia Enquirer, and recently paroled from Federal penintentiary after serving two years for admitted evasion of income tax, had been unconscious since Sunday. He never rallied after the operation. Surviving widow, one son and seven daughters were at the hospital at the time he died.

Spectacular career of Annenberg, born in Prussia, started in Chicago in the circulation department of W. R. Hearst for whom he became circulation manager. In 1907 he operated the Chicago News Agency in Milwaukee, and after 13 years in that city his fortune was reputed to have reached $2,000,000. He also published the Wisconsin News for a time. Later he published racing organs and operated lease wires to carry racing information. His final publishing venture was the Philadelphia Enquirer.

Indicted four years ago on charge of income tax evasion he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a three year term. On June 11 of this year after serving two years, he was paroled because of critical ill health.

He went almost immediately to the hospital. Funeral arrangements were to be made today.

WILLIAM C. DE LAPP

William C. De Lapp, 76, died Sunday following illness of several months. Services will be held tomorrow morning at Ives and Warren mortuary, with interment to follow at Pomona. Deceased was father of Terry De Lapp, press agent.

Author Tells Why

Franz Werfel has started work as production adviser for his 'Song of Bernadette' to be made by 20th-Fox as a William Perlberg production. George Seaton will start on script as soon as he completes revisions on 'The Meanest Man In the World' for Jack Benny.

Kennedys End Junket

Edgar Kennedy and his frau returned from their New York and Washington bond-selling tour at various canteens. Actor reports to RKO for his next short subject.

War Shorts, Training Films To Be Shown Press Tonight

The short subjects to be previewed for the press tonight at the Filmarte Theatre to illustrate the part the film industry is playing in the War effort will include commercials, documentary and war training subjects. Pictures to be shown include:

'Vigilance', a documentary made for the U. S. Agriculture Department and distributed free to 15,000 theatres by the War Activities Committee.

'The Air Raid Warden', another documentary, made for the Office of Civilian Defense and distributed by the War Activities Committee.

'Tulips Shall Grow', a George Pal cartoon for Paramount, entertaining but timely as a morale builder and showing the part played by cartoons.

'The Arm Behind the Army', a war training film for army personnel and workers in war plants, made by 20th-Fox.

'Combat Counter-Intelligence', made by Columbia, warns soldiers how carelessness may bring about a military disaster through giving information to the enemy. A war training picture.

'Identifying F-2A', a Navy training picture, made by Walt Disney.

'Divide and Conquer', a commercial on vital subjects, produced on information furnished by the government, uses captured German film to show how France was softened by the Fifth Columnists, made by Warners.

'Mr. Blabbermouth', a Metro commercial showing the danger of war rumors.

'Parachute Athletes', a Grantland Rice Sportlight, informative entertainment showing the strenuous training for American parachute soldiers.

A total of 11½ reels will be shown. The only phase of the industry War effort that will not be shown are special short subjects made in Spanish and Portuguese, made for distribution in South America.

'Bells' Toll For Autry's Entry In Service

Gene Autry last night wound up his film chore in 'Bells of Capistrano' and flies to Chicago tomorrow. The Republic actor reports immediately as technical sergeant in the Air Corps.

Willkie Scrams Today

Wendell L. Willkie delayed return to New York one day to confer on company business with Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz at 20th-Fox as chairman of the board. Leaves today on the Chief.

Worth At Columbia

IN APPRECIATION OF A MAN WHO SUITED HIS ACTIONS TO HIS WORDS

"THIS is a war of the people—of all of the people—and it must be fought, not only on the battlefield, but in the cities and the villages, in the factories and on the farms, in the home and in the heart of every man, woman and child who loves freedom! Well, we have buried our dead but we shall not forget them. Instead, they will inspire us with an unbreakable determination to free ourselves and those who come after us from the tyranny and terror that threatens to strike us down! Fight it, then! Fight it with all that is in us! And may God defend the right!"

Colgate Air Deal For Jolson Warmed Over

New York, July 21.—Purchase of half hour variety program headed by Al Jolson is again being considered by Colgate tooth powder through Sherman-Marquette agency. Only hitch is the production problem, which may be settled this week. Tentative plan is to schedule series for 9:30 to 10 p. m. (EWT) on Saturday nights over CBS starting Sept. 26 or Oct. 3.

Night Biz Healthy

Atlantic City, July 21.—Although film houses here are suffering from sparse vacation crowds, they're doing strong night biz. With the boardwalk so dimmed out it's impossible to recognize acquaintances a few feet away, the usual routine for both natives and vacationers is to stroll the boards until dark and then rush into the theatres. Result is general box office lines between 8:30 and 9:30.

Rogers 'Tomorrow' Deal

Ginger Rogers is virtually set for starring spot in Paramount's 'And Now Tomorrow,' adapted from Rachel Field's novel. Picture is tentatively down for production late in the year with Miss Rogers making 'Lady In the Dark' at Par in October.

MANNIX AVERTS SCG STRIKE; TALK ADJUSTMENTS TODAY

Strike of Metro Cartoonists, set for 10 a.m. yesterday, was averted when E. J. Mannix, studio general manager, agreed to meet with Screen Cartoonists Guild representatives this morning to talk contract adjustments. Guild, after trying for several weeks to meet with studio executives, finally sent word to Mannix that orders for walkout would be issued in one hour unless date for conference was set.

Although adjustments sought are

Groucho's Chin Piece

That black smudge on the upper lip of Groucho Marx which for years passed as a mustache will be missing when the comedian opens in Philadelphia Sept. 29 in Max Gordon's production of the George S. Kaufman farce, 'Franklin Street.' New crop of foilage, however, will adorn the chin in the shape of a Van Dyke. The mustache is out for good; the latter is on probation. Marx goes east in two weeks to start rehearsals.

F-WC Execs Return

George Topper, treasurer, and Andy Krappman, executive aide to Charles Skouras, of Fox-West Coast, returned yesterday from a business trip to Frisco. They had been north with other company execs looking over the changing theatre situation due to boom war conditions, but returned alone. Others who will return later in the week after further investigation are Charles P. Skouras, prexy; W. H. (Bud) Lollier, real estate head, and Charles Buckley, v-p and attorney.

Benny Starts Today

The Jack Benny starrer, 'The Meanest Man In the World,' goes before the cameras today at 20th-Fox. Sidney Lanfield is directing with William Perlberg producing.

No Early Army Call Seen for Gable

New York, July 21.—It was revealed today that Clark Gable's status with the Army Air Corps, to which he offered his services recently, is that he is on the available list with no immediate prospects of commitment. Gable's papers have been filled out and filed, with the film star announcing his readiness to accept an immediate call. However, in a letter last December, President Roosevelt urged him to continue his film career.

Contrary to reports, Gable is not slated to become a major in the Corps.

Offer 165 Secretary

C. W. (Pat) Offer is new secretary of Studio Projectionists Local 165. John Asher was appointed to succeed Jack Payne, but immediately resigned as he was preparing to leave for Montana on vacation.

Harbin Assists Nolan

Vernon Harbin becomes assistant to Joe Nolan, RKO exec in charge of committments, stories and casting. Harbin held same post with Danny Winkler, Nolan's predecessor on the lot.

Selznick Ties Cotten

Joe Cotten has inked a term contract with David O. Selznick. Player has been in four Selznick pictures, but next assignment is undetermined.

ADOPT STANDARD SYSTEM TO CONTROL PRODUCTION SHOTS

The Film Conservation Committee last night agreed to adopt a standardized system for starting and stopping shooting of picture scenes as a means of conserving film. It was pointed out that nearly every studio has a different system of variation that results in confusion when actors go from one studio to another.

Six probable points for putting into effect a uniform system were discussed. The plan now goes to the Actors, Writers and Directors Guilds

Berlin Agrees to Album Of His 'Army' Tunes

New York, July 21.—Irving Berlin has relented and approved the deal for Decca to make an album of four records (eight sides) of tunes from 'This Is the Army,' with himself and members of the show's cast handling the vocals. Berlin, always sensitive about the thinness of his voice, will sing 'How I Hate To Get Up In the Morning.' Proceeds will go to Army Relief.

Offers 50G For 'Stones'

Orson Welles is offering $50,000 for screen rights to Aben Kandel's 'The Stones Begin To Dance' which he would like to do as next on his Mercury Productions when he returns from Brazil. Book will be published in the fall by Duell, Sloane and Pearce.

WELL over 10,000,000 persons heard the play-by-play accounts of each of the recent baseball specials—the game between National and American leaguers in New York, and the joust between American All Stars and a service team in Cleveland. Both games were carried on the Mutual-Don Lee network. First contest had a rating of 16.1% and the second 15.2%. Figures were revealed by Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting, which also lists a new set of half hour programs among the leaders for the early weeks of summer. They include 'Mr. District Attorney,' Post Toasties Time, 'One Man's Family,' 'Take It Or Leave It,' Fitch Bandwagon and Hit Parade (45 mins.). Lux Radio Theatre lorded it over the hour shows, with Kraft Music Hall and Kay Kyser next in order. News broadcasts continued unaffected by the hot weather, but Walter Winchell and Lowell Thomas both dropped four points. Shift to summer radio late in June muted 28 night time programs.

FILM extras are blaming Producers for bringing about the situation which is causing atmosphere players to turn down $5.50 calls, with the result that many companies are being forced to pay $10.50 to fill rush calls. They claim most of studios have flagrantly violated Screen Actors Guild agreement which provides only dress that may be ordered for $5.50 players is 'light or dark street clothes'. Despite this, they insist many $5.50 players have been directed to appear with or without beards, white shirts and that some have even been put in western costume. Latter action resulted in protest from Cowboys, who insisted companies might just as well order $5.50's to appear in full dress, contending there were fewer western costumes available to extras than there were dress suits. Situation is giving Central Casting Corp. a headache because of difficulty in filling $5.50 orders for regular extras.

COLLECTION of $187,000, proceeds of Army and Navy Relief Drive in California and Arizona film theatres, has been officially acknowledged and will be shown in newsreels starting today. Clip made by Fox-West Coast shows Major Gen. Maxwell Murray of the 9th Corps Area, and Rear Admiral Ralston S. Holmes, of 11th Naval District, accepting the contribution from Charles P. Skouras, prez of National Theatres, and Robert Poole, in behalf of the circuit and independent houses, respectively. Of the total, $107,000 was collected in F-WC houses, $39,000 came from indies in Southern California, $36,000 was collected in northern half of the State, and Arizona's portion was $5,400.

EXPLOITATION department of Warners western district is trying a new wrinkle of a special advertising supplement to usual press matter on its special pictures. Supplementing regular art and story materials is a glossy proof of a half-page ad with accompanying mat for ready use in local newspapers. Idea was started this week with 'Wings for the Eagle' and 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' and will be an added feature serviced all first run accounts.

WITH Metro's 'Gambler's Choice' holding James Craig for longer period than originally estimated, RKO is getting jittery over production start of 'Seven Miles From Alcatraz,' in which Craig has top role. 'Alcatraz' is down for getaway next Tuesday, but RKO execs have no assurances from Metro that latter will be finished with him at that time.

for okay, and at the next meeting of the Conservation Committee a uniform system will be put into effect industry-wide. It was stated the confusion caused by the different systems often results in unnecessary use of film.

The Research Council reported that it was still conducting tests on proposed technical innovations and was not yet ready to make a final report. It was stated that when the report is ready the tests will be shown and recommendations submitted to the full committee. Keith Weeks and Jack Otterson were named to conduct an educational campaign to show each of the 30,000 industry employes just how he or she can cooperate in the conservation program. It was pointed out that each worker is a potential waster of film, either through carelessness or lack of knowledge.

Harris Draws 1B

Phil Harris has been placed in 1B by his draft board after taking his physical in Chicago, postponing his induction indefinitely.

Scribbling

Writing assignments handed out at Universal yesterday included Stanley Logan replacing True Boardman on the final script revision of 'Arabian Nights', M. Coates Webster signed to do a second revision on 'Show Time'. Edward Hartman winds up his chores on new untitled Ritz Bros. starrer over the weekend. Boardman reports to the Army this week as a captain.

Henry Myers has screenplay assignment on the Mark Hellinger film, 'Thank Your Lucky Stars' at Warners.

F. Hugh Herbert will work on screenplay of 'Galveston' with W. R. Burnett at Paramount.

Frank Gill, Jr., is on polish job for script of 'Swing It Sister' at Republic. Albert J. Cohen will produce.

Edward Eliscu scripting 'Something To Shout About' at Columbia.

Pull Humberstone Out

Switch in director assignment at 20th-Fox takes H. 'Unlucky' Bruce Humberstone off of 'Sioux City' and he will direct 'Hello, Frisco, Hello.'

Tradeshown at Los Angeles, July 21, 1942. Running time: 86 MINS.

'Tish', evolved from Mary Roberts Rinehart's bucolic comedy, seems to have been kept deliberately old-fashioned in the screen version to increase its homely charm. Combination of sentimental drama and broad farcical treatment, however, is oddly assorted and doesn't always mesh well for smooth and balanced entertainment. It runs from tear-jerking scenes to the most flagrant Republic release. Director, Charles Lamont. Associate producer, Armand Schaefer. Original screenplay by Dorrell and Stuart McGowan. Photography, Ernest Miller. Film editor, Howard O'Neill. Art director, Russell Kimball. Interior decorator, Otto Siegel. Musical director, Cy Feuer. Songs: Del Porter, Carl Hoefle, Jack Owens, Raoul Kraushaar, Eddie Cherkose, Roy Acuff, Scotty Wiseman. Previewed at Los Angeles, July 21, 1942. Running time: 72 MINS.

'Hi, Neighbor' must not expect to rate better than mediocre in its entertainment classification, even with advantages of its prejudiced audiences in the hillbilly and homespinning sectors. It is packed with specialty names which have radio audience value. Their performances are good. Jean Parker, John Archer, Janet Beecher, Barbara Jo Allen (Vera Vague) carry their assignments ably. But there is something unattractive about the picture, and some of the featured performers are less effective when seen than when heard on the kilocycles.

The narrative for the music and the antic has to do with efforts of a hick college to save the school and the higher education of the young natives (chiefly the fine arts of hepcatting) from the spinster owner's anger when she discovers that the prof and the students have turned the school into a hotel for 'lonely hearts' during the summer. Her stony heart is finally melted by the

Directed by Alexis Thurn-Taxis. Leon Fromkess in charge of production. Original story by Jimmy Starr. Screenplay by Arthur St. Claire and Sherman Lowe. Photographed by Marcel LePicard. Sound by Benny Winkler. Film editor, Fred Bain. Dialog director, Edith Baldwin Watkins. Previewed at Talisman studio, July 21, 1942. Running time: 78 MINS.

A mystery melodrama, although bogged down with synthetic comedy, this is more than average program fare and should do well enough as support on most bills. While lengthy and at times very talky, it nevertheless maintains the mystery suspense to the end.

An original story by Jimmy Starr, the yarn has a Hollywood background and concerns the disappearance of a motion picture star. Then, of course, there is uproar in her studio with the producer worried about his contractual investment. A Hollywood newspaperwoman struggles through several reels to solve the mystery. There are murders and near murders, but it is all ironed out satisfactorily. The Hollywood background is evidently intended to give the yarn glamor and actual shots of the village are frequently used, and

Orders From Tokyo

Almo Picture Co. release. Stars Danielle Darrieux and Anton Walbrook, with Charles Vanel, Jean-Max and Jean Worms. Directed by Nicolas Farkas. Production director, Pierre O'Connell. Original story, Pierre Frondale. Adaptation, Henri Decoin. Scenario, Nicolas Farkas and Arnold Ripp. Dialog, Steve Passeur. Photography, Heller. Musical direction, Jere Nas. Reviewed at the Hawaii theatre, Hollywood, July 21, 1942. Running time: 80 MINS.

This picture will be found to be somewhat outmoded because of the type acting and the antiquated warfare it presents, as compared to more modern treatments of war. But it can also be appreciated for presenting the Jap as a prime rat. In reminding the public of that phase it can be cashed in on with, of course, proper handling.

Film's story of sneak tactics and its Anton Walbrook are assets. They need only be uncovered, or dusted off, as is the case here, and selling angles are unearthed. The similarity to the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor (only here it's Port Arthur in 1904), the presence of the now known Walbrook, and the also now popular slap at the Jap theme, plus the timely and curiosity-creating title, are exploitable nuggets. And even after money is spent there won't be many complaints about this French dubbed entry. It's still better than many that have preceded it.

If it only serves as a reminder against complacency and indifference it will have served some purpose, while also bringing in invested coin. Columbia, which originally owned it, wanted to remake it into English, but was stymied on several counts. Instead, a pretty expert job of dubbing was done. There are moments when it cannot be detected at all, and when it can, it is never offensive or obtrusive because the story interest holds. Acting, of course, is of the not so up-to-date European school. That, too, however, is acceptable. Cutting has obviously eliminated some of the lethargy usually associated with imports, and 80-minute running time packs in a lot of action in the field, on the sea, and in accelerated intrigue. There's plenty of process shots, but none detract.

An East is East and West is West theme of Russe Naval Officer Walbrook marrying half-Jap Danielle Darrieux, motivates. She innocently becomes involved in the nefarious plots of her half-Jap and all-louse brother, Jean-Max, and in trying to prevent harm to her husband, becomes almost inextricably enmeshed, but finally exposes her kin. The climax finds her late because the Japs have already gotten the death-hold. Picture fades with the two lovers going down on a destroyer which has been given a suicide assignment, Danielle proving her love and intention by choosing to die with her husband.

Ross Pepe Appointed To Lead NY AGVA Out of Wilderness

New York, July 21.—The American Guild of Variety Artists has taken the first concrete step to strengthen its New York Local setup by hiring Ross Pepe, organizer for the Musicians Union Local 802 for the last eight years, to become national representative in charge of AGVA's New York branch. He took over yesterday and gets a free hand to reorganize the local, which, despite its proximity to the national office, has been notably backward about organizational progress.

Pepe has a year's contract. Meanwhile, Walter Greaza, assistant executive secretary of Actors Equity Association, who was 'drafted' to take over the national administration of AGVA for three months, has eliminated much of factional friction rife in AGVA.

Lytell Emcees 'Stage' Bowing July 30

New York, July 21.—Bert Lytell will m.c. new 'Stage Door Canteen' program which bows on CBS July 30th for its first four weeks. Helen Hayes, Burns and Allen, Barry Wood, and possibly Flora Robson will guest on the initial broadcast. Efforts are being made to get Lowell Thomas, H. V. Kaltenborn or Raymond Gram Swing to introduce Paul V. McNutt from the nation's capital. Guest possibles for second airing are Alice Faye, Maurice Evans, and Walter O'Keefe or Ed Wynn.

LA's Radio Central To Be Copied Nationally

Dick Connor, coordinator for Southern California Broadcasters Association, returned yesterday from Washington where he conferred with Treasury Department officials. After outlining to them the system employed here in clearing through a radio central all requests for free time from government, civic and other wartime agencies, it was indicated that a similar setup would be established in other parts of the country and coordinated nationally.

ARMY BIDS FOR PICTURE PREEMS; CAMPS SEEK STARS

as a regular theatre was not involved, matter was one for the Hollywood Victory Committee to handle, and passed it along to that group.

First request came from Camp Livingston in Louisiana. No details have been advanced by Army Camps as to how turnstile question would be handled, etc. General belief was that company executives would frown on proposal because of wide publicity and boxoffice take received from premiering pictures in widely populated centers.

Members of Victory Committee declined to comment on requests pending receipt of word from the Publicity Directors. It was indicated, however, that services of stars are now being taxed to the limit for War Bond sales, Army and Navy personal appearances and other patriotic purposes.

Publicity Directors agreed at yesterday's meeting to eliminate all mailings to the press of 11x14 photos, as an economy measure. While 11x14 prints will be sent in a few instances in reply to specific requests, 8x10's hereafter will be standard on all art mailings from every studio.

While the studios are trying to better their average saving of 30% on still negatives shot, it was agreed that no further drastic cuts can be made at this time without crippling company advertising and sales promotion.

Temple Imposter Arrested—

A man giving his name as Charles Manheim, 35, will appear before Superior Judge Dudley S. Valentine today for a hearing on his sanity, following his arrest late Wednesday outside a radio broadcasting station where he is said to have posed as the father of Shirley Temple. The arrest was made by FBI agents, who turned the man over to the police when it was ascertained that he had not threatened the young actress or attempted to obtain money from her.

The complainant states that it made demand upon Naish for payment without avail. The suit was filed a month ago, but was sealed at that time in order to permit an attachment to be levied against the actor's bank account.

San Francisco Strives To Regain Its Lost Ether Prestige

San Francisco, July 21.—With KGO and the Blue network leading the way, Radio City is making some progress toward regaining for San Francisco its former eminence as a radio production center.

Most heartening development came today, when plans were set for airing 'Alias John Freedom,' Blue network sustainer the past 10 weeks, as a transcontinental commercial program for Minneapolis Honeywell Automatic Heater Co.

This will be first commercial show for nation-wide consumption to originate at KGO or KPO in years.

Only last week KPO started feeding National Broadcasting Company the station's first regularly scheduled variety show origination, for nation-wide consumption, in several years. The show is 'Smarty Party.'

Deane Dickason, KGO commentator, recently branched onto Pacific Blue web, and, contrary to previous practice, he remained here, instead of shifting headquarters to Hollywood. 'Over the Top,' war bond program conceived here, was accepted on Pacific Blue, and has also gone transcontinental.

Studios Bear Down On Expense; Use Auto Mockups

Major film companies have started bearing down on expense, partially as a conservation measure, it was disclosed this week, when many of them started using studio cars in production scenes in place of autos formerly furnished by extras. Assistant directors also are being cautioned to be more careful in posting conversion of bit players from a daily to a weekly wage basis.

Many of them are using auto mockups, with studio cars when available being moved from one set to another. A total of 10 company cars was being used on one lot recently. Extras, when notified to bring their cars, received $3.50 additional when they were used in production scenes and $2.50 when they were not used.

T. C. Wright, Warners production manager, recently issued a general order on daily progress reports in which he stated:

'Whenever a Day Bit is converted to weekly, he should immediately be placed up under the cast with a notation that he has been converted as of 7-14-42, or whatever the date may be. This should also be done on the day on which the conversion takes place, and not a day or two later, and they should at once be dropped from under the "Bits on Day Check" caption. It is the responsibility of the assistant director to see that you are informed when people start, finish or are converted to weekly basis so that our daily reports will reflect the actual working conditions pertaining to cast for that day.'

Use of studio cars and auto mockups is said to have been started as a conservation measure, more than with idea of saving coin. It was pointed out system would eliminate practice of extras driving to sets in own car and that several of them would double up and use one auto when no other transportation was available.

only minor, it is understood other studio executives ducked situation while Mannix was in east and permitted matter to drag until SCG authorized strike action. Guild executive board Monday night appointed group with power to take any action it deemed necessary. Plans for strike were quickly completed and ultimatum sent to studio. New contract between SCG and Metro is now in effect, but Business Representative William Pomerance has been instructed to straighten out pay of two employes in lower bracket who were not included in 10% pay hike, another whose vacation was skipped, etc. Guild leaders expressed amazement that it was necessary to vote strike action and then have to go to the studio general manager, earning approximately $250,000 a year, in order to talk adjustments that would not involve $15 per week.

Studio Illustrators Huddle with Casey On Wage Demands

Demands of Studio Illustrators for substantial wage increases, closed shop and improved working conditions will be discussed today when a group representing the Screen Set Designers huddle with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact. The Illustrators will be represented by Joseph Sternad, SSD prexy; Les Thomas, Art Lonergan, Lew Gould, Business Representative Ed Mussa, Attorney George E. Bodle and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

Illustrators, who are sometimes classified as sketch artists, are making wage demands similar to those of the matte shot artists. Latter group, after considerable negotiations with the Producers, finally settled on a minimum of $4.25 per hour or $150 per week, with the option of taking 10% less if guaranteed 44 weeks' work annually.

Artists recently dissolved their own independent organization to merge with the Set Designers, who now have a local charter from the Brotherhood of Painters. Group also is affiliated with the Conference of Studio Unions.

Congress of Writers Report Made To Mobilization

A formulated report from the Committee on a National Congress of Writers was submitted by John Howard Lawson last night at a meeting of the enlarged steering committee of the Hollywood Writers Mobilization. Preliminary plans call for representatives of the Government, Writers, Journalism and Radio to cover all phases of writer cooperation in the war effort.

It was recommended that a delegate or delegates be sent east to discuss the plans with a New York writer group. Suggestion was made that Marc Connelly or Sidney Buchman make the trip to represent the committee, and that Robert Rossen, chairman of the steering committee, represent the Writers Mobilization.

Sidney Buchman reported on the cooperative group to be formed between the Producers and the Writers Mobilization, Al Leavitt on educational program, the first feature of which will be a lecture by Erskine Caldwell at the Roosevelt July 31.

Local members of the committee which will seek support of the New York group include John Howard Lawson, Hector Chevigny, George Oppenheimer, Allan Rivkin, Tom Alfred, Marc Connelly, Sam Moore, Bill Roberts, Cameron Shipp, Edward Chodorov.

New York Second String Crix Will Be Big Shots

New York, July 21.—A Roman holiday and some chest sticking out looms for New York's second string drama critics next season with the likelihood that the head men will be busy in war work and other limiting fields. A quartet of the town's meller murderers are already thus engaged or about due.

Brooks Atkinson (Times) is currently touring the country, doing a series of stories about the public pulse. When finished, he plans to become a war correspondent. Richard Watts, Jr. (Herald-Tribune), is already working at the Office of War Information and will be assigned abroad. John Mason Brown (World-Telegram) wants to join the Navy, and Frank Farrell, same paper's drama editor, is already in the Navy.

More Honor Men

Local list of show business names entering the services includes 'Deke' Houlgate, who formerly called the football games for Daily Variety, and who has reported for Lieutenancy in Army public relations. Robert Hunter, son of Roy Hunter, head of the Paramount camera department, who has become a technician in the Navy, and Herbert Brill, technical advisor on Metro's 'Gamblers Choice,' who goes into the Army July 26.

LESS THAN 40 PIX EXPECTED FROM RKO ON NEW SEASON

New York, July 21.—With the company expected to announce the smallest number of features in many years, probably less than 40, three-day national sales convention of RKO opens here next Monday, with 300 delegates expected. Company branch managers and salesmen will meet the new president of RKO parent corporation in Peter Rathvon, and greet the veteran exec of the organization, Ned Depinet, recently elevated to presidency of the picture distribution company from his old spot of vice-president.

Identity of new sales manager to fill post vacated by Andy Smith will not be disclosed until the convention. While several names continue to be mentioned, Robert Mochrie, eastern division sales manager, reportedly still has the inside track, especially since the new management wants to select a man from the ranks rather than bring in an outsider.

prof, and the mountain dells are again safe for giving out with fast-timed folktale music. Dorrell and Stuart McGowan wrote the original screenplay, tailoring it to the special talents of the cast.

Treatment leans toward farce, but straight characters are legitimately played under capable direction of Charles Lamont, backed by Armand Schaefer's production guidance which takes into careful account his talent and the ready-made audiences.

Jean Parker and John Archer handle the romantic interest. Janet Beecher is excellent as the acidulous old maid owner of the college. Harry 'Pappy' Cheshire, favorite in the St. Louis airlanes zone, carries off the professorship with honors. Vera Vague is her professionally silly self. Lulubelle and Scotty, and Roy Acuff with his Smoky Mountain Boys and Girls have featured prominence. Don Wilson is in for a stooge comedy spot. Lillian Randolph is the dusky maid. Marilyn Hare, Bill Shirley, Pauline Drake and Fred Sherman are singled out for emphasis in the cast.

Del Porter and Carl Hoefle contribute the barnyard ballad, 'Moo Woo Woo', and the Hit Parade entry, 'Pass the Biscuits, Mirandy'. 'Hi, Neighbor' is by Jack Owens. Raoul Kraushaar and Eddie Cherkose wrote 'Hail To Greenfield', college ditty, and Roy Acuff authored 'Stuck Up Blues' and 'I Know We Are Saying Goodbye', folktale tunes written for folk who sing them. Scotty Wiseman did special lyric for the traditional music in 'Don't Be Bashful'.

Cy Feuer directed the music. Ernest Miller uses his cameras skillfully. Production quality does full justice to budget.

Tasker Quits Par

Homer Tasker has resigned as assistant head of the Paramount sound department, to join the Gilfillan Co. as a technical engineer. Gilfillan is engaged in war production work with Tasker devoting his energies to expedite production of technical products. Engineer has been at Paramount for several years as assistant to Loren Ryder, and previously was head of Universal sound department. He rates as one of the top sound engineers of the industry. For time being he will not be replaced in the Paramount sound department.

A Night For Crime

mention of names, mostly night spots, often crops up in the dialog.

Glenda Farrell plays the slick sleuth newspaperwoman in the same vein as other similar roles she has often portrayed. Her boy friend is ably done by Lyle Talbot as the producer's publicity director. Lina Basquette is well cast as the film siren. Donald Kirke suffices as the producer. A comedy characterization of interest is played by Ralph Sanford as a dumb detective, and Forrest Taylor plays his legal boss. Cast includes Lynn Starr, Ricki Vallin, Edna Harris, Marjorie Manners, Joseph DeVillard, Niels Bagge, Ruby Dandridge, Florence O'Brien, Bob Frazer.

Appearance of the legitimate newsmen, Jimmy Starr, Erskine Johnson, Edwin Schallert and Harry Crocker, is capitalized upon in a scene in which they identify the body of the film siren. All pass muster.

Alexis Thurn-Taxis has directed this mystery meller well. Screenplay is by Arthur St. Claire and Sherman Lowe.

Revived 'Show Boat' For Warners NY House

New York, July 21.—Metro's revival of 'Show Boat,' if and when produced, may be spotted in Warners' Hollywood Theatre, New York, according to statements current today. It was further learned that inquiries have been made regarding availability of the house. It is a large-capacity Broadway theatre which occasionally houses legit shows and currently has 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' film, which is expected to run into autumn there. Metro's 'Show Boat' plans are indefinite.

Wexley Scripts 'Never'

Arnold Pressburger has signed John Wexley to prepare screenplay on 'Never Surrender,' producer's next production for United Artists release which Fritz Lang directs. Wexley was set by the Sam Jaffe agency.

SOEG, Film Exchanges Pact Showdown On Tab for Today

schedules will then be compared with those requested by the Guild and effort made to reach a compromise agreement. Business Representative Glenn Pratt said he believed it would take only a few hours to complete the contract once the two groups are in accord on the classification.

Exchange committee composed of Jack McLeod, Tom Murray, Al Schwalberg and Pat Scollard spent most of yesterday working out their classification schedules. The SOEG is not insisting upon studio classifications, but will demand that wage minimums be on a level with those now in effect in the studios for clerical employes.

IATSE Prexy Richard Walsh, who announced in the east several weeks ago that the IA was taking over front office workers in the exchanges, was still here, but apparently was devoting most of his time to trying to head off the drive by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, to take over studio directors of photography. It is understood Walsh has been advised that certification of the SOEG by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining agent for exchange Collarites blocks any move by the IA to move in here.

Mich. Catholic Paper Slaps Film Adv.

Detroit, July 21.—While not charging the films themselves with violation of the moral code, the Michigan Catholic, Catholic Archdiocesian paper published here, attacked exploitation used by film companies and particularly local exhibitors.

The publication accuses some Michigan theatres of spicing up advertising and selecting more unsavory portions of the picture for exploitation emphasis — giving a false idea of the film involved, and tending to bring about a public saturation point in accepting such advertising as being true depiction of the feature.

Gen. Malone's Air Show

600 Studio Leaders Campaign for War Relief Funds

A total of 600 volunteer workers are now engaged in putting the picture industry's drive for Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Reliefs over the top, with the completion of the soliciting organization yesterday. Chairman Jacob H. Karp, who is directing the campaign, will make this announcement at today's report luncheon-meeting of the colonels at the Hillcrest Country Club.

The three creative guilds and all unions have turned in the complete lists of their organizations, showing that every department of each studio is now being actively canvassed by a captain. In addition to these studio workers, all members of the Artists Managers Guild have started their personal contacts with the higher-bracket people.

Five major groups will make their first reports today inasmuch as they did not report at the first meeting. In addition, a telegram has gone out from Fred W. Beetson, allied industries colonel, to all organizations in that group, urging them to have ready for today's meeting a summary of their contributions to date.

'The drive now has gathered full momentum,' said Chairman Karp yesterday. 'With every colonel and captain working at top speed, all of us are hopeful that we can bring the drive to a successful close shortly. From the start it has been our determination to make this a quick drive if that was possible, and the reports we are getting daily lead us to believe that this can be done.

'The higher-bracket people still are a little slow in coming in. This is usual in all drives, and does not indicate any hesitancy to contribute, but simply pressure of other things that causes them to postpone action. It will be a tremendous help to all of us who are at work on the drive if they will speed up these contributions.'

Joan Crawford Marries Actor Phil Terry

Joan Crawford, Metro star, and Phillip Terry, Paramount leading man, were married yesterday morning at ranch home of attorney Neil S. McCarthy in Hidden Valley. Marriage license was taken out in Ventura county several weeks ago, under real names of Lucille Tone and Frederick Korman.

Ceremony was performed privately by Judge David Flynn of Ventura, with only Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy and city clerk L. E. Hallowell present. The bride is 37, while Terry is 28.

Fancy Hoofing

New York, July 21.—Hoofery comes to the aid of war bond and stamps sales with Arthur Murray studios introducing name dancers as instructors in studios here every Wednesday afternoon, starting today. Students are required to buy $5 worth of the patriotic paper to learn newly devised step called 'Swing Your Quota.' Paul Draper, Dixie Dunbar and Johnny Mack preem the event.

Panama Hattie

widespread audience fancy. Red Skelton and Ann Sothern work together in smooth co-stardom. Skelton, Ben Blue and Rags Ragland are as funny a sailor trio as have come ashore in any picture to spread nonsense, ludicrous gags, romantic antic and a crack at some of the tunes. Virginia O'Brien, relaxing her poker face the least bit, continues to climb the song cleff to sure stardom. The Cole Porter music and lyrics are solid and delightful. Book and tunes and funny business from the original play by Herbert Fields and B. G. De Sylva have what it takes to register strong at the tills. 'Panama Hattie' will do very well by itself, including the extra outlay of some $300,000 for production redunking, after original sneak previews in messy story form.

Arthur Freed piled extra specialties and lighter mood into the production to level it for sure entertainment. Norman Z. McLeod directs with a sure hand and a showman's sense to bring out best capabilities of entire cast. Story line in screenplay by Jack McGowan and Wilkie Mahoney poses complications when Ann Sothern, an entertainer in the Panama zone, and her soldier fiance, Dan Dailey, Jr., are all but separated, despite sympathetic efforts of the three sailors to insure marriage and happiness. When that thread of suspense is used up, narrative runs into a crazy whirl of pure gag comedy in a haunted house where the sailors trap a couple of spies. All this chiefly to hang the music on and the swiftly shuttling series of laughs.

In the featured bracket, Marsha Hunt as a nasty socialite intruder; Alan Mowbray, a broad-A butler, and little Jackie Horner, as daughter of Dailey, do their share in holding up to pace set by Miss Sothern, Skelton, Ragland, Ben Blue and Virginia O'Brien. Supplying a splendid share of the entertainment are the three Berry Brothers, precision hoofers, and Lena Horne, who sings with a barbaric abandon and vivid manner to score a personal hit.

Picture has 10 song numbers. 'Berry Me Not', by Phil Moore, is for the Berry Brothers. 'At the Savoy', by Walter Donaldson, is chanted by Virginia O'Brien. Cole Porter has 'Just One of Those Things', 'I've Still Got My Health', sung by Miss Sothern; 'Let's Be Buddies', an antic number; 'Fresh As a Daisy'. Roger Edens contributes the title number, 'Hattie From Panama', 'Good Neighbors', and Burton Lane and E. Y. Harburg have patriotic 'Son of a Gun Who Picks On Uncle Sam'. Music is smoothly fed into the proceedings by Roger Edens, making the adaptations; Georgie Stoll, directing the music, and Vincente Minnelli, staging the tuners; Merrill Pye the musical presentation. Danny Dare does the dance direction.

Picture has attractive production and pictorial elegance to suit its mood. George Folsey does the fine camera assignment. Other technical support is of high quality.

Tish

slapstick. Often the humor is forced. It's for the easy-laughing audiences, and provides an abundance of assorted material. Will fit comfortably into the lesser program bills.

Cast is crowded with femme comics—Marjorie Main in the title role, ZaSu Pitts in her customary fluttersome character, Aline MacMahon as a fellow spinster. They are noisy and grotesque in their conventional smalltown caricature impersonations, carrying on a war-of-the-sexes feud with Guy Kibbee, ending with a truce brought about by the advent of a baby thought to be a nameless orphan until the soldier father shows up. The roles are played very broadly. Refreshing contrast against the clucking old-hennish behavior of the spinster trio is the young romance, bracketing Virginia Grey and Lee Bowman, and the secondary comedy-shaded love story between Richard Quine and Susan Peters.

Nub of screenplay by Harry Ruskin, from the adaptation by Annalee Whitmore Jacoby and Thomas Seller, deals with efforts of Tish and her pals to get the right couples married, and their promotions toward that end through camp life and picnics in the country. Comedy lies in the ineptness of townfolk in unaccustomed surroundings. Heartstrings are tugged for a few scenes when Tish seeks to adopt the baby whose paternity she believes involves secret guilt. In this connection, the awkward spinster is declared mentally unbalanced and freed only after she has been placed in an institution. That's where the story begins to wobble as entertainment.

S. Sylvan Simon's direction emphasizes the broad comedy aspects. He had an overabundance of mixed material to knit into a cohesive whole. Orville O. Dull carried the production responsibilities. Paul Vogel on the camera and David Snell with the musical score, together with the art direction which backgrounded the tale interestingly, head the standard technical credits.

Priorities On Parade

of a plane factory, with its legion of workers, male and female, the picture sounds its note of morale with just the right emphasis. An appealing love story complements the exceptional quality of its popular music numbers, the excellent singing of Johnnie Johnston, the expert hoofing by Ann Miller and the spirited playing by Betty Rhodes. Picture has a buoyant spirit which will give any audience a lift, and leaves in the ear those pleasant echoes which any good musical should record. Its boxoffice course should be consistently good and substantial.

A hot orchestra headed by Johnnie Johnston, with Ann Miller as its blonde, lithe terper, moves into an airplane plant with the idea that the employes will be greatly benefited and production increased to the rhythms of the hep enthusiasts. Orchestra is hired, but on condition that the members all perform some factory work as well. The leader is apprenticed under a femme welder, Betty Rhodes, who is overly sensitive about the abilities of her sex to compete with men in any line. Between this chip-on-shoulder torchwielder, the orchestra dancer and another meddlesome femme, Vera Vague, romance finally finds its proper channels, serious and comic, and the orchestra decides it's better to help win the war on the assembly lines than on Broadway.

Albert S. Rogell socks with vigorous direction, neatly balancing the entertainment elements compiled in the original screenplay by Art Arthur and Frank Loesser, and using to full advantage the novel and timely factors. Loesser also contributes number of the excellent lyrics, cementing the musical elements with the narrative in its very foundation.

Johnston, showing a pleasing personality and singing with a fine resonant baritone, is well paired with Betty Rhodes in the heart interest. Miss Rhodes also carries her vocal assignment ably. Vera Vague, out to catch a man, as is her characteristic wont, leaves no prospect unturned in pursuing that worthy cause. Jerry Colonna is her victim, and is a fairly good sport about it—with laughs. Harry Barris, Eddie Quillan, Dave Willock, Nick Cochrane, Rod Cameron, Arthur Loft and The Debonairs in a specialty act carry their share of commendable support.

Jule Styne wrote the music for the six numbers, 'I'd Love To Know You Better', 'Here Comes Katrinka', 'Conchita, Marcheta, Lolita, Pepita, Rosita, Juanita Lopez', 'You're In Love With Someone Else', an excellent torcher; the comic 'Cooperate With Your Air Raid Warden', which gives Ann Miller a novel blackout dance routine, and the resounding finale ensemble piece, 'Pay Day'. Lyrics were alternated by Herb Magidson and Frank Loesser.

Victor Young directed the music. Troy Sanders has a music advisory credit. Jack Donohue staged the dances. Daniel Fapp on the camera and Farciot Edouart on process expertly combine the lensing chore. Hans Dreier and Haldane Douglas had unusual art direction opportunity with the moderne factory backgrounds and sets.

Sol C. Siegel as executive producer turns in a quality piece of entertainment for Paramount, demonstrating versatility of his showmanly talents, with Burt Kelly carrying out the associate producer supervision with practiced ability.

MacEwen Has Seven Readying at Par; Siegel Prepping

In addition to 'Henry Aldrich Gets Glamour', now in production, Producer Walter MacEwen has seven pictures in various stages of preparation at Paramount. Pictures, slated for production between now and October, include an untitled air drama of China, 'Dancing Debs', 'A Tank Named John', 'Salute For Three', 'Henry Aldrich Plays Second Fiddle', 'The Incomparable Alfred' and 'College Goes To War'.

Producer Sol C. Siegel on the same lot is lining up his first three specials following upping to the B. G. De Sylva unit. Trio are 'Galveston', to star Dorothy Lamour; 'Decoy', with Fred MacMurray and Alan Ladd headlined, and 'Hostages', with Zorina slated for top role.

FILMS MAY BE PRINTED IN S. A.

UA Execs Lining Up 14-18 Features For Delivery

United Artists home office execs who have been here for the past three weeks endeavoring to line up production for the forthcoming season expect to have their mission pretty well accomplished before weekend, so that they can announce that between 14-18 features will be delivered, besides eight streamliners made by Hal Roach, that are already completed.

Toughest task the home office boys have had and are still having is to get commitment from David O. Selznick, member owner on the number of pictures they can expect for the year and when he will begin work on his first, 'Jane Eyre.'

Also expected that they will get commitment from Sir Alexander Korda to deliver two films after the first of the year, as Korda is understood to have production coin made available to him here. Korda, before starting here wants to make a historic war film in England, with the picture to be produced in two parts.

Charlie Chaplin has promised one film for the program, with Mary Pickford, it is understood, ready to provide another that she will produce, with coin coming from UA in that case.

Hunt Stromberg, James Cagney, Arnold Pressburger and Charles R. Rogers are said to have their list of productions ready, with Edward Small now in the east to be consulted on what he will contribute. Loew-Lewin will provide one 'Moon and Six Pence', while Rabinovitch newly added will make one, and Jules Levey will turn over at least two films for the program. Several producer-directors are being negotiated with now and it is expected that when formal announcement of the program is made that their commitments will be incorporated.

The meeting of the member owners that has been postponed for number times during the past few weeks will probably be held next week, after which Ed. Raftery, company prexy and Grad Sears, sales head, will return east.

It is hardly likely that at the owner session that any commitment will be made by UA itself to go into production on large scale in financing its contributing producers. Loyd Wright, attorney for the corporation has held out steadfast against any such plan.

War Bumps Metro

Metro's manpower, both in this country and in England, is being depleted to a startling degree by the war, according to company survey. The Culver City studio lists 280 men in the armed services. Department heading the list in men in uniform is 'construction' with 69 with most other departments having contributed more than a dozen in the services. Metro's British organization, which has far less manpower to draw upon, has 155 men in uniform. Metro's London office has been moved to the country at Scotsbridge Mill.

FLYING NEGATIVES TO RIO URGED AS SAFETY MEASURE

New York, July 21.—Faced with the problem of meeting release dates in the South American market, what with Axis submarines lurking in waters where ships carrying the prints must pass, foreign sales chiefs of major companies will meet Thursday at the Hays office to map a new plan of transporting the pictures. Device which is getting serious attention is that of flying a dupe negative or lavender to Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Aires for printing of the positives there for distribution throughout the Latin-American market. While considered a revolutionary procedure, its proponents say it is not only feasible but the safest way to cover the foreign market. The time-saving element also looms large.

Even were the sea lanes made fairly safe for commercial carriers, the slow progress and devious routes would militate against the problem affecting all distributors, that of meeting release dates. Slow boats now making the journey would scramble up the bookers' charts even if the carriers got through.

PREVIEW OF WAR EFFORT SHORTS

Cross-section of shorts produced by and for the Army, Navy and general national war effort, was previewed last night at the Filmarte theatre. Group of nine subjects included those produced and released by major companies for general release through regular channels, carrying indirect propaganda; informative commercial subjects; war training films for both Army and Navy, and one subject on the Civilian Defense Army of Air Raid Wardens and their accomplishments.

Reels shown as produced under sponsorship of the War Activities Committee stressed the importance of the public discounting rumors, and stopping spread of them at the source. Army training reels also went into detail on the seriousness of divulging even minute bits of military information by servicemen. First reel in the program, 'Vigilance,' aims for general circulation in theatres on free basis as a 'must' booking. It concentrates on necessity of care in preventing forest fires, which can burn millions of feet of lumber. Sponsored by the department of agriculture, Forestry Service paints a vivid picture of the situation.

Second reel is a George Pal Puppetoon of the Madcap Models series in Technicolor, under the title of 'Tulips Shall Grow.' Shows invasion of Holland by the Nazis, and eventual route of the invaders to bring happiness in the land and regrowth of the tulips.

Next on program was 'The Arm Behind the Army' produced at 20th-Fox studios by the Signal Corps of the U. S. Army in cooperation with the Research Council of the Academy. It's a war training film, restricted by the War Department for showings to Army personnel and workers in war production plants, and graphically compares the necessary teamwork of both groups for successful winning of the war.

'Divide and Conquer' was produced at Warners by Gordon Hollingshead and directed by Lewis Seiler. Picture dwells on method used by Hitler and the Nazis in countries selected for invasion, and deliberate plans pursued in getting the natives to lose confidence in reigning governments to create dissension and discord so the country was a soft touch for the Nazi Army when ready. Picture uses a number of recognized film actors for scenes that are intercut with stock shots of film captured from Germany and showing results of German invasions of France and other countries.

'Mr. Blabbermouth' was turned out by Metro studios, and is based on famous editorial of Manchester Boddy in the Los Angeles News of Dec. 11, 1941. It calls attention of audiences to the danger of starting or spreading dangerous rumors to upset public morale, and has a fine map of the Pacific which shows all the naval strength of the Allied Nations in comparison to Japan. This goes on the market as a commercial release and rates universal theatre bookings.

'Parachute Athletes' is a Grantland Rice Sportlight released by Paramount and is a highly entertaining account of the training of Paratroops of the U. S. Army. This also is a commercial release which will get a wide play by exhibitors.

'Identifying the F 2 A' is strictly a Navy training reel for instructional purposes. Through miniature, cartoon and actual air shots the F 2 A (Brewster Buffalo) is described in detail for the Navy air force members in classrooms. Picture was turned out in Disney Studio for the Bureau of Aeronautics, USN.

'Air Raid Warden' is a documentary film showing the work of air raid wardens in Civilian Defense. Picture details the duties and activities of the CD groups and was purchased by Metro for Office of Civilian Defense. It will be distributed free to theatres by the War Activities Committee.

'Combat Counter-Intelligence' is a war department restricted reel for exhibition only for men in the armed forces. Produced at Columbia studios with several film players, reel warns soldiers that what may seem to be minor acts and words can endanger an entire battle campaign through providing relatively little information to the enemy.

Landau's Story Survey Chore at RKO Over; Leaves Lot Aug. 1

Arthur Landau, literary and writer agent who joined RKO a year ago to make comprehensive survey of story properties in the studio files for both reclamation and re-sale to other companies, leaves the lot Aug. 1. During his stretch at RKO, Landau dug up many forgotten stories that were developed for production, in addition to recouping coin of properties peddled to other studios.

It is expected that Landau will return to the agency biz as a representative for writers and story properties.

Mae West Free Woman, Gets Rid of Wallace

Mae West was granted divorce yesterday from her husband of 30 years' standing, Frank Wallace. Latter, who originally asked court for $1,000 a month separate maintenance, withdrew his plea at the last moment, and did not oppose Miss West's divorce action.

Superior Court Judge Alfred Paonessa granted the divorce decree after the actress had related the secret marriage many years ago, with Wallace instituting various suits against her during the past seven years. It is reported that an out-of-court settlement was reached in the case, whereby Wallace received a small cash settlement for withdrawing his claims for separate maintenance.

CHAPLIN'S PLEA FOR SECOND FRONT HEARD BY 100,000

Making a fervent plea for the immediate start of a second front, Charles Chaplin, through the medium of a private NBC wire from here, yesterday addressed more than 100,000 persons gathered in Madison Square park in New York at a war rally. His speech was amplified over loudspeakers installed at the park. Democracy is making its last stand on the battlefields of Russia, Chaplin declared, and once the Nazi is routed there the United Nations can aim for complete victory in the spring.

MUSIC and radio ballyhoo for locally inspired (Fort Ord) and nationally generated 'Zip Your Lip' campaign is being held up by failure of Southern Music to furnish officials in charge with arrangements of theme tune, 'Zip Your Lip,' by Lew Pollack and Herman Ruby. Matter has been in the works for over two months, according to Army men handling the deal, and failure to get arrangements of the tune is holding up broadcasts, recording, possible filming and general circulation among orchestras, including Army Bands. L. A. County Band has been waiting to air the tune via its regular t.c. broadcast. Harry James has agreed to record the tune, and Glenn Miller has been contacted to preem it on one of his programs. These deals, and agreement of American Legion to plug it, are being unnecessarily delayed, it's charged. Southern Music here reports printing delays in New York, possibly occasioned by mad rush to get arrangements for discing before musicians union record ban goes into effect, may be causing the delay. Army adds it's been repeatedly stalled and may call for some official help.

ARRANGEMENT similar to that obtaining in the case of Ezra Stone, who is permitted time out from Army duties for his 'Aldrich Family' Sunday broadcast in season, will be sought by James McFadden, radio head of McKee & Albright agency, for Rudy Vallee, if and when he is called into the service. McFadden leaves today for the east to consult with War Department officials on such a concession so that Vallee can continue with his Sealtest program. Such an arrangement is also being sought by Gene Autry for his 'Melody Ranch' airer. Monies earned by the air stars would be turned over to some service relief agency.

UNIVERSAL is taking new departure for chapter play construction, substituting actual dramatization on the screen for the previously customary recapitulation of preceding chapter in subtitle and foreword. Innovation is used in 'Adventures of Smilin' Jack.' Instead of getting the hero out of danger first few scenes of ensuing installments, Ford Beebe, producer, has heightened suspense and intensified new scenes and dialog to carry the situation on to further complications in each succeeding chapter. Practice will be followed generally in future cliffhangers.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

One time there was a youthful frog
Who lingered on a floating log
But yearned to leave his small-time bog
And find a better spot.
And so he leaped so high and far
He made the movie course in par,
And now he is a jumping star
On yonder Burbank lot.

There are three Famous Frogs, starting with Aesop's batrachian friend who developed a thespian complex and puffed up his chest until it exploded. Second is Mark Twain's entry, who leaped from Calaveras to Calabasas and landed on a film contract. Third is a frog named Laval, who hopped from Paris to Berlin in one hop, from a sitting start.

Dave Selznick is in a quandary about the line-up of characters for 'Jane Eyre,' wondering whether to shift from Rochester to Syracuse or Utica. With the present batting order, the public will think it is a Jack Benny show.

In these days of international frightfulness, it takes more than one heavy to work up a chill on the screen. Peter Lorre and Boris Karloff are trying to out-boogie-man each other in one picture.

'A Man's Best Friend' is the title of a dog picture which will cause mingled feelings in the thespian fraternity. Almost any actor likes to play with a hound on the front lawn but not on the screen. Professional jealousy.

Joe Doak, the oracle who used to tell the film producers how to run their pictures, is easing off for a while, but not for lack of breath. He is busy right now telling the generals how to win the war.

And now comes news to fetch the blues to gals with fickle tresses,
With hair that changes overnight to match their latest dresses.
The ships that plied the ocean tide with boudoir acquisitions
Are loaded now from stern to prow with vittles and munitions.
Milady's bleach is on the beach where South Sea palms are drooping.
Her dyes are sunk beneath the waves where submarines are snooping.
Without the aid of Science to re-burnish them or shade them,
The blondes, brunettes and red-heads must remain as Nature made them.

For all his airy persiflage, Bob Hope is a practical guy. His next two pictures are 'They've Got Me Covered' and 'Let's Face It.'

Bad news by night and day the air waves shout
From China, Russia and the lands beyond.
'What can I do,' you ask, 'to help them out?'
And comes a simple answer: 'Buy a Bond.'

Office Boy Sets Pace For Contributors In Relief Drive

The motion picture industry's campaign for Navy, Dutch, China and Russian War Reliefs is well past the halfway mark, it was disclosed at a report luncheon yesterday, as a 20th-Fox office boy stole the spotlight by contributing an entire week's salary. The meeting was held at the Hillcrest Country Club with Chairman Jacob H. Karp presiding.

As the studio colonels reported totals to date, Fred Meyer announced that Herbert M. Branson, of the studio's mailing room, had given an entire week's salary. The crowd applauded as it was explained that Branson has a brother in the Army, and had himself tried to enlist in the Navy but was turned down because of his eyes. Branson explained, 'The next best thing was to try to help out a little, and I thought the best way to do it was not with words, but a few dollars.'

Studio colonels reported the response from the rank and file workers has been surprising, due primarily to the splendid cooperation of all unions, but that many of the big earners are slow in making their contributions. Because of the campaign committee's determination to put the current drive over the top as quickly as possible, those in charge will concentrate during the coming week on the important earners. William Morris, Jr., representing the Artists Managers Guild, has organized the group to cooperate extensively in contacting employes in the higher wage brackets.

Edward Arnold, who attended the meeting as vice-prexy of the Permanent Charities Committee and also as president of the Screen Actors Guild, volunteered further increased help from both those organizations to speed up the drive with direct appeals to the important earners.

A total of 12,500 pamphlets, reprinted by the Screen Writers Guild from the appeal written by Francis Faragoh in the 20th-Fox News, were distributed to the colonels. A vote of thanks to the Guild was unanimously passed, for their cooperation in standing the expense of the reprinting job and also for the perfect organization which has resulted in a remarkable showing for all writers at all studios. At 20th-Fox it was announced the writers already are 33% ahead of USO, which was their all-time high.

I. S. Chadwick, colonel for the independent producers, stated that he intends to complete the drive within that group not later than one week from today, and pledged that the contributions will be three times as much as the USO total. Of all contributions to date, 96% have been allocated by the donors to the various relief funds.

of the Motion Pictures and Special Activities Branch of the War Savings Staff, conferred with industry leaders. Y. Frank Freeman, prexy of the Producers Association; Kenneth Thomson, Edward Arnold and Charles Feldman promised full cooperation.

A total of 25 top stars are listed and practically every starlet and featured player not in production will take part in seven tours. All expenses will be paid by the industry.

The seven caravans will divide their activities so that every section of the country will have a glimpse of the Hollywood notables. Each of the speakers will be coached on how to make a snappy three-minute address. Besides visiting metropolitan centers, the tours will cover the industrial areas with emphasis on the payroll savings plan. In each city and town visited local exhibitors and exchanges will get behind the promotion in addition to furnishing the entertainment program for these rallies.

In announcing the tour the Treasury Department said this was the first time in history that all three branches of the industry, production, distribution and exhibition, had merged to carry out the Government plans. The tours will begin in early September and the industry is expected to contribute the equivalent of 210 working days. In other words, transposed into cold cash the Hollywood gesture to the Bond effort is estimated as worth approximately $2,100,000, estimating a production day at $10,000.

Every studio has promised to contribute its most potent marquee names. In some cases production will be temporarily halted in order that some of the screen royalty may be free for the Uncle Sam tour. It is generally agreed that the September-to-October bond selling campaign in which the stars will participate is the largest single contribution yet made to the war effort by the amusement industry.

The current July month is the retailers' billion quota. The picture business is the second industry assigned a billion. Next month, August, has no industry assignment. Then September for pictures, October for labor unions, November for Women's Clubs, etc. Each will get a billion per month quota. The retailers, which include department stores, chain stores, retail merchants, etc., have asked three months per annum, each with a billion quota. The understanding is that the picture biz likewise will be expected to assume two or three months per annum, each with a billion quota.

Nick Schenck has loaned Oscar Doob to the War Activities Committee in New York to handle publicity and exploitation campaign for the 60 days attendant upon the September drive. Si Fabian heads the actual drive, which will be spearheaded by America's theatres, chain and independent.

Scribbling

Lester Cole has been signed to write the screenplay for 'Hostages', drama of Gestapo's ravages in Czechoslovakia, which Sol C. Siegel will produce at Paramount.

Arnold Pressburger hired Sheridan Gibney to develop the story and write screenplay on 'Tomorrow Never Comes', that will be released by United Artists.

Mortimer Braus gets deal at 20th-Fox to develop original screenplay, 'One of the Finest', for Producer Sol M. Wurtzel.

Bob Lees and Fred Rinaldo have completed screenplay on the Abbott and Costello picture, 'Oh, Doctor', at Universal.

Republic has assigned Morton Grant as writer on 'Valley of Hunted Men', next for the Three Mesquiteers.

Mapy Goes To Mexico To Produce Tuners

Mapy Cortes, Puerto Rican film star, who is under contract to RKO, has gone to Mexico City to fulfill contractual obligations as that country's only femme producer before starting her second picture here. She left last night via American Clipper after completing her role in 'Seven Days Leave'. Her pact is with the S. A. Grovas Films of Mexico City to produce series of three musicals for Latin-American trade.

No Politics On Quentin Airshow Sez Warden

San Francisco, July 22.—Warden Clinton Duffy of San Quentin today denied before an Assembly Committee on governmental economics that the prison program over the Don Lee network had been used for political purposes. He said Governor Culbert Olson appeared on the program six months ago but there was nothing political in connection with his appearance. The airshows, the warden asserted, are 'absolutely non-political' and 'for the purpose of building up something constructive within the inmate and to make the man more acceptable to society when he leaves.'

sult in the entire deal being cleaned up by the first of next week.

Herman Wobber, Coast district manager for 20th-Fox, arrived from San Francisco yesterday to sit in on parleys. This led to belief that deal made for exchange Collarites here might also be applied to Bay City group which now is affiliated with the SOEG, rather than hold separate negotiations for them. Other company representatives handling negotiations are Pat Scollard, of Paramount; Jack McLeod, of Metro; Al Schwalberg, of Warners, and Tom Murray, of Universal.

Negotiations have moved more smoothly, with both sides displaying an attitude to get together, since supervision of negotiations was turned over to Pat Casey, Producer-Labor contact, and attorney Paul Watkins stepped out of the picture. Only big problem to be solved is question of negotiations. Union shop has already been okayed, and company representatives realize that minimum scales will have to be on a level with those set for 1,800 studio White Collarites.

Two groups were in session from 2:30 p. m. to 4:00 p. m. yesterday and will go back at it again today at 4 p. m. If agreement is reached on classification today, wages and conditions will be taken up over the weekend, with the possibility the contract will reach the inking stage next week.

Prexy Richard F. Walsh of the IATSE was still here yesterday but was devoting his time to study of the camera situation. It is understood the IA head realizes his group missed the boat on Coast clerical workers by waiting too long to move after announcing in the east that the IATSE would take front office workers in the exchanges. Musicians Ask Union Support for Stage Door Canteen

With approval of Musicians' Mutual Protective Association, Local 47, a committee formed from the union's membership and headed by Carroll Hollister, is lining up all trade unions in this area to establish a State Door Canteen, similar to the one in New York. Group is also conferring with members of other show business unions who also recently broached the idea of establishing a service men's center. Combined new plan would include the effort and working operation of all unions, theatrical and otherwise, in creating and maintaining the project free for service men.

Some dozen unions and guilds have already been contacted, committee reports, and will shortly pass on participation. Following that a general conference will be called for early August of every trade union in the locality to form an inter-union committee to work out plans of fund raising, etc.

Plan is to obtain or build a site via property donation or raise the funds through appeal. Volunteer union help, from painters to waiters will construct, repair, operate and maintain the canteen. Supplies and furnishings will either be donated by regularly contributing dealers or obtained through additional appeals. Show guilds and unions will furnish entertainment, musicians already guaranteeing a steady stream of musical talent.

Hull Talk Blacks Out Three NBC Shows

Broadcast of tonight's address by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, over the four major networks will force cancellation of two commercials and half of another on NBC. Chains will be cleared for the speech at 6:30 p.m., with advices from the east that the talk will run eight minutes past the scheduled half hour. This will necessitate amputating the Sealtest and Camel repeats, and the last half of Kraft Music Hall.

Landis, Hull Will Vox Pop-Off Twice Here

Carole Landis will be guest quizzer with Warren Hull on two broadcasts of Vox Pop, originating here Aug. 10 and 17. Brian Donlevy teams up with Hull for the Aug. 24 airing from San Diego.

Vacation At Last

Alex Gottlieb, producer of the Abbott and Costello pictures at Universal, trains for New York tomorrow on his first vacation in three years. While in the east Gottlieb will attend preem of 'Pardon My Sarong' and make arrangements with Warren Wright, owner of Whirlaway, to place the thoroughbred in 'Hold Your Horses', next A & C comedy.

MacGowan Here To Set Up Program of Latin Good Will Shorts

Kenneth MacGowan, director of production for the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, arrived yesterday from his New York headquarters to organize a program consisting of 27 shorts, designed to cement relationship with Latin-American countries.

Ideas for the series were discussed during a huddle with Walter Wanger and David Hopkins. Meanwhile, Francis Alstock, successor to Jock Whitney in the Motion Picture Division of the Coordinator's Office, left for Washington with a report on Hollywood doings.

Musicians Notified Of Ban on Discs

Musicians Local 47 has officially notified all members that union ban on recordings and transcriptions is effective July 31. It was stated no clarification has been received from national headquarters, but that membership will obey instructions of Prexy James C. Petrillo and that no discs will be made after that date unless the ban is lifted.

There is some confusion as to how ban will function as regards radio, but definite instructions are expected from Petrillo before effective date arrives. It was at first thought ban would apply only to commercials, but it is now understood they also apply to juke boxes and commercial and sustaining radio programs.

Musicians local contract with NBC, which expired July 12, is scheduled to be taken up today. It is understood both sides have been jockeying against time limit, as NBC has been working on previous agreement.

popularity of neighborhood city theatres, with a resultant reduction in downtown city patronage. Previously around 40% of the revenue obtained for films came from the first runs in various Latin-American capital cities, Gould claimed, and would bring subsequent runs into more importance in this market.

Gould said there is much new theatre construction in the Latin-Americas, with some 15 to 20 new theatres constructed in Brazil, some in Peru and nearly 10 houses in Mexico. Only country not feeling the business upbeat is Argentina, Gould declared. He indicated the shipment of one dupe negative per feature via plane may solve the obviously critical shipping situation for American film companies. This would enable companies to print up the necessary positive prints in Buenos Aires instead of shipping the 19 or more positives per feature as now.

Obituary

J. Q. CLEMMER

James Quinter Clemmer, 61, dean of northwest theatre managers, died in Seattle Monday night. He was manager of the Paramount, Music Box and Music Hall theatres for Hamrick-Evergreen circuit, and had managed the Fifth Avenue for the past several years. Destined to become one of the best known theatre figures in Seattle, he opened his first house, the Dream, in 1908, and in 1912 erected the Clemmer, one of the country's first exclusive film theatres. He operated the Clemmer until 1921, when he sold it to Columbia Film Exchanges, which renamed it the Columbia. He is survived by a sister and a brother.

S. A. ERWIN

Samuel Alexander Erwin, 79, father of Stuart Erwin, film comedian, died yesterday after a lingering illness at his home, 112 N. Palm drive, Beverly Hills. He is survived by two other sons, L. C. and G. N. Erwin; his widow, Martha, and a daughter. Services will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Selma, Calif., with interment at Rosedale cemetery.

JACK GREGORY

Jack Gregory, 50, vaudeville juggler, died in a San Francisco hotel yesterday, just 10 days after the death of his wife, Josephine, with whom he formed a vaudeville team. Surviving is a 12-year-old daughter, Eleanor.

A. C. PRINGLE

Aubrey C. Pringle, 62, member of a vaudeville singing quartet, died Tuesday in New York. He was a member of the quartet of Jones, Pringle, Sylvester and Morgan.

sales plan for 'Gone With the Wind' and inaugurated a deal considered incredible in handling of 'Mrs. Miniver', which is the company's top picture since 'Gone With the Wind'. Rodgers trained most of the top manpower in the industry, with two of his former sales executives, William Scully joining up as head of Universal distribution a number of years ago, and Tom Connors early this year becoming head of 20th-Fox sales.

No reason for the resignation could be obtained tonight, outside of the report that Rodgers asked Metro to relieve him of his duties by Sept. 1.

About a year ago Rodgers was offered the presidency of United Artists, and was ready to accept, but Nicholas M. Schenck, head of Loew's, Inc., refused to permit him to leave at that time.

Brown Out With Players For 'Holiday' Preem

Minn. Gets Its Army Show After All But Not in Stadium

Minneapolis, July 22. — Even though denied use of University of Minnesota stadium because damage to the football field was feared, the service show, 'Here's Your Army', will come into Minneapolis just the same, Aug. 15-18. It has been declared the stadium was the only suitable site and that Minneapolis would lose the show because of the university regents' refusal of its use. However, another one finally has been found.

In coming here, the show will be capitalizing on the largest amount of advance publicity ever received by any attraction in local entertainment history. It was created in consequence of the furore over the threatened loss of the show to the city. Newspapers carried columns about developments and ran editorials attacking the regents. There also were protests from the governor, the mayor, city council, civic leaders, trade unions and commercial bodies, all heavily publicized.

Industry Names List In Armed Forces Grows

Two sons of film executives and the head of studio department added their names to the industry's lengthening list of those who have entered the armed forces. One of them, Julian Lesser, son of Sol Lesser, who left last night to join the Marines at Quantico. He is a second Lieutenant in the photographic division. Another was William Cabanne, son of Christy Cabanne, who enlisted in the Air Force as a cadet. The third was James Hall, captain of RKO studio drivers. He resigned to become a captain in the U. S. Coast Artillery.

Patriotic Tough Luck

Sidewalk in front of Mission theatre, San Diego, is a gaping hole due to the rubber drive. House gave its walk of hard rubber blocks to the salvage drive and has been unable to secure labor to build a cement replacement. Nearly 4,500 pounds were donated.

Ill in Pix

SIDNEY CHAPLIN, 16-year-old son of Charles Chaplin, is in the Hollywood hospital with a strep infection. It was reported last night he had a temperature of 103.

GLORIA JEAN, currently appearing in Universal's 'On the Beam', has been confined to her home with laryngitis.

MAUREEN O'HARA is in St. Vincent's hospital for a major operation today.

EDNA MAE OLIVER is confined to her home with undisclosed illness.

An Open Letter to Samuel Goldwyn

I have read, with disgust and not delight, your announcement of how the picture business should function in this age of conservation of the film industry product.

I would have been delighted if your plan were an unselfish one, or should you have made sacrifices to get in line with a healthy conservation program for the motion picture business.

But you do not. You do not want to trim your sales. You want others to trim theirs.

For the season of 1939-40 you released two pictures. For the season of 1940-41 you released one picture. Now in this era, when the industry should help the United States government in its conservation program, and you express yourself heartily in that respect, you announce that you plan releasing five pictures.

I do not know you personally nor well enough to call you Sam, or the 'Great' Goldwyn, as I know you like to be called. But really, Mr. Goldwyn, you were never known as the emancipator of the exhibitor. You gave us good pictures, that's true. But we paid for them and paid well. You got your profits. You gave us pictures that did not do so good at the box office for yourself or the exhibitor. We took it on the chin, and maybe you did too. Then, when you had something to give us again, and you thought it was great, and probably it was, you did not take us or our problems into consideration and decided that we should get some sort of inducement or terms to make up for the bruises we got from playing something, on your terms, that meant nothing to us so far as profit or an even break was concerned.

Now honestly, Mr. Goldwyn, are you kidding about that conservation of film and the cutting down of product to about 40% of the present amount?

I don't think so. I think you have been talking to make yourself heard and get the newspapers of the country to quote you. For if you were really sincere, in my opinion, and didn't want that well known edge for yourself, why do you want to increase the amount of films that you want to distribute? That's not cutting to the bone. You are adding instead of subtracting. Is there any reason why you should do this and expect others to subtract?

Also Mr. Goldwyn, you are a producer and not an exhibitor. So if some of us Independent Exhibitors went out of business you would not cry. That is not your problem we know. It is ours.

We want pictures and all we can get. We want your good pictures among them, but as long as you claim to be in earnest about conservation of film and cutting down on product, why don't you set the example? Then others might follow. But you do not release enough pictures a year to keep a theatre open. Nor do we ever know what we can expect from you. We're satisfied with the dealings that we get from the Big film companies because we know how many pictures to expect. You could not ask us to have the same thought with respect to you because we never knew what you would give us, nor truthfully would we ever expect to know. You are a creator and consequently creation is not theatre operation. So Mr. Goldwyn, all I can say is that if you believe in conservation resort to simple mathematics, which easily show you that addition is not subtraction and subtraction is the yardstick of conservation.

I hope that when you read this you will take a paper and pencil and try mathematics and see how out-of-line your statement on conservation is with respect to calculation and conservation.

BILL RODGERS LIKELY TOP OF RKO PARENT SETUP

New York, July 23.—Metro, should Nick Schenck accept, will probably officially announce the resignation of Bill Rodgers, vice-president of distribution for the company. He still has a two-year contract at around $2,500 a week to fulfill. Report is current that Rodgers likely may go over to RKO as president of either the parent or picture company, though currently there is no confirmation to such a thought.

ALL picture premieres and advanced price openings in the Hollywood and Los Angeles sectors for the duration of the war, will have gross receipts for opening nights donated to war charities or to other sources that will assist in the victory effort. Wednesday night's premiere of 'Mrs. Miniver' at the Carthay Circle, at $3.30 and $5.50 scale, had entire gross turned over to the Volunteer Army Canteen Service; 20th-Fox is staging war charity premiere of 'Tales of Manhattan' at Grauman's Chinese Aug. 6, in which the estimated $5,000 take will be distributed among two or three organizations providing supplies for service men, and Warners are cooking up special opening in August for 'Yankee Doodle Dandy'. Theatre execs comment that —with urgent need for various organizations for continued coin to operate —no company or circuit can stand out and put on a picture premiere where the coin would be retained wholly or in part by the companies concerned.

ALTHOUGH never on the official verboten list, beer and ale will be acceptable to all major networks this fall as sponsored product. Both NBC and CBS are said to have let down the bars on the amber fluid, giving brewers a clear field in their choice of broadcast webs. Both Mutual and the blue network have accepted beer accounts, having carried Ballantine ale, which was refused time on NBC and Columbia. Heavy run of new fall business on NBC and CBS contradicts the possible conclusion that the brewery business has been restored to the good graces of the major nets because of time made available due to wartime withdrawals. Beer shows will be restricted to the late evening hours after the youngsters have been put away for the night. First to take advantage of the network ruling is said to be Pabst, which is interested in a show being packaged by Music Corp.

OFFICIALS of big film unions are laughing at general manager of a major studio who currently takes time out from his production duties to rant, shout and in a loud voice, bawl out representatives of small unions when asserted contract violations are called to his attention. One union top pointed out this same executive seldom spoke above a whisper when Willie Bioff and his gang were calling the union shots in the studios. He said when Bioff was asked what the attitude of this executive would be to some union move, Willie usually replied, 'Who, that clown, he'll do just what he's told to do.' Union officials said complaints also had been filed that this executive had attempted to scuttle a union mass meeting by offering to pay the rental of the hall and stand for any damage suits that might follow if the owner would refuse to permit the workers to meet.

FOR quite some time now, there have been recurrent reports of a rift between Walter Winchell and his employers. The Hearst technique, in a case like that, is to make the feature increasingly difficult to find; so when Winchell lost his, till then, accustomed spot on the third page, second section of the Herald-Express, these rumors seemed to have some foundation of fact. Walter's new niche, for a time, was the motion picture page. But during the current week he really has seemed to take a kicking around. For the first three days, he was (a) next to sports section; (b) well into the news pages and (c) back in the motion picture page again. Yesterday, however, he really found himself in surprising company. In single-column make-up, he was between the society news and the woman's section.

PRESENCE of a femme hot trumpeter and songstress in the Woody Herman aggregation current at the Palladium is the tipoff of things to come in the band field. Girl, Billie Rogers, may be forerunner of a war-created trend of gals supplanting men where necessary. Good money angle is another attraction which, plus the glamour, will deter any exits for defense work of the kind that has lured many already. Men have been quitting due to army status. Gals have no such worry. Though he has no immediate need, Herman this week interviews a girl drummer and a skirted saxophonist, and will audition the lasses against the day of loss. Favorable reception accorded girls (particularly noted in Miss Rogers' performance) is very apt to give the business still another impetus.

NY Show Folk Sell Million in Bonds At Block Party

New York, July 23.—New York's swing street nitery block on West 52nd st. sold close to $1,000,000 worth of War Bonds at a block party. Jimmy Walker was emcee of the special entertainment staged in front of the niteries.

Show people appearing included Edie Davis with his Leon & Eddie show, Jane Froman, Gertrude Niesen, Walter O'Keefe, Benay Venuta, Willie Howard and Harry Hershfield. Irving Berlin, who sang 'God Bless America', bought a $10,000 bond.

Affair was attended by 50,000 persons, who danced in the streets to the music of seven name bands. Al Smith was guest of honor.

'Miniver 5-House Play Indicates 50G Week

Five-house opening of 'Mrs. Miniver', first time that Fox West Coast has spread first-run week to such an extent, got away yesterday at Grauman's Chinese, Loew's State, United Artists, Wilshire and Carthay Circle, with week's biz indicating gross in excess of $50,000. From opening sesh figures, State should hit around $20,000 on the week, with Chinese chalking up about $15,000.

U. S. CRACKS DOWN ON AFM TO THWART ANTI-DISC EDICT

will be sought in a few days, probably in Chicago. Criminal action is not contemplated since the criticized practice has not been put into actual operation.

AFM fight against the injunction will be based on the Supreme court decision that the anti-injunction laws do not applied to organized labor as such. A further contention will be that the musicians membership has a constitutional right to withhold its talents and refuse to work for interests which adversely affect their personal welfare.

Petrillo's ban on transcriptions has stirred violent dissension in labor circles. One of the rumors currently circulating here is that Philip Murray, prez of CIO, has been asked to grant a charter to union musicians who plan to secede from AFofL. Among the Petrillo belligerents are said to be a number of name band leaders.

Department of Justice blasted the Federation, declaring concerted attempts to force the hiring of live talent when not needed put 'an unjust economic burden upon those making use of mechanical improvements.' The union's made-work program, the Department added, 'has two marked advantages in promoting the selfish interest of the union, forcing the employers and the public to foot the bill for a private system of unemployment relief.' The statement charged the system 'relieves members of the union from competitive necessity of learning how to do a different kind of job. In the opinion of the Department, such a policy is unjust, both to labor and the public, since by keeping costs high the demand is limited and it places a severe burden on the public through unnecessarily increased costs.'

The anti-wax ruling would adversely affect many small enterprises, including small broadcasters, restaurants, hotels, small dance halls, advertising agencies, film studios, transcriptions manufacturers, networks and large stations. They would prevent the airing of many programs important to the war effort, the Justice officials said. The Department pointed out the Petrillo plan would allow 'a single union official to determine what music could be played at patriotic gatherings that are aired.'

CIO Given Contract For Home Office Collarites

New York, July 23.—The Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild has obtained an agreement on a two-year contract for its members in the home offices of Loew's, 20th-Fox, RKO, Columbia, following negotiations over a short space of time. In the case of Columbia, office help in its exchange here is included.

The intention of the SOPEG is to also take in exchange White Collar workers in exchanges of other majors where elections have been held. The union has already filed for exchanges of Loew's, 20th-Fox, while an election at National Screen Service embraced both home office and exchange.

A meeting of the membership of the SOPEG is scheduled Monday night for ratification of the contract —a foregone conclusion. Contract is set to be signed the following morning at the downtown law office of Wendell Willkie, with union representatives present including David Golden, SOPEG prexy; Lewis Merrill, prexy of the United Professional Workers of America (CIO), which chartered the SOPEG; William Peihl, SOPEG organizer. Terms of the contract meanwhile are withheld. The SOPEG has a membership of about 1,500 involved.

Obtains Restraining Order—

Patricia King, film actress, obtained a restraining order yesterday from Superior Judge Kurtz Kauffman, forbidding Louis King, her director husband, from auctioning off their furniture until after their divorce hearing, set for Aug. 11. Under a court order, the Kings have been sharing a 12-room house at 1118 Tower road, Beverly Hills, pending settlement of the contested divorce action. The actress claimed that King, in disposing of the effects, has left the home bereft of furniture, save for mattresses.

Allan Jones' Home Looted—

Returning from a five-day trip, Allan Jones, film and radio singer, discovered yesterday that his home at 120 N. Cliffwood avenue, West Los Angeles, had been burgled of clothing valued at $369, and the sum of $24 in cash. Among the missing articles were two chauffeur's uniforms.

Prints Carrying War Relief Appeal Go To Film Groups

Prints of the special War Relief trailer, 'United For Victory and Humanity', today were made available to any film industry group or studio for screening because of the successful results of their showing at most major studios. The trailer was made especially to aid the industry drive for Navy Relief. It runs 10 minutes. Prints may be obtained at the office of Jacob H. Karp, Paramount, drive chairman.

Hope that the number of contributors to the Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Relief appeal may top that of any preceding industry drive was voiced yesterday by Chairman Karp. He said every indication is that the total will exceed the 18,000 who contributed to USO, and may pass the record 20,000 mark established by Red Cross.

Despite this optimism the big money earners still are slow in signing contribution blanks, and this is causing the campaign committee serious worry. Another urgent appeal was sent out to these higher bracket salary earners yesterday in the hope that their quick cooperation will permit an early windup of the drive.

Ask NY Help In KMPC Music Stalemate

Failing to get together with station KMPC, musicians union has appealed to headquarters in New York for aid in lining up the station. Since station's owner, G. A. Richards, also owns WGAR, Cleveland, and WJR, Detroit, it's expected that some pressure will be exerted through those properties.

Union sought salary and staff increases at KMPC following its power increase to 10,000 wätts recently, and projected link in Golden West radio chain. Musicians at BevHills station were yanked a month ago and transmitter has been without live music since.

LANE, BUCKALEW DIV. HEADS OF CBS STATION RELATIONS

Expansion of Columbia's station relations department has been completed by Herbert Akerberg, CBS veepee, with the appointment of Howard Lane, for the past seven years managing director of the McClatchy network, as manager of the central division with headquarters in Chicago. Other appointees are William Schudt, Jr., eastern division field manager, and Edwin Buckalew, western division head. Schudt operates out of New York and Buckalew will office at Columbia Square here.

Enlargement of Akerberg's department is for the purpose of a closer relationship between the network and its owned and operated stations and affiliates. The three appointees will cover all stations in their division to aid managers in all phases of station operation.

Lane winds up his affairs with the McClatchy chain in Sacramento Aug. 1 and takes up his CBS post in Chicago two weeks later. He will be given a going-away party tonight by Sacramento Advertising and Sales Club. Buckalew has been with CBS for the past five years as sales and program stimulator at KNX. He will service affiliated stations in California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona and Hawaii.

Doob To Washington To Set Machinery For Bond Drive

New York, July 23.—Following a meeting today of the Eastern division of the Public Relations Committee, the executive committee of the PRC arranged to meet tomorrow to map plans for the billion dollar film industry War Bond and Stamp drive in September. Oscar Doob, appointed this week to head the drive on behalf of the picture industry on leave from Loew's, Inc., left for Washington tonight, consequently the PRC executive committee confers with Gordon S. White, assistant to Carlton Duffus, head of the motion picture department of the War Bond campaign.

Preliminary steps involved in the billion-dollar 30-day campaign calls for film men being detached from their regular work, both in the east and west, to aid the sales.

It was estimated at the PRC meeting there would be from 250 to 300 cities where screen name players will appear during the September drive, divided into seven zones. All will have to be routed by the Hollywood Victory Committee, with Paramount, Warners, RKO, with a large field staff, likely to operate the bulk of the advance men for these personals. Others will be detached from studio work to travel with the players. The advance job will include routing people out of Hollywood, billings on all p.a.'s, lining up local committees to sell Bonds, etc.

Erikson Final Film

Leif Erikson finished role in 'House of Mystery' at Universal yesterday, and starts featured spot in Walter Wanger's 'Arabian Nights' at the same studio today. 'Nights' is slated to be player's final picture for the duration, as he is in U. S. Naval Reserve, photographic section, and slated for call to active duty shortly.

Scribbling

Erskine Caldwell tossed off rough screen treatment of 'Mission To Moscow' at Warners in two days, and is now polishing and extending the outline to cinematic form.

Finishing script on 'School For Jive' at Universal, Mel Ronson has been assigned to polishing job on screenplay of 'Moonlight In Havana' at the same studio.

Henry Myers and Jay Gorney set at Columbia to prepare screenplay and musical score for 'Merry-Go-Round', George Stevens production.

Taylor Craven will screenplay his original, 'The Man Who Died Twice' for Republic. George Sherman will produce.

Edward Eliscu will handle script on 'Something To Shout About' at Columbia.

night, including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.'

At a meeting in New York yesterday, 8,154 theatres were represented by owners or heads of exhibitor organizations throughout the nation. They voted unanimously to undertake the role of 'Commandos' in the Treasury Department billion dollar September effort. A budget has been set up to underwrite expenses of touring stars and other items of the extensive campaign.

Campaign calls for 200 picture stars and featured players to make personal appearances in 300 cities. The players will not appear at theatres, but at public mass meetings, and at factories where they will address workers. In order to get the stars, each city is to pledge at least a million dollars for bond purchases on the day of their visit.

In discussing plans for the campaign, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said:

'This September Bond drive is a continuation of the patriotic and unselfish support which the picture industry as a whole, and its celebrities and stars individually, have consistently given, in a wide variety of ways, to the nation's war program. The September drive will aid greatly in all our communities in promoting war savings. The spirit and helpfulness of the industry are much appreciated by the Treasury.'

promoted to Levy's district post at Philly.

Depinet also announced the promotion of Robert Wolff, New York branch manager, to the post of district manager for the metropolitan district. Mochrie, formerly with United Artists as district manager at Atlanta, was brought into RKO by George Schaefer in 1940. Levy has been with RKO since 1929.

Casey, Pomerance Talk Metro Adjustments

Request of Screen Cartoonists Guild for minor contract adjustments at Metro were discussed yesterday at a conference between Business Representative William Pomerance and Pat Casey, Producer labor contact. Casey is understood to have asked Pomerance to make detailed check to determine if employes making complaint were entitled to inclusion in a recent 10% pay hike for low bracket workers. Another meeting will be held the last of this week.

Warners Buys 'Moon'

Warners has purchased rights to 'Honorable Moon', song by Ira Gershwin, Yip Harburg and Arthur Schwartz, which was written by the trio for China Relief benefit show. Studio will use the tune in 'Princess O'Rourke', Norman Krasna production, with songsters turning income from song over to China Relief.

Variety Club Will Put On '49er Party

Heart committee of the Variety Club has settled on a 'Forty-niner' party to be given at Harry Sherman's studios early in September as its method of raising funds for planned Baby Incubator Wing at the Cedars of Lebanon. Studio will be decorated in manner of a Gold Rush spa, with a similarly costumed show on the stage, sideshows, and assorted gimmicks to fill the till. From half to two thirds of the needed $20,000 is expected to be taken in.

Membership committee of the club has laid out the welcome mat for all and sundry of show business and its associated aides for those who want to join. New member drive is aimed at 400.

National Variety Club convention which had been scheduled for late July will be postponed, according to advices from John Harris, chief barker, in Pittsburgh. Illness of Harris and hot weather caused the delay. Meet will be held in the East, and at that time matter of raising funds through national distribution of 'quality' commercial short subjects will be brought up. Theatres would pay a percentage of their gross during playing time to Club in locale.

Warners Sets First 10 Features on '42-'43 Release Schedule

New York, July 23.—In opening the first of six regional sales meetings of Warners today, Sales Chief Ben Kalmenson disclosed that the first 10 releases on the 1942-43 program would comprise: 'Desperate Journey', 'George Washington Slept Here', 'Now, Voyager', 'The Hard Way', 'Across the Pacific', 'You Can't Escape Forever', 'Flying Fortress', 'Secret Enemies', 'Busses Roar' and 'Hidden Hand', all of which will probably be included in the first block if the proposed UMPI sales plan becomes the new method of selling films.

Kalmenson also outlined the sales policy for 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', soon to be tested at $1.10 top in 10 situations. He advised the sales group that 'Dandy' would be sold individually. Mort Blumenstock discussed the advertising and exploitation campaign to be applied for 'Dandy' on the test engagements.

Joseph Bernhard, viewing the next year's sales policies of the company as particularly bright, noted the tendency toward maximum playing time for films, and urged the Warners field force to do its utmost in furthering this policy, both as a good business practice and as a patriotic effort in conservation of product.

Fox Frisco Opens Early For Swing Shifters

San Francisco, July 23.—Fox theatre today inaugurated policy of opening at 10 a. m. instead of 11 for first two days of new shows to accommodate swing shift of shipyard workers. Response was big. House is first here to take cognizance of round-the-clock hours in war industries.

Laborers Tell Walsh Other Crafts Take Their Film Jobs

Protest that jurisdiction of Studio Laborers and Utility Employes Local 727 is being encroached upon by Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44 and Studio Grips Local 80 has been filed with IATSE Prexy Richard Walsh. Complaint was made by Albert Erickson, newly elected business representative of Local 727.

It is doubtful if any action will be taken on matter, however, as the IA International draws its strongest Hollywood support from Locals 44 and 80. In addition, many IATSE executives are in favor of dissolving Local 727, taking the best men into Local 80 and other crafts, and dropping the labor classification.

Deal was made several months ago by Prexy Walsh and Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper which returned most of the labor jurisdiction to Studio Utility Employes Local 724. Latter organization had all of the labor jurisdiction before Willie Bioff raided its ranks, scuttled Local 37, and chartered five new locals. Some members of Local 727 already are being used as lamp operators.

Fellows' 'Homicide'

which was reported exclusively in Daily Variety today, getting around, talk immediately started as to the possibility of a successor to Rodgers, as well as to his plans for the future. On the latter matter Rodgers had no comment to make.

In inner film circles it is believed that Al Lichtman might be brought from the Metro studio in Culver City to take over the Rodgers post; while, on the other hand, Lichtman's friends here say that he does not want to return to distribution.

E. K. O'Shea, Eastern-Southern division manager, who has risen rapidly in Metro, is regarded with John Flynn as a strong possibility, otherwise, from the company personnel. In this connection it also is reported that Joe Unger, Paramount division manager, who is leaving Aug. 1, is discussing a deal to join Metro. That might be to fill the O'Shea post should the latter be promoted. O'Shea, former Eastern district sales manager for Metro, was brought into the home office last winter when Tom Connors quit to become 20th-Fox distribution head. Another report is that likely George Schaefer might again return to distribution and take over the Rodgers job.

Rodgers is known to have several times sought to resign his job at Metro. A year ago he was considering taking the prexyship of United Artists, but Nick Schenck finally prevailed upon him to give up the idea, and subsequently he was elected a vice-president of Metro.

Recently there was a difference of opinion between Rodgers and Schenck in the formulation of the sales policy on 'Mrs. Miniver'. But it is not known that the resignation of Rodgers was motivated by this.

The difference with Schenck on 'Miniver' was that Rodgers had insisted on releasing the film at regular house scales, while the Loew's prexy and others in Metro thought it should be sold at advanced admission. Rodgers stuck to his contention and Schenck ultimately yielded to his opinion by sending out over his signature an opinion stating that the policy for the picture should be no advance in admission prices.

Monogram Gets Indie Circuit Contracts

Steve Broidy, Monogram v-p and sales head, has signed contracts for company's 1942-43 product with the Interstate Circuit of Texas and New Mexico, and the Butterfield Circuit of Michigan. Former operates 134 houses, while Butterfield has 107.

'Ground Pilots' Okay

Ralph Dietrich, producer of 'Ground Pilots' for 20th-Fox, has received script okay from the War Department. Frank Gruber wrote screen play. Picture will start early in August.

Appeals Filed From Decree Awards In Film Clearances

Notices of appeal from consent decree arbitration awards have been filed in two cases in the southern California area. The Minor Estate, operators of the Loma, Major and Magnolia theatres in Burbank, have appealed the clearance reduction in the case of the California Drive-In Theatres, Inc., operators of the San-Val theatre in Burbank. The original arbitrator's award materially reduced the clearance time of the Drive-In over the three Minor houses.

Attorney Albert J. Law, on behalf of Sidney Pink and Joseph Moritz, operators of the Century theatre, L. A., has filed notice of appeal in arbitrator's decision which refused to reduce clearance of the house in its zone.

Two postponed clearance cases set for arbitration have been re-scheduled. Action of W. J. Edwards, Jr., Norwalk Theatres Corp., and the Tumbleweed theatre, El Monte, against consent decree distributors have been set for Aug. 5 before Arbitrator Andrew O. Porter. Clearance case of J. W. Allen, operating the Southgate theatre, comes up for hearing before Arbitrator Mylo Bekins on Aug. 10.

20th Borrows Hale

Latin Exhibs Protest Competish of Free Army Shows

New York, July 23.—Complaints from exhibitors in foreign countries, especially Central America, against what they claim is unfair competition by U. S. Army camps, was aired today at a meeting of major company foreign chiefs at the Hays office.

Feeling of managers, expressed at the confab, was that Army camps should be serviced as usual. Distributors currently supply films to the U. S. Army camps, the USO catering to American military forces with gratis 16mm. prints of features in combat areas.

Complications developed because exhibitors in the Latin-Americas have certain exclusive contracts. The complaints came from these exhibitors.

Houser Steamerup

To steam up publicity and exploitation campaigns on Paramount productions between time filming is completed and their release date, George Brown has created new department in his studio publicity and advertising organization, to be headed by Marvin Houser.

Bretherton's Oater

Howard Bretherton directs 'West of the Law', eighth in Rough Rider series of westerns for Monogram. Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton are the cowboy trio, while Scott R. Dunlap produces from original story by Jesse Bowers.

PICKET DOWNTOWN THEATRES IN FIGHT TO BOOST WAGES

been paying janitors as low as $7 per week when the union stepped in and organized them. He said the theatres then signed a contract with a non-union maintenance company in an effort to keep from paying the union's minimum scale of 75 cents an hour. He said the CTM would be asked to refuse to work on pictures for distribution in the houses here.

Frank Fouce, who operates the three theatres, said he had no union help. He insisted all his employes were like one big family. He declared the same maintenance company which handles his theatres also is employed by 36 other theatres here, but the union has made no move against them. He said the BSEIU would get no support from CTM because the secretary was a pal of his, but union officials said the executive referred to is no longer with the Mexican Federation of Workers. The three theatres screen Spanish pictures, produced largely in Mexico.

Story Buys

20th-Fox has bought 'Listening Post,' original story by Michael Uris, and assigned it to Milton Sperling for production. Yarn deals with reactions between aristocratic old Connecticut family and searchlight crew of young sailors stationed on the estate.

Republic has purchased original story, 'Black Market', from Donald Christopher. Armand Shaefer will produce.

Trio For 'Forever'

Polly Bailey, Eddie Dunn and Tom Dugan have been added to the cast of Universal's 'Forever Yours', Deanna Durbin starrer, which Jean Renoir is directing.

Ben Bogeaus Joins UA Producer Ranks

United Artists adds another producer to its ranks with signing of Ben E. Bogeaus, who operates the General Service studios, to make a number of pictures for it. First is to be the life of Sister Elizabeth Kenny, Australian nurse whose treatment of infantile paralysis revolutionized the method of rehabilitation of victims of the disease. Rosalind Russell will play the title role.

Mary McCarthy is working on the initial script. Charles L. Glett will be vice-president in charge of production. Bogeaus expects to finish the film before year end and start on other productions for UA.

Gals Waved Aside

Minneapolis, July 23.—Because of the war the male sex for the first time is getting the call over pretty girls in the various displays and shows of the Aquatennial, annual summer civic festival here. Hitherto, the good-looking femmes have pretty much hogged the spotlight on parade floats and elsewhere. Currently, however, the emphasis almost along the entire line is on male war contribution and effort. Floats carry out war motifs and many are designed to stimulate enlistments and war bond and stamps purchases.

'Miss M From Moscow'

Production is expected to start on 'Miss M From Moscow' around August 6, according to present plans of Albert Herman and George Merrick, who filed incorporation papers this week under the name of M & H Productions, Inc. Arthur St. Clair and Sherman Lowe are writing the script now. Merrick will produce and Herman will direct. Cast and studio are not set yet for second in series which Producers Releasing Corp. will peddle. Initial film, 'A Yank in Libya' has already been released.

'Johnny' Tunesters Set

Jule Styne and Sam Cahn have been set at Republic to write the songs and music for 'Johnny Doughboy', the Jane Withers picture on which John H. Auer is director and producer. Nick Castle has also been set to direct the dance sequences.

'Underground' Now

'Underground Agent' has been set by Columbia as release title of 'Below the White House.' Picture goes before the cameras Monday, with Sam White producing and Michael Gordon directing. Bruce Bennett and Marguerite Chapman head cast.

Sen. Downey Commends Film Industry For War Effort Aid

Senator Sheridan Downey went to the Congressional Record to commend the Hollywood Victory Committee for its activities in support of the war effort. Excerpts from his remarks on the Senate floor and reported in the Record follow:

'This body cannot pause to praise each individual who merits recognition, but it is altogether fitting that we should comment and point with pride when an entire industry goes all out in a special service. The Hollywood Victory Committee, which represents all the motion picture industry, has just made a very valuable contribution to our nation's war effort through the 13-city tour of the Hollywood Victory Caravan for Army and Navy Relief.

'Our hearty commendation for a splendid achievement goes to the Hollywood Victory Committee, which planned and directed the Caravan, to the famous players who contributed their time and talent so wholeheartedly, to the technical workers who assured the success of the unprecedented series of one-night stands, and the theatre men in each city who, cooperating with local Army and Navy Relief committees, had the responsibility of selling the tickets and presenting the Caravan in the best traditions of showmanship.'

Another P & T Stint

Second of four Victory shorts being produced by Paramount, is now in production, with Producers Pine and Thomas handling supervision of 'We Refuse To Die', with Pine directing. Ellen Drew and Barry Sullivan are featured in story built around the Nazi razing of the Czech town of Lidice.

Frisco Chatter

San Francisco, July 23.—Because the house has been closed much of the time, property assessment of Alcazar theatre was cut $2,500 by Board of Supervisors, sitting as a board of equalization.

David Gilmore, billed as a philosopher-commentator, has branched out from KPO onto National Broadcasting Company's Pacific web.

Sam Hayes, NBC newscaster, is visiting here, where he began his radio career, and while in Frisco is airing his Sperry 'Breakfast News' from the local Radio City.

'The Magnificent Ambersons' and stage show featuring Phil Regan, is held for second week at Golden Gate.

Robert Wenzel, assistant shipper at Republic, has been inducted into the Army.

Clarence King, treasurer of Musicians Local 6, and president of the City Planning Commission, is mentioned as a possible appointee of Mayor Rossi to the Board of Supervisors, to succeed a member being inducted.

Joaquin Garay, singer and night club proprietor, will star in a Latin-American musical to be presented during the annual Santa Barbara fiesta, Aug. 26-29.

NEW YORK COURT NIXES LOCAL 306 STRIKE MOVE

mand that Loew's cease to service non-union theatres in the metropolitan area.

Loew's charged in its complaint that strike threatened by the union unless the demands were met, was to affect 65 of its New York theatres, the Loew Film Exchange and it California studio at Culver City.

Judge Goddard held that such a contract as proposed by the defendants would be subject to condemnation, citing that it would be a combination between a union and a non-labor group to eliminate the competition of non-union products, thus constituting a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. The opinion reads:

'Employer - employe relationship has no bearing in the case. Local 306 is attempting to compel the plaintiff to force independent exhibitors to employ only members of Local 306 in its projection rooms. It is in the nature of a reverse secondary boycott, where the union, instead of attempting to coerce the retailer who carries non-union goods, here attempts to coerce the distributor of non-union goods to stop furnishing said materials to non-union customers.

'I do not believe this is a labor dispute, nor do I believe that such action constitutes a lawful trade union objective. The demands of the union, as alleged in the complaint, bear no reasonable relation to wages, hours, health, safety, working conditions or the right to collective bargaining.'

Judge Goddard pointed out Local 306's threat to request the IATSE to call out every employe of Loew's organization unless the demands were complied with. In reference to this, Judge Goddard stated that Loew's had no control over these independent exhibitors; nor have they the right to refuse furnishing them with films. On the contrary, he said, such refusal would result in damage suits being brought against it for breach of the consent decree between the Government and the major picture companies entered into Nov. 20, 1940.

BRITISH FILM QUOTA LAW LIKELY TO BE SCRAPPED

London—Orders changing part of British film quota law are viewed here as possibly paving way for scrapping of entire quota act. Order in council signed July 23 adds two new quota regulations. It gives the Board of Trade power to exempt foreign, which includes principal U. S., shorts that are distributed to exhibitors gratis. These films now are regarded as neutral.

The second regulation enables the Board of Trade to register short propaganda films as British despite the fact that they may contain more foreign footage than heretofore permitted. Recently British exhibitors voiced complaints about the unfairness of the quota under wartime conditions, suggesting suspension of the law until after the war.

WAGE STRIKE MAY SHUTTER ALL AUSTRALIAN THEATRES

Sydney, Australia, July 26. — The Sydney Theatrical Employes Union has set Aug. 1 as deadline for a strike threat throughout Australia, giving theatre operators until then to comply with demands for wage increases. Harry James is working in 'Springtime in the Rockies' at 20th, and then goes to Metro for 'Du Barry Was a Lady.' Tommy Dorsey goes to Paramount in September. Duke Ellington has been signed for 'Cabin In the Sky.' Jimmy Dorsey is due for picture with Red Skelton at Metro this fall, and Ozzie Nelson also has a commitment at that studio. Claude Thornhill reports shortly to Paramount for 'Calgary Stampede.' Count Basie also has a deal at Paramount. Vaughn Monroe is due here in January to do the Camel Show. Sammy Kaye, who recently completed 'Iceland' at 20th is dickering with that studio for another picture. Other leading dance music maestros are heading here during next three months or are remaining on coast for prospective deals.

a new ticket to lengthen his deal. Schenck realized that departure of Rodgers from the company might take top manpower from his sales force, should Rodgers wind up with another affiliation in the industry.

His resignation is understood to have been the result of a culmination of numerous disagreements he had with Schenck and company executives on sales policy, with the matter coming to a climax, it is said, when they finally agreed on his sales plan for 'Mrs. Miniver' at 'no advanced admission prices'. Understood there was also some disagreement on the UMPI plan of which Rodgers is the committee chairman.

Schenck issued a statement Friday after meeting with Rodgers saying he was remaining with the company and expected him to stay indefinitely as he had been so successful during his 18 year association with it.

Louis B. Mayer and Al Lichtman are enroute to New York. It was presumed latter was making the trip to either take over sales affairs, had Rodgers resignation been accepted or to participate in the choosing of his successor. Mayer, it is understood, is primarily east to go to Washington to confer with Government heads on the matter of taking man power, outside of draft age into service. Understood that Col. Mason Wright who was here recently had voiced himself in favor of people remaining in the industry until called and that Mayer has an 18 page memorandum to submit along these lines.

the villain laughs, 'Har! Har!'
The lowbrowed lug is chortling at

The ugly lowlife laughs, 'Har!

The Talk of the Town

(Comedy Drama)

Columbia production. Stars Cary Grant, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman. Features Edgar Buchanan, Glenda Farrell, Charles Dingle, Emma Dunn, Rex Ingram, Leonid Kinskey, Tom Tyler, Don Beddoe. Supporting cast: George Watts, Clyde Fillmore, Frank M. Thomas. Produced and directed by George Stevens. Screenplay, Irwin Shaw, Sidney Buchman. Adaptation, Dale Van Every; based on story by Sidney Harmon. Associate producer, Fred Guiol. Photography, Ted Tetzlaff. Film editor, Otto Meyer. Art direction, Lionel Banks; associate, Rudolph Sternad. Gowns, Irene. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Previewed at Los Angeles, July 26, 1942. Running time: 117 MINS.

With Carey Grant, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman to name-dress the marquee, a story at once purposeful and delightfully humorous, and the demands of sound showmanship and fine screen craftsmanship fulfilled by the producer-director, George Stevens, 'Talk of the Town' is one of the season's important entries, headed for popular favor. A Columbia de luxer, it has the effective combination of picked talent in every department. And while its theme is outside the enlarging circle of immediate war concerns, the picture's frivols are not unseemly nor its dramatic undercurrent untimely.

The narrative, brilliantly stated by Irwin Shaw and Sidney Buchman in their screenplay of the Sidney Harmon tale, concerns itself with the operation of law in an American city from two viewpoints—the purely academic, represented by Ronald Colman, a law school professor headed for the Supreme court, and the immediate practical, represented by Cary Grant, a fugitive from a court politically dominated by the town's crooked boss. Both men, by reasonable circumstance, become denizens in a suburban house leased from Jean Arthur by the professor. At first Miss Arthur seeks desperately and by ludicrous subterfuge to keep them apart, but eventually they meet and Grant is introduced as the girl's gardener. The men become fast friends; argue about the law and life and love. Both are in love with their landlady, who works at being Colman's cook and secretary while he writes his tome on jurisprudence. When Colman finally learns the fact that Grant broke jail to escape trial on a charge of fatal incendiarism, the legal purist feels it his unswervable duty to turn the fugitive back to the machinery of the law. But meantime Colman has discovered that the political boss who has laid the false accusation of firebug against Grant also has whipped up a lynching mania against the escaped prisoner. From this mob the law prof saves Grant by finding and forcing into court the very man presumed (for money) to have been killed in the blaze so that the boss can collect heavy property insurance. In an eloquent speech, set to the national mood, the law expert shames and chastens and awakens the lynch-minded mob by reminding it how freedom and strict observance of law go hand in hand. He gets his appointment to the U. S. Supreme Court—and Grant, freed, gets the girl.

Synopsized so briefly, the story might seem on the heavy side. It is actually stressed and treated for comedy most of the way, with here and there a sudden dramatic thrust to give the humor of situation and character a substantial body. The mild sex implications created by the presence of two men in the home of the woman and her clumsy efforts to explain each to the other at first, are mere screen story conventions, set up for line and look laughs in reactions of Grant and Colman. It is from these light innuendos that the title of the picture presumably derives. Funny, but not at all risque.

The three stars carry their roles in fine interplay of equally enlisted talents, with characters written to order for them. Edgar Buchanan heads the supporting rank with another of his thoughtful and skillful deliveries as an attorney. Contributing importantly also are Glenda Farrell, as an alluring manicurist; Charles Dingle, Emma Dunn, as Miss Arthur's mother; Rex Ingram, Leonid Kinskey, Tom Tyler and Don Beddoe.

In his smart, painstaking but seemingly effortless direction, and backed by his own production responsibilities, George Stevens makes the most of every contribution by his creative and technical collaborators, plus giving the picture the unmistakable label of his own distin-

Riders of the West

(Western)

Monogram production. Features Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton. Supporting cast: Sarah Padden, Harry Woods, Walter McGrail, Charles King, Christine McIntyre, Dennis Moore, Milt Moranti, Bud Osborne. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Producer, Scott R. Dunlap. Original screenplay by Jess Bowers. Photography, Harry Neumann. Assistant director, Mack V. Wright. Technical adviser, E. R. Hickson. Film editor, Carl Pierson. Production manager, Charles J. Bigelow. Previewed at studio projection room, July 26, 1942. Running time: 58 MINS.

Standard entry in the Monogram series of Rough Rider westerns, this one displays familiar dramatic and heroic deeds of the three U. S. marshals, Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton. It will provide sufficient entertainment for the action audiences and kid trade, although it is lacking in the riding footage generally found in this series.

There's little ingenuity in the story of a frontier banker, sheriff and rancher who are in cahoots to rustle cattle of ranchers of the valley so they can take over all the ranches. Sarah Padden asks Buck Jones to come into the picture to clear up the gang that has turned to murder to gain its ends. Jones arrives with his two pals, and immediately dig into the complex situation, but with the usual unfolding, round-up the entire gang and leaders to make the ranchers happy.

Jones and McCoy split the top honors as the two quick-draw marshals, with Hatton adequately filling in broad comedy that will catch attention of the kids. Jess Bowers shows little originality in the original screenplay, and Howard Bretherton displays usual action technique in direction.

Top-Salaried Crowd Coming Through In Relief Drive

High-salaried personnel in the film industry are beginning to kick in for Navy, Dutch, China and Russia War Reliefs, it was indicated yesterday in reports received at campaign headquarters. These donations are believed to be the results of the direct appeals issued by the Campaign Committee, by the Actors, Writers and Directors Guilds, as well as the Artists Managers Guild.

The next meeting of all colonels has been called by Chairman Jacob H. Karp for 12:30 Wednesday at the Hillcrest Country Club. By the time of that meeting leaders said it is hoped that enough high-bracket earners will have responded to assure those working on the drive that the industry will be able to go over the top.

As additional contributions, Walter Abel and Lynne Overman have given the proceeds of special radio appearances. Several other outstanding contributions have come in, the two largest being from an actor and a producer.

'Now that the big salary earners are starting to respond,' said Chairman Karp, 'we are taking courage and feeling somewhat optimistic. However, many more are still to be heard from.

'The people from our industry are always generous and those in the upper brackets have never failed us. However, they sometimes are slow in making their contributions, and that is what is happening in this drive. At our meeting Wednesday the colonels have asked that we discuss some method of getting in the top money more quickly so as not to drag out the drive.'

Camp Tours Actors Given Gold Stars On Record Board

A permanent war record to list patriotic appearances of Hollywood personalities has been installed in the offices of the Hollywood Victory Committee. This board, extending from floor to ceiling and covering an entire side wall of the large central room, charts all the myriad patriotic appearances that started before the attack on Pearl Harbor, and are being carried out in cooperation with Government officials and such national organizations as the American Red Cross.

For the first six months the War Record Board shows 723 players making 3,198 appearances and giving 422 radio shows to entertain the armed forces, selling War Bonds and participating in various other patriotic activities. Board lists all players in alphabetical order, classified by use of color for the names. White denotes actors and actresses, yellow, entertainers; red, singers; blue, dancers; red and blue, song-and-dance artists.

In columns opposite each name are shown appearances in each war activity. Under 'Spot Camps' are the number of trips made to nearby encampments and stations and to Red Cross and similar events; 'Camp Tours' take in the extended trips with USO units; 'Personal Appearances,' 'Radio' and 'Treasury Department Tours' have their individual columns. Gold stars have been placed on the War Record Board for those who have made camp tours. The honor list to date includes the following names:

Stall 'Bambi' Preem

New York, July 26.—World premiere of Walt Disney's 'Bambi', originally set for July 30 at the Music Hall, has been pushed back to later date, not yet set, to follow run of 'Mrs. Miniver', now in its ninth week.

Allied States Execs Rap High Film Rates

New York, July 26.—Resolution appealing to independent exhibitors of the country to resist 'in all legal and effective ways the demands of the producer-distributors for excessive film rentals and also their demands that theatres increase their admission prices', was passed at an Allied States Association directors' meeting in Pittsburgh last week. Complaints by various directors not only reported widespread dissatisfaction of indie exhibs over high film rentals, but also of other distrib policies connected with film buying and booking.

Allied, in supporting UMPI from the start, first directed its complaint in that direction, but was told that the subject of film rentals, distribution policies, etc., resided in the hands of the individual distributors and could not be considered as an UMPI matter.

Joint statement issued by President M. A. Rosenberg and General Counsel Abram F. Myers charges the distributors with continual increases in film rentals, with attendant evils of more percentage pictures, higher percentages, preferred playing time, and forced increases of admissions plus demands for extended runs.

Skouras Entourage Back From Jaunt

Following a week of investigating new conditions in the northern boom areas, group of Fox-West Coast execs, including Prexy Charles P. Skouras, Charles Buckley, v-p and attorney, and W. H. (Bud) Lollier, returned Friday. Earlier in the week other firm members who had been with them returned.

Though disclosing intentions of meeting the population increases and attendant changes, they would not reveal any specific plans. Comment was confined to statement that several deals are under way to meet the problem. Situation promises to nearly double itself by the first of next year, according to Lollier. He added that conditions change almost weekly in the Richmond, Vallejo, Frisco area.

Rex Ingram is set at Metro for 'Cabin in the Sky', to play the same role he created in the stage play. Ethel Waters and Lena Horne head cast.

JWT Loses 'Family' To Ted Bates; Budget Too Strong for Tea

'One Man's Family', long rated top serial show on the air, goes over to the Ted Bates agency Sept. 1 for sponsorship by a new Standard Brands product. For years tied in with SB's Tenderleaf Tea, the program and account have been handled by the J. Walter Thompson agency, which retains the account. With likelihood of sale of the beverage being regulated by the government, food packer decided to shift the program to an account which can justify the budget.

Bates outfit, which recently took Royal Gelatine away from Sherman K. Ellis, likely will team up 'Family' with that product. Agency also has acquired other Standard Brands biz, including Fleischmann gin and a brand of hard likker.

Teamster Coin Backing New Don Lee Airer

Teamsters union is underwriting a half hour dramatic program on the Don Lee network which may be developed into a series. Show airs tonight at 6:30 from KHJ, with Eddie Robinson producing from a script by Earle Hall. Tentatively titled 'Curtain America,' piece dramatizing the Pearl Harbor incident on the takeoff is offering $100 war bond for a better tag.

MG After Count Basie

Metro is negotiating with Count Basie for his band to go into one of the studio's musicals. Sepian crew opens Aug. 30 at the Trianon in South Gate.

Obituary

JAMES O'KEEFE

James O'Keefe, 53, mgr. of 20th-Fox studio music department for the past 10 years, died suddenly yesterday morning of a heart attack in Colorado Springs, Col. He had left Friday, accompanied by wife and daughter, to meet a brother coming from the east, for family reunion and vacation, and was stricken shortly after arrival at the Springs.

In the Navy during the last war, O'Keefe wrote a musical comedy and continued as a writer and composer prior to coming to the Coast, being a member of Ascap. His wife, the former Edna Locke, and daughter, 12, survive. Funeral services will be held in New Jersey, with body being taken east by the brother of the deceased.

RKO Gets $3,000,000 Loan as Sales Meet Opens in New York

New York, July 26.—On the eve of opening of RKO annual sales meeting here tomorrow, it is understood the company has obtained $3,000,000 via a loan from the First National Bank of Boston. RKO had sought at least that amount during the past six weeks, hoping to secure something near that figure pending unfreezing of distribution coin held in Great Britain and remittances to this country. Company required the money for future production on the Coast.

President Ned Depinet will preside at the sales sessions, which open Monday morning for three days in the Serf Room of the Waldorf Astoria hotel.

First order of business will be unveiling by Colonel Richard C. Patterson, chairman of the RKO board, of the company's service plaque listing some 400 company employes of RKO and subsidiaries in the armed forces. In addition to the branch managers and salesmen from 38 branches in the United States and Canada, district sales execs and home office personnel are in attendance.

Tufts Directs Coast Radio For R & R

Nate Tufts, longtime producer for Ruthrauff & Ryan, has been named Coast director of radio for the agency and gets in today from New York to take over. He will supervise all R & R airers originating here. For years he produced the Joe Penner show and lately has been directing 'Vox Pop.' Appointment was made by Don Stauffer, radio head of R & R.

guished style. Veteran expertness of Fred Guiol shows in the associate producership. Dale Van Every carries out his own best standards in the photography, and Frederick Hollander and M. W. Stoloff support ably with music and its direction.

Picture is long but lush. It moves around—to a ball game, through chases, one featuring yelping bloodhounds in comedy vein, in and out of courts, to a jive ball where Colman shrewdly courts the fickle manicurist, to garrets and bedrooms and patio picnics, and finally to the stately chambers of the highest court in the land, which isn't far from Sweetbrook, U. S. A., where the fable is laid.

Hawks Goes To Florida With 'Air Force' Cast

Howard Hawks headed the Warners 'Air Force' company for Florida over the week-end, where 100 cast and crew will shoot air and ground battle sequences for the film at Tampa. Hawks had planned to plane, but took train at last minute, as did B. Reeves Eason, his second unit director.

Flying out Saturday, with Paul Mantz piloting, were Chuck Hansen, unit manager; James Wong Howe, chief cameraman; Jack Sullivan, Hawks first assistant director, and Major Jack Coulter, U. S. Air Force, as technical adviser.

Going by train with Hawks were Harry Carey, Ward Wood, John Ridgely, Gig Young, James Brown, Arthur Kennedy, Charles Drake and Ray Montgomery. John Garfield and George Tobias already are in Tampa. Troupe will be away six weeks.

Cole, Allied States Top, Will Confer With Ascap

New York, July 26.—Col. H. A. Cole, director of Allied States Assn., is in New York prepared to meet on Monday or Tuesday with John G. Paine, general manager of ASCAP to further discuss demands made a couple months ago by Allied for relief under the ASCAP seat tax, mainly through revision of the charges made against all exhibitors.

He and Abram F. Myers, general counsel for Allied, met with Paine previously, with the ASCAP general manager asking for time in order to go over the situation carefully, prepare statistics, etc. Allied feels that the scaling of the tax as between higher and lower-bracket theatres is not what it should be.

Halt United Newsreel; Await OWI Approval

New York, July 26. — United Newsreel has been temporarily suspended as a film industry proposition, pending definite action by the Office of War Information. It is reported all the staff has been taken off the company payrolls and work suspended. Until the OWI or its subdivisions decide, the five major film companies which backed the project more than two months ago and got out five issues with none being distributed, will make no further moves in the matter.

Project will be resumed whenever the Government agencies reach a final decision. United Newsreel was formed at the instigation of the Donovan committee as U. S. effort to inform on-the-fence nations of America's war effort to counteract Axis propaganda. Ned Buddy, ex-Paramount newsreel head in Europe, has been editor of United Newsreel, but could not be reached regarding details of suspension of activities.

Indie Union Represents 20th-Fox Janitors

Washington, July 26.—A independent union was certified today to bargain for the janitors and matrons at 20th-Fox studio. The National Labor Relations Board rubber stamped a report that 68 out of 71 ballots were for the Janitors and Matrons Guild, an independent union, to represent the janitors, matrons, window washers and dressing room attendants.

Faulkner Gets WB Deal

William Faulkner has been signed to term writing contract at Warners. He will work on an original not yet titled. Writer's previous screen stint was at 20th-Fox several years ago.

U August Chores Are Leveled on Top Budget Films

Universal's production level runs high throughout August, with seven of its most important pictures of the year in work. Never before in the company's history have so many high-budgeters been before the cameras at one time.

August schedule marks production bow of Charles Boyer, co-producer with Julien Duvivier in 'Flesh and Fantasy.' It will be made in four episodes, with all-star casts for each. First episode, starring Edward G. Robinson, with Thomas Mitchell, already is in work, but filming continues throughout the month. Boyer works in the second episode as actor, as well as co-producer.

Rolling also is the Jack Skirball production, 'Shadow of a Doubt,' which Alfred Hitchcock directs. Practically the whole picture will be made on location at Santa Rosa. Joseph Cotten, Teresa Wright, Macdonald Carey, Patricia Collinge, Wallace Ford and Henry Travers. Dwight Taylor contributes his initial producer effort, 'Nightmare,' which he also scripted.

Robert Fellows produces 'Pittsburgh' as his first at Universal, in package deal including Marlene Dietrich, John Wayne and Randolph Scott. Howard Hawks starts 'Corvettes in Action,' which Richard Rossen will direct, with topliners still to be named. Robert Stack, Dick Foran and Patric Knowles head feature bracket.

Honor Men

Robert E. Lee, radio writer, left for Washington to join the War Department as special consultant on radio matters, functioning in the Special Service branch under Major Tom Lewis and Capt. Charles Vanda. Jerry Lawrence, also a radio writer, accompanied him east to contact officials regarding a similar post.

Karl Whittacker of the 20th-Fox police department, is joining the Marines as a sergeant. He previously served eight years with the Marines and is slated for admission to officers training school.

Wesley Barry, former child actor, who has been an assistant director at RKO reports for duty in the Navy August 3. Two other RKOites, bit player Tom Casey and John Grout of the prop department have entered the Army.

Leo Miller of Warners theatre booking department gets induction into the Army August 13. Paul Renay, film actor, is attending Officers Training School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Autry Continues On Air

Gene Autry has been granted permission by the War Department to continue on the 'Melody Ranch' program over CBS. On yesterday's broadcast he was sworn in as a technical sergeant in the Army Air Force. Program will continue under the Wrigley sponsorship, with Autry donating his weekly stipend to Army Relief. The arrangement is similar to that which allows Ezra Stone time out from his Army duties to do his Aldrich Family program in season.

Warner Collarites May Strike At Home Office

New York, July 26.—White Collarites in Warners home office who are members of the Motion Picture Office Employes Local 23169 of the American Federation of Labor may go on strike on sudden notice, it was reported tonight, because of a stymie in negotiations with company executives. It was stated the walkout might occur Monday.

The union has been discussing a two-year contract, calling for increases for the clerical and other help represented by the MPOE.

While this white collar union represents workers in Warners and also Universal, where it has a contract covering home office as well as exchange help in New York, a Congress of Industrial Organizations affiliate has jurisdiction of similar employes in Loew's, RKO, 20th-Fox, Columbia and National Screen Service, where elections have been held. The CIO group is known as the Screen Office Employes and Professional Guild. The SOPEG also is organizing Paramount, but so far no date has been set for an election there to determine whether a majority among employe-members exists.

IA LAUNCHES FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF CAMERAMEN

Chamber of Commerce, Prexy Walsh told them: 'We might have to fight before the National Labor Relations Board, where I am confident we could win, and we might have to fight in other places.'

Walsh told the lensers there were laws in the IATSE constitution to take care of men belonging to dual organizations, expressed pleasure at the big membership turnout, and commended the union as being one of the best IA locals on the Coast.

The IA head told the members that the International intended to back them in every way possible. He then explained that Len Smith, a member of the American Society of Cinematographers, had been recalled by Metro from location work in the state of Washington, and that the camera duties had been turned over to Charles Boyle, an IATSE member who had been handling the color photography on the Washington location. He also stated that Ed Cronjager was being recalled by 20th-Fox from a Utah location, and that the cameras were being turned over to Bill Snyder and Virgil Miller, 659 members.

Protest over the two ASC lensers working the out-of-state locations was made to Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, Friday night. It is understood that Walsh pointed out the ASC contract with Producers covered only lensers working in the state of California. Casey presumably called this to the attention of studio heads, with the result the two lensers were called in.

In the meantime, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with whom a majority of the directors of photography are now affiliated, has called a meeting of union tops for today to act in the situation. It is understood that at least two of the cameramen replacing ASC location lensers are IBEW members. This would indicate they are now carrying three cards, the IBEW, ASC and IATSE. Plans to offset the IATSE drive will be discussed today when Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative; Business Manager George (Curly) Davis, and others meet with Prexy Jackman of the ASC.

Both groups apparently are awaiting action by the NLRB on the ASC petition charging the Producers and the IATSE with unfair labor practices. Charge claims the major companies negotiated with the IATSE for directors of photography while having a five-year contract with the ASC covering their duties and wages. NLRB has about completed its investigation, and Director William Walsh is expected to decide this week whether a formal complaint will be issued and a hearing ordered before a NLRB examiner.

Australian Theatres May Be Shuttered By Wage Strike

wages are predicated on claim that the Australian entertainment industry, particularly the cinemas, are enjoying the greatest wave of prosperity in history. In addition it is stated that apart from the basic wage increases higher salaries should be paid because the employes had not had their pay restored to level prior to cuts made during the depression.

Present wages range from $51 to $30, they claim. Theatre executives are huddling daily in the hopes of solving the present difficulties, but it is not known whether there will be a full shutdown of theatres because it has not been determined whether the demands will be met. There is a possibility the government will step in and order a hearing by an arbitration court.

Attention Mr. E. Joseph

Gentlemen:

We appreciate very much your report relative to Bond and Stamp sales at Victory Windows, Wednesday, July 1, at the inception of the Retailers for Victory Drive. Please accept our heartiest congratulations and our sincere expression of appreciation in this connection. We noted with interest, also, the effective window displays which you employed and the advertisements which you ran incident to opening the campaign.

Your company has been a pioneer and pacemaker in the retail field of Southern California. Your cooperation has been ingenuous and effective. Without question it has set a standard [illegible] on the part of many others and it has come to our notice in several ways that your activities have been of value to the War Savings Program, nationally, as well as locally.

Foreign Film Shipments Still Under Study

New York, July 27. — Foreign managers and their assistants conferred today with film company shipping heads in the Hays office in an effort to map out a program for expediting film shipments to foreign markets. Suggestions and other details were sought on the matter of foreign shipments so that foreign film departments may make certain recommendations to U. S. officials.

Typical difficulty being encountered in shipments is the report that it's taking three to four weeks to get films to certain Latin-American countries.

AMERICAN WEEKLY, Sunday newspaper supplement of the Hearst sheets, has opened its pages to production stills and reviews of pictures in what is apparently a move to garner motion picture advertising on a larger scale. Heretofore, film ads have usually been confined to special productions, but advertising and publicity experts in the film business see appointment of an American Weekly motion picture editor and display of stills and reviews as first step in campaign to crack regular studio advertising budgets. Weekly has given space to several pictures during recent weeks, latest being 'The Moon and Sixpence,' Loew-Lewin production for United Artists which is slated for October 1 release. While review on film goes into merits of story, production, directing and playing as though writer had just come from a screening, it is doubtful if sheet's picture editor has seen the feature. 'Moon' has had several sneak screenings in this area, but has not been shown to the press. Final musical score is only now being recorded by Dimitri Tiomkin (yet 'review' called score 'especially noteworthy') and trade preview will not be held for several weeks. Understood Hays office was not too favorable towards display given the film in last Sunday's edition of the American, although no official protest has been made. 'Review' stressed picture as 'a story "too wicked" for the movies' and led off its article with reference to the censorable matter in the Somerset Maugham novel.

DESPITE the eventual outcome of James Petrillo's edict that all phonograph and transcription discs of musical nature be discontinued Aug. 1, musicians and others connected with plattering will virtually mark time—insofar as recordings are concerned—for the next three months at least. The record makers—Decca, Victor, Columbia, Capitol and Beacon—have intensively combed the files of advance music for both pictures and musical shows to such an extent that one exec figures the discers have waxed every potential song hit of the next four to six months. Close contact of Decca, Victor and Columbia with the songwriters and studios has resulted in recording songs and numbers that will be in pictures released as far away as January by major studios. Musicians, it was stated, can easily take a virtual siesta for the next few months, insofar as getting regular coin from the record companies is concerned. In addition to pop tunes, the discer labels have stocked up with advance cuttings of classicals and symphonies during the past two months both on the east and west coasts. Critical situations of shellac for release discs may reduce number of releases allowed for each major recording label, which will further delay the hefty coin previously dished out to the musicians for that type of work.

LOCAL network commentator, recently graduated from newscasting, got himself slightly jammed up with one of the news services when he took too many liberties with leased wire war dispatches. Appropriating the cabled reports as his own personal evaluations, the chap turned purplish when he was dressed down by the wire boss for lifting the dispatches for his own commentary and crediting only himself in the first person. News head was willing to forget it on promise by the commentator that hereafter his opinions would be his own and not those filched from the news service and dressed up in his own verbiage.

WILLIAM F. RODGERS who agreed to remain with Metro after resigning last week and was given a new five year contract by Nicholas M. Schenck, company prexy, gets more coin and no more interference in his operations from company executives. Rodgers resented a studio executive and a home office executive interfering in sales policy and activities and the new deal provides that he is only responsible to Schenck in the future. Likewise another incentive for him to remain was in the new ticket his salary jumps from $2,300 a week to $3,000 a week for first two years, $3,500 for next two years and winds up at $4,000 a week for final year.

THERE'S generally a Sam Goldwyn story that goes along with a Sam Goldwyn production and 'Pride of the Yankees' is no exception. One well known writer was hired to do the story treatment, at the conclusion of which he was dropped and two others were hired to do the scripting. There was a mild protest over the summary dismissal of the first writer, to which Sam finally replied: 'Well, I tell you. I wanted to get some of the flavor of "Sergeant York" into it.' The dismissed writer they were talking about was Aben Finkel —who was one of the men who worked on 'Sergeant York.'

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

The Victory Garden is covered with dust
And the spuds and tomatoes droop.
The beans and the peas are a total bust
As the ravenous insects swoop.
The radishes wilt in the summer air
And gasp for a cooling drink.
The cabbages wither in dry despair
And the onions are on the blink.

Time was when the Victory Gardens grew
On many a Hollywood lot
But that was the time when the year was new
And the sun wasn't quite so hot.
The farmer's life is an endless strife,
As it was when the world began,
But the Victory Gardener tells his wife
To open another can.

Some actors were born in farm houses and have a nostalgic leaning toward agriculture. Many of them actually raise cattle, hogs, alfalfa and whatnot on their semi-pro ranches. Which raises an ethical problem: Is a thespian-farmer required to pay his agent 10% of his rutabaga profits?

Game guy is Dwight Taylor, who starts his producing career with a film called 'Nightmare.'

'The Man on America's Conscience' covers a period when political oratory reached its highest lung-power. Stump speaking was the national pastime in those leisurely days when radios, film houses and baseball parks were unknown. An oration was an all-day event, with the populace squatting on the village green and taking an occasional snack from the family lunch basket. Derby distance in the oratorical field was six hours. Anything less than that was a sprint, scorned by the public. Now and then there was a Futurity, a two-hour dash for young speakers who had not attained the lungs of maturity. They were the cartoon shorts of that period. On rare occasions there was an oratorical Malicious whose roaring rhetoric resounded from sunup to sundown without a re-fill. In those days orations were measured by the clock, with little regard for the wisdom of the orator's words. That is why Abraham Lincoln's address at Gettysburg attracted so little attention at the time. Later it was recognized as one of the greatest human utterances, but on that particular day the crowd was waiting for a long-winded orator and yelling (in effect) 'Here comes Malicious.'

Back in your grandpop's day there was a popular tune, 'Oh, Listen to the Band,' and a lot of film producers are feeling like that today.

'The Man With the Cloak Full of Holes' is a title with the marquee full of bulbs.

Big Coin Needed To Put Over Campaign For War Reliefs

Unless there is a decided last-minute pickup today in big money contributions, the film industry's campaign committee will fall short of the 75% goal set for tomorrow's report luncheon of the drive for Navy, Dutch, China and Russia War Reliefs. Contributions from higher-salaried earners continued to come in over the weekend and through yesterday, but not in sufficient number to assure reaching the three-quarter mark as scheduled.

Nelson Eddy advised the committee he was contributing all proceeds of a special broadcast, and Humphrey Bogart asked his manager to arrange a broadcast from which he will turn over all receipts to the drive.

At tomorrow's luncheon William Morris, Jr., chairman of the Artists Managers Guild committee, will outline plans for intensive cooperation promised by every member of that group for the next week. It also is expected that representatives of the three talent guilds will be asked to lend even greater cooperation in order to assure success of the campaign.

EMPLOYE BRACKETS OKAYED BY SOEG

Tentative agreement on classification of major film exchange Collarites was reached yesterday at conference between SOEG tops and company representatives. Proposals were okayed by the Exchange Guild unit subject to minor revisions which will be taken up today.

If minor changes are approved by company executives, the SOEG is prepared to immediately start negotiating minimum wage scales, with the possibility of completing a contract today. When pact is completed it probably will be decided whether same deal will be extended to cover Collarites in San Francisco exchanges who are now affiliated with the SOEG.

FAST MOVING EVENTS PUSH 'THUNDER BIRDS' INTO WORK

Current world events are moving at such a fast pace 20th-Fox has put 'Thunder Birds' back into production for remake of about one-third of the picture. Technicolor film was originally made by William Wellman early this spring, following which he started directing 'Ox Bow Incident' at the same studio.

Rapid developments on the international scene, however, made several episodes out-of-date. In addition, Darryl Zanuck returned from his trip abroad and conferences with British officials to get some new ideas about the picture. After looking at a rough cut of the finished film, Zanuck instructed rewrite of various episodes and situations.

Although studio originally figured the retakes and revised sequences would take about two weeks, difficulties have been encountered in getting necessary cast members back on the lot, due to assignments at other studios, and shooting time may be extended. Alfred Werker is directing the new footage.

Studio officials plan to rush release of 'Thunder Birds' as soon after editing is completed as possible, to prevent any further outdating of its dramatic material.

Tunesters, Morale Men Meet on War Songs

New York, July 27.—Songwriters Protective Association has called a meeting for tomorrow here to discuss with morale men for the armed forces, problem of providing suitable music in tempo with wartimes. As Sigmund Romberg, SWPA prez, put it, 'The need is for songs to be sung by the fighters rather than at them.'

Meeting is followup of preliminary sesh last week, at which time pop music publishers listened to Office of War Information officials, who asked for more 'fighting songs' and less boy-and-girl June-moon-soon-tune ditties.

ENTHUSED RKO SALES FORCE ADDRESSED BY RATHVON

Koerner 'made a great start at the studio', and 'I think we will have some real strong production under a good, tough showman'.

Production lineup for 1942-43 program is slated for announcement tomorrow, and will likely show around 40 features, fewer westerns, and less shorts. Shorts lineup will not have the March of Time, as the current one-year pact ending with the forthcoming issue of 'Men With the Fleet' is being supplanted by 'This Is America', also a two-reel series issued every four weeks, which likely will be turned out by Pathe newsreel organization.

The March of Time is being sought by several other majors, with deal likely to be set tomorrow. It is understood MT execs want included its forthcoming feature, already 50% completed, in any new releasing deal. Latter is main stumbling block to negotiations.

Virtual total absence of any entertainment lined up for the conventionites points up the fact that the company regards the sales sessions as strictly business. Preview of Damon Runyon's 'Big Street' tonight, is the only off-biz affair outside of an elaborate luncheon tomorrow in the hotel grand ballroom. Visit to Pathe News, a comparatively new plant, will highlight the Wednesday sessions. Col. Richard Patterson, Jr., chairman of the board, unveiled the company's servicemen's honor plaque containing 400 names of RKO employes now in service.

Fred Astaire returns to the RKO banner to star in at least one picture, 'Look Out Below', for the 1942-43 program, it was officially announced to the sales group. It was further stated that 12 pictures of next season's lineup have been completed, and five were currently before the cameras.

The sales meetings wind up Wednesday night.

Raw Stock Saving Will Be Told at WPB Meet

sentatives of the War Production Board. It is believed the intention of the film business will be to show what strides are being made by the industry in working out its own conservation system without offering any definite percentage arrangement on the reduction of film raw stock usage.

The directors also worked on figures of individual companies to incorporate in the film business application for unfreezing of about $52,000,000 presently impounded in Great Britain. It does not seem likely that the industry will offer any static percentage method for saving raw stock, but will continue seeking continuance of a voluntary industry method for conservation. Indications are that some sort of decision will be reached at the meeting this week with the WPB in Washington, either to allow the industry to continue as at present, or for the Government to issue an order on how to eliminate a certain number of productions or prints.

It is understood the Government has no reason to find fault with the amount of raw stock used for production negatives, but it is likely several of the major companies, which use considerably more prints for top and other product, will be requested to reduce the total to the proportions which other companies use. Metro may be one of the companies required to make the downward revision.

Musicians Pulled At KFRC, Frisco; Nix Work Increase

San Francisco, July 27.—Musicians today were called off the job at KFRC after station refused to approve increased employment from one hour, six days, at $40, to two hours, six days, at $56. Don Lee station agreed to a pay boost of $46 weekly at the one-hour employment and to accept the two-hour minimum as of Sept. 15. Musicians Union took the position station must agree to same conditions as those obtaining with other network affiliates.

William Pabst, KFRC manager, said: 'If radio stations were to accept the premise that they are obliged to abide by scale conditions and hours, they would be agreeing to follow the caprices of that group to whatever heights of folly they might conceive.'

ANOTHER OPEN LETTER TO SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Maybe, Mr. Goldwyn, since I last addressed you it has been possible for you to go into a little mathematics. You may or may not know the way to ascertain the fact that addition is not subtraction. But, if you do, you probably would not have made an announcement, in view of the wishes of the War Production Board, that you had decided that it would be right for you, an outstanding and notable producer, as you describe yourself, to increase the amount of product.

But maybe, Mr. Goldwyn, you probably did not think this important at this time. You likely felt that the only mathematics that concern you, or should be of concern to you, are as to how much revenue you can get from the exhibitors for your latest picture. Well, I heard that you want one of those 50-50 deals with advanced admissions and other regulations that you feel you have the right to impose on the exhibitor, who in turn imposes them on his patrons.

That's your business, Mr. Goldwyn, to figure your way. Fortunately there are some exhibitors who do not feel like inflicting a penalty on patrons in order to see a good picture.

We feel that they should pay no more to see any one good picture than another. You know we do not get outstanding films all the time, and maybe you know, too, that Metro has a smash picture, "Mrs. Miniver", for which they are not penalizing the exhibitor and the public - - it is being shown at the regular scale of admission. Metro calls itself "the friendly company". I hope you are the friendly producer. So why do you want advanced admission for a picture at a time this country is trying to avoid inflation? Aren't you friendly toward the National movement in this direction and to the exhibitor? Every good unselfish American should be!

Then, too, a producer told me that when you make a picture you require so many retakes on it that another producer could turn out a completed feature picture with the same amount of material. I hope that you will not continue to do that, as you might cause the War Production Board to clamp down on the picture industry as a whole, and penalize producers who are attempting conservation of raw film stock. This producer tells me, too, that you are most lavish in the use of negative stock to make tests of players. You know that film for whatever purpose it is used is a charge against the picture business, too. I hope that you will realize this fact so that the tests you make in the future will be necessary ones, not productions.

Should you conserve in these two directions, I do not believe it will affect your standing in the business, as the "Great Goldwyn", as you like to be known to everybody.

But really, Mr. Goldwyn, I hope that you have given serious thought to the literal meaning of "conservation", and, as a good supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt, seriously decide that as long as you advocate the reduction of film production to 40 per cent of what it is now, you will realize that it is necessary to subtract from, instead of adding to what you gave the public in 1939-40-41, for the coming season. I hope that you will decide in two words — "Im - - possible" —on any other plans outside of conservation for the good of yourself and the entire motion picture industry.

You describe yourself always as a leader in the picture industry, so why not lead the way yourself, cut your product 40 per cent, and then others will have reason to follow along these lines.

Or, Mr. Goldwyn, were you just kidding in giving out those newspaper stories about cutting product by everyone and still adding to what you made each year for the past three years?

AN INDEPENDENT EXHIBITOR.

MacKaye Will Oppose Manning for Prexy Of Local AFRA

Fred MacKaye and Knox Manning have been nominated for president of the Los Angeles Local of the American Federation of Radio Artists in election to be held Sept. 28. MacKaye currently is fifth vice-prexy and Manning is treasurer of the organization. True Boardman will continue to serve as prexy until his successor is chosen and seated.

Hal Berger and Earle Ross have been nominated for first vice-president, Norman Field and Frank Nelson for second vice-prexy, George Backus and Betty Wilbur for third vice-prexy, Bud Hiestand and Paul Keast for fourth vice-prexy, Edwin Max and Lee Sweetland for fifth vice-president. Ynez Seabury and Eric Snowden are candidates for recording secretary, and Lucile La Point and Bill Days for treasurer.

Eleven vacancies also will be filled on the board of directors. Six will be elected from the following candidates to represent the actors on the board: Jack Arnold, Warren Ashe, Griff Barnett, Hal Berger, Norman Field, Byron Kane, Wally Maher, Frank Nelson, Earle Ross, Ynez Seabury, Eric Snowden and Lurene Tuttle.

Four board members will be selected from the following candidates to represent the singers: Dick Davis, Bill Days, Ray Linn, Martha Mears, Betty Jane Rhodes and Bob Stevens.

Walter Snow and Cliff Thorsness are nominees for the board to represent the sound effects men, with one to be elected.

The AFRA constitution provides that in addition to nominations made by the nominating committee, other nominations for officers and members of the board may be made in writing and delivered to the executive secretary before the annual meeting, by petition signed by 15 active members in good standing. Candidates for officers, however, must be members of the board who have served on board for not less than one year. As a usual thing, the membership follows the recommendations of the nominating committee and no other selections are made.

WALSH TRIES TO CEMENT IA GROUPS IN CAMERA FIGHT

ASC cameramen from location jobs, and indicated the IBEW was planning a 'stupendous move that would take the IA out of the picture'.

In the meantime, IATSE Prexy Richard Walsh was trying to solidify the 10 IA studio locals into a smooth-working unit that would give the IA a real wedge in the camera jurisdictional battle.

At a meeting of business representatives and presidents of the locals Walsh suggested the crafts form their own conference and work together in the interests of each other.

He said the old IA Business Representatives Committee formed by Harold V. Smith to force a showdown on Producer negotiations can be revived, or some similar organization launched, suggesting some impartial person like Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper be selected to head it. He tossed bouquets at Film Technicians Local 683 for the manner in which the membership attends meetings, and criticized other IA crafts for non-attendance.

Walsh attacked the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell as being a group of 'paper unions', with the exception of Studio Painters, indicating the latter were the only Conference group having any strength. He did not mention Local 683's affiliation with the Conference or explain whether they were included in the 'paper unions'. He touched vaguely on a program which he hinted would make the IATSE again the outstanding studio organization and adopted the old Willie Bioff alibi refrain of 'Don't believe the lies you see in Daily Variety'. The chant also was echoed by Vice-Prexy Cooper Sunday when he appeared before what was left of Studio Laborers and Utility Employes Local 727 after much of its jurisdiction was surrendered to another American Federation of Labor union.

Gilpin Production Head Of Stromberg UA Unit

Mull 'Out of Bounds' Cases—

Action was begun yesterday by 15 cafes, declared 'out of bounds' by the U. S. Navy, to have the Board of Equalization reinstate their licenses, which had been temporarily suspended. Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson took under submission the Board's demurrer to the writ of mandate brought by the cafe operators, the court further announcing that it would decide soon whether temporary restraining orders should remain in effect, pending outcome of the suit.

Actress Charges Cruelty—

Don Raye, film song writer, has been made defendant, under his legal name, Donald McRae Wilhoite, Jr., of a divorce action in Superior court brought by Mrs. Lillian Dawson Wilhoite, former actress. The charge is cruelty. The court has been asked to approve a property settlement under which Mrs. Wilhoite would receive $75 a week for a year from his weekly salary of $165.

Officially 'Will Rogers Beach'—

Will Rogers Beach, near Santa Monica, was officially dedicated yesterday with a ceremony in which Governor Olson; Mrs. Will Rogers, Miss Mary Rogers, his daughter, and Lieut. Will Rogers, Jr., participated. Service men will have exclusive use of lockers and showers in the lighthouse building on the property, which has been converted into a state beach.

Billy Rose In 3-A—

Billy Rose was reclassified yesterday by a New York draft board, which deferred the status of the producer from 1-A to 3-A on the dependency of his wife, the former Eleanor Holm. Rose, who had listed as dependents his wife, a sister and two uncles, originally was held 'available for unlimited military service.'

Joan Marsh Suit Up Thursday—

Hearing of the divorce suit brought by Joan Marsh, actress, against Charles Belden, writer, has been set for Thursday before Superior Judge Kurtz Kauffman. Scheduled for yesterday, it was deferred in order to give Belden time to engage counsel. They were married in 1938 and separated two weeks ago.

Crawford's Cousin Divorced—

Estelle Lynn, former film stunt girl and cousin of Joan Crawford, was granted divorce yesterday from David Lynn, attorney, who now is an Army sergeant. She is known professionally as Estelle Le Sueur.

Dancing Girls Will Be Featured In Army Shows

Dancing girls will for the first time be featured in the spot shows the Hollywood Victory Committee will send to nearby Army camps, Naval stations, Red Cross and other sanctioned functions when the new summer program gets under way this week. Spot shows have been stymied for 10 days while work was in progress building five new shows and augmenting the 14 units that have been active during the past six months.

Dancing girls from film productions have volunteered their time and services to form lines of six and eight, with dance directors assisting in the rehearsals. Studios are loaning costumes to outfit the dancers.

The LeRoy Prinz Girls and the Danny Dare Girls are already organized and ready to go to the local home camps with other Hollywood personalities to furnish morale-building entertainment.

TDB Will Streamline Its Functions Here

Following installation of George Watters, of Fox-West Coast, as new chairman, replacing Rodney Pantages, Theatre Defense Board this week decided on two new measures to streamline its functions. Some 140 non-entertainment cabarets, regarded as uncontrollable and uncooperating, were dropped. Their supervision will be returned to civil authorities, and it's likely other undesirables considered dangerous, will also be dropped. Board also created flying squads of Board members who will personally inspect all entertainment places embraced before issuing certificates of excellence, and for purpose of completely educating participants as to individual roles.

Split among Board, 215 amusement places will be covered starting next week. Regular Thursday meeting will be cancelled this week to permit the work. Tom Bailey, of National Screen, and Rodney Pantages, laid ground work with preliminary visits during past week. In addition panic prevention manuals will be distributed this week.

Committee members reported 148 theatres have been okayed by the Fire Department. Only 57 remain. Only 19 out of 225, including legit houses, are not qualified by Red Cross. Victory reels are 90% in use.

Mono's August Quartet

Monogram has scheduled four pictures for August release, starting with 'Smart Alecks' on Aug. 7. Others are 'Hillbilly Blitzkrieg', Aug. 14; 'Riders of the West', Aug. 21, and 'One Thrilling Night', Aug. 28.

Doob Maps Plans For War Bond Tours Of 200 Film Players

Washington, July 27. — Oscar Doob, who has been given a 60-day leave by Loew's to handle the film industry's promotion drive for the Treasury Department, was here over the weekend with Howard Dietz of Metro. The two were mapping plans with Treasury officials to reach the billion-dollar goal set for War Bond sales in September.

Gordon Whyte of the Treasury Department has gone to New York to organize schedules for the seven tours which will use 200 stars and featured players.

The British Embassy and Minister of Information have been asked by the Treasury to provide bombs and war souvenirs for the decoration of theatre lobbies. In each city and town visited local exchange managers and exhibitors will be expected to supply the entertainment and supplement the appearance of the stars. Much of the star activity will be devoted to interesting industrial workers in war centers into enrolling for 10% payroll Bond purchase plan.

Hollyw'd Names Linked In Navy Court Martial

San Francisco, July 27.—Hollywood personalities are linked strongly with the activities of Lieut. Commander Maurice N. Aroff, USNR, in civilian life a plumber who transacted biz with studios there, who went on trial here before a Navy general court martial board today, charged with scandalous conduct.

Among the charges made against Aroff are that he accepted a $950 automobile from Tony Martin for facilitating the latter's enlistment as a chief specialist in the Naval Reserve. Also receiving a set of shirt studs and cuff links from Lawrence Stromberg, son of a prominent Hollywood jeweler, and a pair of gold cuff links from Irving Cummings, Jr., scenarist, for alleged aid he had given them in their efforts to obtain commissions as ensigns. Currently the latter two are Ensigns while Martin is manager of the Navy theatre on Treasure Island, job he has had three months.

All three of the alleged gift donors will be called as witnesses as will a number of film folks from Hollywood who associated with Aroff prior too and after he entered the service.

Bonds Are the Reward

20th-Fox Studio Conservation Committee has awarded $100 war bond to Arthur G. Wright, sound boom man, for new type boom useful when cameras operate at close quarters and designed to fit any size electric light fixture. One man can handle it. Also $50 bonds were awarded each to John Lavin head of grip department, and Al De Grignon, sound man, for their common suggestion that pipe be used to replace wooden handrails on sound stage parallels, thus eliminating danger of splinters.

line previously set by Petrillo. Federal Communications Commission is pursuing its investigation over the canceling of the network broadcast of the Youth Symphony from Interlochen, Mich.

Labor leaders here say that the AFM defense will be based on the Norris-LaGuardia act which limits the jurisdiction of the Federal courts in labor disputes. Murmurs of discontent among band leaders affected by the Petrillo 'cease and desist' order are growing in volume, with some insisting that AFM members are talking secession from the Petrillo organization. Talk of a peaceful solution of the difficulty centers around reports that National Association of Broadcasters is prepared to make some concessions to the musicians. In the halls of Congress it is said that the musicians' controversy is too hot to handle at this time, what with elections pending.

Cameras Roll Today On Training Film

Production of another War Department training film, 'Pack Transportation', was announced last night by the Academy Research Council. Picture will be made by Capitol Productions. Dan Keefe has been assigned as director, Nelson Gross as production manager, James Murray as director of photography, and Richard Irvin as special effects cameraman.

The entire film will be shot at Fort Bliss, Texas, with cameras scheduled to roll today. Captain Robert H. Bungay will act as War Department liaison officer, assisted by Lieut. Hawthorne Hughes as technical adviser.

Baxter's Comeback In Col's 'Crime Doc'

Warner Baxter comes out of retirement to play the lead in a series of pictures to be produced by Ralph Cohn at Columbia, based on the radio program, 'The Crime Doctor'. Studio has closed deal with Max Marcin for screen rights to the airshow and plans producing two a year. First being scripted by Graham Baker is slated for production start early in November.

'The Crime Doctor' air program goes over CBS as a weekly show sponsored by Philip Morris. Baxter's deal with studio was agented by Sam Howard.

Negri Must Pay $7,277 For $5,000 Loan

New York, July 27.—Judgment of $7,277 has been filed against Pola Negri in New York Supreme court today. Amount represents a $5,000 loan with interest for which Miss Negri signed a promissory note dated Sept. 14, 1934, payable within 90 days of latter date to the late Col. Howard Thayer Kingsbury in California. The note was signed under her real name of Paula Scharz. Action for recovery of the debt was brought against Miss Negri by Mrs. C. B. Kingsbury, executrix of her husband's estate.

terday that Warners had agreed for similar premiere of the film here Aug. 12, with admission to be secured by purchase of War Bonds in denominations of from $25 to $25,000. Local premiere is to be known as the 'Build Three Ships' campaign, with a $5,000,000 goal set to equal the cost of three Liberty ships of type being constructed by the California Shipbuilding Corp.

Howard D. Mills, Treasury Department administrator for southern California, announced yesterday that the keel for the first ship will be laid during the initial week of the sales drive which starts today, and proceed day by day with Bond purchases. Name of each person buying tickets through the Bond medium will be inscribed on a scroll and placed in the captain's cabin of the ship that the purchases help to build.

Arrangements have been worked out whereby Bond-tickets will be available at all Los Angeles county theatres and all Victory Houses, banks, motion picture studios and all other Bond issuing agencies. Only admission to the 2,764 seats in the Warners Hollywood theatre for the premiere will be for purchasers of the War bonds. To enable those who already have purchased F and G Bonds to increase their holdings, the Treasury has raised the calendar year limit for individual purchasers from $50,000 to $100,000.

Headquarters for the handling of the Bond-ticket sale will be established by the War Savings Staff of the Treasury Department at 6443 Hollywood blvd. today.

Weekly Earnings Of Film Group Show Big Increase

Average weekly earnings of motion picture employes in June was $56.13, compared with $45.27 for the same month in 1941, it was disclosed yesterday in a bulletin from the California Division of Labor Statistics and Law Enforcement. Average earnings in May of this year was $53.48.

The hourly scale of earnings for individual workers jumped from $1.29 in June of 1941 to $1.46 in May of this year and $1.50 in June. There was an increase, however, of nearly two hours in the average hours worked per week, which undoubtedly accounted for some of the higher earnings. The average week in June of last year was slightly in excess of 35 hours, as compared with 37.4 hours in June of this year.

The index of payrolls also showed a decided increase this year. The payroll index for June, 1941, was 110.1, compared with 119.9 for the same month this year. Employment however, dropped from 105.9 to 93.6.

A total of 608,000 wage earners were employed in California factories last month. Office, clerical, sales, executive, technical and professional personnel brought this figure to 747,000, compared with 512,000 in the same month last year.

Sol Lesser Going East For 'Canteen' Huddles

Sol Lesser goes to New York Friday to confer with directors of the Stage Door Canteen to line up players and personalities for his screenplay, 'Stage Door Canteen', to be made here following producer's 'Tarzan' feature. Proceeds of film, beyond mere production costs, are to be halved between the Theatre Wing of Stage Door Canteen and other charities to be mutually agreed upon. Lesser starts his 'Tarzan's Triumph' on the RKO-Pathe lot for RKO release Aug. 10.

Swedish Market Lost To U. S. Film Distribs

New York, July 28.—U. S. distributors, temporarily at least, have lost another market with home offices reporting inability to get prints or even air mail into Sweden. Swedish market in recent years has represented about 2½ per cent of the total foreign business done by American countries. Shutdown of all contact completely isolates Sweden from the outside world. Formerly regular air services were maintained between England and Sweden.

OVERDOING a good thing, a chronic fault with some agency radio producers, is amply illustrated in that cigaret's 'modern design' nerve-jangling sound effects. For a time it was considered smart advertising but it's staying too long, it is agreed among local ad engineers. Spotted on station breaks, it is especially noisy and rasping in the morning hours and in the trade it gets a fast tuning out, adversely affecting the programs that follow. One agency exec said he would insert a clause in any contract drawn up with a station that in no event would his client follow such an unnerving, cacophonous bedlam of sound-effects. Those ear-piercing sales comeons also are cited in the trade as a much-abused form of bad showmanship and rarely used by smart advertisers. Agencies, which conduct all manner of surveys to sample public tastes, seem to know better than to ask dialers 'do you like shouting announcers?'

location jobs by the IATSE, and the ASC threatened to suspend any lensers who took over location jobs of first cameramen.

IA Prexy Richard Walsh, who has been here for two weeks personally directing the IA moves in the camera fight, headed for New York last night. Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper and Steve B. Newman were left here to check developments, but it is understood IA attorneys have cautioned against any move pending a NLRB decision. If the NLRB decision is unfavorable to the IA, it has been hinted the Walsh crowd might then notify Producers that within a specified time all lensers must have IATSE cards to work in the studios.

Demand for reinstatement of Len Smith and Ed Cronjager on location jobs was made on Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, by Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative. Casey declined to order their reinstatement, taking the position the Producer contract with the IBEW covered jurisdiction of electricians only and did not mention cameramen.

ASC Prexy Fred Jackman, however, disclosed the Society was notifying all directors of photography that the ASC constitution prohibited them taking over another director's job except under certain circumstances, and then only with permission of the ASC board of governors. He said men who took over location jobs of ASC directors of photography without permission of the board of governors would face suspension and would be prohibited from working in studios under the ASC-Producer contract.

Director William Walsh declined to state what, if any, recommendations he was making to the NLRB, but the mere fact that he was submitting it to Washington indicated a hearing probably would be ordered before an NLRB examiner. The NLRB could take several courses, including ordering an election of directors of photography, issuance of a cease and desist order for Producers to stop dealing with the IATSE for first cameramen, or it could take the position it is a jurisdictional fight and dismiss the charge.

RKO Lists 45 Features, 185 Short Subjects For Next Season

New York, July 28.—RKO will release total of 45 features and 185 shorts on its 1942-43 program, president Ned Depinet announced to company's sales convention at the Waldorf Astoria hotel here today.

Of the features, 10 will be made by independent producers for release through RKO channels, and 35 will be turned out on the home lot. Charles Koerner, new studio head, addressed the conventionites and guaranteed that every picture announced to the sales force would be delivered, which brought an ovation from the gathering.

In addition to an impressive array of topline features to be turned out by the studio itself, Samuel Goldwyn will deliver two—'Pride of the Yankees' and 'They Got Me Covered'—Sol Lesser is to deliver two Tarzans; Jack Votion makes a pair of Lum 'n' Abners; Jerrold Brandt turns out two Scattergood Baines, and Edward Golden produces 'Hitler's Children.' A British production brings the outside total to 10.

Several of the important features announced have already been completed, it was disclosed by Depinet, who further stated that the studio was currently geared to go full speed ahead under the new management of Koerner.

Studio execs will keep location trips to a minimum, it was stated, in order to conserve tires and travel in line with government requirements.

Important features headlining the RKO setup include:

'Once Upon a Honeymoon,' co-starring Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant; Cary Grant in 'Bundles For Freedom'; Ginger Rogers in 'Gibson Girl'; Fred Astaire in 'Look Out Below'; Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray in 'Stand By To Die'; 'China Sky', starring Claudette Colbert with Randolph Scott; Jean Arthur in untitled starrer; Charles Laughton in 'This Land Is Mine'; Disney's 'Bambi'; Orson Welles' 'Journey Into Fear'; 'Seven Days Leave', co-starring Victor Mature and Lucille Ball; Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly in 'Here We Go Again.'

Of the 185 shorts, 155 will be single reels—and of this group, 104 will be issues of Pathe News. Disney will deliver 18 Technicolor cartoons, and four specials. Two reel series will include groups starring Edgar Kennedy, Leon Errol, Famous Jury Trials, and a revival of 'La Cucaracha.'

'Marines' Again

Paramount will again use title of 'Come on Marines' for picture to follow 'Wake Island'. New yarn by Phillip Wylie and B. G. De Sylva will continue dramatic adventures of Robert Preston and William Bendix.

F-WC EXECS IN NORTH INDICATES HOT DEAL ON

Contingent of Fox West Coast execs left again yesterday for San Francisco, repeating a visit that has kept them virtually subwaying between L. A. and the north over the past two weeks, and lending credence to reports of large-scale northern circuit buying. Nearly all top-notch execs have been plane-hopping between the two points relative to changing theatre situation in boom areas. While deals are admitted to be in progress, no admission of theatre buying has been made.

It's been stated that population increases and attendant changes will be met, comment being that situation is being investigated to a general extent. However, the oftentalked-of purchase of the Golden State Circuit from the Bob McNeil-Mike Naify-E. H. Emmick interests is reportedly very warm, with F-WC wanting to cash in on boom conditions by adding to its already owned 25% interest. Golden State operates about 70 theatres in the northern area. Acquisition would give F-WC a powerful position on the Coast.

Exec concentration, including Charles P. Skouras, president; Charles Buckley, attorney and v.-p.; W. H. (Bud) Lollier, real estate head, and Bill Liros, in charge of extensive candy concession operations, is headquartering at the St. Francis hotel. Same group just returned last Friday. Earlier in the week Andy Krappman, exec aide to Skouras, and George Topper, treasurer, returned. Presence of nearly all department heads would indicate something more afoot than a looksee.

Observation is that present Golden State heads are more receptive to the deal than ever, and willing to sell on an extended buy basis, retaining an interest in profits, rather than a complete and immediate sellout.

Fact of inability to build under present war conditions lends further support. And since F-WC could avail itself of seats and other equipment through its affiliate, National Theatre Supply, for refurbishing purposes, could be attended after a takeover.

Secretaries To Mull AGVA Reorganization

New York, July 28.—A long step toward complete reorganization of the American Guild of Variety Artists may come out of the national 'convention' now scheduled Aug. 1-2 at the Netherland Plaza hotel in Cincinnati. Attending will be executive secretaries of nine of the 10 locals. The only one that will be missing is San Francisco, where a special representative is in charge and can't get away.

Presiding at the 'convention' will be Walter Greaza, who two months ago was placed by the Associated Actors and Artistes of America in the temporary position of national administrative chairman of AGVA. Also going to Cincinnati is Jonas O. Silverstone, national counsel, and possibly four or five national representatives now located at scattered points.

Case After Lahr For His Bdwy. Musical

New York, July 28.—Carroll Case, son of Frank Case, manager of Algonquin hotel, is planning Broadway production in the fall of a play with music called 'Sweet Danger.' He was a Coast writer and is currently script supervisor of Air Features, radio production subsidiary of Blackett-Sample-Hummert agency. He's seeking Bert Lahr for the lead in his show, which would be budgeted at $85,000.

SPG Meets Thursday

Screen Publicists Guild at general membership meeting Thursday night at the Roosevelt hotel will discuss part Hollywood publicists are playing in the war effort. Participation of SPG in Labor's Unity for Victory Committee, why New York Publicists joined the CIO, and state of Guild membership and treasury also will be discussed. Prexy Lesley Mason will preside.

Start Bond Sale For 'Doodle' Premiere

The 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' at Warners Hollywood Aug. 12, whereby admission will be to holders of War Bonds in amounts from $25 to $25,000 selling campaign got underway yesterday when a score of committees and workers began their solicitation. The drive was general in every respect with bankers, society folks, business men, labor leaders and unions, industry heads, motion picture stars, executives, directors and writers, store and factory, ship yard workers, air plane plant workers all being canvassed to invest accumulated coin in bonds and at the same time get the bonus of tickets for the opening.

Treasury Department officials under whose auspices the premiere is being held conferred with various committees and industries starting work in the selling campaign as well as various groups of women workers, that included the Naval Aid Auxiliary which plans to use its 3,000 members in the campaign.

The Hollywood Headquarters of the Treasury Department at 6443 Hollywood Boulevard will be opened tonight with Treasury reps and workers of the Naval Auxiliary in attendance to expediate the sale of the bonds.

At the same time the Treasury workers started on their mission to sell bonds the keel of the first of three big Liberty Ships was laid, in the expectancy that their cost would be covered by the drive for $5,000,000 which is the goal of the bond sellers.

Harrigan's 'Rich'

Nedda Harrigan gets lead role in 'The Rich Get Richer', Gilbert Miller-Ralph McBane production of Mary Hall's play which opens in Scarsdale, New York, August 4 for tryout before moving into New York for the fall season.

DECKED out in fatigue garb after a hard day at composing, Meredith Willson pulled up at a drive-in and ordered a sundae. Car-hop gave him a quick up-and-down and turned in the order. On second thought she allowed that one dressed as Willson might not be too heavily heeled and to play it safe advised him that the cooler would cost him 30c. He smiled his approval and the gal strolled back for the sundae, still not sure he had the price to pay for it. On the payoff Willson handed her a dollar bill and waved aside the change. A block away the maestro pulled up to the curb, deep in thought over the size of the tip he left. 'Now, what did I do that for ' muttered Willson as he drove off. . . . Robert Arden, radio commentator, last night hosted a party at Romanoff's for Dennis King, who returns today to New York. Among the guests was Fredric Lonsdale, who is at work here on a new stage play.

SABOTEUR TRIAL BLOCKS UMPI PLAN AS BIZ WAITS

before there is any modification of the consent decree method of selling.

The statement by a nationally-known columnist that Thurman Arnold of the anti-trust division had recommended the UMPI plan be rejected, was labeled at the Department as pure speculation and not warranted by the facts.

New York, July 28.—With the 1941-42 season near its end, and major distributors not knowing in what manner the 1942-43 film may be sold due to delay in decision on the UMPI plan, both the distribs and exhibs are becoming panicky. In addition to complete silence from the Department of Justice on nod of approval of the new UMPI sales plan, Judge Goddard wants to go on his annual vacation next week, but due to the seriousness of the situation, UMPI leaders might get him to defer, and also prevail on the DJ to give an early answer one way or the other on the UMPI plan.

Since 20th-Fox begins its season Aug. 1, that date being only a few days off, the company, left with no other alternative, has started offering blocks-of-five on the new season's (1942-43) pictures, headed by 'Footlight Serenade', for release the first week in August. RKO, which also wanted to begin its season Aug. 1, is in a quandary as to policy, but will screen five completed films, in accord with the consent decree, between Aug. 3 and 6, so that selling either under consent decree terms or the new UMPI method may be launched. Other decree distribs, Metro, Paramount and Warners, who start their sales seasons Sept. 1, are also gravely concerned over the delay and are faced with inability to set sales plans. Warners, meanwhile, will immediately sell 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' on straight percentage at advanced admission, and under single bill policy.

Lack of word from DJ on the UMPI plan is causing some apprehension at this point lest the Department look unkindly toward it, though the assumption is strong at the same time in most circles that it will not be iced by DJ officials. Notwithstanding whatever action the DJ takes, legal opinion is that the distribs may sell any way they want, since under the escape clause, effective last June 1, when the Little Three were not brought under the decree, the Big Five were relieved of trade showings and sales in blocks-of-five starting with the 1942-43 product. However, disposition all along has been to guard against courting the disfavor of the DJ, for which reason the UMPI plan has sought its blessings from the start.

Even if the DJ objects to UMPI selling plan, it is believed that all, or most, of the Big Five would remain under the decree's blocks-of-five rather than exercise rights under the escape clause.

Ameche Back on C&S Airshow in Fall

Don Ameche comes back to roost on the Chase & Sanborn program in the fall. Contracts are being signed by the J. Walter Thompson agency and George Frank, agent for Ameche, after the nod was given the film star over Jack Carson, in strong contention. Java show undergoes a change in format for the new season beginning Sept. 6, occasioned by the withdrawal of Abbott and Costello for their own Camel show and the return of Ameche to his former duties as emcee.

Skouras Plaque Lunch

Charles P. Skouras, Fox-West Coast Theatres prexy, is sponsoring a luncheon tomorrow at the Ambassador to present plaques commemorating Metro's 'Mrs. Miniver' as a contribution to morale and the war effort of the United Nations. Plaques will be given to Sidney Franklin, William Wyler, Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Arthur Wimperis, George Froeschel, James Hilton, Claudine West and Jan Struther.

Cook Film Critic On W-T

New York, July 28.—Alton Cook, after eight years as radio editor of the World-Telegram, has been moved to film critic and editor of the sheet, succeeding the late William Boehnel.

Cook was former picture and dramatic editor of the St. Paul Daily News for five years before coming east. Robert Bagar, World-Telegram music critic—who subbed for Cook during latter's vacations—gets upped to radio editor.

SOEG Will Demand Studio Minimums For Exchanges

Demand for studio wage minimums for White Collarites employed by Coast film exchanges will be made by the Screen Office Employes Guild today when negotiations are resumed with company representatives. Only one hitch remains to be ironed out to reach an accord on classification of employes.

Exchanges are asking that a classification be established for assistant bookers. SOEG is opposed to request, insisting bookers and apprentices be classified together. Guild contends an assistant is either a booker or an apprentice.

Kosty, Robinson Bowl 'Em Over Next Week

Andre Kostelanetz and Edward G. Robinson are featured as conductor and narrator, respectively, in the Aug. 4 Hollywood Bowl concert. Latter presides at rendition of Aaron Copland's composition, 'A Lincoln Portrait'. Also on the program will be the first playing here of Jerome Kern's 'Portrait of Mark Twain'. Another 'first' for the Bowl is William Grant Still's 'Summerland', to be played Aug. 5. Donald Dickson, radio and concert baritone, is vocalist that night.

'Jupiter' Owners Insure Bolger For $100,000

New York, July 28.—Ray Bolger has been insured for $100,000 for the benefit of the 'By Jupiter' producers and stockholders, who laid out $10,000 premium for the policy. Idea is to avoid occurrence of anything like the situation that befell Eddie Cantor, whose operation closed the expensive production of 'Banjo Eyes' and threw many people out of work.

Donlevy, Barrymore In 'Nightmare' Bracket

Brian Donlevy and Diana Barrymore have been paired for Universal's 'Nightmare,' the Dwight Taylor initial production.

Tim Whelan has been signed to direct, moving over from RKO where he produced and directed 'Sweet and Hot.'

Robeson Calls 'Glory Road' Insult; Balks At Singing It

Philadelphia, July 28.—Paul Robeson refused to sing 'Glory Road' at Robin Hood Dell concert last week, terming it 'an insult to the Negro race'. Appearing before a record crowd of 11,000, Negro baritone was called back for encores. When someone yelled for 'Road' he agreed to sing anything requested except that number. Referring to the recent beating of the Negro singer, Roland Hayes, in Georgia, Robeson told the audience: 'Recently one of the greatest singers in the world was insulted and beaten. When you buy War Stamps you are helping to stamp out that kind of thing. You are making a world of common brotherhood.'

Goldwyn Pays 75G For Hellman Yarn

New York, July 28.—Lillian Hellman will receive $75,000 from Samuel Goldwyn for her original story about the war's effect on Soviet children. Figure is exceptionally high for an original.

Meanwhile, Goldwyn's plans for Miss Hellman and director William Wyler to visit Moscow for first-hand background material, are stymied by Wyler's induction into the army. In the event Goldwyn cannot arrange for Wyler's visit with Miss Hellman to Soviet territory, or decide quickly on another director to make the trip, film will probably be prepared and shot on the coast without on-ground research.

Balaban Takes Over NY Roxy Operation Aug. 27

New York, July 28.—A. J. Balaban has signed a contract with 20th-Fox as the new operator of the Roxy theatre on Broadway. Contract was ratified and he takes over officially as of Aug. 27, date on which the Fanchon & Marco 10-year contract technically expires, although F & M may continue to book and collaborate general for several months more. New proviso to deal is Jack Partington's inclusion in the new operation management as co-executive with Balaban. Deal reunites Balaban and Partington, who were last active together in Paramount pictures 10 years ago.

CIO GETS CONTRACT FOR 9,000 IN NY FILM OFFICES

New York, July 28.—Following negotiations over a comparatively short space of time, contract for two years between the Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild and Loew's, RKO, Columbia, 20th-Fox was signed this afternoon in the downtown law offices of Wendell Willkie. In the case of Columbia, exchange as well as home office employes are included.

Steps are under way in the meantime to bring in the White Collar workers in other New York exchanges.

Under terms of the contract, a majority of the employes of the four companies must be members of the union. Where feasible, employes with the longest service are to have preferential treatment as regards promotions, rehiring, layoffs.

A wage scale minimum of $20 and a 10% increase is called for all employes except in cases where boosts have been received since April 1. The contract runs for two years, but may be reopened for negotiations in case of wages after the first year.

A total of around 9,000 employes of Loew's, RKO, 20th-Fox and Columbia are involved. The SOPE is affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations. This is the first unit charter by the CIO in the motion picture industry.

Flynn's Butler On Stand—

After appearing before Criminal Complaints Commission of the Grand Jury yesterday, case of Eric Gosta, butler, against James Fleming, standin for Errol Flynn, was held over for a formal jury hearing Aug. 4. Gosta was injured in a fight with Fleming at a party in Flynn's home on June 21. Subpoenas were issued for 11 witnesses, including Flynn. Some 75 attending celebrities would admit seeing nothing of the fracas, police reported.

Councilman's Proposal Nixed—

Proposal of Councilman John W. Baumgartner that present regulations requiring that dance floors be 400 square feet be lowered was turned down yesterday by the Police Department. Small floors result in bumping and resultant fights and disturbance, it was stated, suggesting that capacity regulate space. Commission contended change would require auditors, surveyors and too much attention.

Air Squadron 'Lombardiers'—

Navy squadron of Indiana aviation cadets has selected name of 'Lombardiers' in honor of the late Carole Lombard, who lost her life in a plane crash while engaged in War Bond sales. Fred Hofherr, of Marion, Ind., submitted the name in a contest.

Foreign Pic Biz Zooms But Net Revenue Off

New York, July 28.—While foreign gross business of U. S. film companies is now reputedly running 10 to 12% ahead of 1941, the net revenue is either off or just even. Loss of numerous countries that have fallen into the Axis naturally has been an unfavorable factor, but higher taxes, increased operating costs and difficulty encountered in getting prints into foreign territories have contributed most to the decline in net revenue. Helping the high gross is fact some seven to 10 countries are now reaching all time peaks on business.

Helen Parrish gets a top role in Jerry Brandt's 'Scattergood Swings It.' Also set for feature spot is the comedy team of Butch and Buddy.

Six More Honor Men From Hollywood

Armed services entrants continue apace in Hollywood, with six more added to the total. Ed Helwick, staff writer on the Kraft program, will be inducted into the Army in two weeks. John Hartley Tufts, actor, formerly on the Paramount roster, joined the Navy for assignment in Panama; Roy Harris, former Universal contract player, reports to the Army on Aug. 10; Don Reeve, of Universal publicity department, gets final physical today before Army induction; Kirby Ramsdell, Times Sunday editor, and Speed Kandall, Times Hollywood correspondent, also undergo physicals for Army induction within 10 days.

Draft Board Nixes Treasury Request

Washington, July 28.—Treasury Department's deferment request for Milborn McCarty, 30-year-old head of department's war bonds press section, and described as 'irreplaceable,' has been nixed by Draft Board 13 in New York. A two months' stay gives him until October to report to the Army.

Treasury stated McCarty had created the policy of the department's newspaper and magazine drives. He is 'only important enough so it would take a little time for his employer to replace him,' was the ruling.

AFRA Members Vote On Move To Skip Convention

Members of Los Angeles Local of the American Federation of Radio Artists will vote Sept. 28 on a proposal to eliminate the national AFRA convention because of the war emergency and transportation problems. If vote is to forego convention elections of national board members of local memberships will be final without any further vote by constituted delegates.

Current national officers also would remain in office until the next annual convention in 1943. Proposal would not be applicable to elections or conventions in 1943 or thereafter.

Pending decision on proposal to eliminate the convention, however, the Los Angeles Local has nominated the following convention delegates and alternates: Delegates, Jane Morgan, Leo Cleary, True Boardman, Thelma Hubbard, Griff Barnett, Charles Seel, Fred Shields, Norman Field, Knox Manning, Lurene Tuttle, Fred MacKaye, John Hiestand, Paul Keast, Edwin Max, Earle Ross, Pat McGeehan, Georgia Backus, Dick Davis, Lee Sweetland, Franklin Parker, Verna Felton, Jerry Hausner, Frank Nelson, Tudor Williams, Ken Carpenter, Bill Days, Howard McNear, Lucille LaPointe, Noreen Gammill, Francis X. Bushman, Ray Linn, Ynez Seabury, Jim Bannon, Byron Kane, Bob Stevens, Art Gilmore, Georgia Fifield, John Lake, Ted Bliss, Thomas Freebairn-Smith, Eddie Marr, Jim Doyle, Lou Merrill, Betty Wilbur.

Alternates to the convention are Eric Snowden, Tyler McVey, Sara Berner, Ed Holden, Erik Rolf, Elliott Lewis, Frank Graham, Ann Stone, Jack Zoller, Herman Waldman, Gloria Gordon, Hal Styles, Frank Pittman, Charles Lung, Vic Rodman, Gale Gordon, Lou Marcelle, Arthur Q. Allied Film Groups Approached In Relief Drive

Members of the film industry campaign committee meet at noon today at the Hillcrest Country Club to discuss possible methods of bringing the drive for Navy, Russia, Dutch and China War Reliefs to an early and successful close. The call issued by Chairman Jacob H. Karp emphasized the unusual importance of today's meeting and urged that every studio colonel attend.

In an effort to broaden the campaign, urgent wires and personal phone calls went yesterday to 35 members of the Allied Industries group, 15 more than have been enlisted in any previous drive. The other 20 have been active participants in every industry campaign and many of them already have made their first reports.

Those in charge of the campaign still hope to get past the 75% mark at today's meeting. Although this is by no means assured, a few large contributions received yesterday indicate a 50-50 chance of reaching that goal.

At today's gathering one of the chief moves will be an analysis of the situation in the higher salaried fields to find out just what has been accomplished and what can be expected. The three talent guilds and the Artists Managers Guild then will be asked to lend every assistance during the coming week to see to it that every person in the higher salaried group is personally approached and urged to contribute.

SMPE 3-Day Convention Opens Oct. 27 In NY

New York, July 28.—Society of Motion Picture Engineers has completed arrangements for a three-day fall convention of the organization here, starting Oct. 27.

Due to war conditions, convention will be limited to eight technical sessions over the three-day stretch, with papers and demonstrations stressing application of new developments in motion picture engineering to the war effort. Regular annual presentations of Progress medal and SMPE Journal award will be made at convention banquet, slated for Oct. 28.

PETRILLO RECORD BAN THREAT GOVERNMENT TARGET

printed in Weekly Variety's 1942 anniversary number, were thrown back at the AFM chief by Director Elmer Davis of the Office of War Information. Petrillo's open letter, directed 'To the President and the People of the United States,' states 'the Federation's determination to face its new responsibilities to the country which made its existence and its growth possible.'

Simultaneously, the Federal Communications Commission pondered asking Congress for power to punish any individual who interferes with broadcasting or other means of communication. The Commission lacks authority now to chastise anyone except licensees, but may call a general hearing to find out whether there is need for an amendment of the existing statute so station operators can be protected against coercion.

While Justice Department attorneys readied their scheduled petition for an injunction, Davis publicly begged Petrillo to rescind his ultimatum of June 25 that union members will not be permitted to make recordings or radio transcriptions after July 31. The OWI head referred to Petrillo's 'public and published pledge' in which the Federation head said his group 'will do its share' to uphold morale of the nation. 'I am informed that if you enforce this edict, the direct consequence will be the elimination of new electrical transcriptions for the use of radio stations, the elimination of new popular records for so-called juke boxes, and the elimination of new popular and classical records for home consumption,' Davis asserted. 'I am further informed that this move in all probability will lead to court fights, possible strikes, and definitely curtail musical service to the public in the critical months ahead.'

Davis noted that independent stations may be forced out of business and certainly will be seriously handicapped in giving war information to their audiences. Records are also needed in restaurants, canteens, bars and other recreation places patronized by defense workers and members of armed forces, he added, and the appeal was made 'on behalf of the people of the United States and on behalf of the War Department, Navy Department, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Treasury Department, the Office of Civilian Defense and the Office of War Information.' Nothing crystallized at the meeting today of the FCC, where there was more discussion of the Petrillo move. Members indicated, however, that they are inclined to call a hearing after receiving replies from the Federation head and from NBC about cancellation of a broadcast scheduled last week from Interlochen, Mich., and may look into Petrillo's demand that NBC refuse to serve an affiliate with a program originating from Chicago. The regulators take the view that licensees must be protected against such demands.

If radio station operators defy labor groups they may be forced off the air, and involuntarily violate public interest, the Commission admits. Ticklish matter, however, is the union angle, since any move to obtain penal powers that could be exercised in such a situation would be fought aggressively by the labor chieftains. Which brings up the political issue which is inevitably involved at that point.

are being paid $30 and $32.50 per week.

Question of hours and conditions for Guild members at Metro, Lantz, Gems and Schlesinger will be taken up the last of this week when the SCG huddles with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact. Wage scales at four studios already have been settled.

Beef over minor adjustments at Metro was settled when Casey agreed that two SCG members should have been included in the 10% pay boost given workers in the lower wage brackets. Vacation for another Guild member will be allowed if check shows his length of employment places him in vacation classification.

Sussman Midwest Boss

New York, July 28.—William Sussman may assume command of 20th-Fox sales over a group of midwest exchanges with headquarters in Cleveland, according to reports. Sussman, former eastern division manager of the company, and now a home office executive handling general distribution matters, was being primed by the late Sidney R. Kent for an important post in company executive affairs.

Ill in Pix

AL MARGOLIES, eastern representative of Jack H. Skirball Productions, was taken to Cedars of Lebanon hospital yesterday following a heart attack. His condition is not considered critical.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has been confined to his Connecticut home with an injured spine. Singer claims his back was hurt a week ago while broadjumping.

MRS. IRVING RUBINE, wife of Columbia studio exploiteer, goes into Good Samaritan hospital today for minor surgery.

More Coming

New York, July 28.—In addition to the $3,000,000 loan which RKO has secured from First National Bank of Boston, additional coin for production purposes is slated to come from the Manufacturers Trust Company here. RKO president Rathvon said that latter deal only hinged on matter of final terms to be settled. All the money will be used for forthcoming productions.

Spot For Joyce

Joyce Compton has been signed at 20th-Fox for a role in the added sequences to be filmed for 'Thunder Birds.' Hallam Cooley agented.

Lewis of OWI Asks More War Idiom In Pop Songs

New York, July 28.—W. B. Lewis, radio head of Office of War Information, came here from Washington to speak at Songwriters Protective Association dinner tonight at Park Central hotel as part of the OWI drive to stimulate the war idiom in popular songs. Drive is against 'tactless' songs and ones that boast foolishly or bombastically. Ineffectual tunes will be cited to songwriters, as has been done to publishers, music educators, broadcasters, recording managers, et al. Sigmund Romberg, new SPA prexy, will tell the gathering that 'the need is for songs to be sung by the fighters rather than at them'.

Mayer, Zanuck, Kern Vouched For Martin

San Francisco, July 28.—Prominent Hollywood names, including those of executives, an agent and a composer, were brought out today in general court martial of Lieut. Commander Maurice N. Aroff as the navy records of Tony Martin and Irving Cummings, Jr., were read into proceedings. Names of Louis B. Mayer and Darryl Zanuck were revealed as having given references on Martin's application for an Ensign's commission. Application included a letter from Harry Brand, describing Martin as 'honorable, forthright and conscientious.' Letter from Jerome Kern stated Martin to be 'a person of integrity', and Martin's agent, J. C. Goldstone said his client would be 'a credit to the service.'

Aroff, a Hollywood plumbing contractor, is charged with receiving the fee of an automobile from Martin in return for allegedly facilitating Martin's enlistment as a chief specialist.

Reading of Cummings record revealed his next of kin as Irving Cummings, Sr., director, living at 710 No. Oakhurst Drive, Bevhills.

All records listed Frisco hotel as young Cummings' address, whereas it is contended Aroff was aware that Commings' home was in Southern California.

A letter signed by Capt. R. A. White, Aroff's superior, and associate in the Hollywood business, who was retired from the Navy when Aroff was charged with offense, urged Washington officials to waive Cummings' dental defect so he could receive Ensign's commission. Here, too, Aroff is accused of accepting a gift from Cummings. Latter has been cooling his heels in an ante-room for last two days awaiting call to testify. Martin will not be called until Thursday.

Out of court, one of Aroff's attorneys claimed the auto was turned over to Aroff with the understanding it would be paid for at latter's convenience.

PRODUCTION CUTS SEEN BY WPB FOR 1942-43

Ray Klune and John Flynn, with Harold Hopper and Mervin Travis of the WPB outlining the situation.

It is understood that the industry compliance will be sought in a formal WPB order to be issued in the immediate future. It will be based on production potentials for 1942-43 and 1944 as related to supply. Steel is short, so is rubber, with producers advised to buy their new cars where possible from men being inducted into the service.

The lens situation is critical and the bottom of the barrel is in sight for vacuum tubes. About film there should be no argument. The requirements of the Army will utilize an immense stock pile. The only things mentioned as plentiful were nails, and this is to encourage the use of wood.

Industry leaders submitted a list of 24 recommendations adopted by all producers to save film. Most of these are technical, and, it was added, a universal sprocket to cut down the size of film will be perfected for use within a month.

Producers at this monthly WPB conference took away a gloomy overall picture. In short, it appears that the ceiling on raw materials will not be higher than that used in 1941-42, and it may be less. Rather than production expansion, the war effort seems to call for a new contraction by Hollywood.

U.S. WANTS SONGWRITERS TO TURN OUT POPS WITH VIGOR

New York, July 29.—Admitting dissatisfaction of the government with war songs so far, W. B. Lewis, radio chief of Office of War Information, listed five general objectives for pop music writers. He spoke at a meeting of Songwriters Protective Association called by Prexy Sigmund Romberg to discuss a program for creating songs to be sung by the fighters and not at them.

Initial objective, Lewis stated, is for war music that is vigorous and affirmative. Our men are just starting to fight on foreign fronts, and this is no time to have a majority of

AFTER watching Dick Walsh fumble the ball in his recent efforts to solidify the 10 IATSE studio locals into a smooth working unit to back the International, Coast labor tops and even some company executives are wondering why the IA prexy didn't delegate this job to some of the eastern boys who have shown both more strength and diplomacy in handling such situations. Two IA leaders frequently mentioned in this connection are Frank Stickling, IA International representative and Secretary-Treasurer Louis Krouse. Most of the leaders are inclined to favor Stickling, who, while firm on International policies, had a way of getting around the boys and even making friends with the side he was fighting. Stickling enjoyed the confidence of Coast leaders and when given authority to chart his own way, handled the situation in a manner that usually cleared up IA union problems in a hurry, although, of course, it was seldom possible to please both sides. Few of his rulings have ever been upset, either by the International or the courts. Stickling never approved of the Willie Bioff policies and is known to have been about ready to step out of the organization when the law caught up with Willie.

THERE are quite a few industry executives here who are making themselves the laughing stock among governmental officials in Washington by publicizing the fact that the government wants them for important positions in its various agencies, and that they are considering whether or not to accept. The boys in Washington call these so-called outbursts 'test balloons' floated with the hope of those who have inflated them that the government agency heads might realize their importance and value through the publicity propaganda route and bag them with open arms to come in. Government heads, however, use different tactics, for should they want some one they throw an invite at them fast and have them accepting most modestly before they can draw a second breath, due to the flattery that the government is inviting them to be a part of the war operations machine.

QUESTION as to who would play the Maria role in Paramount's 'For Wrom the Bell Tolls'—Vera Zorina, who started, or Ingrid Bergman, standing by—had not been determined yesterday. Zorina had been given new tests, with darker makeup, darker hair, new dentistry and different toned blouse to overcome pallid Technicolor impression in her first footage on location. New makeup was considered to have overcome objections of Sam Wood, producer-director, but final decision had not been reached in debate between him and B. G. De Sylva, executive producer, over femme star part. Wood will shoot around the maria role rest of this week.

Invisible Agent

(Melodrama)

Universal release of a Frank Lloyd Productions, Inc., presentation. Stars Ilona Massey, Jon Hall. Features Peter Lorre, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, J. Edward Bromberg, Albert Basserman, John Litel, Holmes Herbert, Keye Luke. Director, Edwin L. Marin. Associate producer, George Waggner. Original screenplay, Curtis Siodmak. Photography, Les White. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Robert Boyle. Film editor, Edward Curtiss. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Sound director, Bernard B. Brown; technician, William Hedgcock. Set decorations, R. A. Gausman; associate, Edward R. Robinson. Gowns, Vera West. Assistant director, Vernon Keays. Special photographic effects, John Fulton. Previewed at the RKO-Hillstreet, July 29, 1942. Running time: 79 MINS.

'Invisible Agent' pokes a lot of fun at itself, and in doing so will afford audiences innumerable chuckles. That some of these laughs from the ticket buyers will be at the picture won't lessen the enjoyment for those who sit back to be amused at Nazis and Japs who aren't portrayed as supermen. Treatment of its spy content in production, writing and directing gives the only type presentation that would be acceptable. The playing, with the exception of a few characters, is done straight to afford a more ludicrous contrast to the definite hoke emphasis, and the novelty of invisible people, while not new to the screen, adds a touch to help the proceedings along.

There is a magic formula, capable of making a person invisible when injected into the veins. Jon Hall, controller of this hokus-pocus, volunteers to disappear to help the government find out what Hitler's plans are concerning the United States. He makes his way to Europe and has a lot of fun making life miserable for the Gestapo, and interesting for a femme agent operating also undercover, but not invisible, in Naziland. Curtis Siodmak worked out his original screenplay excellently for the melodramatic doings, but could have furnished better dialog to benefit the principals.

Ilona Massey makes another of her too few screen appearances as the femme agent who aids Hall. She wears her attractive costumes with allure and does an able job of carrying the co-star spot. Hall isn't seen often, but his voice gives capable account of the part's stalwart requirements. In the heavy slot are such trustworthies as Peter Lorre, the sadistic Jap agent, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nazi undercover menace. Both make the enemy typical, brutal, would-be conquerors.

J. Edward Bromberg draws a farcical character of Hardwicke's aide, a mumbling, sniveling buffoon who gets his just desserts. Albert Basserman does his part justice in typical style as one of Hall's contacts. John Litel, Holmes Herbert and Keye Luke round out the other credited members of the cast.

Edwin L. Marin's direction points his material for the best results, keeping the action moving and injecting suspense at the proper moments to justify the 'melodrama' classification. Associate Producer George Waggner shows his experienced hand in guiding this type story. Picture is last of the Frank Lloyd productions for Universal release.

Les White's photography does justice to Miss Massey's charms. Notable are the special photographic effects of John Fulton both in the 'invisible' sequences and the airplane effects. The film editing is a tight job. The musical direction, art and set direction and other credits are all first rate.

STUDIOS RUSH COLOR FILMS FOR EARLY FALL RELEASES

Fall and winter releasing season will see plenty of color features hitting the theatre market, in addition to those already having playing time and those that will be released shortly. Paramount has three Technicolor productions completed and ready for distribution, while 20th-Fox has one finished to augment its color features released during recent months, plus three in production and two preparing.

Paramount is now shooting on 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' and has four new color subjects in preparation, 'Rurales', 'The Life of Dr. Wassell', 'Calgary Stampede' and 'Angel In Furs'. 20th-Fox's lineup includes 'Thunder Birds', 'Springtime In the Rockies' and 'My Friend Flicka' before the cameras; 'Crash Dive' and 'Sioux City' preparing. Finished at that studio is 'Black Swan', and company has 'Song of the Islands' and 'To the Shores of Tripoli' in release. Paramount's finished color films are 'Beyond the Blue Horizon', 'The Forest Rangers' and 'Happy-Go-Lucky', plus its 'Reap the Wild Wind', now in release.

Metro is sure of two Technicolor features, 'Lassie Come Home', now in production, and 'Pearls of Paradise', being readied for the cameras. Columbia has one in work, 'The Desperadoes'; Walter Wanger is filming 'Arabian Nights' at Universal in color, and RKO will shortly release 'Bambi', the Walt Disney animated feature in Technicolor. Warners is filming 'The Desert Song' and also may add other hue films to its year's schedule.

In addition to high number of features offering ticket buyers something other than staid black and white, Hollywood has a heavy color shorts schedule, nearly every company turning out briefies plotting a part of their programs in color. Currently there are 21 color short subjects in release.

Wright Chairmans War Bond Premiere Of 'Dandy' Aug. 12

Loyd Wright, member of the War Savings Staff Committee for Southern California, has been named chairman of a special 'Build Ships' Premiere Committee to coordinate the southern California drive for the western debut of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' at Warners Hollywood theatre Aug. 12. Public response to opening day's drive for the Bond premiere gave encouragement that goal of $5,000,000 would be reached.

Wright will coordinate work of numerous committees to hit every population element in an effort to surpass record set for New York premiere of the picture. Every type of organization and business has been drawn into the drive to gain maximum Bond sale, in addition to volunteers which include the 3,000 members of the Naval Aid Auxiliary. Admission to theatre is limited to purchasers of War Bonds, and 2,764-seat house has been scaled from one $25 Bond to $25,000 Bond.

Treasury Department has supplied 250 prints of its special trailer to as many theatres in the 11 Southern California counties for screening during the next two weeks. Trailer will play in 106 Fox West Coast houses as well as all independent theatres.

Lt. Meredith Checks At WB For War Short

One Pic in Eight Months By Lum and Abner To Keep Type Fresh

Figuring they shouldn't appear on the screen more often than once in eight months to keep their type of comedy fresh, Lum and Abner have specified such a period in connection with their new contract with RKO. Their next picture, 'Wonderful World', is set to start Sept. 1 at RKO-Pathe lot. Previous release was 'Bashful Bachelors'.

Comics' new deal, calling for services both as writers and actors, goes into effect with 'Wonderful World'. Pair are scribbling the first draft of the script, and they will continue, as they do in radio, to write most of their own film material.

Lum and Abner contract for release through RKO is with Jack Votion, producer, now in the armed forces. Ben Hirsch will act as associate producer during the period Votion is in service.

the songs sound messages of a happy return, he commented. Secondly, he declared, we must avoid songs which convey directly or indirectly the idea we can achieve victory by just sitting tight. Also tunes which play down our enemies or which make our victory easy and certain. Thirdly, he stated, it must be remembered that songs are heard not only in this country but by our allies everywhere. That our music should carry an international message and one that won't give offense to other united nations. Fourth, he pointed out, this is a war of drastic movement and sudden change. Songs which relate to our general objectives are better than those which relate to some single or individual objective and which may be stale as soon as they are written.

Fifth, he added, is that there is no room in a war of morale for music which is regretful, which whines or complains or which marks weakness or indecision. Lewis also made repeated references to certain conditions existing today which interpose obstacles in the popularization of the right type of war songs. It is maintained in certain quarters that publishers won't accept tough war songs of the type Lewis wants because they are not so profitable as sentimental ballads. Lewis stated that the government must see that nothing stops the popularization of the desired type of music.

Capt. Charles Clapp of the Army Air Force declared his outfit wants to see songs written playing up bombardiers, gunners and grease monkeys rather than glamorizing only pilots, and also songs that men can sing in long trips in bombers to and from objectives. Lieut. Commander Charles Cranford, Navy recreation officer, asked for tunes telling what we are fighting for.

Following wire from President Roosevelt was read at the meeting:

'It gives me great pleasure to send hearty greetings and good wishes to your meeting because the creative genius which you represent is an asset of incalculable value to the nation in this time of peril. Particularly do we need the sustaining power of song as an inspiration to our fighting forces and to strengthen the hearts and hopes and aspirations of those who carry on at home. Yours is a grand opportunity to lighten the burdens which all must carry until victory is achieved. I know you will meet the challenge to service which is yours.'

CIO Musicians Ready To Move in On Radio Jobs

Minneapolis, July 29. — Anticipating the possibility that the present contract dispute between the AFM and KSTP may cause a walk-out of AFofL musicians from that and other Twin City radio stations, CIO musicians are ready to step into the breach and grab off the jobs. Their business agent has sent a notice to all radio stations in the Twin Cities and throughout the middle and far west that it has 'plenty of competent CIO musicians — symphony, dance men, hillbillies, etc.— available for radio stations.'

The notice says the CIO union 'is 'not interested in making a racket of our profession' and that 'any talk of juke boxes putting our musicians out of work is pure bunk, there being no unemployment situation in this country on Class A musicians.'

20th-Fox Sets Pace For Studios In Relief Drive

With 20th-Fox setting the pace for other studios, the film industry's last war drive of the year passed the three-quarter mark yesterday at the third report meeting held at the Hillcrest Country Club. Paramount was a good second, and threatening to close the gap because it is now running 84% ahead of its USO mark at a comparative date and has several unusually generous contributions still to be heard from.

A roll call of the studio colonels, however, disclosed the drive for Navy, Russia, Dutch and China War Reliefs will not go over the top unless the higher-salaried personnel sign up more readily and generously than returns to date indicate likely.

William Morris, head of the Artists Managers Guild committee, announced that all agents have agreed to personally contact all their clients who have not yet contributed. This canvas of all top bracket earners not yet signed up for donations is what the campaign committee is pinning its hopes on for final success in the campaign.

In outlining plans of his committee, Morris said: 'This drive is in reality a roll call of the industry. This is our battle, and we are only asked to give money, not our lives. Once we can bring to all in the industry the realization of their individual responsibility, I am certain no one will fail to contribute.'

Announcement that the writers at 20th-Fox had signed up 100% caused Chairman Jacob H. Karp to state that 'our goal must not only go over the top in money, but to make the industry's final report as near 100% as possible. Surely no other drive could have a wider appeal than this one to help four such great causes.'

The report of Fred W. Beetson, colonel for the allied industries, showed not only an encouraging total but also the names of several organizations that heretofore have not contributed. I. B. Chadwick, colonel for the independents, announced the official closing of that group's drive. With pledges they made and a few additional contributions expected to come in within the next few days, the independents will hit three times their USO total.

PHOTOGS QUIT 20th-FOX LOCASH; IBEW JUICER OUT

that lensers and electrician were leaving jobs today.

Koenig immediately advised Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, of situation. Casey is said to have discussed the situation with Business Representative Herbert Aller of IATSE Photographers Local 659, and was trying to reach Business Representative Al Speede of IBEW Electricians Local 40.

Jurisdictional fight was opened by Prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE before he headed east last night, when he forced removal of Ed Cronjager, ASC cameraman, from Utah location because he did not have an IATSE card. Bill Snyder and Virgil Miller, ASC directors of photography who also have 659 cards, were sent east to take over the cameras. The ASC today notified Snyder and Miller if they remained on jobs they would be subject to suspension for taking over another cameraman's job without first getting an okay from the ASC board of governors as provided in the constitution. It was pointed out such suspension would disqualify them from working in the studios under the ASC-Producer agreement.

The IBEW joined the move when Gene Gaillac, IB international representative, notified Paul Rosso, generator electrician, that he should not remain on the job.

Moves were expected to bring the jurisdictional fight between the IBEW and the IATSE out into the open. It is understood IA Local 659 has been advised it would have to protect its interests by furnishing qualified cameramen to take over the location, but a director of photography would have to first get an okay from the ASC board of governors, regardless of whether he carried an IA card.

Any move by the IATSE to move an electrician onto the location job was expected to result in the IBEW pulling its maintenance electricians in the studio, with the possibility of production being interfered with. Casey and other executives were huddling last night in an effort to iron out the situation and prevent it from spreading into a jurisdictional fight in the studios. The directors of photography are now affiliated with the IBEW and have filed application to join the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell.

A showdown in the situation was expected today. Company representatives claimed the ASC contract prohibited a lenser, even when suspended by his organization, from leaving without finishing a production. The ASC said any such agreement could not apply in the current situation, since the director of photography, Ed Cronjager, originally assigned to the picture, had been removed by the studio and Snyder and Miller had never secured permission to take over.

Survey of School Film Equipment Readied

Washington, July 29. — Detailed survey of motion picture equipment in elementary schools of the United States is to be released shortly by Nathan D. Golden, industrial consultant of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Golden has conducted a survey of slidefilm and 16mm. equipment in schools of the country, and has released a preliminary summary of the findings.

From queries sent to 40,000 elementary schools in the United States, replies were received from 25,703. Of that latter, 7,845 schools own either 16mm. or 35mm. motion picture equipment, and 6,602 are serviced with equipment from central distribution points within 709 school systems.

Of the 7,845 schools owning equipment, 4,846 16mm. silent machines and 3,518 16mm. sound projectors are in service, in addition to 700 35mm. silent machines and 142 35mm. sound equipments.

Survey covering motion picture equipment in colleges and high schools of the country discloses that there are 6,037 16mm. silent projectors and 6,374 16mm. sound equipments in service.

Wurtzel Paid Off By Autry in Washup Of Contract

Prior to departure of Gene Autry for the east late last week to join the Army Air Force as a technical sergeant, settlement was reached between the western actor and his agent, Harry Wurtzel. Deal eliminates necessity of case going to arbitration under regulations of Artists Managers and Screen Actors Guilds.

Under the settlement, Wurtzel received all monies he claimed as due for managerial services rendered Autry on picture and radio deals since January, 1941. In return, he canceled managerial contract with Autry, which had some time to go, so cowboy star could be relieved of any obligations while in the service.

Wurtzel has been handling Autry's affairs for the past six years, and successfully steered his client through lawsuits and contract adjustments during his early film career.

Disney Talks To School Supervisors at UCLA

The government's interest in pictures for purposes of information and morale has induced the greatest forward step in visual education. Walt Disney yesterday told 150 California elementary school supervisors attending three weeks conference at the University of California at Los Angeles. Military Cracks Down On Chicago Niteries; Four Spots Shut

Chicago, July 29.—Chicago niteries, which have not clashed with military officials over the treatment of servicemen up to now, are today feeling the pinch of authority as regulations are being tightened to protect 50,000 soldiers and sailors who jam Loop amusement centers every weekend. Combination theatre and cocktail bars serving 25c and 40c drinks with a fast 30-minute show are deluged from Friday through Sunday with Army and Navy men.

Four popular Class A spots were closed yesterday and licenses revoked for serving drinks to 18-year-old sailors. Hostesses have already been eliminated at Rhumba, Casino, Brass Rail, Hollywood Show Lounge and Capitol to avoid any possible clash with military authorities.

Stanford Coed Testifies At Aroff Navy Trial

San Francisco, July 29. — First feminine witness at the general court-martial of Lieut. Comm. Maurice N. Aroff testified today she had heard naval officer ask Ensign Irving Cummings, Jr., for a gift. The witness, Patricia Bouchard, Stanford co-ed from Beverly Hills, testified that she, a friend, Michael Levee, and Cummings were in Aroff's room at the Clift hotel. Aroff, she testified, congratulated Cummings and Levee upon being sworn in that day as Naval officers, adding in a laughing manner, 'Now you boys are in, how about getting me something? Irv, you can get me some gold cuff links, and Levee, you can get me a gold identification bracelet.' Miss Bouchard added, 'Aroff later held out his wrist and suggested that they take his measurement.

'It was rather a surprise,' the witness told the court.

Aroff is accused of receiving gold cuff links from Cummings and of processing his application for a commission, although he knew the San Francisco address given by Cummings was not his home.

Another witness today was Robert Levin, manager of the Harding theatre, whose home address was used, it was alleged, by Ernest J. Friedman of Los Angeles in applying for Naval officer training through Aroff's office. Levin testified briefly that he and Friedman were friends and that he had forwarded a Navy letter to him.

Cummings has been on hand for three days to testify, and may take the stand tomorrow. Judge Advocate Irving N. Klein said he considered Chief Specialist Tony Martin's testimony would be no more important or significant than that of any other, and that Martin would be summoned in due order. Judge Klein would not comment on when this was likely to be.

Kellaway Has New Pact

Cecil Kellaway has been handed new contract at Paramount, and Australian character player will be starred in 'The Incomparable Alfred.'

Flacks For Rogers

Having completed the 'Mrs. Miniver' campaign at Metro, Frank Seltzer on Saturday joins Charles R. Rogers as director of publicity.

Heroism of Nurses On Bataan Will Be Filmed by Par

Paramount has scheduled for production 'Hands Of Mercy', story of the American Army nurses on Bataan during the Japanese siege. Mark Sandrich will produce and direct, and he, in collaboration with Allan Scott, is writing the screenplay.

In Washington recently Sandrich and Scott interviewed a number of nurses who actually were in the Philippine battle, and upon their experiences largely the factual film representation will be based. Cooperation of the Army, Red Cross and the Government's Film Coordination Group is said to have been assured.

Indict Lipton, Grace In Mayer Extortion Case

Meyer Philip Grace and Channing Drexel Lipton, song writing team, were indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury on charges of attempting to extort $250,000 from Louis B. Mayer. They will be arraigned next week in Federal Court and are held in the County Jail in lieu of bail, $2,500 for Grace and $5,000 for Lipton.

104 Fund Pledges

A new high of 104 additional pledges of one-half of one percent of salary were received by the Motion Picture Relief Fund at the regular weekly meeting of the Fund's Executive Committee and Board of Trustees.

work as of that date, and is awaiting developments.

Music circles, however, are looking with interest on a phrase employed by Petrillo when he issued his dictum. Besides saying he would permit such work for the armed forces, etc., he specifically said records and transcriptions would be okay on 'the request of the President of the United States'. That line is looked upon as a planned face-saving out in the event of trouble, or else a stroke of miraculous luck for having been uttered. Since the union already has received a plea from the Office of War Information, it might conceivably be construed as having come from the President. Also, since that plea has been made, a similar move may be expected from the President, if the other fails, it is believed.

New York, July 29.—Music of 15 name dance bands from hotels and niteries was off the Mutual Broadcasting System's network today as outcome of dispute between the American Federation of Musicians and MBS affiliates, KFRC, in San Francisco, and WARM, Scranton. Fred Weber, Mutual's general manager, said move was ordered by James C. Petrillo, president of AFM, without notifying the network.

Ban did not affect broadcasting from stations of origin, providing programs were not fed to whole network, nor orchestras playing directly from station studios on sponsored programs.

Title Changes

'Prelude To Glory', Paramount, to 'Lucky Jordan'.

Division Sales Huddles Close Three-Day RKO Meet in NY

New York, July 29.—Concluding day's session of RKO's three-day sales meeting here was marked by divisional sales huddles and a visit of inspection to the recently completed plant of Pathe Newsreel, where execs of National Screen Service were hosts at a cocktail party. Edward Golden, who will independently produce 'Hitler's Children', was among those present at the convention.

Samuel Goldwyn announced that he had engaged Lillian Hellman to script her initial story for the screen. As yet untitled, it plans to describe the effect of the war on Russian children. He proposes to send Miss Hellman and a director to Russia for background material as soon as the story is completed.

Walt Disney, it developed, is to produce 18 single-reel comedies and four special shorts, all in color, for the coming season's program.

Majority of the salesmen were shoving off for home tonight, following announcement of the winners of the Ned Depinet sales drive. Charles Koerner, head of operations at the studio, and Perry Lieber, director of publicity, were expected to leave for home tomorrow.

WARNERS COLLARITES STRIKE

IBEW MOVE PUTS IA ON SPOT

The American Society of Cinematographers took the initiative last night in the union fight for control of studio cameramen when Virgil Miller, ASC director of photography, agreed to continue shooting on a 20th-Fox Utah location, but immediately resigned as a member of IATSE Local 659. Move put the IATSE on the spot, since it has been demanding that all directors of photography

MIRACLES STILL HAPPEN

THAT old bogey that the exhibitors hate the producers and the producers detest the exhibs was knocked higher than a kite yesterday noon, when Fox West Coast Theatres recognized the achievements of a production organization, tossed a luncheon and awarded a plentiful amount of plaques to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and its personnel who were responsible for the making of 'Mrs. Miniver'.

Though it was a quiet luncheon, not many present, the significance of the occasion was manifest among the guests. It was one of those 'first time' events, where the exhibs paid the freight and gave the production group something for nothing, and without strings, too.

F-WC recognized the fact that 'Mrs. Miniver' is more than a lot of footage implies. They felt, and as Arch Bowles, who made the presentation of the plaques in the absence of Charles Skouras, said, 'It is a war stimulant that the war needs. Mrs.

MUSICIANS KEEP FINGERS CROSSED, HOPE FOR TRUCE

With little sympathetic feeling but much apprehension, many musicians are keeping their fingers crossed against tomorrow, the date on which the record and transcription banning of James C. Petrillo, AFM prexy, goes into effect. While there has been little talk of revolt or a break from the union, it's known that plenty of name leaders, and the more active rank and file, are virtually opposed to the ban that seriously curtails income.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

HEIR Presumptive to the throne of Hollywood gossip queen has got a hot-foot all over as the result of a quick double-cross that cost her a clean beat on the hottest film story in weeks. One of her enterprising leg men, suspecting something amiss from the 'no trespassing' sign erected by Paramount flacks around the Sonora location of 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' did an unprecedented thing. Without consulting studio praisers, said peppery reporter hied up to Sonora, hired a cab that took him 60 miles into the mountains, scaled a peak or two to reach the location. He came out with the story of the Buddy De Sylva-Sam Wood feud over the suitability of Zorina for the role of Maria. He phoned it to his employer, who took down all the gaudy details—the dental dilemma which brought Zorina back to Hollywood for a recapping job, the failure of the experiment of shooting her without make-up, the long distance executive sniping, which have been boiling out the last few days. Meantime, studio flacks learned the Heir Presumptive was hep. They planted the story of a little difficulty, worded with customary grace, with the Queen Dowanger of the realm of gossip. Said Queen Dowanger, by virtue of a more elastic deadline, got the piece into print first.

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

When a soldier or a sailor over seas
Hears a sweet nostalgic ballad on the breeze
He is thinking of the tunes
Of his boyhood Mays and Junes
And the buzzing of the horse flies and the bees.

When he listens to a military strain
He is smitten with a sharp and lasting pain.
He would rather hear a ditty
Of a homestead or a city
In Wisconsin or in Maryland or Maine.

Patriotic song writers are shooting their tuneful barrages with plenty of vigor but no direction. After a foggy day in Alaska or a hot afternoon in Australia the boys don't care to hear a night club singer telling them to slap the Japs or nip the Nips. That is what the boys are doing, without benefit of music, in their daily chores on land and sea and in the air and under the sea. What they want is songs they can sing instead of songs to be sung at them by civilians. Soldiers like escape songs to divert their eardrums from the rattle of machine guns and the shriek of shells and the boom of howitzers. They want songs of home. They want to hear about the old familiar scenes they are fighting for.

There is turmoil in any Hemingway story. The boys at Paramount are wondering whether the world war is in the Caucasus or in the studio make-up department.

Pictures are going into episodes nowadays, with 'Tales of Manhattan' on the table, 'Flesh and Fantasy' on the fire and 'Birthday' in the kitchen. All whittled down to program size. Even Walter Wanger is encompassing 'The Arabian Nights' into one evening of delight, although the original script called for 1,001 nights. The men about town traveled on camels in those days but they got there just the same.

John Farrow came back from an embattled career in the Caribbean seas, seeking a rest. So he sailed right into 'Wake Island.' Now he is directing Paul Muni.

If you hear about a campaign to retrieve old whalebones, you will know that 'The Gibson Girl' is about to be revived on the screen. Those were days when women suffered silently for fashion's sake. Back in the corseted Nineties the gals struggled for freedom. And look at them now.

Pardon My Sarong

(Comedy With Music)

Universal release of a Mayfair production. Stars Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. Supporting cast: Virginia Bruce, Robert Paige, Lionel Atwill, Leif Erikson, Nan Wynn, William Demarest, Samuel S. Hinds, Marie McDonald, Elaine Morey, The Four Ink Spots and Tip, Tap and Toe. Director, Erle C. Kenton. Associate producer, Alex Gottlieb. Original screenplay, True Boardman, Nat Perrin and John Grant. Dances originated and staged by Katherine Dunham. Photography, Milton Krasner. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Martin Obzina. Film editor, Arthur Hilton. Set decorations, R. A. Gausman; associate, E. R. Robinson. Gowns, Vera West. Musical supervisor, Ted Cain. Music director, Charles Previn. Songs by Don Raye, and Gene de Paul, Stanley Cowan and Bobby North, and Milton Drake, and Ben Oakland. Previewed at Pantages theatre, Hollywood, July 30, 1942. Running time: 84 MINS.

Screwier and faster than any of their previous offerings and more generous sharing of the laughs and the business with others in the cast, this misadventure of Abbott and Costello in the wilds of a cannibal island, amidst pretty maidens as well as horrendious villains, will sock in the sectors where the boys can do no entertainment wrong. The lid has been blown completely off even the previous high pressure hilarity levels of the skinny and pudgy teammates, and the coin content of the picture is just about what any showman catering to mass laughs wants to make it.

A & C breeze out of Chicago in a 'lost' street bus, carrying a rich playboy and his irresponsible friends on a ride toward a vague destination. En route, amidst the gags and plot curdlings, Robert Paige gets mixed up with Virginia Bruce in one of those antagonistic seesaws of affection, which ends up on a yacht when A & C back the stolen bus off a ferry and are hauled up on board with the shanghaied Miss Bruce. Arrest for theft has been avoided by masquerading as magicians. The fugitives get mixed up with a hot musical jam session. They weather a violent storm and come by devious ways and devices to the island where the sarongs deck many a shapely maiden and bring such troubles and escapades as only scripters could devise who were told there was no ceiling for the gags.

The stars extend themselves with violent enthusiasm in roles they obviously relish. They whip out laughs in a solid stream. Paige and Miss Bruce are okay in the romantic counterpoint. Lionel Atwill is the chief heavy. William Demarest contributes a good share of support as the detective who expects to capture the runaway busmen. Nan Wynn is an attractive eyeful in her dusky dishabille, with Marie McDonald also edging in a sarong flutter here and there. Leif Erikson is a comedy chieftain.

Tip Tap and Toe score solidly with a choice brand of hoofing, as do the Four Ink Spots in three striking song numbers. Dancing trio does a slithering specialty on top of a greased table. Ink Spots chant 'Do I Worry?' 'Java Jive' and 'Shout, Brother, Shout'.

An educated seal, Sharkey, also is

HOME OF SHOW BIZ IN CHI TO BE MONASTERY

Chicago, July 30.—Woods Theatre building, show business landmark for many years and the home of majority of theatrical firms, including agents, music publishers, etc., has been sold and will be turned into a monastery and chapel. Deal was negotiated between the Marshall Field Estate and Essaness Theatres Corp., leaseholders, and the Franciscan order of the Roman Catholic Church.

All tenants must vacate the premises by April 1, 1943. After that, the priests will establish a chapel in the Woods theatre and use office space for a missionary and monastery. Exodus will include Variety muggs, building having housed branch Variety office for 20 years.

themselves via the disc, whether on the air or in a juke box, feel they are being penalized for laggards and other unqualified men who are not currently active. It's also claimed that many locals are membered with hosts of men who wouldn't any longer play, even if they could. These hang on for various charity benefits. Very often they join locals for that purpose alone, it's said.

Plenty of musicians see the thing falling through on many counts, including the possibility of a White House plea which would save Petrillo's face, and resent the prospect of no work for the next three months at least. Recorders and transcribers have been working furiously since the Dallas convention. Backlog acquired has majority set for at least that long. So, even if the deal is called off, musicians are not likely to work in that field for a spell.

In a statement yesterday, Lewis Allen Weiss, v.-p. and g.m. of the Don Lee-Mutual chain, blasted Petrillo's yanking of all band remote pickups on the network because KFRC, Frisco, and WARM, Scranton, Pa., affiliates, refused to meet demanded increases.

Citing the case of NBC's KSTP, St. Paul, under similar ban on networking of remotes, Allen stated the union arbitrarily violates individual station contracts with various locals. He added that KHJ, locally, suffers from the ban, despite having harmonious relations with the musicians here. Broadcasters generally assumed added and unnecessary expense of musician increases for the privilege of transcribing broadcasts to make up for time differences between east and west, he added. Weiss also said Petrillo's public representations regarding unemployed musicians is misleading, contending that a majority are not competent to play for radio, dance bands and other activities requiring high standards.

NLRB Approves 20th Deal with Skaters

New York, July 30.—A compromise under which Sonja Henie pays three extras $350 each and promises to refrain from interfering with their self-organization privileges was rubber-stamped today by the National Labor Relations Board. Formal decision ratified stipulation signed by both the skater and 20th-Fox which promises that Barbara Carabin, Grace Gale and Mary Taylor will be 'made whole' and given equal treatment with other job seekers whenever they show up at the studio. Each girl gets $350 balm for discharges during the spring of 1941.

Describing Miss Henie as a 20th-Fox agent, the board required both respondents to quit discriminating in hiring or firing and to post notices they will abide by the Wagner Act as far as the trio is concerned. Three players claimed they were discriminated against because of their activities in behalf of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

Musical Tribute Paid O'Keefe by Friends In 20th-Fox Rites

Musician friends and associates of James O'Keefe paid him tribute in an impressive and eloquent memorial on 20th-Fox sound stage attended by over 500 people. Ceremony, entirely musical, coincided with funeral services in New Jersey for the head of 20th-Fox's music department who died in Colorado Springs of a heart attack while on a vacation. Alfred Newman conducted the studio orchestra of 45 pieces and a chorus of 16, and program consisted largely of pieces which were favorites of O'Keefe.

Some 50 prominent songwriters attended the ceremonies on the studio sound stage, including L. Wolfe Gilbert, Jerome Kern, Harry Revel, Sidney Claire, Lew Pollack, Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson. Honorary pall bearers were Frank Tresselt, Curil Mockridge, Edward Powell and Herbert Spencer, who had been O'Keefe's closest friends and associates in the music department.

Program, instrumental, choral and solo, included 'The Star Spangled Banner', 'Ave Maria', 'The Bluebird Suite', 'Rosita', O'Keefe's own composition; 'Midway', 'Sixpence', 'Summer Time', 'Till We Meet Again', 'Nearer My God To Thee', and the sounding of taps by trumpets. Robert Bradford and Nan Wynn sang solos.

RAW FILM STOCK SAVING PLAN GIVEN TO HOPPER

New York, July 30.—Motion picture industry submitted its all-inclusive program for saving raw film stock, negative and positive, to Harold Hopper, chief of the WPM film section, who met with the industry's top executives here today in a five-hour session.

Reductions in footage recommended in the huddles would be effective on the 1942-43 product, or as soon as the WPB approves the plan. Hopper indicated he wants the industry to run its own business, and will present the full lineup to the WPB in hopes that it will fit in with conservation requirements and be adopted.

Based on consumption of 1941, but excluding newsreels and all footage shipped to foreign markets, the industry recommendations are that companies with less than 20,000,000 feet of consumption would not be reduced in footage. For companies with 20,000,000 to 50,000,000 feet, 10% reduction. This takes in Producers Releasing, Monogram and United Artists. For companies consuming 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 feet, 12½% reduction, which covers Republic.

Companies consuming 70,000,000 to 100,000,000 feet, 17½% reduction, covering Columbia, Universal and RKO. Warners will take 20% cut, being lone entry in the 100 to 125 million feet bracket. Twentieth-Fox and Paramount, using between 125 and 150 million feet, will be sliced 22½%. Metro, with largest figure, in excess of 150 million feet, will take a 24% reduction.

At yesterday's session it was disclosed that Eastman and DuPont, largest suppliers of raw film stock, have been called on to supply an unprecedented amount of negative for army and navy aerial photography, and the military needs would increase in the near future.

Col Using Downtown Theatres for 'Shout' Chorus Drills

In addition to using the Mayan theatre downtown, Columbia has taken over the adjoining Belasco for use as a rehearsal stage for chorus numbers in 'Something to Shout About'. Gregory Ratoff will have new settings for the musical installed in the Mayan, while rehearsals, staged by David Lichine, are under way at the Belasco.

Cummings To Testify In Aroff Trial

San Francisco, July 30.—Irving Cummings, Sr., Hollywood picture director, was scheduled to arrive here tonight to testify in the Navy court martial of Lieut. Commander Maurice N. Aroff. Irving Cummings, Jr., Michael Levee, Jr., and Lawrence Stromberg have already testified as to gifts given Aroff after they had been sworn in as Naval ensigns.

Young Cummings and Stromberg told of presenting Aroff with gold cuff links, but indicated the presentation had nothing to do with their appointments, but were merely given out of gratefulness of Cummings and Stromberg and their parents.

Stromberg said he introduced himself to Aroff as a friend of Mel Burns, RKO makeup artist, who was a friend of the Lieutenant-Commander. A subpoena also has been issued for the 'custodian of the records' at 20th-Fox.

NBC's Caldwell Pitch

NBC auditioned Erskine Caldwell, author and authority on Russia, as a commentator, liked his recorded voice so well that its salesmen were sent out to track down a sponsor. He goes commercial from scratch without network showcasing.

McKinley Into Trianon

Ray McKinley's band has been booked into the Trianon for a six-week stand following Count Basie, who opens Aug. 19.

The Winnah—USO

Lew Merrill and Jay Norvello, radio actors, put on an impromptu knucklefest a few weeks ago at NBC while a recording was being made. The disc proved more of a mess than either of the battlers, and it develops that the only beneficiary was USO—to the tune of $100. After the fisticuffing died down, NBC lodged a complaint with American Federation of Radio Artists. Yesterday a check for $100 was received by NBC from AFRA to cover damages. Immediately John Swallow, western program director, endorsed it over to USO.

Fund Aids Patients

The Motion Picture Relief Fund handled 867 medical cases and 87 dental cases during May and June, according to a report submitted to the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees by Dr. Francis E. Browne. In addition 147 patients were cared for in sanitariums, rest homes and hospitals. During the same period, Dr. Browne reported 660 office calls, 63 house calls, 58 X-rays and 1,497 hospital calls.

Writers At Filmarte

Meeting place for Screen Writers Guild huddle Wednesday night is being switched from Roosevelt Hotel to the Filmarte Theatre. Central States Exhib Conference Pattern Of Calif. Body

Minneapolis, July 30.—Patterned after the California Theatre Owners' Conference, a 'Central States' Conference, comprising Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and North and South Dakota independent exhibitor organizations, has been formed here. The purpose is to promote industry unity and advancement and to present a more unified front and unified action in the fight to protect midwest independent exhibitors' interests, it is announced.

It's expected that, working together, the six organizations will have greater prestige and carry more weight in combatting high film rentals, percentage and objectionable trade practices. However, according to Fred Strom, executive secretary, states 'the move should be considered as a constructive and progressive move for the advancement in the territory of the industry as a whole.' The aim, he asserts, will be to coordinate actions of all the state bodies, but the Conference will not concern itself with buying or booking.

Bob Poole, executive secretary of the California body, is credited with bringing the Conference into being. It is Poole's hope to have all independent exhibitors throughout the U. S. organized similarly into eight or nine bodies which can act in concert when the occasion arises, according to announcement.

Navy May Adopt Army Hours For Drinking

San Francisco, July 30.—Army and Navy officials here are discussing the proposal of restricting Navy personnel drinking to the same hours as those of soldiers. After Board of Equalization crackdown on 28 taverns and niteries, khaki boys were limited from 6 to 10 p. m. Idea is to make service rules uniform and avoid confusion. To date only the Army has been restricted.

Koerner Staying Over In NY for More Exec Huddles

New York, June 30.—Windup of RKO sales convention here Wednesday finds Production Chief Charles Koerner delaying departure for the Coast until Friday. He's staying over a couple of extra days for confabs with home office execs and sales officials. Studio publicity director, Perry Lieber, swings down to Washington Friday, and leaves there Saturday for the Coast.

Aftermath of the sales sessions discloses that the new shorts series of 'This Is America', which are to supplant the March of Time group, are being made by Pathe News and are creation of Frederic Ulman, Pathe chief, who's been working on the idea for the past four or five years.

March of Time is slated to be grabbed by 20th-Fox for the coming year's distribution.

effectively used to add novel comedy.

Erle C. Kenton, directing Abbott and Costello for the first time, does an outstanding job with the roustabout comedy and musical combination, never failing to sock his laughs, to keep his gags snappy and to needle in the romantic nonsense and allure for balanced mob entertainment.

Alex Gottlieb presides again as associate producer, and demonstrates that he has the unfailing recipe for keeping Abbott and Costello in top form in their own brand of funning for widest possible audience appeal.

Original screenplay by True Boardman, Nat Perrin and John Grant keep the gag-narrative sparkling and skittering along ahead of audience dopesters for everything from giggles to yells.

Music content is of choice calibre, varied and well sold. 'Island of the Moon' is by Don Raye and Gene de Paul, as are also 'Lovely Luana' and the rhythmically jingly 'Vingo Jingo'. Stanley Cowan and Bobby North cleffed 'Do I Worry?' and Milton Drake and Ben Oakland concocted the 'Java Jive'.

Katherine Dunham originated and staged the dances, a distinguished job. Milton Krasner turns in a splendid camera assignment. Jack Otterson's art direction is responsible for much of the attractive pictorial dress and the kind of selective backgrounding which is an aid to both comedy and romance. Charles Previn handled the musical direction; Ted Cain the music supervision. Production has gorgeous physical setup.

Miniver is all over; she is a mother, a defense worker, a soldier; she is doing something in the war effort. And the screen recognizes her as the finest disciple of propaganda that can be chosen at this time.' Greer Garson, who was present, accentuated his statement.

Therefore, Charles Skouras and the Fox West Coast heads were unselfish enough for the first time, as exhibs, to pin a bouquet on a production organization.

MAYBE it took the war to bring about this bond of relationship in the industry. If so, it already has done some good. Possibly in time there can be a stronger cementing of this relationship, so that every time the producer and exhibitor get together they do not look with suspicion upon each other and ask, 'What has he got up his sleeve now?'

Furthermore, another big thing on the part of Fox West Coast that comes to light is its ready and unstinted acquiescence to cooperate on the premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' shortly at Warners. The premiere is under the auspices of the Treasury Department. It is expected that Bonds in excess of $5,000,000 will be sold. Community cooperation was necessary to put this Bond-selling campaign across. Skouras was approached for cooperation. Unhesitatingly he said, 'Yes, I'll go the limit.' As a result, 106 theatres operated by F-WC in this area, starting tomorrow will carry trailers announcing the opening of a Warners film in a Warners house, and as well the theatres will sell Bonds that will entitle their patrons to tickets to see the Warners picture. And the independent exhibs in this area also have joined in the movement, with the belief now prevalent that with this and other spontaneous cooperation the 'Build the Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' will bring about the sale of more Bonds than did the New York opening of this picture last May, when the total reached $5,750,000.

AND that is what can be called all-around industry cooperation and recognition on the part of the Skouras organization, firstly the producer and then the competitive exhibitor.

Too bad that the industry people had to wait until a war came upon the nation to more closely know and recognize each other; but there are many steps in this direction that can be taken by others in various branches of the theatre and film biz, and it is our hope that the example set by F-WC will branch out through the breadth of the business.

WB Holding Back On Sales Plan Pending UMPI Decision

Chicago, July 30.—At the two-day regional sales convention of Warners for the midwest and prairie sections, which opened today at the Blackstone hotel, Sales Chief Ben Kalmenson stated there still is no indication as to when official decision will be forthcoming on the UMPI selling plan. In view of the delay, he said, the company considered it advisable to reserve decision on distribution and selling plans for the 1942-43 season.

While discussing the new season's product, details about either blocks-of-five or UMPI's groups of 12 were avoided, and release dates of early season product are still being kept in abeyance.

Early reports that Warners would sell an initial block of five pictures to get sales season under way are incorrect, company execs stated, though it was admitted that this procedure may be the only ultimate alternative if the UMPI plan is held up much longer.

Exhibs Honor Prods For 'Mrs. Miniver'

Exhibitor and producer sat at the same table to break bread together and laud each other as well, with the producer getting the top edge of the deal through a presentation to him and his aides who turned out an outstanding motion picture. It all took place at The Ambassador hotel yesterday when Charles Skouras of Fox-West Coast invited about 40 prominent citizens to pay their respects to the makers and cast of 'Mrs. Miniver' and witness the reward of plaques of appreciation by the theatre organization to them for their outstanding artistic as well as box office success.

In the absence of Skouras, Arch M. Bowles, general manager of F-WC functioned as toastmaster. He toasted the virtues of all concerned in making the film and made the presentation. Greer Garson, Sidney Franklin, Y. Frank Freeman and Walter Wanger made brief addresses. Plaques for those who were not present like Major Wm. Wyler, Jan Struthers, Walter Pidgeon, were given to proxies. Wyler's mother and brother were also guests.

Mono Charges Levey Breached Contract By Moving Here

New York, July 30.—Answer and counterclaim were filed by Monogram Pictures Corporation in Federal court today in alleged breach of contract suit brought by Arthur Levey against Monogram and Pathe. Levey's suit claimed that contract with defendants which called for his servicing of Monogram's releasing account with Pathe for film distribution in England had been broken.

Monogram's answer, along with several denials, claimed its contract with Levey under date of Feb. 19, 1937, allegedly called for his residence in England, and was violated with his unwarranted return to the United States on Nov. 1, 1939. Counterclaim of $9,884 was asked as representing amount allegedly given Levey on the strength of a statement purportedly made by him that his departure from England was only temporary.

Hollywood Honor Men

Three more names added to the armed forces from Hollywood ranks yesterday. Trio includes Claude Binyon, Paramount screen writer and Variety alumnus who reports to the Army Signal Corps as First Lieutenant; William Lasky, 21-year-old son of Jesse Lasky who had been an assistant director at Warner Bros., inducted yesterday, and Sid Ziff, former sports editor of L. A. Herald-Express and radio commentator, who enlisted. Latter leaves today for initial training prior to joining Volunteer Officers division.

Ill in Pix

EDNA MAY OLIVER checked into Cedars of Lebanon yesterday for observation and rest. Recently in ill health, she took an indefinite leave from her recently started radio program.

GEORGE SEITZ, recovering from recent operation at the Good Samaritan, expects to return home early next week and report back at Metro.

WILLIAM WRIGHT, Columbia contractee, underwent an appendectomy at California hospital yesterday.

GASPARCOLOR TIEUP WITH ANSCOCOLOR READY FOR INK

New York, July 30.—Hookup between Anscocolor with Gasparcolor on the Coast, whereby the Agfa-Ansco monopack color negative would be utilized with the Gasparcolor method of three-color print processing, is reported at the closing stage.

Under proposed deal, Gasparcolor would have exclusive rights for development of Anscocolor for practical production and studio use, and results, if proven successful, would allow use of the two color methods by all studios via installation of color processing adjuncts in each major laboratory, for both negative developing and release printing.

It is reported that the Army is currently using Anscocolor negative for special photographic work, as method allows for negative development on location with speed in portable and compact laboratory units.

Relief Drive Hinges On Big Earners

Closing date of the film industry's last War drive of the year will depend on the speed and generosity with which the big money earners turn in their contributions, it was announced yesterday by Chairman Jacob H. Karp, following a telephone canvas of all studio colonels.

The committee hopes to send the campaign over the top within two weeks, but it was pointed out that this patriotic drive for four great causes, Navy, Dutch, China and Russia War Reliefs, is one on which the industry cannot fail and that the closing date will of necessity be postponed if the goal is not reached. Contributions still are coming in from rank and file workers, who already have made a remarkable showing. The union organizations are busy in the hope that they can come close to, if not reach, a 100% enrollment. However, those who are 'in the money' are being counted on to put the drive over the top.

Leaves For 'Doubt'

Alfred Hitchcock left last night for Santa Rosa location of 'Shadow of a Doubt,' Jack Skirball production for Universal, to start filming on picture today. Principals, including Teresa Wright, Joseph Cotten, Macdonald Carey, Patricia Collings, Henry Travers, and Wallace Ford, trained for Santa Rosa earlier yesterday. Already there are Skirball, Joseph Valentine, chief cameraman, and crew. Troupe expects to be gone four weeks.

Musics 'Bataan'

Daniele Amfitheatrof set by Pine-Thomas to compose and conduct musical score for 'A Letter from Bataan' and 'We Refuse to Die,' first two Victory shorts Paramount unit is producing.

Col Holds Gordon

Michael Gordon, currently directing 'Underground Agent' at Columbia, has had his contract renewed. His next assignment will be 'Lone Wolf Goes to a Party,' Warren William feature.

Wyatt For Dix Pic

Jane Wyatt will have the femme lead opposite Richard Dix in 'Buckskin Empire,' Harry Sherman production for Paramount. Others cast so far include Victor Jory and George Reeves.

Refugee Chores at WB

Halfdan Waller, who escaped from Norway when the Germans invaded that country, has been assigned by Warners to design and supervise set construction for 'Edge of Darkness.'

Obituary

CHARLES BROZ

Charles Broz, 44, manager of the State theatre, Pasadena, and variously associated in show business as a musician, show manager and theatre man, died in St. Luke's hospital yesterday morning after being stricken a week ago with a blood clot in his heart. Born in Cleveland, he entered show business with his father around 1920, managing and operating a film theatre and stock company there. He also operated the Japanese Gardens, Minter, O., at one time, produced small touring units, and since then had worked for Fox West Coast in Sacramento and other parts of California. He rejoined the company about a year ago. His widow, a son, and mother and father survive. Services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at Jones-Hamrock mortuary in L. A. Body will be cremated and remains shipped to Cleveland.

P. L. PERKINSON

Paul Lorenzo Perkinson, 40, circus aerialist, billed as The Great Lorenzo, was killed Wednesday night during a performance at Salem, Ill., in a fall from a 116-foot pole on which he was doing a balancing act. While 15,000 spectators looked on, the pole snapped near the top, plunging Perkinson to his death. He vainly attempted to grasp the edge of a platform on which his wife, Vicki, was standing.

ROBERT HORNER

Robert Horner, 48, legless producer who had a number of film production ventures since 1923, died suddenly Wednesday in El Paso, according to advices received here. Deceased was making tour of small towns with an indie picture in association with personal appearances of Dick Kramer. In silent days Horner was a well-known figure around the Beachwood, Sunset and Gower Gulch district.

Funeral services will be held today at Forest Lawn for Anton Sobbe, 81, father-in-law of Claude Binyon, Paramount screen writer and former member of the Variety staff. Mr. Sobbe died Wednesday at his Los Angeles home.

SPG Meet Offed

Meeting of Screen Publicists Guild scheduled for last night was called off for lack of a quorum.

Eight Actors Added To Victory Group Exec Committee

Lynne Overman, Rosalind Russell, Franchot Tone.

The names of 28 performers also have been added to the actors subcommittee of the Victory committee, as was published exclusively in Daily Variety July 10. The Committee, representative of every branch of the motion picture industry, stage and radio, now numbers 88, with the by-laws amended to allow up to 100 members as the needs require.

Regular bi-weekly meetings have been scheduled by the actors' group to assist in carrying out the expanded program now under way.

In announcing enlargement of the Victory executive committee it was stated that 'By thus enlisting the active participation of an enlarged group of actors and actresses in all its Committee activities, the Victory Committee is preparing for a fall and winter program unprecedented in its history, highlighted by the appearance of stars and featured players in War Bond rallies in 300 cities as the feature of the September billion dollar Bond drive under the motion picture industry's leadership.'

It was stated that increasing requests from the armed forces, Government agencies and such national organizations as the Red Cross brought about the decision to enlarge the Committee and bring about an even greater mobilization of the entertainment forces for the volunteer patriotic effort.

Cowan Takes Cameron For 'Commandos'

Rod Cameron has been loaned to Columbia by Paramount for a role in the Lester Cowan production, 'The Commandos Come at Dawn.' Cameron heads for the Victoria, Canada, location of picture tomorrow. Anna Lee expects to complete her work at Universal in 'Flesh and Fantasy' the middle of next week and will then head north to start her assignment in the Columbia feature.

Miller Telegraphs IA Resignation From Utah Location

must have 659 cards in order to work on locations outside the state of California.

Following long-distance telephone conversations between Miller, Fred Jackman, ASC prexy, and William Koenig, 20th-Fox production executive, it was agreed that Miller would not be required to leave his job. Lenser is under contract to 20th-Fox, and studio executives had threatened to tear up his agreement if he quit location job last night.

Miller and Bill Snyder were sent by Local 659 to take over location cameras when union demanded Ed Cronjager be relieved because he did not have an IATSE card. Prexy Jackman of the ASC immediately notified the two directors of photography they were liable to suspension for taking over assignment and not getting approval of the ASC board of governors. Simultaneously it was announced the generator electrician on location job also would be pulled by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with which the directors of photography now are affiliated, if the cameramen were forced to quit.

Situation for ASC was solved last night when organization agreed that Miller could remain on job and fulfill his contract with the studio. Approval was given after Miller had telegraphed his resignation as a member of IATSE Local 659 to Business Representative Herbert Aller, to take effect immediately. Bill Snyder, the other relief director of photography who is not under contract to the studio, has quit location job and will head for Los Angeles at 6 a.m.

Move put IATSE directly on spot since it had believed that both Miller and Snyder would quit jobs and that its second cameraman Henry Cronjager and B. Rosenberg would be directed to take over today. ASC action checks next move up to IA. It must permit Miller to complete shooting without an IA card or go on record as interfering with production by forcing lenser off job whom they themselves assigned as relief photographer.

Exhib Air Corps Officer

Minneapolis, July 30.—Sidney Volk, owner of one of the largest and most successful Twin City independent theatre circuits, has been commissioned from civil life a second lieutenant in the air corps. He goes to Palm Beach, Fla., for his basic training and then will be stationed at Camp Hamilton, Calif.

WARNERS COLLARITES STRIKE OVER NY WAGE CONTRACT

men and bookers were pressed into service in order to keep films rolling to accounts.

Despite the emergency, Sam Lefkowitz, district manager, stated the exhibitors were being serviced as usual while the exchange office is operating on a skeleton force.

While the union claims that 450 Warners office workers, home office and exchange, out of 600 eligible to membership, are on strike, Warners claims the number is 350. Picketing began this morning.

Strike followed submission of a contract, based on terms said to have been agreed upon between the union and Warners, calling for preferential shop, salary increases, retroactive pay, severance pay, vacations with pay, working week 38 hours. Under preferential shop, all new employes hired by Warners were to become members of the union within 90 days.

The union claims that when Warners submitted the written contract, this clause was made obscure, that all members were to attest to it, that any member not in good standing could be discharged, and contract could not be added to at later date. It also was charged by the union that while Warners orally agreed retroactive pay would be from May 28, the date when negotiations began, contract delivered to it changed this to read the week commencing June 9.

The union also decided to strike because warehouse employes, totaling 11, were to be included in the agreement, but were left out when the contract was written up.

In a bulletin sent today to all Warners employes, the company stated:

'All employes in these buildings (home office and exchange) who are within bargaining unit established by the National Labor Relations Board, will receive the same benefits and privileges, regardless of union membership, and employes who do not strike will not be discriminated against and if, subsequently, an agreement is reached with the union, non-striking employes will receive the same benefits and privileges. From the beginning of negotiations with the union, the negotiating committee and the union representatives have requested us to discriminate against employes who are not members of the union, and have asked us to agree to give benefits, pay raises, to union members only, and not to extend the same benefits to non-union members.'

While RKO, 20th-Fox, Columbia and Loew's earlier this week signed a contract giving their employes a 10% raise under the contract with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, it is understood Warners was willing to grant around 15%.

Estates Ask Lower Tax—

Harold Lloyd and executors of the estate of the late Carl Laemmle yesterday asked County Board of Supervisors for tax reductions on property assessments. Both parties agreed there was not enough coin around to support such homes any more. Lloyd wanted his cut from $222,760 to $49,410. Laemmle group asked for drop to $24,610 from $110,410. Such places are a drug on the market, it was claimed, no renting offers coming, much less sales.

Mature Gains Point—

Denial of $510 a month temporary alimony was made by Superior Judge Kurtz Kauffman yesterday in continuing until Aug. 19 the divorce action of Mrs. Martha Stephenson Kemp Mature against Actor Victor Mature, now in the Coast Guard. The continuance was ordered so that inquiry could be made into the couple's joint property holdings. Mature was not present in court.

John Garfield Floored—

Overheated by heavy aviator clothing he was wearing while working in Warners 'Air Force' at Tampa, Fla., John Garfield collapsed yesterday on location from combination of sun and rig. He'll be out several days, following emergency treatment.

IATSE Studio Locals Leary of Walsh Alliance Move

Several of the strongest IATSE studio locals are reported shying away from the suggestion of International Prexy Dick Walsh that they organize a Conference of IA Business Representatives under the leadership of Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper, head of the downtown stagehands. Some of the membership leaders are suspicious this move by the Walsh crowd might be a wedge for the IA International to get a tighter rein on affairs of the local unions which have openly expressed dissatisfaction with International policies. These groups are said to be cautioning their business representatives to go slow in making any tieup that might jeopardize their autonomous rights.

Many of the local union leaders also were peeved at the action of Walsh in attacking the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell, and at his failure to take an aggressive stand in the camera fight and other jurisdictional matters. They contend the only sincere approach to a Conference of IA studio locals would be to permit the locals to operate their own organization and select their own leader without International interference, unless its aid is requested as is provided in the IATSE Constitution. It was pointed out the business agents already have an alliance that forced a favorable decision on Wage-Hour retroactive pay and Producer negotiations, and that its relations with the Conference of Studio Unions and other groups had been friendly. It is understood Walsh is insisting Cooper must head any such organization.

Leaders objecting to this move claim Cooper has not been identified with the studio since sound came in and is not familiar with current problems. Walsh sold his program to some of the smaller outfits, but others are skeptical and indicated they would remain on the sidelines for awhile to watch developments.

Some of those who might have been inclined to look with favor on the suggestion became soured on the move because of Walsh's criticism of the Sorrell organization. They said many unions had often requested and secured support from Sorrell to get wage increases and conditions when such support was not forthcoming froc their own internationals.

Walsh left town Tuesday night, with the fight for control of cameramen no nearer a solution. It was indicated the IA would defer further action pending a decision by the National Labor Relations Board on the unfair labor practice charge filed against the IATSE and the Producers by the American Society of Cinematographers. The NLRB is expected to decide within the next 10 days whether a complaint will be issued on the charges and an order issued for a hearing before a trial examiner.

Wherever you go it's the talk of the town.

GOOD many Hollywoodites, and many more from Broadway, filled out blanks for the Specialists Corps of the Army and are wondering what has become of their applications. They are probably filed with 100,000 more from hopeful over-age petitioners for a Specialists uniform. Under the Executive order creating the Specialists Corps under former Secretary of War Dwight Davis, it was specifically mentioned, 'don't try political influence.' That ruled out Senators and Congressmen and they don't like it. On Capitol Hill they say you can't become an Army Specialist unless your Sumna Cum Laude or Phi Beta Kappa. College degrees are the 'open sesame'. Look for an eruption soon in Congressional circles where they say the 'Brass Hats' are interpreting the executive order as an open invitation to appoint their own friends. As one member of the House Military Affairs Committee expressed it, 'The brass hats play more politics than all of Congress combined. The lucky ones are those that know generals and colonels who like to be surrounded by their friends, regardless of qualifications. One advertising expert with silver leaves on his shoulders has named every one who ever did business with his agency.'

REQUEST that salaries of girls working as inkers and painters at Disney Studio be increased to prevailing wage scales in the film industry has been put directly up to Walt Disney. At conference with company representatives Business Representative William Pomerance asked that matter be referred to company head, stating that from what he knew of Walt Disney and his relations with employes he felt confident Disney would not want the girls to be paid less than they received at other studios for the same work. It is understood Disney representatives were not set against increases, but that there wes some differences over date of retroactive pay. It is probable that Walt Disney will be asked to settle question himself.

FOR 16 months John Hubbard had an oral contract with Columbia to play the lead opposite Claudette Colbert when actress was to check in for one commitment at the studio. Month ago actor was permitted to call it off because of delays in Miss Colbert's itinerary at other studios. Now Harry Cohn wants to renew pact, this time in writing, at considerably upped figure. Hubbard is married and has family, which affects his prospective Army availability and his salary figure has gone up materially since he first started waiting for the Colbert parlay.

BRIAN DONLEVY'S slip-of-the- tongue on Kraft Music Hall last week has posed a question that no one seems to be able to answer. In referring to Herr Shickelgruber as 'that Australian paperhanger,' he got nary a tumble from the home dialers. But NBC hears that the switchboard in New York's Radio City was lit up for hours with calls noting the slip. Now the home kilocyclers are wondering what it proves—that we're not alert enough, not smart enough to recognize the diff between Austria and Australia or just don't give a rap.

Gone in the thrilling motor chase along the crowded highways.
No longer do the actors race in yonder winding byways.
No more do fleeing felons skid through gates and bars and fences
To make a pulsing picture play regardless of expenses.
The reckless drivers on the screen make fans break down and blubber.
It breaks Joe Public's heart to see such wanton waste of rubber.

SOEG Nixes 10% Pay Boost Offered By Major Exchanges

definite minimums would have to be fixed for each classification.

Offer would have fixed beginner rate for typists and file clerks at $20 per week, with proviso those getting over scale would be entitled to a 10% tilt. Guild negotiators said offer was not worth submitting to membership, that SOEG was willing to make some concessions in an effort to reach an accord, but that percentage increases were out. Beginner rate would have applied for six months.

Company representatives agreed to talk over situation with their officials and indicated a counter proposal would be submitted tomorrow. Guild is asking a minimum of $28.80 for typists and file clerks. Minimums in other classifications range upward to $72.80 weekly for bookers.

Guild also told company heads that union considered Collarites in exchanges and studios on same basis. Company negotiators had attempted to set up claim that each was separate and apart and should be so considered.

Pat Casey, who is supervising negotiations for major companies, is said to have cautioned exchanges against dragging out situation until studios become involved, with the possibility of production being interfered with. The SOEG has around 2,000 members in the studios.

Negotiations for the SOEG are being handled by Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Prexy Margaret Bennett, Secretary Bernard Lusher and Attorney George E. Bodle.

Korda Gets Coin For Film Production

New York, Aug. 2.—Alexander Korda has arranged financing for three to four pictures, including a film version of Tolstoi's 'War and Peace,' for release through United Artists next season. Korda may produce the Tolstoi classic in England at a cost of approximately 300,000 pounds.

United Artists is lining up from 20 to 25 pictures for release next season, including several from Hunt Stromberg and the Cagneys. Jack Benny also has a deal pending with UA.

Distrib organization has, from accounts, decided against producing any films via its production.

David O. Selznick is expected to come through with one or more productions for UA release once financing and other problems are adjusted.

EXHIBITOR LEADER RAPS UMPI SALES PLAN TO DJ

New York, Aug. 2.—Independent Exhibitor Association of New England, one of three exhib groups which rejected the new UMPI selling plan, has made a fresh stand against the plan in a four-page appeal addressed to Robert L. Wright of the Department of Justice, who figured in the original negotiations on the consent decree.

Over signature of Nathan Yamins, chairman of the organization's executive committee, the letter reviews benefits of decree selling, complaining the UMPI amendments to it would increase block booking from five to 13 pictures (160%), and therefore is a step backward. The upped number under UMPI plan would also restore blind buying, and charges that the identification provision on unscreened films is so elastic that the eight films thusly sold are 'blind as a bat', according to Yamins' communication.

Yamins also complains the cancellation privileges under the UMPI system is inadequate, partly because any theatres paying more than $200 average film rental have no rejection rights at all. It has been estimated, however, that less than 15% of theatres pay film rentals in excess of $200. Yamins also points to what he calls arbitrary powers given distribs in naming prices on identified pictures at a date later than signing of the contract.

The New England exhib leader believes that, if the UMPI plan is not adopted, the five-block method of selling will be continued, because by latter system the distribs can get maximum film rental. He concludes that the decree companies prospered during the past year by selling groups of five, despite widespread loss of foreign markets.

Einfeld Field Head For Bond Rallies In 300 Cities

Charles Einfeld, vice-prexy and advertising director of Warners, has been appointed field director of the 300 War Bond rallies at which film stars will appear in September, and from which it is hoped to sell $300,000,000 in Bonds. The Victory Committee is now busy recruiting an army of stars to start off on seven different tour routes Sept. 1. Kenneth Thomson said the Committee has been assured complete cooperation of all studios and stars.

Seven top publicity men from major studios are now being selected by a vote of the industry's Public Relations Committee, eastern and western divisions, to serve as advance men. They will leave about two weeks ahead of the departure of the first stars to go out, and each will travel over the entire route of one of the seven tours.

The first cities to be placed on the 'Stars Over America' itinerary will be those that assure the War Activities Committee of a $1,000,000 rally.

MUSICIANS, DISC PRODS. OBSERVE PETRILLO BAN

in view of Petrillo's words to the press on Friday. They repeated his intention of carrying the issue through. In answering Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information; Francis Biddle, attorney general, and James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Petrillo voiced the intention of sticking by the edict which forbids union membership from making recordings or transcriptions for other than home consumption after Aug. 1. However, ban is more complete than it sounds, because all recording licenses are up on July 31, and about three weeks ago Petrillo informed discers of contract terminations, adding, individually, 'it will not be renewed'.

Locally, recorders and transcriptions outfits are marking time. All activity ceased as of the time limit. They had been working furiously right up until midnight, establishing a backlog that is estimated to take care of them for several months. None will attempt to circumvent the ruling, they state, unless through the anticipated Federal injunction or a rescinding order from Petrillo.

Reps of RCA-Victor, Columbia, Standard Radio, World Broadcasting, Decca and Capitol are carefully observing the ban. However, Columbia, Blue Network and Mutual are continuing to transcribe programs off the air for later rebroadcast. Though Petrillo has never specifically mentioned this situation, stations say they are so privileged by contract and will continue until otherwise informed. Nearly all are happy that the musician-employer situation has come to a head and anticipate a fight to the finish.

Whole condition is regarded as Petrillo's means of getting at the odd half-million juke boxes in the country, with 500 radio stations around the country which use no musicians being a secondary issue. Petrillo stated Friday that canned music costs his 138,000 membership an annual $100,000,000 in income, and that the government was 'protecting' the combination opposed against him.

Having not altered his stand, disc makers and radioites are looking forward to the governmental restrainer which is reported going to be sprung in Chicago today.

Contact with Central Council of Congress of Industrial Organizations here disclosed that group as not doing anything regarding possible unionization of any revolting AFM members. They have 'always been on the friendliest terms with the AFM', it was stated, 'and have never even thought of raiding the AFofL affiliate.'

Locally, NBC's contract is in process of renewal, having expired July 15. CBS's comes up in 30 days. Whether or not there will be any trouble with either due to the situation is problematical.

Par Screens 16 Films For '42-'43 Next Wk.

New York, Aug. 2.—Paramount is not waiting the outcome of the UMPI plan to decide on its 1942-43 selling plan, so is taking a precautionary step by screening 16 of its new product between Aug. 12 and 19. Therefore with whatever selling method will prevail for the season it figures it will have gone through the motion of product screening. For should present decree continue it will have screened three blacks of five, plus an additional film and should the UMPI plan be approved it will have screened three more than the maximum 13 films to be sold at one time. Under UMPI plan only five need be shown but Par will have let the exhib look 'em all over, for actual delivery and not worry about what he would get under the designation provisions.

Mercer Tunes For RKO

Johnny Mercer goes to RKO on loanout from Paramount to write tunes for 'Look Out Below.' He will also deliver one song for Goldwyn's 'They've Got Me Covered.'

Robson Here To Record H'wood Show With Hedda for Luckies

American Tobacco will have a second show from here this fall if CBS prexy, William S. Paley, is successful in his determined effort to sell 'Columbia Looks At Hollywood' to Headman George Washington Hill. Undaunted by Hill's objections to a show recently recorded here by Charles Vanda and Lynn Murray, music director, Paley has shipped William N. Robson here to fix up another platter incorporating all of Hill's suggestions. Leith Stevens will preside over the music.

If show is bought it will be a fourth for Luckies, as the current three, Kay Kyser, Hit Parade and 'Information Please', are practically assured another season. Effort will be made to clear Hedda Hopper for the show, her present stint with Sunkist being exclusive. Program will rate and preview pictures and otherwise reflect the Hollywood scene in music, gab and histrionics.

Honor Men

Show business honor list increases with entrance of Jim Moore, assistant program manager of KSFO, Frisco, into the Army. Robert Blair, singer and actor, last stand-in for Victor Mature in RKO's 'Seven Days Leave,' has also been inducted. Kenny Carter, photo ed in Universal praisery, gets a two months training for an Air Corps Lieutenancy. Harry Worth, actor, has been inducted into the Army and leaves in 10 days for training camp.

IATSE Location Strike Looms; New Fight Over ASC Lenser

Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with which first lensers are now affiliated, promptly countered with an offer to supply all soundmen and other technicians necessary to keep production going if the IA crew quit. Showdown for union control of directors of photography appeared moving nearer a showdown, when the American Society of Cinematographers announced that a whole block of first cameramen had signed resignations as members of Local 659 when word was received that Miller had left the organization. Was indicated this eliminated necessity for enforcing a rule that dual cards be dropped.

Fred Jackman, prexy of the ASC, stated that no ASC member would be permitted to take another ASC cameraman's job on location unless the circumstances warranted special permission being given by the ASC board of governors. Aller said that five photographers had asked to be given the Utah assignment, but indicated it would not be decided until the last minute which one would be sent. Whether the lenser to be selected is a member of the ASC is not known.

Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper of the IA was in telephone contact with Prexy Dick Walsh in New York, who apparently was attempting to call the local shots from there. After 20th-Fox was notified Miller could not remain on the job, it is understood the studio demanded a qualified relief lenser to take over on the color job.

The IBEW and ASC apparently were trying to force the IATSE to take the initiative in order that any criticism for halting production would be placed on that organization. Naturally, they also had plans for moving in in the event the IA crew walked.

Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, was watching developments closely in an effort to keep the situation from spreading to the studios, with the possibility of involving all film unions and interfering with production. Local 659 was known to be grooming 25 second cameramen with the idea of having them take over as directors of photography in the event the International issues orders for them to work only with IA lensers. The IATSE is understood to have been withholding such order pending a decision by the National Labor Relations Board on unfair labor practice charges filed by the ASC against the Producers and the IA.

Utah situation developed when the IATSE demanded removal of Ed Cronjager because he is not a member of Local 659. Virgil Miller and Bill Snyder were sent out as relief cameramen. The ASC demanded their return because they had accepted assignment without permission of the ASC board of governors.

STUDIO FOLK IN 15 WEEKS BUY $3,300,000 WAR BONDS

Investment of more than $3,300,000 in War Bonds by employes in all branches of the motion picture industry was disclosed by report of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, covering first 15 weeks' activities. Total, according to report by Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the over-all committee, includes all investments up to noon, Aug. 1, and covers subscriptions both on the payroll savings plan and a cash sales basis for major studio wage earners, independent studios, all allied industries and offices of agents, business managers and independent publicists.

At present rate of progress, film business expects to contribute $15,000,000 annually to the nation's war effort, a huge total considering the motion picture payroll. Through work of more than 500 volunteer committeemen, weekly total of investments is growing steadily, as proven by fact sales for the past five weeks totaled $1,125,000, placing average for this period at $225,000 a week for payroll savings and cash purchases.

A large percentage of the $225,000 weekly average represents regular weekly payroll investments on a basis of 10% or better of employes' salaries. With continued participation of some 18,000 payroll subscribers, plus increases in their pledges, and added investors, it is expected Hollywood will ultimately harvest $1,000,000 a month from this source alone.

Total reached is impressive when it is pointed out that although organization of the all-industry effort began 15 weeks ago, a number of studios and almost all of the allied industries did not get into action until several weeks afterward. Prior to the committee campaign, studios operated individually in selling bonds and major portion of cash sales were outside the industry.

Ginsberg's report from the committee notes a great improvement during the past two months in the 10%-of-salary pledges, thousands of previous subscribers increasing original deductions to aid the war effort and to build up a systematic savings program. Committee is continuing its efforts toward the previously announced objective of $300,000 weekly investments in bonds through payroll savings and cash sales by film workers.

Executive board of the committee now consists of Henry Ginsberg, chairman; John McCormick, vice-chairman; David Butler, Ralph Byrd, Jane Murfin, Frank Carothers, Carl C. Cooper, Herbert Sorrell, Fred Othman, Fred Beetson, Perry Lieber, Dorothy Lamour, J. H. Rosenberg, Teet Carl and Don Rowland.

Studio chairmen setup includes W. K. Craig, Metro; E. L. DePatie, Warners; William Dozier, Paramount; Wilson R. Stone, RKO; B. B. Kahane, Columbia; A. H. McCausland, Universal; Fred Metzler, 20th-Fox; M. J. Siegel, Republic.

Independent studios are organized under Sol Lesser as general chairman of his committee, which covers Monogram, Goldwyn, General Service, RKO-Pathe, Hal Roach, Walt Disney, United Artists, Darmour, Leon Schlesinger and more than 40 other independent producing organizations.

Tom W. Baily and Al Ruben, chairman and associate, respectively, handle the allied industry field, now in its fourth week of the campaign.

Monogram Rolls 6 Pix During Current Month

Monogram has scheduled six pictures to roll during the current month, and launches 'Bowery At Midnight' Wednesday as first of the sextet to get under way. Wallace Ford directs Bela Lugosi in the lead of the Sam Katzman-Jack Dietz production. Next out will be 'Here Come the Marines', Lindsley Parsons production starting Aug. 12 under direction of Jean Yarbrough. Guinn Williams and Robert Lowery head the cast.

'Little Mobsters', East Side Kids feature, goes Aug. 19 as another Katzman-Dietz production, to be directed by Wallace Fox. In the leads are Leo Gorcey, Bobby Jordan, Huntz Hall and Gabriel Dell. 'West of the Law', Scott R. Dunlap Rough Riders western, starts Aug. 20. Howard Bretherton directs Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton in the leads. Fifth out will be 'Queen of the Honky Tonks', A. W. Hackel production from an original by Hugh Preston, starting Aug. 26. Last will be 'Dogs of War', George W. Weeks production featuring Billy Lee, on Aug. 28. S. Roy Luby directs.

Screen 'Wake Island' For Par Execs

New York, Aug. 2.—Paramount previews 'Wake Island' here tomorrow for home office execs, with the picture being scheduled to have special openings, day and date, in Quantico, Va., and San Diego, both Marine bases. There will also be special openings in New York and Washington, followed by regular engagements in key cities starting Sept. 18. Special opening dates have not been set yet.

Present plan is to premiere the film at $2.55 and donate the proceeds for packages to prisoners of war to be delivered through the American Red Cross.

Victory Group Sets War-Aid Record During July

Hollywood Victory Committee Volunteers set an outstanding war-aid record during July, according to the daily activities report released by the Committee last night.

Nine motion picture stars and featured players were traveling in different sections of the country with USO Camp Shows to fill a schedule of 95 performances at Army camps. Bob Burns made a start on a trip to carry him through Kentucky, Illinois, New York, Massachusetts and Texas until Aug. 22. Marlene Dietrich finished her tour through Tennessee, Missouri and Kentucky July 6. Linda Darnell concluded a trip to the Coast on July 10. Carole Landis is working in Texas Army camps until Aug. 8. Jeanette MacDonald gave solo concerts in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Arkansas, and is to hit Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois until Aug. 7. Frank McHugh and Marjorie Weaver were in Wyoming, Kansas and Missouri until July 25. Ilona Massey finished in California July 31. Rosalind Russell made a rush trip to Arkansas to get in four performances, finishing July 29.

Forerunner of film tops taking the lead in the Treasury Department's national War Bond drive led by the motion picture industry in September, Abbott and Costello started on 47 appearances in the middle west and southwest. Ralph Bellamy, Jean Parker and Allen Jenkins appeared at a Butte, Mont., rally. There were local appearances, notably that of Barbara Stanwyck and Irene Hervey, at Santa Monica, where a record number of Bonds and Stamps were sold in a single day.

Eighty radio engagements were mostly devoted to Government and Army and Navy projects and activities. A total of 245 performances in Camp spot shows and personal appearances completed a busy and effective month.

Starting a busy radio program this week, the Committee announced that Kay Francis will appear on 'This Our America', and also does a transcription for 'Price Ceiling'. Friday Frank Cravens continues his Office of Information series, 'Neighborhood Call'. Jean Arthur was heard Sunday from Santa Ana over the Blue Network in 'Passing the Buck'.

John De Groen, vice-prexy of the Musicians Union, and Joe E. Brown have been added to the Hollywood Victory executive committee.

Bing Crosby and Constance Bennett will start out on tour of Army camps this week. Crosby will be accompanied by Phil Silvers and Rags Ragland. He starts his tour with a two-day stand at Fort Lewis, Wash., on Wednesday. Following a big show for the Naval Air Station at Seattle on Friday, a swing will be made through Wyoming, Colorado and Kansas, closing Aug. 15.

Constance Bennett has planed out to visit her husband, Private Gilbert Roland, at a Missouri camp, and will join a USO outfit for a three-day performance in Louisiana Thursday. Her schedule takes her through Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma.

'Column' Script Ready

Jack Andrews has turned in final script on 'Seventh Column' to Bryan Foy for production start Aug. 7.

Big Earners, Unions Aid Industry's Relief Drive

Contributions by several top actors to the industry's campaign for Navy, Dutch, China and Russia War Reliefs encouraged the drive committee over the week end, and led to estimates that by time of the report meeting Wednesday, the total contributions will hit 85% to 90% of the goal.

While the committee worries are by no means over, a survey of the studios late Saturday, showing that the big salary earners are beginning to sign up, was the most encouraging development thus far. If the pace does not slacken, it was announced, the drive is likely to go over the top within two weeks.

With the Screen Writers Guild hitting a new high in the number of contributions, executives and producers making a good showing, and directors and actors starting to sign up daily, Chairman Jacob H. Karp notified the drive colonels that a successful finish is in sight 'if our famous personalities and other top bracket people continue to show the same generosity as has made Hollywood so proud of them and of its industry record.'

Chairman Karp sent a letter of thanks and congratulations to L. C. Helm, chairman of labor's executive committee, for the remarkable showing made by the union groups. A perfect soliciting organization and the determination to get 100% response if it is humanly possible have brought about the finest returns from the unions yet registered. In addition to contributions from individual members, Moving Picture Painters Local 644 yesterday voted a 50 cents per member assessment in order that the union could contribute a lump sum to the industry's last war relief drive of the year.

At Wednesday's meeting, much of the time will be given over to William Morris, who is chairman of the Artists Managers Guild Committee, in getting the advice of the colonels and outlining his plans for one week's intensive and personalized drive to be put on by the agents.

Loew's Leads Upbeat In Film Stocks

New York, Aug. 2.—Loew's common shares led the upbeat in film company shares in today's market by registering a new high for 1942 at $44.50 per share, a net advance of $1.37½ in Friday's market. Of the preferred stocks, Warner Bros. made the greatest improvement on the day, advancing $4 to $73 a share, close to best price of the year.

Columbia Pictures common also was strong, equalling its 1942 high at $8.37½. Advance in Friday's market followed almost two weeks of advancing prices or general steadiness for film company shares along with renewed activity.

In any language, it's the talk of the town.

Radio Network Plugs

Following tabulation of network popular music performances embraces all three networks, NBC, CBS, and Mutual. Plugs are based on data provided by Accurate Reporting Service (N.Y.) regular checking source for the music publishing industry and covers the week of Saturday, July 25, through Friday, July 31, to 1 a. m.

Theatre Wing Wants Say on Canteen Shows

Washington, Aug. 2.—American Theatre Wing and Variety Club are quietly warring over the establishment of the Stage Door Canteen at the Belasco theatre. Barkers, asked to sponsor Canteen, delayed, and other agencies were brought into the picture by Milton Shubert and Brock Pemberton.

American Theatre Wing is inaugurating Canteen with a special buffet supper on the National theatre stage (6), with Eleanor Roosevelt as special guest and Helen Hayes as hostess. National Press Club, Navy Mothers, Navy League, Army and Navy Union and others, mostly society, invited to sup. What burns Variety Club is that theatre showmen were ignored, with the club limited to two representatives. Barkers claim Washington showmen will be expected to provide all of the entertainment and should be given more representation. Theatre Wing takes the attitude theatres must cooperate whether they like it or not.

Treasury has made the Canteen available by releasing space in the old Belasco theatre, with Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the Cabinet member, one of the enthusiastic sponsors. Variety Club wants a paid administrator. Theatre Wing believes in volunteers. Canteen has opened a local office with a Miss Stone in charge and issuing publicity.

Will Hays Arrives

Will Hays got in from New York this morning, after conferring on numerous industry problems with company execs and War Activities Committee members. He will remain here about a month, being due in New York around Labor Day.

Charles F. Coe, his aide, will come here for a month sojourn after Hays gets back to New York.

Runyon Starts At 20th

Damon Runyon trained in from New York over week-end to settle into his producer-writer berth at 20th-Fox today.

Cagney Buys $25,000 Bond for Premiere

Sales of War Bonds for tickets of admission to premiere of Yankee Doodle Dandy at Warners Hollywood on Aug. 12 mounted heavily over the week-end. First purchaser of a $25,000 bond for a seat in the 'golden circle' was James Cagney, star of the film. He made his purchase through a Naval Aid Auxiliary workers who sealed the purchase at his home.

Practically every one of around 100 agencies have launched their campaign to outdo each other in the sales of the bonds and there is a most spirited race among various groups for top honors in this direction.

As was expected the sale of $25 to $100 bonds for the premiere exhausted the seats held for these purchasers, with many now buying bonds in these ranges, despite the fact they will not be able to get premiere seats. There is a heavy demand for $500 and $1,000 bonds which likely within a day or two will exhaust the seats provided for purchasers in this range.

Figures Howard D. Mills, State administrator for Southern California War Savings Staff of the Treasury Department, has available show that the bond sales for premiere tickets have gone considerably beyond the $500,000 mark and that they may be more than trebled within the next day or two.

New York Publicists Guild Asks Warners To End Strike

dent, Jonas Rosenfield, Jr., of 20th-Fox, addressed to Albert Warner here, also to Harry Warner at the Hollywood studio, reads:

'Deplorable labor policies of Warner Bros. which have resulted in prolonged controversy between your company and the Screen Publicists Guild have now provoked another serious situation involving Warner Bros. office employes. We of the SPG are of course involved, it so happens, involuntarily. We can only express to you once more our earnest desire that Warner Bros. now adopt, however tardily, its proper role in our national crisis, and at once move to settle both disputes in a fair and honorable way, and in accordance with President Roosevelt's oft-expressed wish that labor disputes at a time of total war be disposed of peacefully.'

While it would be unique if SPG, being CIO affiliated, struck in sympathy with the MPOE, which is an AFofL union, that this or some other cooperative action may be taken is implied by the SPG. The latter, having a contract with all other home offices, broke off relations with Warners after lengthy negotiations, and appealed to the U. S. Conciliation Service of the War Labor Board for help. A previous attempt had been made through the National Labor Relations Board to conciliate the matter.

The SPG's complaint, set for Friday, will be held by a special panel ordered by Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. Conciliation Service. In a statement the SPG says:

'We sincerely hope for and will work toward speediest settlement of our controversies so that our industry, labor and management united, can properly devote its entire efforts to the only crucial fight today, winning the war.'

CLAIM WAR WORKERS IN EXTRA JOBS

Extra leaders complained yesterday that defense plant employes and workers in other industries are taking jobs away from regular atmosphere players who depend upon the motion picture business for a livelihood. One leader said defense workers are 'doubling in brass' by working at war plants at night and taking extra calls in the daytime.

Group leaders said such workers

JIMMIE FIDLER went off the deep end on his Sunday broadcast when he practically single-handed took Rudy Vallee off the Sealtest airshow and put him in the Navy. When Dick Mack, producer of the program, questioned Vallee about leaving the show he was as much in the dark about it as Mack. Fidler hedged on his info, first saying he got it from McKee & Albright agency, which handles the Sealtest account, and later that it was a Navy release. Both sources denied any such story was given out. Vallee declared that he was not consulted or he would have told the gabber that he has no intention of retiring from radio, for the time being at least. He is now serving with the home evacuation unit and is understood to be interested in joining the Coast Guard.

LOCAL 47 of musicians union offered no comment yesterday on radio stations and nets continuing practice of recording broadcasts for delayed airing. When union's ban on platters went into effect, Columbia, Mutual and the Blue network stated they would continue such recording, having received no instruction to the contrary. Stations insist their individual local contracts permit it. Local 47 states matter has not been considered and will have to be taken up by the national body.

There is stress and perturbation
In the Indian situation
But it wasn't quite like that in days of yore
When you lay beneath a willow
With the greensward for a pillow
And your heroes wiped out Indians by the score.

Those were days when life was simple
As the quiet little rimple
That appeared in summer mornings on a brook.
And your tried and trusted heroes
Weren't fighting Japs in Zeros—
They were galloping the prairies in a book.

You would never hear of Gandhi
If old Buffalo Bill were handy,
For an Indian revolt would be a bust.
Bill would draw his trusty rifle
And consider it a trifle
When a thousand pesky warriors bit the dust.

A technically difficult idea has been converted into a brilliant feat of film craftsmanship and a surpassing dramatic document in this saga of a man's dress coat and the lives it adorned or illuminated in its brief transition from Park avenue to its final flappings as a sharecropper's scarecrow. Never before has such an array of stars been collected for one picture. Thirty-seven are credited, in the order of their appearance. Under the direction of Julien Duvivier, the players, many of them top names, show their finest gifts. The production by Boris Morros and S. P. Eagle, both in its executive guidance and its physical elegance, is commensurate with its star and story importance. That it will be a hefty money coiner, suitable for extended runs throughout the cream sectors, no showman will dispute.

For the star names, 'Tales of Manhattan' offers no walk-through. Every player justifies himself or herself with a fine performance. The story material, while bearing the stamp of the individual writers, is skillfully dovetailed to maintain remarkable continuity and cohesive force, even though its various episodes are distinct except for the tailed coat that goes haphazard through the avenues and alleys of Manhattan. Like the old game of Button, the swallowtail is passed from hand to hand, back to back, drama to tragedy to comedy—a pictorial device like the motif of a song. Suspense is remarkably upheld, the show's two hours seemingly much shorter, so tense is the interest maintained.

Charles Boyer and Rita Hayworth carry the first episode, as actor and enamoured wife of Thomas Mitchell, who shoots Boyer in a planned 'accident' in Mitchell's gunroom as the guilty pair are on verge of a runaway. Ginger Rogers, Cesar Romero, Henry Fonda and Gail Patrick headline the next incident, a romantic comedy situation in which Fonda wins the girl away from Romero on the eve of wedding because of what RKO release of a Herbert Wilcox production. Stars Anna Neagle with Robert Newton, Edward Chapman, Joan Kemp-Welch, Nora Swinburne, Charles Carson, Brefni O'Rorke, Muriel George, Martita Hunt, Anthony Shaw, Ian Fleming, Eliott Makeham, Ronald Shiner, David Horne, George Merritt, Charles Victor, Miles Malleson, Arthur Hambling, Aubrey Mallalieu, Hay Petrie, Charles Maxwell. Producer-director, Herbert Wilcox. Story, Lord Castlerosse. Scenario and screenplay, Miles Malleson. Associate producer, Victor Hanbury. Photography, Mutz Greenbaum. Gowns, Josephine Clinch. Recorded by J. C. Cook. Film editor, Jeffrey Foot. Art director, David Rawnsley. Montage, Jill Irving. Special effects, Alan Jaggs, Desmond Dickenson, Douglas Woolsey. Musical score, William Alwyn. Music by London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Muir Mathieson. Made at the D & P Studios, Denham, England. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 3, 1942. Running time: 92 MINS.

The life of Amy Johnson Mollison, England's pioneer woman flier, is brought to the screen with considerable fidelity by Herbert Wilcox. Produced in England under war conditions, picture tells an absorbing story of the late Mrs. Mollison's rise to fame and finishes with a capital exploitation theme, the activities of the Air Transport Auxiliary of Great Britain, which corresponds to the United States Ferry Command. While there is not a great deal of the ATA work shown, enough is included to furnish selling factors that may aid the boxoffice take in this country. By virtue of the biographical treatment, production takes on a labored pace at times, and repetitious shots of Mrs. Mollison's record-breaking flights help further to make the 92 minutes' running time seem overlong. These are faults that additional editing can easily correct.

Story by Lord Castlerosse goes back to the time when Amy Johnson was a schoolgirl, establishing her rebellion against the mold in which English women are supposed to fit; carries her through a restless business career, up to her life as a flier and her flights to fame, both solo and with her husband, James Mollison. As her death occurred only last year while ferrying a plane for the ATA, picture is able to bring in the work done by England's women at war and the service they render by releasing pilots and other males for more dangerous duties. Miles Malleson contributed the scenario and screenplay to Lord Castlerosse's story, as well as portraying a small spot in the picture.

Anna Neagle has a role to her measure in the title assignment, turning in a restrained, telling piece of work that stands up with her best. Robert Newton as Jim Mollison was given leave from his duties aboard a mine sweeper to lend an intelligent, highly acceptable characterization to the picture. Edward Chapman, intelligence officer in the RAF, was another who was given government release to play the father of Amy Johnson, a most creditable performance, as is the work of Joan Kemp-Welch as the mother. Others among those standing out include Charles Carson, Brefni O'Rorke, Martita Hunt, George Merritt and Hay Petrie.

RKO production. Stars Lupe Velez, Leon Errol. Features Walter Reed, Elisabeth Risdon, Lydia Bilbrook, Marion Martin, Lyle Talbot, Luis Alberni, George Cleveland, Marten Lamont, Jack Briggs, Arnold Kent, Max Wagner. Director, Leslie Goodwins. Producer, Bert Gilroy. Screenplay, Charles E. Roberts. Story, Charles E. Roberts, Leslie Goodwins. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Photography, Jack MacKenzie. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino, Feild M. Gray. Gowns, Renie. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera, Harley Miller. Recorded by Roy Meadows. Film editor, Harry Marker. Assistant director, Ruby Rosenberg. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 3, 1942. Running time: 64 MINS.

'Mexican Spitfire's Elephant' is sure laughs for any audience. The best yet in RKO's series of the peppery doings of Lupe Velez and Leon Errol, picture gives company a strong secondary feature for its initial 1942-43 package and hoists the series from the slump into which it had been falling with the last two entries.

Lord Epping gets involved in a jewel smuggling escapade when a blonde charmer makes him the patsy to carry an onyx elephant, in which is concealed a jewel, safely through customs. With his customary alcoholic vagueness, his lordship forgets what he does with the elephant, causing the charmer and her partner no end of worry. To further complicate and make more hilarious the doings, Lupe Velez and her Uncle Matt try to help Lord Epping out of his jam. When Leon Errol starts his masquerade of Uncle Matt masquerading as Lord Epping, at the same time carrying on his assignment as the regular Lord Epping, the laughs start rolling hearty and fast. Such double-double posing is almost too much for the principals involved, but plenty of fun for the ticket buyers.

Miss Velez, with customary vitality, more than holds her comedy odds against such almost unbeatable competition as Leon Errol as Uncle Matt, and as Lord Epping, and as Uncle Matt playing Lord Epping. Errol romps through his triple assignment with slick timing for sure results to win audience guffaws. Elisabeth Risdon (Aunt Della), Walter Reed (Dennis), Lydia Bilbrook (Lady Epping), are the cast regulars who do their usual stalwart work. Marion Martin is the blonde charmer with a 'whistleable' quality that gets results. Lyle Talbot shows well as her crook partner. Luis Alberni makes the part of a cafe owner count for laughs and an uncredited bartender gets in several good scenes.

Leslie Goodwins was responsible for the capital direction and for co-authorship of the story with Charles E. Roberts. As director he did a most able comedy job. The well-gagged material was put into solid screenplay form by Roberts. Bert Gilroy's production gives him a high mark to shoot at in future series entries. Jack MacKenzie's photography, the musical direction by C. Bakaleinikoff, art direction, set decorations, gowns and other functions contribute a generous share to the merry proceedings.

Claim War Workers Doubling Up In Extra Jobs

were not able to do a good job in either the defense projects or the film industry, since they had to sleep some time. It was claimed many of them ducked scenes to catch a wink behind sets, etc., leaving the regular extras to carry the load.

The situation was called to the attention of Central Casting Corporation, but General Manager Howard R. Philbrick said there is nothing his organization could do to remedy the situation. He said every effort was made to rotate the jobs among qualified extras and give work to deserving players but that Central was not permitted to inquire into the welfare of individual extras. He stated that records indicated a few defense workers who formerly worked as extras were still calling in for jobs, but Central had no knowledge as to whether they worked on days off in the defense industry or what.

The Screen Actors Guild some time ago okayed a proposal to eliminate such situations by dropping some 2,000 casual extras, but the move never got past the Producer attorneys, who questioned the legality of such a mass ouster. Proposal was approved by the extras themselves, but was pigeon-holed when the Producer-SAG Standing Committee was abolished.

Al Schneider Joins Wm. Morris Agency

Albert Schneider has joined the William Morris agency and leaves in two weeks for New York to head the literary department there, replacing Het Manheim, who is now in the Army. Before taking the eastern post, Schneider will work with Donald Hyde, head of the firm's literary activities here, to become acquainted with the agency's list of writers and properties.

Schneider has been business rep of Orson Welles and Mercury Productions, previously handling him as a client of Columbia Artists, with which he was connected before its sale to Music Corp.

FILM SAVING NECESSITY BOOMS 16 mm. TO FAVOR

16mm. print field for smaller houses and towns which have not been able to support regular theatres with the more expensive 35mm. equipment and operation.

War conditions have changed the attitude of many company execs. It is admitted that projection equipment in the smaller towns and situations is not as new as in the city and circuit houses, and many of them will go out of commission during the coming year or two. Baling wire can hold some of them together for a limited time, but eventually the industry generally will be confronted with the problem of keeping the smaller houses open with proper projection machines.

One engineer, familiar with the status of theatre projectors throughout the country, observed that the industry generally should start considering the replacement of worn and out-dated models in the hinterlands with 16mm. apparatus, pointing out that although manufacturers are not making either 35 or 16mm. equipment at this time, there are several thousand 16mm. soundfilm projectors in the hands of educational institutions and private individuals that could be purchased for the small town exhibs' use if and when the major companies jointly decide to handle the miniature-gauge film prints.

Another factor that will press early adoption of 16mm. prints for theatre exhibition is the growing use of that type of stock by various branches of the armed forces. Expeditionary forces and ships are carrying 16mm. equipment, and find the smaller film easier to transport and exhibit. Majors are supplying the reduced prints to the services. Cost of operation is reduced through elimination of many fire prevention measures that apply to the projection of 35mm. film, which is considered inflammable, while the smaller is on non-inflammable stock.

Reverse Salute

A few short months ago Hal Rorke, as Coast publicity director for CBS, was hustling publicity breaks for Gene Autry. Yesterday the cowboy star, now a technical sergeant in the Army Air Corps, was ordered to report this weekend to Capt. Hal Rorke at KNX for instructions regarding his broadcast Sunday from KNX. Captain Rorke gets in Friday on assignment to supervise the airshow for the next three of four weeks.

Charles Skouras Opens 3-Day NT Conclave

National Theatres annual convention started yesterday in Fox West Coast offices here, with Charles P. Skouras, prexy, presiding. Meeting was attended by all department heads, district managers and film bookers representing western half of the country. It was the first meeting headed by the company's new prexy, Charles, who succeeded his brother, Spyros, and the first to be held in Los Angeles.

Charles Skouras opened session by reading a telegram from Spyros, saying latter knew they would be as loyal and helpful to the new head as they were to him. Spyros also asked that every one get behind the War Bond and Stamp drive for one billion dollars that starts in September, spearheaded by the motion picture industry.

Opening session of the three-day conclave dealt with a review of general business conditions since the start of war, discussions on operations over the past six months, surveying and evaluating the new season's product of various major companies, and checking reports of west coast managers on sneak-previewed films. Personnel turnover and population shift also are under discussion. Meet convenes again this morning.

Kiepura Back in Pix Via Rabinovitsch Lehar Legiter

Jan Kiepura has edged his way into Hollywood and pictures again. He signed a contract with Gregor Rabinovitsch to appear in pictures and a New York stage play. Rabinovitsch is figuring on starring him in a stage play and later adapting it into a screen vehicle. Stage production, according to a Rabinovitsch press release, is to be a modernized light operetta by Frank Lehar, as yet not selected, to be staged in New York late in October.

Kiepura now is on a concert tour which starts in Chicago.

Rabinovitsch and Kiepura collaborated in Europe, making 'Be Mine Tonight', 'My Heart Is Calling' and 'Song For You'. Producer now is preparing his 'Russian Girl' for UA, to be made before the Lehar picture.

MG Western Sales Execs Mull War Problems Here

Meetings for the 10 days at the Ambassador hotel of George Hickey, Metro western district manager, and his branch managers, are expected to end today. Purpose of the confabs has not been officially disclosed, but is believed to concern setting up new sales policies and prices via careful study of war-affected individual situations. Understood termination of Metro's franchise with Fox West Coast also figures in the talks. Gathering believed to be the first to take cognizance of changed conditions.

Men are going over in detail changes that have taken place since the advent of war. Idea is that exhibitors must now be given special two-way considerations due to the influx and exodus of populations. Scene has changed so there are red-hot and dead spots, each requiring rearrangement of sales policies and prices on next season's rental and percentage films.

Clayton T. Lynch, L. A. manager, has not attended due to illness. Those in the huddles include L. C. Wingham, San Francisco; Lou Amacher, Portland, and Morris Saffle, Seattle.

Tales of Manhattan

Miss Rogers discovers in Romero's coat pocket, at the instigation of Miss Patrick, an unhappy wife.

Charles Laughton dominates a strong dramatic anecdote as a fine musician who gets his chance to conduct his symphony before a vast audience of elegant boors who laugh uproarously when Laughton's coat—the coat—splits while he's on the dais, but who are dramatically silenced and shamed to hear out the genius. Featured with Laughton are Elsa Lanchester, Christian Rub and Sig Arno.

Edward G. Robinson delivers one of his most trenchant roles as a one-time prominent attorney, now picked up as a tramp in an alley mission and decked out in the dress suit for the hour of rehabilitation with his old alma mater comrades at a reunion. Scoring with Robinson in a telling part is James Gleason as head of the mission, and Harry Davenport as an aged, benevolent professor.

J. Carrol Naish and another outlaw steal the coat in order to crash a high-class gambling joint. During the getaway in a plane, fire compels Naish to toss the coat — pockets filled with big bills—from the plane. It falls on the barren farm of a Negro tenant in the south.

Paul Robeson and Ethel Waters pick it up—still smoking. They regard it as a miracle—money from the Lord. Eddie Anderson (Rochester) as the community parson, is entrusted with disbursement of the fabulous sum, so much to every man, woman and child who has ever prayed for anything—from a tractor to a pair of shoes. Deeply moving is this episode, carried entirely by Negro players, with the song, 'Glory Day', rolling from Robeson's throat to emphasize comedy-pathos. Here, finally, the coat ends up as a scarecrow in the yard of an ancient black man who has prayed for nothing. The others all divide up the money communally, for land, tools, a new church.

Eloquently played parts of importance in the tales also are contributed by Victor Francen as the tempestuous music conductor, Eugene Pallette, Roland Young, George Sanders, Frank Orth, Christian Rub, Morris Ankrum, Mae Marsh, Clarence Muse, George Reed, Cordell Hickman, Barbara Lynn, Adeline DeWalt Reynolds, Helene Reynolds.

Julien Duvivier handles the direction splendidly, sensitive to all the elements of irony, dramatic contrast, sardonic humor and fundamental humanity which the scripters crammed into the original story pattern. Skill matches understanding in his story telling facility.

The writer bracket includes, with strong credit for each, Ben Hecht, Ferenc Molnar, Donald Ogden Stewart, Samuel Hoffenstein, Alan Campbell, Lamar Trotti, Ladislas Fodor, L. Vadnai, L. Gorog and Henry Blankfort.

The musical contributions are among the top merits. Edward Paul directed the music. Sol Kaplan supplied the distinctive original score. Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger wrote the sonorous 'Glory Day', a Negro spiritual. Orchestrations are by Clarence Wheeler, Charles Bradshaw and Hugo Friedhofer. Vocal arrangements are by Hall Johnson, head of the Hall Johnson Choir, which vocally backgrounds the Robeson-Waters-Rochester starring episode.

Joseph Walker's cameras are an important element in the pictorial drama, outstanding in many scenes. Richard Day and Boris Leven reach an impressive artistic peak in their stylized sets and backgrounds for the Negro part of the tale, together with Thomas Little's set decorations. Dolly Tree, Bernard Newman, Gwen Wakeling and Irene collaborated on the costumes.

Boris Morros and S. P. Eagle, in a difficult and laborious film enterprise, provide one of the season's most striking and entertaining productions, brilliant in execution, showmanly from every angle, for the 20th-Fox releasing channels.

Brisk 'Yankee' Bond Sale as Warners Push Drive

It was all out for War Bond sales to get tickets to the premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' on Aug. 12 at Warners Hollywood theatre, yesterday. The large army of Treasury Department workers, recruited from all walks of life, institutions, society, clubs, businessmen and studio workers bore down hard on prospects, and the report that Howard D. Mills, state administrator for the Treasury Department, War Savings Staff, will get today will be most illuminating.

There were many, many sales in the $5,000 and $10,000 brackets, also quite a number in the $25,000 group of G Bonds. The volunteer workers of the Naval Aid Auxiliary who are stationed at the Treasury Department quarters in Hollywood had a most busy day. The ladies on duty all day long were so rushed yesterday that their work, coupled with the heat, almost exhausted them physically, so that they had to work in four-hour shifts.

Besides those working at headquarters, other NAA volunteers were on the big coin hunt around town, and their early reports in the evening showed best day they have had in obtaining sales since the start of the drive last week.

Film stars have been recruited by the NAA to appear at the Hollywood Treasury base each evening to aid in the sale of the tickets. All these stars are members of the NAA and do this chore as part of their daily detail for the organization. Betty Grable was the guest last night, and for tonight Lynn Bari is promised.

WILLIAM HAMILTON

William Hamilton, 48, film editor and director at RKO for the past 13 years, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday, 4604 Placida, North Hollywood. The widow, Mrs. Gloria Warren, survives. Funeral arrangements will be completed today. Hamilton, who served as editor on RKO's larger productions, had only recently completed cutting of 'The Big Street', Damon Runyon feature. He also edited 'Suspicion', RKO's last year's Academy award winner. His last directing chore was co-direction of 'Call Out the Marines' with Frank Ryan. Hamilton was a veteran of World War I, having served overseas with the Army Signal Corps.

Top Stars Volunteer For Camp Tours, Bond Campaign

Announcement that 20 top picture stars have already volunteered for Army Camp tours during August and September was made last night by the Hollywood Victory Committee. Simultaneously it was stated seven studio Publicists have been selected as key advance men for the million-dollar War Bond and Stamp Drive to be led by the film industry in September.

Actors who have come forward with offers to forego vacations to participate in the Government's morale-building program include: Burns and Allen, Joan Blondell, Eddie Cantor, Jackie Cooper, Olivia de Havilland, Kay Francis, Paulette Goddard, Betty Grable, Bonita Granville, Leon Errol, Rita Hayworth, Veronica Lake, Bert Lahr, Merle Oberon, Pat O'Brien, Virginia O'Brien, Spencer Tracy, Gene Tierney and Jane Wyman. Schedule of the tours to every section of the country where there are troop concentrations is now being worked out.

Publicity representatives selected to travel in advance of the group of stars who will tour the country to sell War Bonds in September are Merv Hauser, Paramount; Connie Krebs, RKO; Gene Murphy, Universal; Dick Hyland, Warners; Bob Doman, 20th-Fox; John Del Valle, Columbia. The Metro advance man will be appointed today.

Carlton Duffus, director of motion pictures and special events, Treasury Department War Savings, planed in yesterday to attend a meeting with the advance men called by Charles Einfeld, field director of the 300 Bond rallies to be held in the principal cities of the nation, for noon today. Plans will be completed at this session for early departure of the advance men on their tours of the country to prepare for the coming of 'Stars Over America' for the Bond rallies. Some of the advance men will fly back with Duffus to Washington late this week to confer with Treasury Department representatives.

Duffus conferred yesterday with Kenneth Thomson, chairman of the Hollywood Victory Committee, which is handling mobilization of screen players for the Bond rally tours. Duffus expressed gratification over the cooperation being given by Hollywood. He also announced that Gordon White of his staff has been assigned to the motion picture September drive in the office of Oscar A. Doob, public relations director of the campaign.

NEW FLAREUP IN CAMERA FIGHT; IBEW HEAD ENROUTE

and that Dewey Rigley was en route to Cedar City to take over the camera direction on 'My Friend Flicka'.

Rigley was expected to arrive this afternoon with orders to take over immediately. Fred Jackman, prexy of the American Society of Cinematographers, said no cognizance would be taken of the situation until Rigley was actually on the job. He added that Rigley had not complied with ASC rules by getting permission from the ASC board of governors to accept the assignment, which indicated he would be suspended by the ASC as soon as he takes over. In such an event, ASC would then notify 20th-Fox it was not complying with the ASC-Producer agreement.

Jackman said yesterday that fight was now up to the IBEW. He said that more than 90% of the first cameramen are affiliated with IB, and that it was up to that organization to protect their interests. Rigley will be the fourth cameraman assigned to the location job. Ed Cronjager was removed when the IA demanded that a member of Local 659 be employed. Virgil Miller and Bill Snyder were sent out to relieve him. The latter two were promptly notified by the ASC they were liable to suspension for failure to get permission to take over another ASC man's assignment. Snyder returned to Hollywood and Miller immediately resigned as an IA member. It was stated that nearly 50 directors of photography have since resigned from 659. Their resignations were being photostated by the ASC yesterday, which stated they would be turned over to the IA union today.

At a meeting with 20th-Fox executives this morning, IA Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper and Business Representative Herbert Aller of Local 659 insisted Miller be relieved. Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, sat in on the parley. At this meeting it was agreed Rigley would be handed the assignment. Cooper has been handling situation for IA here through long-distance telephone contact with IA Prexy Dick Walsh in the east.

Walsh left here last week for Kansas City. It was reported he had gone from there to Chicago and since to New York, but reports were current last night that he would return to the Coast if the camera fight got hot. Local 659 said it had received International permission to pull IA members on the 20th-Fox location if Miller were retained on the job.

Milne immediately upon his arrival today was expected to go into conference with ASC Prexy Jackman, Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative; George 'Curly' Davis, business manager of IB Local B-11, and Al Speede, business representative of IB Local 40. Camera fight is being closely watched by other studio unions, with main question being how far the IBEW will go in pressing its claim for first lensers and whether the IATSE is prepared to go all out in support of Local 659. In the meantime, the IBEW was reported making overtures to other IA units, including juicers, soundmen and other key workers.

U Tops Talk Product Deal with Circuit

William Scully, Pniversal's vice-president and general sales manager, and William Heineman, western sales chief, returned from San Francisco over the weekend, and are slated to pull out for New York Friday, following studio confabs this week.

U officials while in the north conferred with Bob McNeil and Mike Naify, operators of the Golden State circuit, on product deal for the 1942-43 program. Progress was reported but no deal was concluded, as it is understood U will close with Fox West Coast northern and southern divisions before setting up other circuit and independent deals.

PRC Execs Huddling On Product Here

Arthur Green, Producers Releasing Corp. sales manager, and Leo McCarthy, assistant sales manager, arrive here Thursday from Dallas for huddles on new season product with Leon Fromkess, vice-president in charge of production. Pair leaves next day for San Francisco to hold final of three regional sales meetings Saturday and Monday. Other two regional sessions were in New York and Dallas.

Robert Benjamin, PRC attorney, as well as one of Pathe's legal representatives, arrived yesterday from New York for confabs with Fromkess and to take care of several Pathe matters. Among things to be discussed is possibility of dropping PRC as company handle and switching to Pathe as trademark.

Lesser Gives $1,000 For Fund Home

A special gift of $1,000 for occupational therapy was announced at this week's meeting of the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. Sol Lesser, producer and Fund officer, was donor.

Money will purchase materials and tools for wood carving, lamp making, gardening and other crafts favored by guests of the Fund's Country House, now nearing completion in Woodland Hills. Several promises of recreational equipment also have been received by the Board.

Bergman Takes Over Zorina Spot In Par's 'Tolls'

Ingrid Bergman takes over the Maria role in Paramount's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls', leaving for Sonora location later this week after she gets final clearance from Warners. Actress just completed 'Casablanca' at the valley lot and is standing by in case any retakes are needed. Decision was reached by Paramount executives yesterday and David O. Selznick, who has Miss Bergman under contract, came over to okay loanout.

Removal of Vera Zorina from the femme lead of 'Bell' followed difficulties with Sam Wood, who is directing, and latter's turndown of actress after B. G. DeSylva had called her in from location for additional makeup tests last week. Feeling at the studio is that actress was a victim of circumstances. Although Miss Zorina had been on location for more than two weeks, switch in casting will entail only small expense, as Wood had only a few scenes using her.

Miss Bergman will be given another makeup test at Paramount today. She was first tested last Friday.

Martin Testifies At Aroff Navy Trial

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Lieutenant C. Ray Robinson, defense counsel, said today at the general court martial of Lieut. Com. Maurice N. Aroff that the latter had an understanding with Nat Goldstone, Tony Martin's agent, for the purchase of the automobile the Naval officer is accused of accepting from Martin as a fee for facilitating Martin's induction as a Naval specialist. Robinson's statement followed Martin's testimony, which set forth that the singer had given the car to Aroff without payment after he had been sworn into the Navy as a chief specialist.

The name of the Goldstone agency was brought into the proceedings at another point when Martin stated that Jules Goldstone, brother of the agent, had interviewed Lieut. Com. Herman Spitzel in Washington on Martin's behalf when latter was seeking a commission. As a result of the interview, Martin testified, he was informed by Nat Goldstone that Spitzel had suggested that the singer see Aroff in San Fransicco about applying for a commission.

Filmites Getting Some of That War Coin as Lockheed Workers

Lockheed plant in Burbank is getting to be a little Hollywood. Personalities from films have been stepping into its ranks of employes in large numbers during the past two months. Among the latest contingent to take coin for their war effort there are Howard Hughes, who is a test pilot, flying between here and Texas. Vic Orsatti, who is out of the agency biz with his brothers and is listed as a co-pilot at $250 a month, and John Clark, former manager of the Hollywood Plaza hotel, who is toiling as a test pilot with a little more cion than Orsatti. John Darrow, former child actor and more recently an agent, started in yesterday as a riveter, while Gavin Gordon is drawing pay as a clerk in the general offices.

WPB GIVES INDUSTRY WEEK TO AGREE ON FILM SAVINGS

New York, Aug. 4.—With Universal still holding out against a percentage-wise cut in raw film, based on 1941 figures, the film industry has been given a week to reach an agreement on curtailment of celluloid along lines discussed by industry tops with Harold Hopper of the War Production Board here last week. The Government appears likely to put a new raw film ceiling into effect beginning with September, once the various companies agree among

MRS. HARRY KAINES, of Washington, D. C., was the special guest of Warner Bros. for the preview screening of 'The Gay Sisters' in Washington. She's Gig Young's landlady, his first fan, and from all accounts he must have been the star boarder. Gig Young's real name is Byron Barr. He's been five years reaching the top in Hollywood but they seem to think here he's made it in 'The Gay Sisters'. He attended McKinley high and lived at Mrs. Kaines' apartment house at 56 T Street, Northwest, Washington. In sports he might have made the minor leagues in baseball, but he preferred dancing and enrolled in Phil Hayden's school. Some amateur acting and then a Warner Bros. scout saw possibilities. Said Mrs. Kaines after the screening: 'If I'd have had my way it would have been all Gig Young. I wouldn't have minded if he was in every scene'. Quoth one of the movie critics: 'Have a heart, lady. You know some of us like Barbara Stanwyck and Geraldine Fitzgerald, too'.

IMPERATIVE and immediate need for conservation of filmstock—both negative and positive—has developed numerous ideas and suggestions from within and without the industry. In every instance—except those in which conservation of filmstock is obtained through reduction of film exposed in production and on release prints—suggestions require radical changes in theatre projection machines that would be impossible under war conditions. Some theories advanced plan on reduction of film frame per picture—but change would necessitate nearly 40,000 new lenses for theatre projectors, which would be impossible with the various military services taking every lens being manufactured. Other ideas suggest changing projector mechanisms—another stonewall condition as intermittent movement of theatre equipment is highly precisioned and engineered, and such work is impossible for change-over at this time.

Complaint is particularly loud from top notch musickers who get most of the recording coin, and who in turn indirectly help support those getting union handouts and benefits through assessments, etc.

Somewhere I'll Find You

(Drama)

Metro release of Pandro S. Berman production. Stars Clark Gable and Lana Turner. Features Robert Sterling, Patricia Dane, Lee Patrick, Reginald Owen, Charles Dingle. Directed by Wesley Ruggles. Screenplay by Marguerite Roberts. Adaptation by Walter Reisch. Based on magazine story by Charles Hoffman. Photography, Harold Rosson. Musical score, Bronislau Kaper. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Malcolm Brown. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis; associate, Hugh Hunt. Gowns by Kalloch. Film editor, Frank E. Hull. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 4, 1942. Running time: 115 MINS.

Violent love-making and violent fighting. Boudoir and battle. Topics A and B the world around. The kind of passionate story which is becoming to Clark Gable and Lana Turner, and the kind that's expected for them by audiences who know their screen legends. And by these signs it is labeled a big money picture, with the stuff for runs, and much customer chatter which will serve to keep these stars on sound boxoffice footing.

Gable and Robert Sterling are brothers, with repute as American war correspondents in numerous fields. On a trip home Gable barges into the room of a girl boarder in the home of old friends, introduces himself swiftly to Lana Turner in the bathroom doorway and kisses her violently and reciprocally, to discover later she is a former cub reporter who has had a crush on him for years but is now practically engaged to the younger brother, Sterling. The tempestuous kisses are repeated like a refrain, with the girl barely able to muster the last defense of self-discipline. When Gable discovers this is the girl his brother intends to marry, he sets out to demonstrate how fickle and vacillating she is. The brothers quarrel. Anger blazes between them. Lana calls it off with Sterling, confident that Gable wants to marry her. But when she is assigned to cover the Japanese encroachments in Indo-China, Gable doesn't try to stop her—a disillusioning shock. Later the brothers, broke, are sent to the Far East to revive their by-lines for their old newspaper and editor, Charles Dingle. They find Lana on the war frontier smuggling Chinese babies to safety. From there the three-cornered battle moves dramatically to its conclusion on the shores of Bataan, where the brothers go out with the fighting men and the girl is a Red Cross nurse.

The screenplay by Marguerite Roberts and the adaptation by Walter Reisch from a mag story by Charles Hoffman wears a libidinous aura as it is played and directed through much of its early and middle course. The dialog between Gable and Miss Turner is full of meaning beyond the mere words. Their love-story is hard and realistic rather than romantic. Thus it contrasts against the idyllic adoration of the younger brother. But the sensuous tug and talk between Gable and Miss Turner, powerfully dramatic, is counterbalanced with serious things, with life-and-death matters, with eventual tragedy at Bataan, which will pre-

Journey Into Fear

(Melodrama)

RKO release of an Orson Welles production. Stars Joseph Cotten, Dolores Del Rio, Ruth Warrick, with Agnes Moorehead, Jack Durant, Everett Sloane, Eustace Wyatt, Frank Readick, Edgar Barrier, Jack Moss, Stefan Schnabel, Hans Conried, Robert Meltzer, Richard Bennett, Orson Welles. Director, Norman Foster. Producer, Orson Welles. Screenplay, Orson Welles, Joseph Cotten. From the novel by Eric Ambler. Photography, Karl Struss. Music, Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Special effects, Vernon L. Walker. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera, Ross Dowd. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino, Mark-Lee Kirk. Gowns, Edward Stevenson. Film editor, Mark Robson. Recorded by James G. Stewart, Richard Van Hessen. Assistant director, Dewey Starkey. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 4, 1942. Running time: 71 MINS.

'Journey Into Fear' will find its market among the ticket buyers who like heavy melodramatics and who, because of the picture's mood, will overlook considerable of the faults that spot the production. Lacking marquee voltage to justify top bracketing, picture will need the publicity attendant upon the Orson Welles name and strong selling measures to spot it above supporting position. Welles' forte is scaring people, as demonstrated by his Martian attack upon radio listeners several years ago. He had opportunity to duplicate that success with 'Journey Into Fear', but misses the mark in spite of picture's inherent good points.

The plot of Eric Ambler's novel, as scripted by Welles and Joseph Cotten, tells of the terror visited upon an American engineer and his wife as they try to escape Nazi agents in Turkey. As tradeshown there is much confusion in the story and among the characters, all of which forecasts audience confusion. The engineer runs the gamut of terror until he finally frees himself of his hunters after a chase through a Turkish night club, aboard a coastwise steamer, and a final, desperate fight for life along the rain-drenched cornice of a building. The picture closes with his provincial-minded wife chiding him for being out in the rain, even while he still clings to his high perch after the would-be killers have crashed to the sidewalk stories below.

Joseph Cotten works hard as the engineer, aptly conveying the impression of stark fear, both of the searching killers and the fear of being afraid. Dolores Del Rio's part is unusually small and never entirely justified, but is done with that actress's Latin charm. Ruth Warrick is the perfect small-town wife who frets over her husband's wet feet and discomforts of travel. Everett Sloane has a good Turkish salesman spot. Agnes Moorehead, Jack Durant, Eustace Wyatt, Frank Readick, the latter a meek man who keeps his wife in line by being a rabid free thinker; Edgar Barrier, who gives distinction to the role of a Turkish secret agent; Jack Moss, business executive turned actor to portray the blood-mad killer hired to gun Cotten down; Stefan Schnabel, Hans Conried, Robert Meltzer and Richard Bennett are others among the credited cast. Welles does an overplayed, confused interpretation of Col. Haki, head of the Turkish secret police.

Norman Foster made a valiant ef-

The War Against Mrs. Hadley

(Drama)

Metro hits again into the propaganda department with a human story about the United States of Dec. 7, 1941, and the awareness that followed the date. 'The War Against Mrs. Hadley' draws its title from the actions of a proud woman who felt the conflict was almost personally aimed to disrupt her staid pattern of life. Filled with genuinely stirring moments, leavened with understandable human comedy incident, the picture makes a welcome addition to any theatre bill as strong de luxe support and able to hold its own in the other spots.

Its cast members lend a distinctive touch to their roles to fill the feature with entertainment flavor. George Oppenheimer's most ably written original screenplay, backgrounded in Washington, opens with Mrs. Hadley's usual Dec. 7 birthday dinner. It whips through the consternation that hits the select group, carries each on for story fulfillment in very

The Big Street

(Drama)

RKO release of a Damon Runyon production. Cast: Henry Fonda, Lucille Ball, Barton MacLane, Eugene Pallette, Agnes Moorehead, Sam Levene, Ray Collins, Marion Martin, William Orr, George Cleveland, Vera Gordon, Louise Beavers, Millard Mitchell, Juan Varro, Hans Conried, Harry Shannon, William Halligan, John Miljan, Don Barclay, Julius Tannen, Eddie Dunn, Bert Hanlon, Bob Perry, Anthony Blair, Art Hamburger, Addison Richards, Ozzie Nelson and his Orchestra. Director, Irving Reis. Screenplay, Leonard Spigelgass; from the story by Damon Runyon, 'Little Pinks'. Musical score, Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Song, Mort Greene and Harry Revel. Photography, Russell Metty. Special effects, Vernon L. Walker. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino, Al Herman. Set decorations, Darrell Silver and Claude Carpenter. Dance director, Chester Hale. Gowns, Renie. Film editor, William Hamilton. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 4, 1942. Running time: 92 MINS.

This is one of those strangely moving fables with which Damon Runyon knows how to reach the heart, persuasively played by men and women who understand the characters of Runyania—a place somewhat vaguely in the purlieus of Manhattan. Directed also by a man who comprehends them sympathetically and theatrically—Irving Reis. The result is solid and satisfactory entertainment for almost any kind of audience, a picture at once commercially dependable and artistically commendable.

Ginny Simms Cigaret Show Set for Sept. 8 NBC Takeoff

Half-hour show headed by Ginny Simms, recently auditioned by Vick Knight, Coast radio head of Milton Biow agency, has been bought by Philip Morris, and takes off from NBC here Sept. 8. Program replaces the current 'Johnny Presents' and its format, said to be a combination of music and dramatics, is not being revealed until the initial broadcast. Supporting Miss Simms as emcee and vocalist, will be David Rose's orchestra and the Bombardiers chorus. Knight produces double the broadcast, airing in the east at 8 p.m. and 8:30 on the Coast.

Stauffer Bows Out As Bond Tour Contact

Ivan Stauffer, contact for the Treasury Department on War Bond tours arranged by Victory Committee, has been relieved of his duties and ordered to report to Washington for an assignment there, which he declined. His resignation is effective Aug. 31.

KNX'ers Move Around

Two personnel changes and an addition to the publicity staff were made yesterday at KNX by Donald W. Thornburgh, CBS Coast head. Peter O'Crotty of the publicity staff has taken on the added duties of handling trade relations, and Andy Kelly moves into the flackery. George Harshbarger shifts over to sale promotion.

Stitch Thesp's Gam

Jack Carson was injured yesterday in fall from an Army scout car when vehicle went into four-foot ditch while actor was a visitor in a southland Army camp. PETRILLO DEFI FRETS FCC; NBC'S SOFTPEDAL POLICY

Washington, Aug. 4.—Defiant answer of James C. Petrillo, prez of American Federation of Musicians, to an inquiry about his reasons for insisting that NBC abandon the scheduled broadcast by the youth orchestra from the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., is troubling members of Federal Communications Commission.

Though generally agreed that broadcasters should not be forced to surrender to outsiders in order to stay on the air, the radio regulators are perplexed by Petrillo's letter, which raises a number of highly debatable questions of national policy. Simultaneously they have been put on the defensive from another direction; by the statement of Niles Trammell, NBC prexy, that broadcasters have to knuckle under to the AFM or run the risk of general strikes.

The comish, which feels the AFM ban on recordings is contrary to public interest, but obviously has no power to punish Petrillo, is confining itself to the Interlochen incident and leaving up to the Justice Department the question whether the decree against platters violates Federal statutes.

Protesting his patriotism, Petrillo has advised the comish that he refused to allow NBC to carry the Interlochen program because it was 'commercial' in purpose, with students paying tuition and other fees. The broadcast would have advertised the Michigan institution, he said. This sets the National Music Camp orchestra apart from other school bands.

Petrillo jabbed the comish for lining up against the musicians with remarks about the free hand given broadcasters in their fight against Ascap. For several months some of the finest music was kept off the air by the industry, he observed. Why, then, shouldn't the musicians have the same right to protect their interests? he observed.

Most of Trammell's response to the comish inquiry was a factual statement about the Interlochen affair, but the NBC headman managed to get in his own digs. After noting that the chain does not have a national closed shop contract with Petrillo, he explained that dealings with the union are so complicated it seemed wiser to scratch the Interlochen broadcast than run the risk of trouble on broader fronts. Every demand by the musicians, Trammell observed, is accompanied by either implied or expressed threat to yank union members out of all company-operated studios unless terms are met.

Minneapolis, Aug. 4.—Harry A. Tucker, veteran orchestra contractor and leader, has affidavited to the Department of Justice, Washington, that arbitrary action by James C. Petrillo has deprived him of livelihood and asking investigation and 'appropriate action'.

Tucker, whose orchestras have worked in such New York spots as the Rainbow Room, Waldorf, Park Lane and Ambassador hotels, as well as Florida hotels, charges he was expelled from AFM because he refused to obey Petrillo and walk out of the Ponce de Leon hotel, St. Augustine, Fla., with his orchestra last winter, when he had a contract with the hostelry.

SRG Program Iced; No Takers at $10,000

New York, Aug. 4. — Walter Johnson, head of the Music Corporation's Coast radio department, leaves this week for Hollywood to report on the progress of his efforts to sell the Screen Guild radio program to a new sponsor. He was asking $15,000 when he came east, but dropped the price to $12,000, and later to $10,000.

Latter figure was rock-bottom, but no takers. Apparently the freeze from several promising prospects resulted when the news broke that American Theatre Wing had sold its radio program on Stage Door Canteen to Corn Products for $3,000 plus talent fees. Total adds up to considerably less than what Screen Guild Theatre would cost.

Hint 20th Earnings To Show A Hike

New York, Aug. 4.—Second-quarter earnings of 20th-Fox probably will be revealed this week or at a meeting of the directorate to be held Aug. 13, it was declared today. The earnings of the company for the period covering April, May and June are expected to exceed those of the first quarter of 1942, when a net profit of $841,561 was reported.

Thomson Heads East For UTWAC Huddles

New York, Aug. 4. — Kenneth Thomson is due in New York Monday to huddle with the United Theatrical War Activities Committee over the latter's participation in the film industry's billion-dollar War Bond rallies for September. Aside from looking over talent to be routed hereabouts by the Hollywood Victory Committee, the UTWAC will mull the advisability of other segments of the show business joining the drive.

Non-film end of business wants to run its own show, but doesn't see how it could deliver a billion-dollar quota. Showmen figure that film stars, scheduled to make personal appearances in connection with the campaign next month, will serve the double purpose of stimulating the box office while simultaneously promoting sale of Bonds.

Local 47 Gives AFM Prexy Confidence Vote on Disc Ban

J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, president of the Musicians Mutual Protective Association, Local 47, announced yesterday in an official statement that his group is behind the action of James C. Petrillo, national AFM president, until victory is won. Commending Petrillo's disc-banning action of July 31, Wallace noted that if foresight had been used 15 years ago the situation would not be what it is today. Admitting that musicians 'face a tought fight, and pressure from powerful groups,' Wallace added 'the action is not ill-timed. The time is always opportune to correct existing evils.'

'Since no practical method of record and transcription control had ever presented itself, it was incumbent upon a courageous man to take the bull by the horns and force a showdown,' Wallace said. 'We are glad we have a man in office who can take it, and who can dish it out.' There can be no question that musicians are behind him 100%. We are going to win; win the biggest victory we ever had, and can thank Petrillo,' he concluded.

Last night C. L. Bagley, international v-p of the AFM, and only international executive in this area, would make no comment on the restraining injunction that is answerable in Chicago on Friday. Though named in the Federal suit, Bagley said he would not leave for Chicago before the end of next week 'and that would be for another union matter.'

Simultaneously with the release of his own statement, Wallace issued copies of Petrillo's reply to the Federal Communications Commission to the press.

Warnerites Cuffo On 'This Is Army' Pic

J. L. Warner, Hal B. Wallis, who will co-produce, Michael Curtiz, director, and Casey Robinson, who will collaborate with Irving Berlin on the screen play, are contributing their time and labors on 'This Is the Army' film version without a cent of charge against the picture. Thus they match the contribution of Irving Berlin, producer of the big musical extravaganza on Broadway, proceeds from which go to the Army Emergency Relief.

Wallis, Curtiz and Robinson go to New York upon completion of 'Casablanca' at Warners to confer with Berlin on filming the army show.

Einfeld Sets Plans For Bond Rallies In 300 Cities

Plans for launching the motion picture industry's nationwide billion-dollar Bond Drive in September were set yesterday at a meeting of advance publicity men with Charles Einfeld, field director of the 300 Bond rallies featuring the appearance of film stars. It was stated that five advance men will plane to Washington tomorrow with Carlton Duffus, director of motion pictures and special events, Treasury Department War Savings, with two more leaving Saturday, to start their tours over the routes to be taken by the stars and featured players beginning Sept. 1.

Duffus told the seven advance men chosen by the industry of the Treasury Department's hopes for a billion-dollar return during the month. He said:

'The magic of a motion picture star is far greater than even Hollywood realizes, and this magic, plus the perfect organization set up by the War Activities Committee in conjunction with the Treasury Department's representatives, is certain to set a Bond sales record that will make this entire industry very proud.'

During the meeting, the seven advance men selected Sam Clark of Warners as their liaison on all reports and information. He will devote full time to the work, and will supply the men with fresh material to aid them throughout their tours.

Following a day's conferences with Treasury Department officials and War Activities representatives in Washington, the advance publicity men will start out for the territory they are to cover. The five leaving tomorrow are Bob Doman, of 20th-Fox; Merv Hauser, of Paramount; Dick Hyland, of Warners; Connie Krebs, of RKO, and Gene Murphy, of Universal. Don McElwaine, of Metro, and John Del Valle, of Columbia, will leave on Saturday direct for their territories.

Einfeld outlined in detail entire plans for the drive. He pointed out the tremendous responsibility which the industry has voluntarily assumed, and its opportunity to perform a patriotic service probably greater than any it hitherto has undertaken.

The Hollywood Victory Committee is busy canvassing all available possibilities, with the end in view of sending out the top stars of the industry. The names of those in the first contingent are expected to be set by today or tomorrow.

Fox Petition Denied

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—William Fox, bankrupt film producer, was today denied a petition to escape serving a year and a day and paying a $3,000 fine on charges of conspiring to 'buy justice' during his Circuit Court bankruptcy appeals. Fox pleaded guilty to conspiring with former Circuit Judge J. Warren Davis and Attorney Morgan S. Kaufman to 'obstruct justice and defraud the United States.'

clude audience smirking. It develops no cheap bawdiness of comedy—it is in no sense a comedy even at its lightest, even though its suspense is a rather deliberate script-tease.

The Bataan scenes are tremendously moving—the heroic incidents of outnumbered Yanks and Filipino defenders against a Jap landing party; the fighting death of a dozen singled-out characters; the running dictation of the story to a field headquarters clerk by Gable for transmission to his paper—including the account of how his own brother perished, while the battle is still on; the reappearance of Lana who had been accounted dead in a blasted hospital. Emotionally moving it is, and exciting, with pure deadly melodrama.

Gable plays his part with deep sincerity and utter consistency to salt it down as one of his better enactments. Miss Turner stamps hers with passionate intensity and that unsmiling conviction which set her love scenes and dramatic high levels apart from those of any other screen actress. Robert Sterling contrasts his junior brother characterization against the cynical, prowling Gable role with nice discretion to get over a more romantic and less sophisticated nature. Patricia Dane offers a few good scenes with Gable when she tries to take him on a drunken rebound after he has tried to shake off Lana in favor of the brother whom he loves and tries to steer into safe channels. Reginald Owen and Lee Patrick have effective brief parts as Gable's friends—a commercial artist—and the wife whose legs he uses for his ad drawings. Numerous other players contribute excellent deliveries, especially the officers and men singled out by the cameras in the Bataan action, but not credited on the screen.

Wesley Ruggles marks the direction as one of his most searching and painstaking jobs, treated with never slackening dramatic fervor and broad human comprehension, using his skill to emphasize the force of affections and integrity rather than the smart play of story detail.

Pandro S. Berman handled the production wisely and expertly.

Harold Rosson on the camera direction makes every scene count for the utmost. Bronislau Kaper insinuates an effective score to take care of the musical elements. Gowns by Kalloch are most becoming on Miss Turner, as is the makeup and the general bedizening effects. Production has quality and appropriate amplitude without being obviously lavish.

fort to correlate the material into gripping, suspenseful action. That he doesn't always succeed in the finished film is no discredit. Karl Struss's photography follows the by now established Wellesian formula and is a skilled job. The music by Roy Webb, directed by C. Bakaleinikoff, sets an eerie mood. Other credits are capable.

The War Against Mrs. Hadley

acceptable style. As each of her family and choice group of friends turn their efforts to aiding Uncle Sam, Mrs. Hadley finds herself fighting a lonely, losing battle against the times. Reckoning comes, and when the Washingtonian finally reverses herself she does it wholeheartedly.

Fay Bainter wallops home the title assignment with all of her generous ability. Edward Arnold, government official and long friend, gives a restrained, tasteful performance. Richard Ney, the trifling son whose heroics on the field of battle set his mother straight, is good. Jean Rogers shines as the daughter who defies stern parent to seek her love with a soldier. Sara Allgood, the soldier's Irish-brogued mother, snaps in some wholesome, realistic chuckles. Spring Byington, fluttery Washington matron, stands out.

Van Johnson, the soldier who wins Miss Rogers, displays a natural, easy personality. Isobel Elsom does well by a short spot. Dorothy Morris makes her assignment as maid remembered. Halliwell Hobbes is the slick butler. Connie Gilchrist, Hadley family cook, spots a solid laugh with an expression of delight as she imagines a roomful of Marines. Miles Mander, Horace McNally, Rags Ragland, Frances Rafferty, Mark Daniels and Carl Switzer round out the excellent cast.

Harold S. Bucquet scores solidly with his understanding direction and the taste and feel he injects into the subject. Irving Asher's production is expertly valued for the market. David Snell's music score, Karl Freund's photography, the art and set decorations, the gowns, the film editing and other contributions are of the best quality.

The Big Street

garnished hokum. Here he deals with a shining devotion of a knightly New York busboy for an utterly selfish, arrogant, almost heartless doll who fancies herself a great entertainer. She has made the grade by the help of the burly crook whose moll she has been. In a moment of rare and forgetful charity she undertakes to do a good turn for the busboy who has saved her pekingese dog from taxi wheels—and gets pushed downstairs by the jealous crook and so mashed that she is doomed to a wheelchair the rest of her bitter and complaining days. The meaner she is, the greater the knight's devotion. He even wheels her, afoot most of the way, a thousand miles to Florida beach so she can be 'warm' and posture in hope of snagging a wealthy husband. A group of lowlifes — petty thieves, chiselers, dopes—help their pal, the busboy, try to make the girl forget her miseries. As a final gesture they compel the bigshot to toss an extravagant party for her in a swank club to give her a final hour of importance — before she dies in the arms of her selfless admirer.

Those are the characters, believable as long as they are on the screen. Principally, they are Henry Fonda, Lucille Ball, Barton MacLane, the crook-heavy; Eugene Pallette and Agnes Moorehead, who run an eatery; Sam Levene, Ray Collins, Milliard Mitchell, chief pals of Fonda.

Fonda keeps a dignity and moving sincerity in his limitless devotion to the woman he adores—whom he calls Her Highness. Lucille Ball in a superb performance completely realizes the shallow nature, the bitterness, the self-pity, the almost complete detestableness of the entertainer—salvaging the character's final selfishness with one moment of awareness of Fonda's ministrations.

Agnes Moorehead carries off a big share of acting honors, and strong in support are Pallette, Levene, Collins, Vera Gordon, Louise Beavers, Julius Tannen, MacLane. Effective also in good scenes are William Orr, Marion Martin, George Cleveland, Juan Varro, Harry Shannon, William Halligan.

Reis' direction is thoroughly attuned to the Runyon characters and the mood of his fable, getting out the chuckles and gulps in an admirable piece of screen story telling. Leonard Spigelgass did the screenplay from the original 'Little Pinks'. Dialog is sparkling, colorful, characteristic, in the Runyon argot. Roy Webb adds a fine musical score, which C. Bakaleinikoff directs. Mort Greene and Harry Revel cleffed the one song, 'Who Knows?' well sung by Miss Ball. Russell Metty's photography is top-notch, and Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra give out with pleasing rhythms in the final party scene.

Ingrid Bergman Picks Up FWTBT Role; Zorina Easts

Ingrid Bergman, following extensive makeup tests at Paramount during the past two days, leaves for Sonora tonight to assume role of Maria in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls'. Karl Struss, who handled the Bergman Technicolor tests, also goes north to take charge of the photography on the picture, joining Ray Rennahan, who will function as Technicolor associate on the production.

Vera Zorina, who is being replaced by Miss Bergman, leaves for New York next week to meet husband, George Belanchain, who docks from South America on Aug. 15. Pair return to the Coast later in the month, with Zorina slated to do a ballet number for 'Star Spangled Rhythm'. She has been assigned lead in 'Hour Before Dawn' later this year.

paign being conducted in the studios will be made at the next meeting. Gendarmes To Patrol 'Tales' Preem As Arcs Shun Sky

Squad of 75 Los Angeles policemen has been assigned to work premiere of 'Tales of Manhattan' at Grauman's Chinese theatre tonight, handling traffic and maintaining compliance with army regulations governing crowds and lights.

Preem will use battery of floodlights to aid newsreels and photographers, none of which will be pointed skyward. Bleachers are being erected to accommodate several hundred spectators, but are being set up so they can be quickly emptied should the need arise.

To insure complete coverage and avoid discrimination, 20th-Fox has invited two photographers from the local Negro press to shoot arrival of Eddie Anderson, Ethel Waters and other representatives of that race who may attend opening.

Union Buys $50,000 Bonds for 'Dandy'

Labor moved very strongly in the campaign to exceed the $5,750,000 War Bonds sold in New York for the premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', when International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union, Local 300, purchased $50,000 in Bonds, entitling them to seats for the local premiere of the picture at Warners Hollywood theatre on Aug. 12. There were considerable other large sales made by the various workers in the campaign during the day, and indications are that almost half the sum aimed for here in the War Bond selling plan under the auspices of the War Savings Staff of Southern California will have been realized by tonight.

Banking institutions, theatres, department stores and other agencies of the Treasury Department on the War Bond selling campaign were kept busy issuing and taking Bond orders, as well as presenting tickets for the premiere performance to the purchasers yesterday.

Last night the Hollywood quarters of the Treasury Department was besieged by Bond purchasers, with Lynn Bari of the Naval Aid Auxiliary as star of the evening, and other NAA workers breaking the day sales record of the headquarters since starting of the sale there. Tonight Jeanne Cagney, who was in the cast of 'Dandy', will be the star on hand at the headquarters.

Radio stations have been cooperating most heartily in the drive, making spot announcements mentioning it as the clock goes around.

WPB GIVES INDUSTRY WEEK TO AGREE ON FILM SAVINGS

themselves and providing the final plan is acceptable to the WPB.

Nate Blumberg arrived from the Coast yesterday to personally take a hand in the deliberations with the other majors. He was the only major company head unable to attend the session last week in which Nick Schenck, Steve Rathvon, Spyros Skouras, Barney Balaban, Gradwell Sears, Arthur Kelly and Jack Cohn participated.

At that meeting industry recommendations for cutting, based on the 1941 consumption but excluding newsreels and prints shipped to foreign markets, were as follows:

Fifteen per cent cut in raw stock for all companies using up to 50,000,000 feet annually. This would include 11 companies. Cut of 20% on next 50,000,000 feet, and a 35% reduction on excess over 150,000,000 feet. Alternative proposal made was for a 15% cut on all footage up to 50,000,000 feet, 17½% cut on all footage from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 feet, a 20% cut from 100 to 125 million feet, 22½% cut on 125 to 150 million, and a 25% cut in excess over 150 million feet.

Although ostensibly facing a smaller percentage cut (17½%), than some of the other majors, Universal contends it is suffering the greatest hardship because it maintained a high production schedule while others, such as Warners, have reduced releasing schedules since 1941.

Whether the Government will accept the industry recommendations following an industry agreement, and if these will be effective for a full calendar year or subject to interim modifications due to wartime necessities, is not yet certain.

Obituary

JAMES CRUZE

James Cruze, 58, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 337 N. Martel, Hollywood, after an illness of two and a half years. His body will lie in state from 4 p.m. today until noon tomorrow at the Crane & Eberle funeral chapel. Services will be held tomorrow at the same place at 2:30 p.m., with interment following at Hollywood cemetery. He is survived by his third wife, Mrs. Alberta Beatrice Cruze; a daughter, Julia, and two sisters.

Cruze, born in Ogden, Utah, rose from his first job as a farm laborer at $1 a day to $1,000 a day as a Paramount director, collecting the paycheck for years. While still in his teens, Cruze landed a job as leading man with the Billy Banks Tent Show two weeks after taking an acting course. Cruze moved to other stock companies, finally ending up with his own tent show after a lucky poker game. He appeared with medicine shows and in vaudeville. He started a film career as a star for the old Tannhauser company in New Rochelle, N. Y., around 1911, staying with it five years and doing 300 pictures, including several serials for Mutual release, the most prominent being 'Diamond From the Sky', starring his then wife, Marguerite Snow.

He joined Paramount as a director and rose to be what is considered to have been the highest salaried person in that capacity. His best known picture was 'The Covered Wagon'. Others included 'Old Ironsides', 'The Old Homestead', 'Merton of the Movies', 'Ruggles of Red Gap', 'Pony Express', 'Beggar On Horseback', 'Mannequin' and 'Washington Merry-Go-Round'. He was twice selected—in 1926 and 1928—as one of the 10 best directors. In 1928 Cruze formed his own production and distribution unit, making such films as 'She Got What She Wanted', 'Salvation Nell' and 'Racetrack'. Among his sound films were 'If I Had a Million', 'I Cover the Waterfront', 'Sailor Be Good', 'David Harum', 'Helldorado', 'Sutter's Gold'. His last pictures, directed at Republic, were 'Prison Nurse', 'Gangs of New York' and 'Come On, Leathernecks'. He was with Metro during 1926-28, making three features, 'The Duke Steps Out', 'Excess Baggage' and 'A Man's Man'.

Cruze was known as a practical joker and for his hospitality. He also was known as one of the best commercial directors in earlier films, bringing pictures in well under schedule, although seldom working after 4 p.m. He was married three times—first to Marguerite Snow, then to Betty Compson, and to his widow, whom he married a year ago.

IATSE Moves on 20th Location; Miller Is Ordered Home

Business Representative Herbert Aller of IATSE Local 659, which indicated the IA intends to police the location with the idea of moving in if the IBEW pulls its men to support Miller, who resigned his membership in Local 659. It also was reported from Cedar City, Utah, that Walter Strohm, chief engineer for 20th-Fox, was either on the ground or expected to arrive today.

In the meantime, IBEW officials, including several International representatives, were in conference last night deciding on their next move. It is understood there was some talk of pulling the Utah location, with others reported to favor throwing a picket line around the studio. Prexy Fred Jackman of the American Society of Cinematographers was said to be sitting in on the huddles. He was expected to decide today whether Wrigley would be suspended by the ASC for accepting the assignment without getting permission from the ASC board of governors.

Executives at 20th-Fox stated yesterday that about two weeks of shooting remain for the Utah location. They said the scenes could not be photographed at the studio and that there were no present intentions of recalling the company. One head said if the camera situation became more serious, the only thing the studio could do would be to call off the location and sue those responsible for interrupting production. It was said the location is costing the company around $7,000 daily.

The IBEW and ASC were expected to decide on their next move when officially notified that Miller had actually surrendered the camera assignment to Wrigley. The latter arrived yesterday but did not visit the location. When Miller returned to the hotel last night he was handed a wire from the studio calling him in, and was advised by Wrigley that he would take over today. Miller is scheduled to leave Cedar City shortly after noon in order to make a 2:30 p.m. bus connection to get a train for Hollywood.

Govt. Rests Case In Aroff Court Martial

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Government rested its case in court martial proceedings against Lt. Commander N. Aroff today following testimony by Capt. Robert A. White, USN retired, Aroff's plumbing partner and superior officer in the Naval Procurement office here, and two other officers. White touched on charges concerning fraudulent home address given by Irving Cummings, Jr., in applying for commission. He said, 'It would have made no difference what his home address was. He would have been taken in anyway.'

Lt. (j.g.) Richard C. Bergen testified as to Aroff's statements concerning automobile acquired from Tony Martin when singer joined the Navy as a chief specialist and his testimony was corroborated by Lt. B. E. Burchfiel.

End Warners Strike Seen as Company Renews Parley

Early settlement of the Warners office employes strike was seen with resumption of negotiations this afternoon. Discussions were reopened at instance of Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, local regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, following a morning meeting she called urging the strike be ended.

With sessions between Warners and the union to be resumed tomorrow, it is possible an agreement may be reached then. In the meantime, Warner members of the union are meeting tonight to discuss the progress made today, as well as to consider going back to work pending further negotiations.

The union's negotiating committee is headed by Ray Price and Edward Flaherty, while representing Warners are Attorney Harold Bareford, Sam Schneider, home office executive, Ralph Buff, personnel manager. Yesterday when Warners and Motion Picture Employes Union were still apart, it was claimed that some office workers returned to work, while others returning from vacation did not immediately join the strikers.

Hollywood Honor Men

Latest list of Hollywoodians called to service in various branches of Uncle Sam's armed forces include three from Paramount publicity department, Walter Shenson, apprentice flack, who has passed physical and entrance exams for Army Air Corps; Ray Hargrave, assistant business manager of the department, into the Army next week, and Art Sarno, in charge of files, who takes an Army physical this week.

Kenneth C. Carter, Universal praisery picture editor, leaves Friday for Susanville, Calif., to start refresher course as Air Corps instructor. At RKO, three more join up, Jack Briggs, actor, into the Army today; Alf Haugan, health expert, up for Army physical, and Robert Touyarot, camera department, into the Coast Guard. Byron Balk, Columbia paymaster, reports for induction Aug. 17. Harry Worth, freelance actor, will be inducted Monday as an acting corporal. Wayne Morris has received his wings as a Naval flier after training at Pensacola, and will remain there as a primary flight instructor.

Kenn Stevens, vocalist at Bill Jordan's Bar of Music, leaves this week for induction into the Army. He is replaced by Larry Burke, radio warbler.

David Hopkins, special representative of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs to the Motion Picture Society for the Americas, has been called to active service as lieutenant (j.g.) in the Navy. He reports for duty Aug. 18 and heads for Washington Aug. 14 to make final report to the MPSA chief there on his activities locally.

Jules Levey has taken up quarters for Mayfair Productions at General Service Studio in preparation for the Amazon wild life picture, with narration by Frank Buck, which is to be released through United Artists.

Casey Averts Studio Strike; SOEG Parley Switched To NY

tatives indicated their best offer was minimums ranging from $23.50 to $47.50 per week for exchange clerical employes. The Guild had demanded scales ranging from $28.80 to $72.80.

Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions; Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Secretary Bernard Lusher, Prexy Margaret Bennett and Attorney George E. Bodle of the SOEG agreed there was no need for further negotiations, having previously advised the exchanges a percentage increase would not be acceptable. Sorrell inferred that arrangements had already been made to pull all the exchanges, as well as the studios, and indicated move would be made immediately, possibly today.

Fearing such a move would immediately involve the Painters, Cartoonists, Set Designers, Machinists and other studio crafts affiliated with the Conference, and possibly interfere with production, Casey called group and persuaded them to resume negotiations with heads of companies. He pointed out it would be possible to reach a quicker agreement and that the SOEG would not be jeopardizing its position by postponing any action until it could be determined whether an amicable settlement could be reached with the heads of the companies.

Following a conference among themselves, Sorrell and Pratt announced they were agreeing because of their confidence in the fairness of Casey. They made it plain that action would not have been taken for any other individual in the industry.

It is certain the negotiations will be switched to New York so that Nick Schenck and other company heads can sit in on the parleys. It is understood Casey will head east Friday with the idea of resuming negotiations in New York Monday, if Pratt, Sorrell and Bodle are able to appear at that time.

It was pointed out that if negotiations are switched to New York it would save time, as any deal made here would have to go back there for an okay. It also was stated that an agreement covering the San Francisco exchange clerical workers probably could be reached at the same time the deal is worked out for exchangeites here.

The SOEG at its general membership meeting last night approved a resolution presented by the musicians calling for establishment of a second European front now. Dalton Trumbo spoke in favor of the move.

Min Slevin and Glenn Pratt were named delegates to the State Federation convention, and a committee was appointed to select five delegates to Central Labor Council. Guild accepted 58 new members and authorized appointment of a committee to investigate discrimination in the war effort against persons because of race, creed or color, both in and out of the industry.

Connors Realigns 20th Sales Districts

New York, Aug. 4.—Realignment of district managers and creation of new districts of the 20th-Fox sales setup were announced today by Tom Connors, company sales chief.

H. R. Biersdor, Dallas branch manager, has been made district head of the newly-created Great Lakes district, with headquarters in Chicago. Offices in Chicago, Milwaukee and Detroit will come under his supervision. Tex Callaghan, Boston branch manager, has been promoted to succeed Tom Dailey, resigned, as New England district manager.

Harry G. Ballance has been made southern division manager covering New Orleans, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Atlanta, Charlotte and Memphis. He had previously been southern district manager, and the new post gives him more territory and supervision. Paul L. Wilson, Atlanta branch manager, gets promotion to southeastern district manager, with offices embracing Memphis, Atlanta, and Charlotte. Arthur Ebeles, recently in Warners foreign department, has been named a special home office sales representative for 20th.

Lucile Gleason East

Lucile Gleason has received a temporary leave of absence as a vice-prexy of the Motion Picture Relief Fund and leaves for New London, Conn., this week with her husband, James Gleason. Relief Fund post will not be filled during her absence.

Fire Razes Ringling Circus—

Terrified wild beasts were burned to death in their cages before the eyes of 5,000 spectators yesterday as fire swept through the menagerie tent of the Ringling Brothers' circus in Cleveland. An estimated loss was more than 50 animals dead and property damage running into tens of thousands of dollars. The gorilla, Gargantua, one of the featured attractions, escaped harm. It was the second major disaster suffered by Ringlings, many of the show's elephants having been poisoned last year.

Errol Flynn On Stand—

Errol Flynn, film star, appeared before the Grand Jury yesterday in answer to subpoena, summoning him as a witness in the investigation into the 'Battle of Butlers' which came as a climax to a party at Flynn's home last June 28. Eric Gosta, injured in the fracas, was expected to testify that he had been struck by James Fleming, stand-in for Flynn, as he was leaving premises at 4 a.m.

Talley Wins Divorce—

After more than seven years of legal bickering, Marion Talley obtained her final divorce decree from her former singing coach, Adolph Eckstrom, yesterday. The decree was granted by Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull who, in 1941, granted Miss Talley an interlocutory decree and custody of the couple's daughter, Susan.

Uniform Admish Policy Must Be Adhered To, Says Skouras

On completion of second day's session of the National Theatres Corp. convention, comprised of division managers, film buyers and executive personnel, at the Fox-West Coast office, Charles P. Skouras, president, issued the following statement:

'It will be our policy to cooperate to the fullest extent with all distributors who have outstanding box-office attractions meriting advanced admission prices, and we will meet with each situation as it arises. We believe, however, to be effective and successful, such advanced admission attractions must be protected by a national distribution sales policy which will not permit the exhibition of such an attraction at less than an established minimum matinee and night general admission.'

Skouras further stated that 'the establishment and then strict adherence to such a plan on the individual attraction would prove very successful and result in added revenue to the producer, which would encourage bigger and better box-office pictures such as 'Boom Town,' 'Sergeant York,' 'Reap the Wild Wind,' 'Tales of Manhattan,' 'Pride of the Yankees' and 'Yankee Doodle Dandy.'

Above group of films have been or will be shown at advanced admissions. Conspicuously absent is 'Mrs. Miniver,' currently mopping up but omitted since it is being shown at regular prices.

Luncheon with Charles Koerner, new RKO prexy and former theatre man, will break up the general business and operations discussions today. Koerner will entertain at the RKO lot. In the evening, the attendees will take in the premiere of 'Tales of Manhattan' at the Chinese theatre. Today marks closing of the convention, and men will head home probably Thursday, eschewing a luncheon at 20th Century-Fox in the desire to get back to their individual locations.

Par Blows Down Plan For Aug. Showings

Branch office of Paramount was notified by wire yesterday from New York that planned screening of 16 films during week of Aug. 12 to 19 has been temporarily abandoned. Home office did not explain the move, stating instructions would follow. Office here complained that showing two in the morning, starting at 10 o'clock, and one in the afternoon, could not assure proper attendance.

Par apparently was not waiting for the outcome of the UMPI plan now being presented to Department of Justice officials, wanting to get the screening worry over no matter what decision was reached on altering the present method under the consent decree.

AN OPEN LETTER TO SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Things have been happening since I last addressed an open letter to you. Back in Washington there was a meeting of the Motion Picture Industry heads and representatives of the War Production Board to discuss film conservation. Their talk was most thorough and suggestions were made for cutting down on the amount of raw stock to be used for film prints.

Maybe you noticed that RKO, a company which is releasing the product you are now making, will probably cut down its print supply by 17½%. You know that you would be helping them a lot in this direction, were you to brush up on mathematics and realize that your proposal to make five pictures this year is impossible, figuratively speaking.

You know, Mr. Goldwyn, in case you would resort to the use of your pencil and start to figure, that RKO will have to reduce its total release print film by 17½% in order to conform to the proposed industry film conservation program. And that reduction would have to be from the product it distributed during the 1941-42 season. Then going on from there, you had two pictures in that consignment. Now for 1942-43, you plan releasing five pictures you will or you plan making. Now that means that two and one-half times more footage will be required for these prints that RKO will release. Therefore, RKO is placed in quite a quandary. They are trying to conform with conservation. You recommend and request that pictures be reduced in quantity by 40% for the new season, but at the same time you yourself want to increase the number of pictures that you will make by 150% over the past season.

Mr. Goldwyn, you probably do not realize that you are inconsistent. Maybe you do not care anything about film conservation. Possibly your only thought is that Samuel Goldwyn pictures are made, made as you choose to make and deliver them, regardless of economic or other problems that an industry is concerned with. That is why, to my way of thinking, you are inconsistent and want the cart to pull the horse.

You know there is a war going on. That conservation is a great aid toward its successful conduct by our Nation and its Allies. So, why don't you fall in line with other Americans who are of that spirit, use your pencil to strike out five and let it go at two. You'll still be getting the best of the bargain, for you won't be doing what you want others to do, cut their product 40%, you will still be 100% of your 1941-42 output. That would be giving you a great break, for you would not be cutting product nor participating in the 17½% film conservation that RKO will likely be committed for.

So, Mr. Goldwyn, as long as you haven't started your mathematic brush up, and probably had no intention of doing, just fall in line with conservation by using the eraser on your pencil, rubbing out the figure five and in its stead place the figure two. That's easy. No one can then say that Goldwyn is trying to 'hog' things, which they are now saying, and you will be the type of American that we all want to be, and help conserve as we all must do. That's how we can help win the War in our little way, far from the lines of actual combat.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

HOLLYWOOD is lagging far behind other cities in contributions of old records to be salvaged for the purchase of new platters to set up the dwindling supply for our fighting forces. It is pointed out by Kay Kyser, head of Records For Our Fighting Men, Inc., that there are tons of old discs stored away in picture studios that would greatly aid the campaign through the shellac reclamation process. He will make appeals for old records on two airshows tomorrow, 'Breakfast at Sardi's' on the Blue network, and KFI program conducted by Bernie Smith. Organization set up to supply the new recordings is being aided by the American Legion and Boy Scouts, which make the pickups. Record companies make a payment for the old discs and the money is applied on the purchase of latest releases and gramaphones. Kyser says there is an urgent need for new records for service men, both in camp here and overseas.

Skouras Announces Theatre Drive

Concluding the third day of the National Theatres Corp. convention yesterday, Prexy Charles P. Skouras announced a national drive that will start Oct. 1. Details of the campaign will be worked out today on the fourth and final session. After the meet the majority of the attending division managers, film buyers, et al., will leave for their home sites. It will be first drive under Charles Skouras leadership.

Meeting yesterday was brief. The morning was taken up with golf at Hillcrest, and meet actually got started following luncheon on the RKO lot with Charles Koerner, RKO prexy.

Convention was originally scheduled for just the first two days of the week, but was extended. Last night the group attended the premiere of 'Tales of Manhattan' at the Chinese theatre. Final operations and business discussions, plus working out of the new drive will take up a short day's session today.

Night spreads its sable wings on Hollywood.
The lights go out—whatever lights there are.
The honest moon surveys the neighborhood,
And here and there a cold and distant star.

Night life in Hollywood is not a bright
And revelrous regime of game and wine.
The actors ride to work at dawning light
Like milkmen when the sun begins to shine.

The chumpish playboys and their playgirls roam
From dump to joint and dance to jungle drums
While worn and weary actors hasten home
And revel in their snores when dimout comes.

Hollywood's fabled night life was dimmed out long ago when stars discovered that they couldn't shine by night and day at the same time. Once in a while you can glimpse a star at Hollywood and Vine but you don't see him seeking revelry. He is on his way to a broadcast to promote the sale of War Bonds. Or maybe he is hastening to his agent's office to whittle a new contract. Eleven p. m. in Hollywood contains about the same number of calories as 11 p. m. in Dubuque.

RKO-Radio production. With Richard Carlson, Jane Randolph, Jane Darwell, Barton MacLane, Ray Collins, Gordon Jones, Renee Haal, George Cleveland, Marten Lamont, Jack La Rue, John McGuire, James Seay, Cliff Clark, Paul Fix. Directed by Peter Godfrey. Screenplay by Lynn Root and Frank Fenton, from story, 'Silver Spoon', by Clarence Budington Kelland. Assistant director, James Anderson. Photography, Robert de Grasse. Music, Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino, Carroll Clark. Recorded by Earl A. Wolcott. Editor, Harry Marker. Tradeshown at RKO Projection Room, July 5, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

This is an unimpressive carbon of themes that have been done much better and, by now, too often, i.e., the trucking racketeers and the poor little rich boy who everybody thinks is a nobody but who turns out to be the somebody who saves all. This time it's not Nell or the homestead; it's the family hauling business. It's only for duals.

The corn starts popping right at the outset and never stops till the final cliche is mouthed. This is especially true of the dialog, and very often true of telegraphed situations. There is some little suspense in Richard Carlson getting in and out of the hands of the gangsters, plus an occasional laugh from Gordon Jones, playing a big stupe brother of Jane Randolph, the foil. However, there is not sufficient of any single element, including passable acting, that makes it more than filler. Being devoid of any name tonnage is a hurt, too.

Though fairly brief, it still drags in the wordy spots. The editor or director could have pared there and made the end quicker and the pain less.

Carlson, a rich and brainy lad, is pestered into getting by on his own. After a scrape with the hoodlums he finds himself enmeshed in a family that is in turn enmeshed in a trucking war with the same collection of cutthroats. With the aid of his brain, his family's coin and an omnipresent and omnipotent uncle he runs the bad boys out and himself in. End finds him in love, in business and independent.

Isle of Missing Men

(Melodrama)

Newcomer Helen Gilbert adds nothing to her laurels nor does Monogram enhance the company escutcheon with this once-over-lightly flapjack that sometimes looks like a lot but never really is. The less discriminating lovers of intrigue will find it edible after nearly getting their fill from main courses in the dual diners.

John Howard is again cast as the suffering nice boy who is frustrated and fooled almost to the end, only to come smiling through after overcoming all obstacles. In this entry he's governor of a penal colony and thwarted to pieces by Bradley Page, his too efficient lieutenant. Latter is suspicious of everything and everybody, throws the monkeywrench into the works from all sides, but also comes smiling through in the fade as the one good guy who can be depended on—even by Cupid.

Miss Gilbert will doubtless excite some fans in her Veronica Lake takeoff, embroidered by some fairly cleverly conceived frames that highlight her blondness and whiteness. But her performance as the little girl who seeks an interned husband, only to find him a bigamist and murderer, is lustreless. She's pasty and vapid and goes through her lines without much feeling.

On Alan Mowbray rests much of the load. His sly witticisms are strongly helpful, brightening things where others fail. His name, along with the growing Howard, also will be a help. The performances of both come the nearest to conviction.

Cameramen should have stayed away from the close-ups of mob fights, and, for that matter, also from the man-to-man duels. All are very obviously faked and lend little to the picture. They were apparently meant to give action support, but fail by being the kind of melees that take second place to the feeling of let's get going along with the yarn.

The story is that of a lonely man who befriends a girl and finds her guilty of underhandedness—with an explanation. She still thinks she's in love when she inveigles her way into the home and heart of the colony's governor. She connives to free her husband, later regretting the move when she realizes her love for the cleaner type, but not before Gilbert Roland, convict husband, comes to his expected demise.

Roland and Bradley Page rate a little nod when not swamped by Mowbray and compared to Howard.

Drums of the Congo

(Melodrama)

Universal production. Features Ona Munson, Stuart Erwin, Peggy Moran, Don Terry, Richard Lane, Jules Bledsoe, Turhan Bey. Supporting cast: Dorothy Dandridge, Ernest Whitman, Ed Stanley, Jess Lee Brooks, Napoleon Simpson. Director, Christy Cabanne. Associate producer, Henry MacRae. Original screenplay, Paul Huston, Roy Chanslor. Photography, George Robinson. Art director, Jack Otterson. Gowns, Vera West. Sound director, Bernard B. Brown. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Songs by Milton Rosen, Everett Carter. Previewed at the studio, Aug. 5, 1942. Running time: 59 MINS.

'Drums of the Congo' will serve its purpose as action supporting material for the smaller houses. Feature makes handy use of stock jungle footage to supply a measure of production value, including native celebrations, fights between jungle animals, etc., all of which relieves the players of too much responsibility.

Don Terry, Army Intelligence officer, is dispatched to Africa to negotiate the purchase of a large meteorite, wanted to replace industrial diamonds in the war effort. That picture was made some time back during Hollywood's diplomatic period is tipped by the fact the 'enemy' agents, also out for the ersatz diamond, are never identified by their nationalities. Terry starts his safari, traveling with Ona Munson, femme doctor; Stuart Erwin, jungle guide; Peggy Moran and Richard Lane, the nationals who are trying to trick the Intelligence officer. Original screenplay by Paul Huston and Roy Chanslor doesn't have much chance to get set, which was just as well, as picture was almost wholly a cutting job, what with the numerous stock shots included. Naturally Terry's side wins, but not until difficulties are overcome.

Players do their best with the assignments, emerging unscathed, but without any particular distinction. Christy Cabanne matched up his studio shots and library material capably to give the appearance of large-scale operations under the experienced associate producer guidance of Henry MacRae. Jules Bledsoe, Negro singer, does three numbers, ''Round the Bend', 'River Man' and 'Hear the Drums Beat Out'. Latter gives rise to what is in effect an African conga line when stock shots of jitterbugging natives are cut in. George Robinson handled the photography and other technical credits are in keeping with release intentions.

TDB Meet Indefinite

Theatre Defense Board will likely not hold a meeting again until Aug. 20 due to stress of board members checking all 225 theatres in the L. A. zone. Regular meeting of July was first postponed last Thursday, and later extended to cover this Thursday as well. It's figured now that it will take more time to cover all.

Mono 'Hillbilly' Bow

Monogram holds a press preview of 'Hillbilly Blitzkrieg' at the Vista theatre tomorrow night. Picture, second of the Barney Google-Snuffy Smith comedies, was originally scheduled to be screened tonight but date conflicted with other press showings.

BEST DRESSED GAL OF THE WEEK—

Ingrid Bergman, lunching at the Hollywood Brown Derby, in one of the cleverest summer prints seen to date. The dress combined a softly casual shirtwaist top with a knee-hugging tulip-silhouette skirt. It was of fine black silk crepe sporting an all-over white print of the Harper's diet—pineapples, lamb chops, etc., with the amounts written in script. Miss Bergman wore a stunning black straw chapeau with wide, dipped brim, and manipulated crown. Crushed black suede gauntlets, black pouch bag and pumps completed the ensemble.

'Spike' Wallace Taking Music Strife For Mike Airing

Probably the first public airing of the American Federation of Musicians record and transcription battle, other than newspaper coverage, will take place right in the opposing faction's back yard when J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, prexy of Local 47 here, goes on KPAS next Monday. Wallace has accepted an invitation to discuss the situation on the 'Our Daily Bread' program sponsored by the Unity For Victory Committee of all unions.

To date few public explanations of the music situation have been offered. No locals issued any statements until Petrillo's reply to the FCC and others. Yesterday Wallace proclaimed his local's full support in the first statement to be issued here. How far into the matter he will go has not been revealed, but fact of his being heard at all sets precedent.

Hollywood Honor Men

Jack Briggs, RKO contract actor, yesterday began seven weeks of preliminary training at San Diego, following his induction into the Marine Corps. At the time of his enlistment he had a seven-year contract, calling for a total of $165,000. Appropriately, his last picture was 'The Navy Comes Through'.

Other RKO men entering the service are Grier Johnson, who entered the Navy, and Charles Carlton, who joined the Signal Corps. Both are from the electrical department.

Burton Jones, owner-manager of La Mesa theatre, La Mesa, Calif., will be inducted into the Army today.

Glenn Haines, son of Roy Haines, vice-president of Vitagraph, Inc., has enlisted in the Army and is assigned to the Air Force Technical school.

Earl F. Colgrave has resigned as head of still supervision for Walt Disney to become a lieutenant in the Navy. Dudley Early, film critic for the Family Circle magazine, reports to the Navy at San Diego on Monday.

Ernest Anderson, Warners service department, has enlisted in the Army and reports for duty Aug. 13.

KSTP Averts Strike In AFM Compromise

Minneapolis, Aug. 5.—Averting a threatened strike of its staff musicians, a two-year contract representing a compromise agreement has been signed by KSTP, Twin City NBC outlet, and AFM. The musicians receive a 10% wage boost and 10 men will be employed on basis of 52 weeks a year with four weeks notice required for dismissal of any musician. The union abandoned its demand that any musician employed for four weeks would not be subject to dismissal at the station's will.

light curtailment and will be able to get about without worry or concern with respect to their safety on highways.

It's true that lighting on the outside of a theatre will probably be eliminated, or drastically curtailed; also that lobby lighting visible to the street will not be as bright as in the past, but that isn't going to keep trade out of the theatres. The latter will always get their share of the amusement spending money of their communities as long as they have the action on stage or screen that the patrons want. And even though lights blazed and bait was given to draw them in, it would be pretty hard should the attraction be bad.

THEATRES should not feel the dimout is clipping them. They should take inventory of the whole situation, remembering that night baseball and other night entertainment of any kind is out for the dimout period. There are plenty whose purse-strings backing such enterprises will be clipped, and clipped badly. But they won't squawk, because they know squawking will do no good, and that the move is being made to protect them.

We're in a war. Danger of attack by enemies is being realized. Precaution is being taken. Dimout is one phase of it. So let us in show biz on the Pacific Coast fall in line with the Government's requests and orders, complying with them voluntarily to the letter, so that should the occasion arise there can be an ease-up on drastic enforcement, it will be granted to those who are doing their bit to make it tough for the enemy.

That's easy, too. Just keep a stiff upper lip, smile, and do so cheerfully, and never squawk about an official order being given for the safety of your community and yourself. That's one of many ways to help toward the downfall of the Axis terrorists.

dustry must face the facts of this matter. Highly skilled technicians will not continue to work for apprentice wages. These men, performing the most exacting duties in the electrical field, are paid far less than the journeymen electricians working on the same lot. They are asking no premium for the years of training required to meet federal requirements, only that they be paid the prevailing electricians scale.'

KFWB executives said the union had demanded a 24% wage tilt for technicians, that the company had submitted a counter proposal, but that had so far been unable to reach an agreement.

Actors Head East On Bond Drive

Kenneth Thomson, Merle Oberon and Walter Abel leave today for New York on Hollywood Victory Committee business. They will be gone two weeks. Edward Arnold leaves Saturday to join them, and it is possible Lynne Overman also will make the trip.

Meetings with the War Activities Committee on the September billion-dollar War Bond drive is the chief matter on their agenda. The group also will confer with USO officials on an expanded program of star entertainment for Army camps.

New Shirley Temple Air Deals Simmer

Two fall radio deals for Shirley Temple are cooking in the east, with Ed Wolfe, who sold the current setup to Procter & Gamble, handling the negotiations. 'Inn' Preems To $16,000

New York, Aug. 5.—Premiere of 'Holiday Inn' at the Paramount last night resulted in $16,000 take for Navy Relief, and the Irving Berlin musical today broke all house records on start of its expected four to five weeks run, with attendance of 23,500.

Navy Wants Its Own Show; Winchell Guiding Bally

Washington, Aug. 5.—There's a good deal of rivalry—and not all good-natured—between Army and Navy Relief. It can result, and some say it will, in a Navy show to outdo 'This Is the Army'.

At the War and Navy Departments there has been much dissatisfaction over the sharing of funds. Army Relief has some 4,000,000 potentials to care for, while the forces of Secretary Knox number 500,000. Yet the funds from the relief drive in the theatres were cut 50-50 and there is some grumbling that this was not a fair distribution. The Red Cross, which supports both organizations generously, is concerned with the matter of jurisdiction.

Navy Relief got off much faster than the Army, with Stanton Griffis and Lieut. Comm. Walter Winchell sparkplugging their drives. Recently 'This Is the Army' has derived fancy publicity, and, through Irving Berlin's generosity, Army Relief is scheduled to cut up at least $2,000,000 in profits from the soldier musical. So there's talk of the Navy putting on a 'Ship Ahoy' revue with Winchell again acting as publicity and promotion spearhead.

Circus Goes On—

While, true to tradition of the theatre, the 'show went on' as usual under the Ringling Brothers' big top at Cleveland, city authorities yesterday were attending to the wounds of the animal survivors of Tuesday's fire in which 39 animal attractions were destroyed. The patients were present during the performance, but took no part, being painted with gallons of foille, a new medicament. John Ringling North, circus head, estimated the damage at $200,000, with cause of the fire still to be determined.

Stars Skip Theatre Stages on Bond Selling Tours

Regulations aimed to protect film players and eliminate any commercial aspect from their War Bond selling tours in September were drafted at a meeting of Charles Einfeld, field director for the 300 Bond rallies; Kenneth Thomson, chairman of the Hollywood Victory Committee, and Carlton Duffus, of the Treasury Department. Copies of these regulations will be taken by the seven Hollywood advance men as they go over the seven routes approximately three weeks ahead of the stars. The rules will be passed on to the War Activities Committee and Treasury Department representatives in every community to be visited.

Regulations provide that none of the stars will appear on theatre stages, at store Stamp booths or at rallies where admission is charged, except where the admission is by Stamps or Bonds. They will not appear at private parties, dinners, etc., nor on paid radio broadcasts. They will not appear in parades, except Labor Day affairs, and will not participate in more than three functions in any one day or in any one city.

Arrangements will be made for stars to appear in theatre lobbies or in public squares such as the Victory House. They will appear at public rallies, civic club luncheons, and particularly at factories to boost payroll savings plan.

A final meeting of the advance publicity men has been called by Charles Einfeld with Carlton Duffus at 3 p.m. today. At 4:30 p.m., five of them will fly with Duffus to Washington.

Prods Ask More Time On Actor Demands

Producers at a meeting with the Screen Actors Guild on wage demands asked for more time to analyze figures involved. SAG consented and it was agreed that another meeting between the two groups will be arranged the last of this month at which time the Producers are expected to submit counter proposals. The Guild is asking pay for extras, day, free lance and contract players be tilted.

Lt. Halperin Honored

With notification of the air-crash death of Lieut. Robert E. Halperin, former manager of the Stadium theatre, Fox-West Coast added the fourth gold star to company banner for service men which now has a total of 259.

'Wake Island' at Last

Having temporarily cancelled its proposed screening of 15 films during the week of Aug. 12-19, Paramount yesterday decided to do a solo on 'Wake Island,' showing the film at the Ambassador on Aug. 12 at 2:30 p. m.

SCHENCK PRESENTS THEATRES' $2,000,000 TO ARMY, NAVY

Washington, Aug. 5.—Just two pieces of paper, but each worth $1,000,000, were presented to Army and Navy Relief this afternoon, while the motion picture newsreel cameras ground in the War Department conference room.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., and general chairman of the motion picture theatre drive, was the star of the newsreel short. He was flanked on one side by Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Paterson, and on the other by Admiral J. O. Richardson, representing the two services. Also in the front line were Stanton Griffis, chairman of Paramount's finance committee, with a check for $400,000 more which was raised by the Hollywood Victory Caravan in a tour of 13 cities; Harry Brandt, Independent Theatre Owners Association, and Col. John Thomas Taylor of Army Emergency Relief.

Schenck's script for the newsreels was put through censorship routine. In rehearsal for the reels, he called the amount the contribution of the motion picture theatres. At Carter Barron's suggestion, the word 'theatres' was ruled out and 'patrons' substituted. More than 15,000 theatres participated in the collection, which realized $700,000 more than the exhibitors of the nation raised a few months previously for the annual Infantile Paralysis drive.

In a scroll accompanying the checks it was emphasized that the success of the campaigns for the two service relief organizations would be attributed to the untiring efforts of S. Y. Fabian, treasurer; Oscar O. Doob, public relations; Harry M. Warner, studios; Abe Montague, exchanges; Leonard Goldenson, home offices, and 48 state chairmen.

Obituary

JAMES CRUZE RITES

Funeral services for James Cruze, 58, pioneer film director, who died on Monday, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 at the Crane & Eberle mortuary, 7700 Santa Monica blvd. The body will lie in state there until noon, so that old friends may pay their respects. Following the deceased's expressed wish, Luke Cosgrave, stage and screen actor and Cruze's old vaudeville partner, will offer the eulogy. The body is to be cremated and placed in the crypt at Hollywood Memorial Park near the ashes of Rudolph Valentino, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., Barbara La Marr, Edwin Carewe and others.

MAE TALBOT

Mae Talbot, 73, stage and screen actress of an earlier day, died Tuesday at Glendale while on a visit with friends. Her home was at Manhattan Beach, where she had lived since her retirement. The deceased, whose real name was Mrs. Mary Talbot Winchell, was born in Indiana. Funeral services will be held at L. G. Scovern chapel, Glendale, at 3:30 Friday afternoon. Surviving is a son, Talbot Winchell, Victorville.

NORBERT MILLETTE

Norbert 'Al' Millette, 79, retired acrobat, died July 4 at his San Francisco home. During his 40 years in show business Millette appeared in every major circus and worked every major vaudeville circuit. Born in Springfield, Mass., he got his first circus job in 1884 and retired in 1924, living in San Francisco since that time. His widow and a son, Norbert, Jr., survive.

JEANETTE LOFF

Jeanette Loff, 35, former film actress, died Tuesday night at Hollywood Presbyterian hospital, where she was taken with burns of the mouth and throat, caused by what doctors diagnosed as 'ammonia poisoning'. Her husband, Bert Friedlob, Beverly Hills business man, said she had been suffering from an abdominal complaint and, in error, had picked up the wrong bottle at their residence, 702 N. Crescent drive. Funeral arrangements were delayed pending official investigation into the circumstances of death. She appeared in many films during the late 20's, her foremost role being in 'The King of Jazz' opposite Paul Whiteman.

Koerner Entertains Theatre Execs

Charles E. Koerner, vice-president in charge of RKO studio, played host to Charles P. Skouras, prexy of National Theatres and Fox-West Coast Theatres, and 20 executives and division managers of the circuit at an informal studio luncheon yesterday. Occasion was a reunion for Koerner, former RKO theatres operator in this area, with exhibitor friends. Theatre executives are here for National Theatres' first Los Angeles business meeting since Skouras assumed presidency several months ago.

Among guests attending the Koerner luncheon were George Watters, Skouras' executive aide; Dan Michelove, New York; Elmer Rhoden, Kansas City, with the Fox Mid-West Division; Arch Boles, F-WC general manager; Frank Newman, of Evergreen Circuit, Seattle; Al Fink, Portland; Harold J. Fitzgerald, Milwaukee; David Idzal, Detroit; Rick Ricketson, Denver, of the Rocky Mountain Division; B. V. Sturdivant, F-WC Northern California supervisor; George Bowser, Southern California supervisor; Charles Thall, supervisor of San Francisco first run houses; Frank Christie, Seattle; Lew Cox, Kansas City; Milt Hossfeld, Denver; Verne Touchette, Milwaukee, and William Lyris, New York.

been going along under an old two-year contract which expired Aug. 31, 1940, on the understanding a new deal would be retroactive to then.

Negotiations have dragged for yearly two years, finally blowing up when the union demanded a 15% increase, but due, in part, to increased living costs, while the employers offered various counter proposals, general tenor of which was not to grant any increase under concessions desired in connection with working conditions and like.

Gelber stated it is apparent the employers have been banking on the no-strike policy of the American Federation of Labor. If a strike is called, there is possibility it would seriously interfere with trade screenings, many of which are scheduled this month.

Martin Switches Story, Recalls Aroff Talk

San Francisco, Aug. 5.—Reappearing today on the witness stand in the court martial action against Lieut. Com. Maurice N. Aroff, charged with accepting enlistment 'presents,' Tony Martin, radio and film singer, altered previous testimony by remembering a conversation he had had Jan. 3 with the accused officer. According to this version, Aroff offered to accept Martin's $950 car with the proviso that, when he sold it, he would pay the money over to Martin, less $200 he had spent on Martin's enlistment for telephone calls.

Martin previously had testified that Aroff accepted the car as an outright present, without any suggestion of paying for it.

'Chunking' Pic To Be MacEwen Par Debut

'Night Plane From Chunking' will be Paramount's version of American pilots activities in the Orient. Will deal with cargo planes running war materials and supplies to the chinese. Robert Preston, Ellen Drew and Albert Dekker top the cast. Production will be Walter MacEwen's first at Paramount. Michael Kraike will have associate producer post and Ralph Murphy is assigned to direct. Screen play is by Lester Cole.

Witney 'Outlaws' Next

William Witney will direct 'Outlaws of Pine Ridge,' next of the Don Barry westerns at Republic. Eddie White will be associate producer. This is the first of the Barry oaters since George Sherman, former producer-director on series, was upped to feature director.

WB Tints War Short

War Department has given Warners an okay to produce a two-reel Technicolor national defense subject titled 'Transport Command.' Short will be filmed in cooperation with the Army Air Corps with B. Reaves Eason directing.

Bezahler Blows East

Joe Bezahler, Metro home office rep, who has been conferring with George Hickey, western district manager, for the last 10 days on new season's sales policies, left for New York yesterday.

'Dandy' Preem in High As Myron Selznick Buys $119,900

With Myron Selznick weighing in with a record personal subscription of $119,900, sales of United States War Bonds for the Treasury's 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' got into high gear yesterday.

Other Hollywood personalities, local corporations, business executives and Government officials all rallied behind the bond drive in connection with the first Western showing of the Warner Bros. picture at the Hollywood Theatre August 12, with purchases ranging up to $50,000.

Walter Wanger came through with a $50,000 purchase, as did the LaBrea Securities company, while William Goetz, Jerry Wald and Leo Forbestein bought to the tune of $25,000. Samuel J. Briskin kicked in $10,000 and Harry Rapf $5,000 for the Treasury's rapidly soaring premiere pot.

Federal Judge J. F. T. O'Connor bought a $10,000 War Bond, while business executives contributing major purchases to the best daily total since the start of the drive were Pinkus Happ, $20,000, and A. H. Wittenberg and Michael J. Plony, $10,000 each.

Business went soaring at the Hollywood office of the War Savings staff, 6443 Hollywood boulevard, which is being staffed by members of the Naval Aid Auxiliary. Sales at this headquarters hit $61,500 at 7 p. m., compared with $37,325 on Tuesday, with purchasers still pouring in, many attracted by the appearance there of Jeanne Cagney, who has an important role in 'Yankee Doodle Dandy.' Business was so brisk at this stand that the War Savings staff assigned two additional men to help speed up the transactions.

Gail Patrick is scheduled for duty at the Hollywood boulevard office from 7:45 to 9 tonight, and KFWB will run a line into the headquarters to broadcast actual bond transactions and interview the actress, immediately following the regular broadcast by Robert Arden, foreign correspondent, which will originate from there for the duration of the bond drive.

Credit for the huge sale to Myron Selznick went to the Los Angeles Theatre division of the War Savings staff, deal being closed by Francis Sinnette, assistant manager of Warner Bros. Beverly Hills Theatre.

Heading the parade of bond buyers into the Hollywood boulevard branch was Private Harry Shapiro, drafted away from his downtown jewelry business and inducted into the Army this week. Private Shapiro bought a $10,000 bond to tuck away against his return from the wars. Others buying there included Lieut. Ronald Reagan, Harry Davenport, Johnny Mercer, Eleanor Powell, Leo Gorcy, and Vina Delmar.

Rep Derricks Dodd

Republic has lifted its option on services of Jimmy Dodd after actor completed his initial assignment as one of the Three Mesquiteers in 'Shadows on the Sage.' Dodd was brought in on a one-picture with options pact to join Tom Tyler and Bob Steele in the western series. He stays on now for eight. Next will be 'Valley of Hunted Men' with Jack English directing.

NEW DIMOUT HITS THEATRE SIGNS, STUDIOS, NITE BALL

Santa Monica, Santa Barbara, Frisco, San Diego, San Pedro and other adjacent areas has not hurt business at all, they say. Same situation should prevail here once the public accepts the situation. Absence of any competing bright lights will make the situation uniform and eliminate any trouble on that score, too. Everyone will be in the same boat, is the attitude.

Actually, it's stated, business in the already dimmed areas has in many instances increased. One district manager tells of a theatre of his that voluntarily darkened itself in face of competition and lack of cooperation from opposition. 'His business improved daily,' was the statement, 'while others were hit.' It was explained as possible novelty attraction, but nonetheless there.

Theatres will be quick to abide strictly by the civic and military rules, all agreed. Theatre Defense Board also will supervise the 225 theatres it controls in the L. A. area, offering full cooperation to the authorities. Their willingness and the absence of gloom dispels any thought that business will suffer in the L. A. and Hollywood metropolitan area. Same feeling exists among circuits, too. Those queried also point to the east, where grosses remain unaffected and often improved, if anything, since the shades were pulled there.

Some think it may mean a little more sticking closer to home and less travel for picture-going, but no general drop-off. People generally will fall in line and appreciate the situation for what it is, is another happy thought. It might even take strollers off the streets and into film houses, is still another. Expecting nothing startling one way or another, one prominent manager said that judging from audience behavior during blackout announcements in theatres, he expected they would take this in stride as well, and there would be no stampede away from the b.o.

Only if driving is restricted is it felt that business may suffer. What gas and tire frights have not already accomplished, darkened driving will not create, is the impression. Again the beach areas are pointed to. One exhib stated he saw more good due to folks feeling they are less like a target now and safer in dimmed theatres.

Of course, no one knows just what the dimout implies. No announcement has been made as to what is to be done. However, the Office of Civilian Defense meets on Friday and will issue instructions. Rodney Pantages, Tom Bailey and George Watters of the Theatre Defense Board will convene with the OCD, and thereafter instruct their group on ways and means.

Unofficial reports from the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners indicates a similar 'we're safe' attitude among the indies. Though many calls have come in requesting information as to procedure, none seem to feel that the dimout, ordered for Aug. 20, will injure b.o. intakes.

elimination of all night work under new order unless scenes are adaptable to indoor shooting.

Dimout proclamation, issued yesterday by Lieut. Gen. J. L. DeWitt, chief of the Western Defense Command, is a war move particularly taxing to studio ingenuity when coupled with recent $5,000 ceiling put into effect on new construction. When latter was ordered, production departments began scheduling as much location work as possible to take advantage of natural outdoor settings, and many of the schedules called for extensive night work. Order also is a blow at the many war pictures on studio programs, as most effective battle scenes are filmed at night for spectacular contrasts in lighting.

Order covers the area from the Canadian border to the Mexican line, and extends inland to a depth of 150 miles in the more populous sections. Covered in the proclamations are signs, commercial floodlighting, display lighting and amusement places, ground areas and industrial illumination, traffic signals and signs, navigation lights and highway lights, street and highway traffic, residential, commercial and industrial windows and industrial fires. All outside lighting of signs, theatre marquees, billboards, etc., is banned. Traffic signals will continue in operation, but with shields to prevent glare.

Night baseball, backyard evening badminton and tennis games are forbidden. Regulations will be even more stringent in the beach areas, order also covering private homes. No light, interior or exterior, that shines toward the sea will be permitted unless blanketed by shades or drapes. Military ukase was necessary, according to authorities, due to divergent laws of Washington, Oregon and California and the various cities affected in the three states. Authorities figure new order will materially lessen danger to shipping, heretofore silhouetted by light reflection from densely populated areas.

Republic, which had planned considerable night work on its 'Pride of the Commandos', will have to revise schedule as picture calls for many night battle sequences. Warners currently has two nights slated for 'Princess O'Rourke', and will try to finish night scenes before Aug. 20. If unable to do so, studio will put a top on street set so work can continue. Just what will be done about night work set for 'Air Force' when it returns from location has not been decided. Paramount may be able to complete necessary night shooting on 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' before it checks on the lot from Sonora. Other companies are checking daily schedules to see what revisions will be needed.

Publicity Spreads Give 'Manhattan' A Full House

Backed by the largest publicity ever accorded a film production by the Los Angeles dailies, 'Tales of Manhattan' premiered last night at the Chinese theatre to a sellout audience.

Promotion, which resulted in 'Tales' getting terrific newspaper attention, resulted from tie-up effected by 20th-Fox with the downtown sheets whereby entire proceeds would be turned over to the newspaper publishers for transmittal to any individual or group of war charities they might designate.

Total intake was $5,056—2,028 paid admissions at $2, plus a $1,000 donation to the pot by the studio. House was completely sold out, with studio even putting up coin for all seats ging to the press for reviewing purposes.

Dimout regulations announced Tuesday night resulted in cancellation of $350 in floodlight rentals, with bulbs planned to enable newsreel and syndicate fotogs to snap pictures of attending celebs. The cameramen were forced to work with eight rifle lights that eliminated diffusion beyond the persons being photographed.

WE War Prod'n Effort Receives E Rating

New York, Aug. 5.—In addition to celebrating the 25th anniversary of perfecting radio communication between an airplane and the ground the end of this month, Western Electric Company will be presented with the new combined Army-Navy 'E' for 'Exceptional Performance' to embrace the three manufacturing plants of the company.

Announcement that the 'E' award would be presented was disclosed by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson in a letter to C. G. Stoll, WE president. Latter disclosed that the company's work and service for the Government during July practically equalled that for the entire year of 1941.

WE facilities will continue to keep studio sound recording apparatus up to efficiency standards of the past, despite the 100% war production of the factories, it was disclosed from informed sources. Although new equipment is out, replacement parts are stocked for the studios.

ing in juicers to take over the generators.

At the same time the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers charged there was 'obvious collusion' between the Producers and the IATSE, and stated Pat Casey, Producer-Labor contact, would be notified today that the IBEW intends to take every step possible to protect the first cameraman and stop discrimination against them. Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative, said:

'The IBEW intends to exhaust every possible means to bring about justice for the members of Local 1318. We intend to adhere strictly to the requirements of our Constitution but intend to place the responsibility directly on the employer for their discrimination against the directors of photography. The IBEW program was endorsed this morning by vice-president Joseph Milne at a conference with myself and officials of Local 1318.'

Earlier in the day it was reported that some union officials favored picketing 20th-Fox studio if Wrigley remained on the location, but Gaillac said any such announcement would be premature, adding 'we hope to bring about an equitable settlement that would not interfere with the production of motion pictures.' He made it plain, however, that the full strength of the IBEW was behind the cameramen, and in a paid advertising the ASC declared that it did not intend to be dissolved by 'the Bioff-Browne crowd.'

Executives of 20th-Fox were keeping in close touch with the situation last night. They said there was no present intention of recalling the location company, but it was admitted this attitude might be changed if it developed that the union fight might expand to the studio itself.

Question of pulling the Local 40 electricians was expected to be taken up by Producers today with IBEW Prexy Brown, since Local 40 is a member of the Studio Basic Agreement, which carries a non-strike clause. Further developments are expected today when location shooting is resumed, with a possibility the studios may become involved unless the situation is settled speedily. Action of the IATSE in forcing the studio to switch cameramen on the Utah location also was expected to be called to the attention of the National Labor Relations Board, which is now considering unfair labor practice charges filed by the ASC against the IATSE and Producers.

COLLARITES, WB HIT SNAG; CLOSED SHOP NEW DEMAND

ing into the company would have to join up within 90 days.

With the Teamsters Union lending assistance by refusing to cross picket lines at the Warners home office, exchange, warehouse and Strand and Hollywood theatres, on horizon is possibility of pulling operators and stagehands out of Warners theatres, home office and exchange. This may be expected at any moment, since the 38 backroom exchange workers are out and the IATSE has assured all the assistance it can give the Warners office employe strikers.

Joe Basson, IATSE executive sitting in on negotiations, refused to confirm any stagehand-operator action, but said that plans are being laid. Probability is that any strike of operators-stagehands would be called as a surprise move. Support of the IA is assured since it is understood deal calls for IATSE to get exchange Collarites when settlement is negotiated.

Warners claim 17 new demands were made by the union after reopening negotiations yesterday, union officials denying this. Total demands of union number 14, to all of which Warners refuses to yield now, including one on preferential shop. The union wants up to 12 weeks' severance pay for any employe with the company 12 years or longer. The question of strike pay while the workers have been out also led to dropping negotiations.

Around 500 employes are on strike, while 80 others in Warners are eligible for union membership.

In a statement today Warners said it renewed negotiations yesterday at the request of Mrs. Elinore Herrick, local regional director for the National Labor Relations Board, adding 'company's position is and was so stated to the union that all demands they presented at meeting today had been discussed and negotiated for a period of months and full agreement had been reached on these points and that action of union at this time was a repudiation of all previous agreements.'

The union, on the other hand, claims the contract Warners submitted was not in accordance with the agreement reached, notably with respect to reopening the two-year pact after the first year if an abnormal increase in living costs justified negotiation of wage scales. It is alleged that Warners wrote the contract as a straight two-year scale without this provision.

Sessions yesterday and today were attended by a union negotiating committee of six headed by Ray Price, president; Joe Basson, Louis Krouse, IATSE secretary-treasurer, and Judge Matthew Levy, union attorney.

WB Opens Sales Sesh In S. F. Monday

Warner Bros. exchange sales and exec personnel entrain for San Francisco tomorrow night to open sales convention at the St. Francis hotel on Monday for two days. Fred Greenberg, branch manager, will take sales boys along for sightseeing in Frisco Saturday.

Henry Herbel, western district manager, waits over until Saturday, to be joined by Ben Kalmenson, sales head from the east, who is coming from Memphis where he attended southern regional meet. Mort Blumenstock, ad chief; Norman Moray, shorts sales head; Arthur Sachson and Howard Levinson, other home office reps, also will go north with Herbel.

Chinese Filmers Quit Hong Kong for S.F.

San Francisco, Aug. 5.—Grandview Film Co., formerly of Hong Kong, now is producing in San Francisco, with headquarters at the Grandview theatre in Chinatown. In production is a romantic comedy, 'Gum Kong Ting Far', or 'Lovers of the Golden Gate'. Cast was recruited from Chinatown's Mandarin theatre, only all-Chinese legitimate theatre in the country.

Company was formed by a group of San Francisco Chinese nine years ago. After one picture was produced here in 1933 production was moved to Hong Kong for economy reasons, authentic atmosphere, and because a great percentage of Chinese exhibitors were in China.

Company will distribute product to about 20 exhibitors in this country and others in Canada and South America.

Joe Hiatt has joined Republic studio production department, replacing Bob Shannon, who has left for the east to take a civil service position with the Army.

Billion Dollar Bond Drive Stirs Wash. Enthusiasm

Washington, Aug. 5.—More than 200 Washington exhibitors met today with government officials to plan the September billion-dollar drive for War Bonds in this area, which also includes Maryland and Virginia.

Carter Barron, Loew's division manager, wielded the gavel, and among the speakers were: Francis Harmon, coordinator of the War Activities Committee; Peter Oegard, assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury; Lowell Mellett, head of the motion picture division of the Office of War Information; Christopher Dunphy, chief of motion picture section, War Production Board; Monroe Greenthal, of the WPB, and some 20 of the 200 exhibs present.

All agreed that the greatest sales stimulant was the ability of the theatre operators to actually deliver the bonds to the purchasers. Some of the neighborhood exhibs felt that a new $10 bond would be an attractive security that would reach many in the low-income brackets. This suggestion will be conveyed to Secretary Morgenthau.

The conference evolved into a general 'pep' meeting, with agreement that September will see the peak of patriotic promotion, aided by the touring stars coming from Hollywood to assist in putting the drive over the top.

Three Scribs Subbing Rapp's Toasties

Three writers are whipping out the scripts for Post Toasties Time while Phil Rapp vacations. Sam Moore and John Medbury write the comedy sequences and Jerry Cady is adapting the Mark Hellinger stories. Rapp returns to the program next month when it resumes its Maxwell House billing. Meanwhile he is working on a stage play with Milton Berle in mind. Producer Mann Holiner leaves after the show for a three-week vacation in Yosemite. Don Cope is here from New York to take over the reins.

Femme To 'Commandos'

Anna Lee, femme star for Lester Cowan's Columbia production, 'Commandos Come at Dawn,' trained for Vancouver last night to join location troupe. Cowan is due back from Vancouver early next week. Two weeks shooting still remains to be done, with work being rushed to avoid possible dim-out extensions.

THE CASE OF THE CAMERAMEN

For some time the trade press has been chronicling the labor difficulties of First Cameramen. Most of what has been written has been colored one way or the other, with the result that our fellow workers in the industry are perhaps much in doubt as to the real issue. We take this means to tell our case.

The American Society of Cinematographers has been organized and has represented First Cameramen since 1918. From that time until now, we have never embarrassed the industry with labor squabbles nor called upon any group for support. Through no fault of our own the picture has now been changed.

In 1933, the IATSE gave written notice to the Producers Association that they waived all jurisdiction over First Cameramen, whereupon the ASC signed a five-year contract as sole bargaining agent for First Cameramen under the provisions of the NLR Act with the various studios. That contract was lived up to by all parties without question. Thereupon, a second five-year contract was entered into, of which three years have elapsed with two years to run.

In the spring of this year, the Producers signed an agreement with the IATSE for First Cameramen while our contract was still in force. The Producers were warned that this move would bring trouble and was in direct conflict with the ASC-Producers Contract.

Having gained the Producers' signatures, the IATSE next openly boasted that they were out to "dissolve" the ASC. Not having since succeeded in stampeding any of our members to the IATSE, that organization is now employing stronger methods in the attempt to force First Cameramen into their local. Men have been brought in from location pictures because they did not choose to carry IATSE cards. The Producers allege that they were forced to sign with the IATSE for First Cameramen. Now they claim they are in the middle of a "jurisdictional war".

Realizing that our Guild was a minority group, the ASC two and one-half years ago applied, at the IATSE's invitation, for a charter for First Cameramen in the IATSE. The application was received and the charter was issued, but an opposing local prevented its being delivered. Bioff and Browne had their trouble, and the opposition maneuvered to dissolve us. After expending every effort to obtain an IATSE Charter, we were finally and definitely turned down cold.

Thereupon, we Cameramen obtained a charter through the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and without any coercion or pressure whatever the overwhelming majority of First Cameramen became affiliated with that Federation.

Of course, that touched the conceit of the IATSE, and they vowed it wouldn't be tolerated.

We Cameramen have stood for a lot of pushing around, but this situation has exceeded all bounds of fair play.

We have had our case before the National Labor Relations Board for some months, but it takes time to get a decision. We are led to expect an answer about the middle of August. Meanwhile the IATSE has brought on trouble and has forced the Producers to remove our cameramen from assignments, so nothing remains but to fight for our rights.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, whose members number some 350,000 persons, and who are engaged in radio, telephone, power transmission, theatre and booth installations and kindred work, have promised their suport in our struggle against being "dissolved" by the Bioff-Browne crowd.

That is the only issue. We are not asking for wage increases or shorter hours. We had hoped to let matters ride as is until the Labor Board had rendered its decision. We realize that in these war times it is our patriotic duty and privilege to function with as little confusion as possible. However, the IATSE's endless and unwarranted demands have left us with no alternative but to stand up for what is right.

We deeply regret that we may be caused to inconvenience the members of our Industry by various devices to win our cause. We ask that you understand our unfortunate position and aid in whatever means possible that our situation may have a speedy and just solution.

GOVERNMENT action in claiming a purchaser of 'hot' rubber is equally culpable with the seller, has a number of employes at a major studio on jittery seats. When the ban on purchase of new tires went into effect early this year, solicitor appeared to sell the boys camelback material—with argument that tires could be recapped for added mileage when necessary. Few weeks ago, one purchaser took his camelback strips and worn tires into a recap shop for rebuild job. He was informed that—despite ownership of both the tires and replacement rubber—order would have to be secured from the tire rationing board, as all repair shops are licensed for that type of work. In hitting stonewall to get the job done, tire merchant advised giving away the camelback before some embarrassing questions might be asked to involve the purchaser. Information was passed on to studio pals—who took the matter lightly—until the government action on illegal rubber purchases and possession, as reported during the past few days.

MUSICAL programs are winning high favor with radio dialers as summer entertainment, according to the latest report of Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting (Crossley). Among the first 10 are Hit Parade, top show with 16.1, Kay Kyser, Fitch Bandwagon, Saturday Night Serenade and Star Spangled Vaudeville. Other front-runners are Post Toasties Time, Information Please, One Man's Family and Remarkable Miss Tuttle. Kraft Music Hall, probably the leader, failed to figure in the report as its time on the night the Crossley was taken had been given over to a talk on the seriousness of the War by Cordell Hull, secretary of state. His rating for the broadcast was 34, the highest ever credited any member of President Roosevelt's cabinet.

Retakes

Escapist films are sweet to hear
With lovelorn tunes to charm the ear,
From warlike facts to wean us.
But when old Earth is gripped in strife
And Mars controls your daily life,
You can't escape to Venus.

In the gentle eras between wars there is plenty of time for softer humanities of civilian life, but when a nation is kicked in the shins and stabbed in the back at the same time, it is not in a mood to croon La Paloma. The national song today and tonight and the next few years is Muy Another Bond. How many years it will be depends largely on the bond buyers.

Oldtime producers used to throw out their chests when they gathered a handful of top names and announced an all-star cast. Nowadays Uncle Sam can pick the big names in all sectors of this warring world and toss them into a one-hour program on the radio. And what an audience!

You don't know how it was yes-terday in Hollywood but you can read Friday morning's paper and find out why you shed all that perspiration on the preceding Tuesday, or is it Wednesday. Anyway, the discussion of the prevailing climate is tabu in Southern California. For a time the citizens were deprived of their customary speech but now you can walk along Hollywood blvd. without going into a conversational clinch to determine whether the humidity today is the same as it was on Aug. 7, 1926. There is a patriotic silence about the weather. Meanwhile Paramount is diverting the subject to the Caribbean sector with 'Very Hot in Haiti.'

Film Reviews

The Silver Bullet

(Western)

Universal production. Stars Johnny Mack Brown. Features Fuzzy Knight, with Jennifer Holt, William Farnum, Leroy Mason, Grace Lenard, Rex Lease, Claire Whitney, the Pals of the Golden West. Associate producer, Oliver Drake. Director, Joseph Lewis. Original story, Oliver Drake. Screenplay, Elizabeth Beecher. Cameraman, Charles Van Enger. Songs by Oliver Drake, Milton Rosen and Jimmy Wakely. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Aug. 6, 1942. Running time: 55 MINS.

For the cactus consumers 'Silver Bullet' will be a bright little nugget, with action, thrills, and the usual tidy and uninterrupting amount of romance. It's fast, but not incomplete or jumpy, and should go well with a riding partner.

Cast is above the average all around, even to the pretty prairie flower who more usually has the acting ability of a wallflower, and in this case Jennifer Holt. Leroy Mason, Rex Lease and majority of the others give good western accounts of themselves, too.

With all that acting going on (for a change), it sounds like there would be less action. That is not the case. The film is literally packed with fancy fisticuffs and shooting from the start. In saving on gunpowder, broken furniture, necks, knuckles and other more primitive goings-on are in for a retake.

Johnny Mack Brown rambles on screen as a two-fisted but genuinely good puncher in search of his father's killer who is marked with an odd arm scar. He becomes enamored of the girl ward of the town's banker. From there on in it's toss and turn between Brown and Leroy Mason, who is running for state senator. Brown's doctor friend is killed because he knows who the scarred man is, and Johnny puts up his widow in opposition to Mason. That's not the only opposition Mason gets, because he is uncovered and finally stops the silver bullet Brown has been saving for him.

Fuzzy Knight gets in a few starchy laughs, some corny yodeling, and film is elsewhere dressed with piping of the Pals of the Golden West, who get in their singing licks while campaigning for the widder.

The Sombrero Kid

(Western)

Republic production. With Don 'Red' Barry, Lynn Merrick, John James, Joel Friedkin, Rand Brooks, Robert Homans, Stuart Hamblen, Bob McKenzie, Slim Andrews, Stanford Jolley, Frank Brownlee, Anne O'Neal. Associate producer and director, George Sherman. Assistant director, Harry Knight. Cameraman, William Bradford. Editor, William Thompson. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Aug. 6, 1942. Running time: 56 MINS.

This latest in the Don 'Red' Barry series likely will satisfy because of quantities of action. It has lots of tough-looking guys whose guns bark as frequently as they do. Forgetting the unimaginative tale, kids will eat up the fireworks and fighting that make up the picture which, otherwise, has very little merit. Barry fans and a film sidekick are needed.

Story is choppy, direction rather sloppy and acting is whizz-banged through without much attempt at conviction. Everyone looks to be anxious to get through with it, but not before emptying their gats.

Recalled from retirement to take a town marshal's post, Robert Homans brings along his two sons. When he gets bumped, the boys take up until it's noised around that Barry is really an adopted son, the child of a killer whom Homans killed years back. He takes to the hills and bad company, but only to get the goods on the town's evil money-lender and his cohorts. With much shooting and fighting he wipes the smudge from the family name and reclaims himself, and big-heartedly gives the girl to his brother.

Illustrators Discuss Pay With Casey

Demands of the Studio Illustrators for a minimum wage of $6 per hour or $240 per week will be discussed today when a negotiating committee from the Screen Set Designers confers with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact. Illustrators said they expect to receive a counter proposal at this parley. Union will be represented by Prexy Joseph Sternad, Les Thomas, Business Representative Ed Mussa, Attorney George E. Bodle, and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

Film Salesmen Switch To Selling War Bonds

New York, Aug. 6.—Distribution heads of major companies have issued instructions to branch managers throughout the country to turn their film salesmen into War Bond salesmen, with the object of selling $10,000,000 worth before Sept. 1. This date is to be the opening day of a billion dollar drive, with the advance $10,000,000 to count as a down payment on the campaign.

Salesmen have been instructed to contact Treasury Department staffs in their respective territories, with the idea of taking 'quickie' courses in Bond salesmanship. Film peddlers will concentrate on selling large-denomination Bonds (F & G series), so that a large total sale may be announced the opening day of the drive.

Meantime, the list of cities to be covered in 'Stars Over America' tours during the 'Salute to Our Heroes' bond campaign has been completed. It includes 300 towns and cities, reportedly the biggest routing job ever set up within 30 days time.

Riggs, Betty Lou Look Steady For Swan

Wally Maher and Verna Felton, radio stock players, have been put under contract by Young & Rubicam agency for the Tommy Riggs summer Swan soap show. New formula for Riggs and Betty Lou has proved so successful that agency is hopeful of continuing the program under sponsorship after Burns and Allen resume in October. Sam Perrin and Jack Douglas head the writing staff.

Studios Send Out Bally Crews on Billion Dollar Treks

Five studio publicity men planed for Washington yesterday to start covering the routes to be followed by film stars and featured players in the billion-dollar War Bond drive to cover 300 cities in September. They were accompanied by Carlton Duffus, director of motion pictures and special events, Treasury Department War Savings. Following a series of meetings today with Treasury officials and War Activities Committee representatives, the advance men will be on their way by plane or train for the first city on their routes.

Assignment of routes was made at a meeting yesterday in the offices of Charlies Einfeld, director of the 'Stars Over America' Bond rallies. Connie Krebs of RKO took Route 3, starting in Dallas; Bob Doman, of 20th-Fox, Route 4, starting in Chicago; Gene Murphy, of Universal, Route 5, starting in Chattanooga; Merv Houser, of Paramount, Route 6, starting in Philadelphia; Dick Hyland, of Warners, Route 7, starting in New York city.

Don McElwaine, of Metro, was given Route 1. He will leave Sunday direct for San Francisco, and John Del Valle of Columbia, on Route 2, will leave the same day for Fresno.

In addition to the seven advance men, those attending the conference were Carlton Duffus, Bill Dover of the Hollywood Victory Committee, Melvina Pumphrey, Hollywood representative for Duffus; Arch Reeve, secretary of the industry's Public Relations Committee, and Sam Clark, liaison between Einfeld and the advance men.

Daily reports will be wired by the advance men to Einfeld, Duffus and Oscar Doob, public relations director of the campaign. In addition, printed forms will be filled out and airmailed to these three. This is to give complete information on every stop, so that the Hollywood stars and men accompanying them will know the exact program, Bond sales possibilities and conditions in every spot to be visited.

Every star possibility in Hollywood has been canvassed for the past two weeks by the Victory Committee to assure the strongest possible star lineup for the Bond rallies. The first seven stars to go on the road will be selected today.

Army Jerks Skall, Now Air Force Captain

William V. Skall has withdrawn as Technicolor photographer on Walter Wanger's 'Arabian Nights' at Universal, with Duke Greene replacing. Skall received commission as captain in photographic division of Army Air Force, with orders to report for duty next week at Bolling Field, Washington.

Captain Skall, who handled Technicolor photography on more than half of the picture before stepping down for army duties, is rated as one of the top color cameramen in the business, having been with Technicolor for eight years.

20th-Fox Execs Mull Woes Brought On By Dim-Out

Production problems anticipated as result of the military dim-out going into effect along Coast Aug. 20 will be taken up at meeting today of 20th-Fox executives and department heads, called by William Koenig, production chief.

To get essential exteriors on 'Crash Dive' into the cans before deadline, 20th yesterday speeded up schedule on the submarine film by putting second unit to work here under direction of Fred Sersen while main company continues to rush work at New London, Conn.

To peel down admitted uppage of costs where location scenes will have to be shifted to stage interiors, 20th has ordered revision of scripts in work or already completed wherever feasible. With production slated to keep from seven to eight pictures going constantly from now until end of the year, dim-out complications together with transportation and priorities are considered likely to increase budgets by a very considerable percentage.

MG Execs Converging Here For Huddles

William F. Rodgers, Metro's general sales manager; E. K. O'Shea, eastern division manager; E. M. Saunders, western manager, and J. E. Flynn, mid-west manager, are due here Tuesday for conferences with studio executives on mapping campaigns on forthcoming product. Sales and distribution chiefs will be joined here by Howard Dietz on Aug. 15.

Film to be looked at will include 'Random Harvest', 'For Me and My Gal,' 'Clear For Action,' 'Journey For Margaret,' 'Man on America's Conscience,' 'Reunion,' 'Skyway to Glory' and 'Eyes In the Night.'

WB Sellers Head Here

Memphis, Aug. 6.—Warners regional sales meet for the southern division wound up two day sessions here, with sales chief Ben Kalmenson pulling out for the coast for confabs with studio execs prior to opening of Pacific coast district meeting in San Francisco Monday. Accompanying Kalmenson to the coast are Mort Blumenstock, Arthur Sachson and Howard Levinson. Roy Haines left here for New York.

'7th Column' for Zanuck

Darryl F. Zanuck will take over personal production on 'Seventh Column,' story of the Jugoslav hero, Mikailovich, which Bryan Foy has been preparing at 20th-Fox, and which will be given a considerably upped budget. Picture probably will be Jean Gabin's next starring vehicle.

Leeds Batons 'Shayne'

Herbert L. Leeds is assigned to direct 'Brasher Doubloon' for Sol M. Wurtzel at 20th.

FDR PRESSURED TO BLOW DOWN PETRILLO AIR BEEF

House intervention by powerful interests affected by the transcription ban.

There exists grave doubt whether the Government can win via injunction. Labor lawyers say court action could be prolonged indefinitely, regardless of injunction proceedings, and the delay would operate to ruin the transcription business.

An appeal by the President would offer a 'face-saving' way out for Petrillo. While he has arbitrary and blanket powers under the AFM constitution, a vigorous minority within the organization is against the ban, since it hits their pocketbooks.

Compensation for phonograph records and transcriptions is the highest paid under the AFM wage scales. These rates are:

Phonograph Recordings: For three hours' recording, not more than four 10-inch master records to be made, $30. For three hours' recording, not more than three 12-inch master records to be made, $30. Each additional 10-inch master record, per man, $7.50. Each additional 10 minutes or fraction thereof, $3. Contractor to receive double price.

Phonograph Recordings by Symphony Orchestra: For two hours' recording not to exceed 40 minutes' playing time in each hour, per man, $28. For each additional one-half hour or fraction of one-half hour in which playing time must not exceed 20 minutes, $7.

Electrical Transcriptions for Commercial and Library Service: For each 15 minutes (or less) of recorded music to be on one side of a disc, with or without commercial continuity or announcements, the rehearsing and recording of which does not exceed one hour, per man $18. If 15 minutes of recording is finished and additional recording is made, then for each five minutes or less of recorded music, per man extra, $6. Leader, double price.

Such pay is not alfalfa, and those who are threatened with its loss are doing some loud murmuring. Petrillo figures that for the $3,000,000 paid for this work the union loses $100,000,000 through lost employment opportunities.

Petrillo is a tough and stubborn litigant when he figures he is fighting for his 'rights'. Yet talk of peace continues. One maestro here offered to bet that the controversy will be settled within a month. None in the band took him up.

Local 47 of the Musicians Union stated yesterday it had not been informed of the announcement of James C. Petrillo to the National Association of Broadcasters that commercial transcriptions are permissible providing they were used only once. Recorders and transcription firms also stated they had no knowledge of the Petrillo decision.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Trial of James C. Petrillo and eight officials of the American Federation of Musicians on charges of conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws by banning recorded music has been set ahead to Sept. 16. Ban remains in effect until then unless the union relents. Petrillo today advised National Association of Broadcasters that transcriptions may be made for commercial broadcast provided the records are destroyed after they are used once.

Casey, Collarites East for Parley

Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, trains east tonight to set the stage for opening of wage negotiations with the Screen Office Employes Guild there Monday. Deal covers minimum wages and conditions for clerical employes in Coast exchanges of major companies.

The SOEG will be represented by Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Attorney George E. Bodle and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions. When negotiations bogged down here, Casey suggested parley be switched east in belief agreement could be reached more quickly where company heads could sit in.

Obituary

SIDNEY BRACEY

Sidney Bracey, 64, who portrayed many butler roles in films, died Wednesday night at Cedars of Lebanon hospital. His passing came only two days after that of James Cruze, a close friend of more than 20 years. Bracey's career dated back to 1894 in Australia, where his father operated a theatre. A veteran of the old Vitaphone lots, he recently was with Warners and appears currently in 'The Gay Sisters'. He is survived by his widow, Evelyn; a son, Sidney, Jr., and two daughters, Barbara and Iris. Funeral arrangements have not been completed at the family residence, 540 N. Croft ave.

Ouida Rathbone Sells $92,000 Bonds As Totals Zoom

Purchases of War Bonds for the Treasury's 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' at Warner Bros. Hollywood theatre continued to boom yesterday, highlighted by sales of $92,000 worth of bonds by Mrs. Basil (Ouida) Rathbone.

Mrs. Rathbone, one of the Naval Aid Auxiliary group reinforcing the Treasury Minute Men in the drive to top the $5,750,000 War Bond boxoffice hung up by the New York premiere of the James Cagney starrer, corraled her substantial total in just four transactions.

Norma Shearer gave her a subscription for $50,000, largest individual buy of the day, to which were added sales of $25,000 to Harvey Mudd, $12,000 to Jules Stein and $5,000 to General Walter P. Story.

Star names began to appear more frequently in the roll of War Bond purchasers entitled to tickets to the first western showing of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' on Aug. 12, as Warners cleared a long list, including Fredric March, Paul Lukas and Gene Lockhart.

Virtually every individual associated with the making of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' appeared on the Warners list, which included Hal B. Wallis, executive producer of the picture; Robert Buckner, author of the screenplay; Michael Curtiz, the director; Ray Heindorf, who did the orchestral arrangements, and Irene Manning, George Tobias, Henry Blair and Joann Mares, of the cast. James Cagney previously had bought to the tune of $35,000, while Eddie Foy, Jr., also was an early buyer.

Henry Blair and Joann Mares, who portrayed George M. Cohan and his sister, Josie, as children, made their purchase through the Hollywood branch of the War Savings Staff at 6442 Hollywood blvd. Tobias wired his order from Tampa, Fla., location of the 'Air Force' troupe, as did John Garfield.

Other film folk purchasing yesterday included Jesse Lasky, Samson Raphaelson, Julius and Philip Epstein, Steve Trilling, James Geller, Arthur Schwartz, Paul Nathan, Clifford Odets, Lewis Geib, Carrol Sax and Curtis Bernhardt.

Gail Patrick was in charge of the Naval Aid Auxiliary staff manning the Hollywood War Savings Staff office last night, while Mrs. Shirley Wilner presided during the afternoon. KFWB broadcast proceedings from this office from 7:45 to 8 p.m., and will be on the air again tonight.

Biggest sale made on Hollywood blvd. during the day was anonymous. Mrs. Temara Chapin and Mrs. Bessie Sperling teamed up to sell a $25,000 bond to a buyer who preferred not to have his name used.

IA Strike Vote Seen As Aid To White Collar Force

terday. Local 306 denies its threat to strike has any connection with Warners office workers whom the IATSE has promised to aid in any way it can, possibly even to pulling the operators and stagehands out of the Strand and Hollywood, Warners theatres. It is believed the office workers' union is pressing for this step.

In the meantime, Warners office help continues on strike, but rumblings were heard today that negotiations may be reopened still another time. The National Labor Relations Board, in fact, may order it, according to some belief.

Home office routing work is being maintained with skeleton staffs, also at the exchanges where film is being serviced accounts, though under difficulties. The exchanges were hard hit, with all of the back room help going out and all but one member of the clerical force on strike. The exchange has borrowed some workers from the home office in order to keep going. No outside help has been brought in so far.

A Withers Rolls With Three Rep Daters

Four pictures roll at Republic next week to provide activity on the lot after brief siesta. 'X Marks the Spot' gets away Monday under wing of producer-director George Sherman; Don Barry western, 'Outlaws of Pine Ridge,' goes Tuesday with William Witney directing; 'Valley of Hunted Men,' issue of the Three Mesquiteers' series gallops Thursday with Jack English in the director's saddle, and the Jane Withers starrer, 'Johnny Doughboy' unwinds Saturday with John Auer piloting as producer-director.

NLRB ACTION EXPECTED IN IA-IBEW TIFF FOR LENSERS

Electrical Workers appeared to be well satisfied over its maneuvers which resulted in practically all directors of photography dropping their membership cards in IA Local 659. The IATSE, on the other hand, was taking the position it had scored a decided victory by forcing IBEW-ASC men off the 20th-Fox location near Cedar City, Utah, and getting the assignment for a director of photography who was a member of Local 659.

There was no interference with 20th-Fox location shooting yesterday, although IBEW International officials ordered generator men to leave their jobs. The IBEW electricians remained on the job yesterday, apparently taking the position they could be ordered off only by Business Representative Al Spr e of Local 40 or Internationa Prexy Brown.

Business Representative Herbert Aller of Local 659 is due back today from Cedar City where he went first of week to police 20th-Fox location. It is understood he was ready to move in IATSE electricians if the IBEW men left their posts. Aller also insisted that Dewey Wrigley be retained as director of photography, although Wrigley was suspended by the ASC for taking the assignment when the IA forced Virgil Miller out because he had resigned membership in Local 659.

There was considerable speculation yesterday as to the attitude the NLRB may take in the event it decides to issue a complaint and order a hearing. It was pointed out the Board could refuse to take cognizance of the charge on the ground it was a jurisdictional matter, could order an election of cameramen or could issue an order for 659 to cease interfering with members of the ASC. Results of the investigation were sent to Washington a week ago, at which time it was stated action was expected within 10 days.

There was still some talk of the IBEW picketing 20th-Fox studio over the location fight, but it is understood tops were opposed to drastic action until the NLRB had acted. It is understood there also was some doubt as to crafts recognizing a picket line because of the jurisdictional nature of the matter and the fact that wages and conditions were not involved.

NT Convention Ends; Execs Trek Out

National Theatres Corp. convention broke up yesterday afternoon following a short session, and majority of attending film buyers and division managers began readying to leave for their respective posts. Company presidents of the affiliated companies who also were in attendance remained behind for a final meeting with Spyros Skouras, prexy of 20th-Fox and former National Theatres prexy, who arrives on Saturday. He will confer with his brother, Charles P. Skouras, new president, and the holdover execs.

Entire group were dined at the home of Charles Skouras last night. Immediately afterward departures started. Execs remaining will work over details and figures of the new drive which has been announced for Oct. 1.

OWI Drafts Schechter

New York, Aug. 6.—A. A. Schechter, director of news and special events for NBC, has resigned to join Elmer Davis Office of War Information staff. No successor has been named yet.

Appeal To Agents As Industry's Relief Campaign Lags

Following receipt of reports showing the Navy, Dutch, China and Russian War Relief drive had fallen short of the 85% goal set for yesterday, the film industry committee turned to the Artists Managers Guild for assistance. Committee was promptly notified that, starting today, every agent will start personal solicitation of all big money earners who have not yet contributed.

Bert Allenberg, prexy of the AMG and chairman of the Permanent Charities Committee, attended the meeting, as did Edward Arnold, president of the Screen Actors Guild and vice-chairman of the Charities Committee. Allenberg told the studio colonels, 'This is one drive where there should be 100% participation. Every member of the Guild will bend every effort to reach that goal.'

'This is one week that counts,' William Morris told the agents, as he urged that each individual personally talk to his clients.

With 98% of all on the payroll contributing, 20th-Fox continued to set the pace for other studios. Fred Meyer, studio manager and campaign colonel, said he has hopes of coming within a fraction of reaching the 100% mark. Paramount and Metro are competing for second place.

With the help of the agents, the colonels are hopeful that one week's intensive work will bring the total contributions very close to the goal set for the industry. Chairman Jacob H. Karp and the colonels are determined to bring the drive to a close not later than Aug. 19 unless contributions from the higher salaried earners fall short of what is expected.

E. O. Blackburn and I. E. Chadwick have beeen named as a committee to contact important independent producers who have not yet signed up.

Hollywood Honor Men

To George Segall of Warners casting department fell the distinction of being the 25,000th recruit accepted in the U. S. Navy locally, upon his induction yesterday. He reports for duty Aug. 17.

Clark Andrews, former radio producer, expects to be called to active duty in the army in the next two weeks.

Richard Denning, contract player at Paramount, took his examination yesterday as a yeoman, 2nd class, in the Navy.

Jay Moss, colored service boy at Warners, has joined the U. S. Military Guard.

IBEW LOCAL 40 REQUESTS STUDIO STRIKE SANCTION

to grant Speede's demand that minimum scale for Local 40 technicians be raised from $1.71 per hour to $1.88. Union claims that when $1.71 rate was fixed, company heads agreed that if other technical groups were given increases, Local 40 would automatically get the same tilt. They contend that precision machinists are now being paid $1.88, and Producers have failed to put that rate into effect for Local 40.

At the same time it was indicated the IBEW will withdraw from the Studio Basic Agreement, some officials taking the position it was automatically out when IBEW International representatives ordered generator men to leave a 20th-Fox Utah location. The Basic Agreement prohibits strikes among members of its affiliated unions. Officials also pointed out it would be impossible for the IBEW to remain in the agreement if Cameramen's Local 1318 is accepted to membership in the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell, since that organization insists all affiliates must be autonomous unions of the American Federation of Labor.

Local 1318 has already filed application for membership in the Conference, and IBEW International officers have stated the same applications will be made for Local 40 and the studio unit of Local B-11. The IBEW local program laid out by International Representative Gene Gaillac has been fully endorsed by IBEW Vice-Prexy Scott Milne, who is in charge on the Coast.

Members of the Broadcast unit of Local 40 are voting early today on proposal to order a strike of technicians at station KFWB. Union claims company has refused its wage demands, and said walkout would be authorized if majority of workers vote in favor of a strike.

Company representatives are expected to confer first of week with International Prexy Brown of the IBEW to ascertain whether the Coast program has the okay of the International executive board.

Curfew Forbids

Curtis Bernhardt bought a War Bond yesterday, knowing he wouldn't be able to use the accompanying pair of seats to the Treasury's 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy.' The Warner Bros. director fought Hitlerism in Germany, spent months in a Nazi concentration camp, knows better the full value of a 'bond of freedom,' perhaps, than any person who will be in the audience at the Hollywood Theatre the night of August 12.

But Bernhardt won't be there. The law classifies him as an 'enemy alien,' subject to the curfew which forbids him to leave his home between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m.

Jessel Show No Dice For El Capitan

George Jessel's 'Show Time' will not go into the El Capitan theatre after playing Frisco as reported, according to Sid Grauman. Grauman says he was approached by Paul Small, who produced the show with Freddy Finkelhoffe, but turned it down because 'Blackouts' has been steadily building and looks to stay for at least 10 more weeks. Understood Small and Jessel want to come back to L. A. in two weeks when Frisco run concludes.

Col Solves Lighting Dim-Out Problem

Columbia will use filters, special Technicolor makeup and triple lighting to get a night effect for stampede sequences in 'The Desperadoes.' Studio had originally scheduled two nights of filming for scenes, but switched to day work when army ordered coast dimout. Scenes will be taken prior to effective date of dimout (Aug. 20) as an experiment to see how procedure for similar situations will work in the future.

Renoir Quits U Feature Due To Old Wound

Jean Renoir was forced to relinquish direction of 'Forever Yours', Deanna Durbin starrer at Universal, due to flareup of an old leg injury incurred in World War I in the French army. Producer Bruce Manning stepped in to take over the directing duties, refusing to replace Renoir with another megger from the lot or outside.

Renoir's leg gave way as result of his strenuous activities in directing battle scenes for the picture during the past two weeks. Picture is about half-completed, and Manning will carry on with expectation that Renoir will recover sufficiently to resume before the final scenes are shot.

Serlin Sigs Dot Moore For 'Strip' Legiter

Dorothy Moore, film player, has been signed by Oscar Serlin for the femme lead in 'Strip For Action,' the Russell Crouse-Howard Lindsay play which starts rehearsals Monday in New York. Miss Moore, 18-year-old, has had no previous stage experience and was chosen out of 30 candidates lined up by Serlin. Play opens in five weeks. She planed for New York Wednesday.

U 'Cobra' Slates Trio For Star Spots

Sabu, Maria Montez and Jon Hall are slated for starring spots in Universal's 'Cobra Woman.' Studio is now mulling idea of making the picture in Technicolor when it goes before the cameras in the fall. George Waggner will be associate producer, with Scott Darling assigned to prepare original screenplay.

D.C. Okes Walkathons; 'No Crime To Be A Moron'

Washington, Aug. 6.—The city fathers have rejected pleas to sponsor legislation barring dance walkathons. District Commissioners say such a statute would restrict legitimate amusement enterprises operating legally and they are against even this mild form of indirect censorship.

Commissioner Guy Mason describes the walkathons as exhibitions where a group of so-called contestants shag themselves loose from their wits to the accompaniment of wild huzzahs from cash-paying customers. He calls them in 'bad taste', but they do not violate the moral or legal code. Says he: 'We've been unable to find any evidence that the walkathon exerts any evil influence on anyone. All that we can find is that it's a low state of amusement. It's a moronic exhibition, but it's not illegal to be a moron.'

Stromberg Won't Lose That Burley Touch

Hunt Stromberg has signed Craig Rice to write the script for the Gypsy Rose Lee novel, 'G-String Murders,' which goes into production in November. Miss Rice is authoress of eight murder mysteries and was a former burlesque press agent. Signing of Miss Rice puts all of Stromberg's current properties into writing preparations. James Gunn is scripting 'Guest in the House' and John Meehan is writing 'Dishonored Lady.'

HEROIC STAND OF YANKEE NURSES, SOLDIERS IN PIX

Chronicling of the exploits of the United States Army and the Army nurses who served on Bataan and Corregidor will be given attention by studios on their winter release programs. Around a dozen stories dealing with such a theme are in various stages of preparation on the lots and several recently previewed pictures include Bataan material. Work of the nurses will be shown in Paramount's 'Hands of Mercy' which Mark Sandrich and Allan Scott are now writing. Sandrich will also produce and direct. Warners 'Air Force', while covering nearly all of the Pacific area activities, will contain considerable footage of aerial exploits that centered around General MacArthur's stand on the Philippine peninsula. Howard Hawks now is directing the picture on location at Tampa, Fla., for Hal Wallis' production.

20th-Fox covered the telephone engineers in 'Manila Calling', and is also preparing a story around Corregidor which Bryan Foy will produce. Steve Fisher is writing the script. Metro recently purchased an original titled 'Bataan Patrol', but has not yet scheduled a production date. Studio's recently previewed 'Somewhere I'll Find You', the Clark Gable-Lana Turner starrer, had considerable of its final action laid in the Philippines.

Republic released 'Remember Pearl Harbor' not so long ago, picture being a lead-up to the activity that featured the south Pacific land after Dec. 7, 1941. Producers Releasing Corp. has 'Corregidor' in preparation as its contribution to what is almost a new locale cycle of features. Understood themes between the PRC and 20th-Fox features will not conflict, although based on the same locale. Monogram recently did a Range Busters western titled 'Texas To Bataan', but time of the story was just prior to the Pearl Harbor blow and carried the film cowpokes from Texas to Manila and back with an Army consignment of horses.

WASHINGTON CHATTER

Washington, Aug. 6. — 'This Above All' gets a third week at Loew's Palace. First feature to make 21 days at this F street spot since 'Tortilla Flat'.

Columbia Pictures has decided the world premiere of 'Talk of the Town' will be at Earle theatre on Aug. 21. Sam Galanty and Johnny Payette of WB are planning a society smash.

Conrad Nagel comes into the National theatre next Monday night as star of 'The Moon Is Down'. Producers are gambling with the heat, and if the weather man is kind Leventhal production may ring up a record gross at $2 top.

Stage Door Canteen for Washington, organized at buffet supper on National stage today, with Eleanor Roosevelt, Tallulah Bankhead and Helen Hayes glamour girls of the buffet.

Night clubs and restaurants are being closely watched by health authorities for cleanliness. All are doing booming business. Some 56 complaints were made for giving the dishes a lick and a promise. Twenty-two have paid fines since June 15, mostly for having lipstick souvenirs on glasses that were supposed to have been properly dunked and polished.

Martha Raye books the Condos Brothers with her personal appearance dates. Nick Condos is slated to be next Mr. Martha Raye.

Atlantic City has notified the Washington promoters there'll be a Miss America contest this year as usual. Shore resort has had 14 first class hotels and Convention hall taken over by the government, forcing pageant to go to Steel Pier for selections. Miss Washington will be chosen from among the government workers. Washington Times-Herald and radio station WWDC will make the selection.

Disney Orders Pay Tilts Re SCG Inkers, Painters

mum scales were put into effect at Screen Gems, Leon Schlesinger and other plants. Acceptance is now up to membership of Disney unit.

When increases were first requested, Business Representative William Pomerance of the SCG asked that it be put directly up to Walt Disney. He expressed the belief that Disney would not want his employes to receive less than that paid by other producers for the same work. When request reached Disney he immediately ordered increases. Only hitch now is retroactive date, with a majority of members leaning to belief Disney also will come through on that.

RKO Tells LA Branch No Holt Tradeshows

RKO, which has completed its series of six Tim Holt westerns, will not tradeshow the group for the 1942-43 season. Under the consent decree, it is not obligatory to have showings of the sage stories. L. A. branch was notified of the decision yesterday.

Minn. Biz Tops, Exhibs Hail H'wd Product As Best Ever

Minneapolis, Aug. 6. — Speculation is rife in local trade circles as to whether the consent decree's groups-of-five sales plan, requiring advance screening before films are offered for sale, is in any considerable measure responsible for 'the best product ever' coming out of Hollywood.

While he's not prepared to estimate whether the decree has been a factor, there never before has been so much top-flight product, says John J. Friedl, president of the affiliated Paramount theatre circuit here.

Thanks to Hollywood, theatres have been enabled to cash in on improved economic conditions resulting from greater employment, higher wages and zooming farm prices, with the result that theatre business is the best in years, according to Friedl.

Some local exhibitors, who originally were opposed to the decree sales plan and backed the Minnesota anti-consent law requiring deals to include an entire season's product subject to 20% cancellation, now have been swung around to the decree and give it credit for 'product improvement'. They believe that the necessity of showing pictures before selling them has spurred producers to greater efforts and caused more of a concentration on higher grade films.

With blocks-of-five selling already launched by 20th-Fox in Minnesota in consequence of the invalidation of the state law, Friedl points out that his circuit has been operating under it in three states and 'functioning well'. He has no fault to find with the plan, he says.

LOS ANGELES EXAMINER, which is the recognized guinea pig for the experimental whims of the Squire of Wyntoon, has been served with the decree that it is to 'play' all routine pictures in 2-column measure, and to make them as nearly square in shape as is possible. This means an average depth of 4 inches, which is not Herstian in any way. Neither is the cramped, narrowed action of the treatment, which has been made especially conspicuous in the Examiner for several reasons. One is that Hearst has made his editors so 'blow up' conscious through the generations that few know how to reduce photographs down to their values. A second reason is that the Examiner, with an eye to saving news print paper, has a column measure that is not the full 12 picas in width. Result is that the Examiner's comparatively puny 2-column picture of today is not even 2 columns.

IT'LL be a long time between the signing of a Metro contract by 'Happy' Felton and his first picture assignment, if Earl Carroll has his way about it. Comedian, now heading the Carroll nitery revue, is bound to a run-of-the-play contract on an exclusive basis. Just how long the current stage opus runs is indefinite, but Carroll is determined to hold Felton for the tab version of the show later to be sent on tour. Whether such an arrangement is covered in the contract on run-of-the-play may require a special ruling by American Guild of Variety Artists. If Carroll is upheld it would kick over Metro's plan to put the hefty comic in 'DuBarry Was a Lady.' Studio planned to use Felton at conclusion of his current engagement but failed to reckon with the road tour.

'Miniver' Winds Up Music Hall Run

New York, Aug. 9.—Announcement that 'Mrs. Miniver' would not hold beyond the current (10th) week at the Music Hall, N. Y., has brought out the late-comers, with result the final seven days for the picture is expected to top last week (9th) when $94,200 was grossed.

Based on the way the film is running ahead of that week, it may hit $100,000 on the blowoff.

For the nine weeks ended Wednesday night (5) 'Miniver' had taken in $915,000.

Although control figures could keep the film at the Hall, Gus S. Eyssell, managing director, is not exercising that right. In fact, figures last week (9th) were above the control called for the initial week of the film.

Hillbilly Blitzkrieg

(Comedy)

Monogram release of an Edward Gross production. With Bud Duncan, Edgar Kennedy, Cliff Nazarro, Lucien Littlefield, Doris Linden, Alan Baldwin, Jimmie Dodd, Frank Austin, Nicolle Andre, Manart Kippen, Jerry Jerome, Jack Carr, Teddy Mangean. Associate producer, Jack Dietz. Director, Roy Mack. Assistant director, William E. Strohbach. Photography, Marcel Le Picard. Art director, Richard Irvine. Sound, William W. Wilmarth. Makeup, Ern Westmore. Editor, Ralph Dixon. Musical director, Paul Sawtell. Original screenplay, Ray S. Harris. Added comedy development, Carl Harbaugh and Glen Lambert. Taken from King Features Syndiate cartoon, 'Barney Google and Snuffy Smith', by Billy De Beck. Previewed at Vista theatre, Aug. 7, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

Popularity of the Billy De Beck comic strip undoubtedly will help this otherwise helpless and hopeless cinematic distortion of a fairly amusing cartoon. Very young minds may find amusement in the ludicrousness of some situations, and the repetitious language takeoffs of hillfolk. But for anyone over 12 years of age this budget-suffering quickie is an absolute waste of time.

On considering cost, etc., it is also thought that it could have been done much less expensively in screen cartoon form to effect savings of film, money, time and effort. Actually, a cartoon would have sufficed for there is little story and little quality in every element. Few things have been done so badly, all considered.

Edgar Kennedy is the single person to even approach acting. His tough sergeant role is played in typical Kennedy kelter, while remainder of the cast drift like high school thesps. Cliff Nazarro, who is spreading himself too thinly with versatility, is effective for the cognoscenti with his double talk. Herein, the gibberish is lost, as is the portrayal of Barney Google.

The writing and dialog is as amateurish and stilted as are all the players. Its dreamers tried to squeeze in all the familiar sides of the cartoon, right down to Snuffy Smith's inevitable 'jug'. Then to bring in the war theme, they conceived a rocket which Smith rides through the skies. General result is that what is funny on paper is not necessarily amusing on the screen.

Opening in an army camp, story revolves around Bud Duncan (Snuffy) and Kennedy, who are always at odds. Shooed off to a remote hill point to guard a secret rocket, they become involved with spies and saboteurs who seek its plans and its destruction. A horse race is put on to raise coin to complete the mechanism before officials arrive for a test. Coin is raised, but so are the hopes of the foreign agents who dope Kennedy and get to the prize. Enters the army, everything but the marines, and the day is saved while Snuffy inadvertently takes a demonstration ride on the gadget.

Timber

(Melodrama)

Universal production. Stars Leo Carrillo, Andy Devine, Dan Dailey, Jr. Features Marjorie Lord, Edmund MacDonald, Wade Boteler, Nestor Paiva. Supporting cast: Paul Burns, James Seay, Jean Phillips, William Hall and Walter Sande. Directed by Christy Cabanne. Associate producer, Ben Pivar. Original story by Larry Rhine and Ben Chapman. Screenplay by Griffin Jay. Cameraman, Jack McKenzie. Film editor, Otto Ludwig. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Previewed at studio Projection Room, Aug. 7, 1942. Running time: 58 MINS.

Universal sallies forth into the tall timber for background of a fast-moving and well-told outdoor melodrama that parades the familiar antics of Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine with the heroics of Dan Dailey, Jr. Picture is well above par as an actioner, and will catch many bookings as a regular programmer and dual supporter.

Story comes right up to the minute, detailing the nefarious efforts of saboteurs to slow down the production of a lumber enterprise delivering materials for the war effort. Carrillo is the mill boss, with Devine in charge of the woods division. Pair cannot fathom the strange incidents that delay deliveries, when Dailey arrives as an old pal and special undercover agent for the Forestry Service.

Devine fires Nestor Paiva and a group of woodsmen soldiering on the job, and takes on Edmund MacDonald, former trapper and expert timberman. Latter has sister, Marjorie Lord, along, and Daily falls in love with her while Devine makes ineffectual approaches. From there on footage is devoted to unraveling of the situation in solid meller style, with Dailey, Carrillo and Devine uncovering the ring of alien agents after some thrilling timber-truck excursions and accidents down the long grade from camp to mill.

Cast is excellently set up for a thriller meller of this type. Dailey is an aggressive and two-fisted lead who carries himself in fine style, with able assistance from Carrillo and Devine. Miss Lord clicks with a small assignment as the girl in for romantic interest, and performance rates attention of studio execs for better spotting. MacDonald, Wade Boteler, Paiva, Paul Burns and James Seay are all okay in supporting roles.

Exterior backgrounds ably carry flavor of a large lumber camp operation, while direction of Christy Cabanne continually points up the dramatics of tightly-knot script prepared by Griffin Jay. Camera work by Jack McKenzie accentuates production values with good exteriors.

Providence in Tribute To Home-Towner Cohan At 'Doodle' Filming

Providence, R. I., Aug. 9.—George M. Cohan's home town paid tribute to its favorite son here Friday when 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', the picture based on Cohan's life, opened here Friday with business 900% above normal. The gross was $5,000 for the start of this first test run of the picture outside the Hollywood theatre, New York.

The Town Criers, prominent civic organization, put on a special program honoring Cohan prior to the showing of 'Dandy'.

At nearby New Haven, a second 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' squadron of 50 Connecticut high school boys entering the Naval Aviation Service will be given a dinner at the Hotel Taft, New Haven, on Aug. 12, date of the picture's opening in that town.

Meantime, the largest 24-sheet order in Connecticut history has been reported, with 175 of the stands being set up for the picture's engagement at the Roger Sherman theatre, New Haven, and the Strand in Hartford.

Hunts Hartford A & P Coin May Be Tossed Into Pictures

Deal for utilization of a chunk of Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company fortune for film production is in process of formation, with Henry Huntington Hartford III eyeing possibilities of becoming a major independent producer and film financier.

Hartford, member of the family controlling A & P, has been around Hollywood for some time, and has generated interest in stepping into the film field on his own, although he has not previously had studio experience.

It is known that he has contacted Mitchell Hamilburg, manager for Gloria Jean, on possibilities of getting the latter's services for one production to cost in neighborhood of $700,000. Idea is to make a youthful musical of light texture and setup, with the prospective producer figuring that type of product is particularly salable at this time.

Hamilburg has already contacted Universal execs on idea of loanout of the young star to Hartford for the proposed picture, and U, in addition to being receptive, has made overtures to release the finished feature.

It is reported Hartford has George Hadeley as an associate in his film enterprise, and latter is sitting in on all discussions relating to the organization of a producing unit. Gloria Jean, who is being brought along by Universal as a younger singing star to follow Deanna Durbin, has just finished 'On the Beam' at the home lot, and will be available for some months to come for outside appearances.

Stars Assemble In Capital for Bond Tours Premiere

Premiere of the billion-dollar War Bond drive to be sponsored by the motion picture industry will be held in Washington Aug. 31, with stars from the several tours starting Sept. 1, assembled in the Capital for the opening gun in the 'Stars Over America' campaign. The effort will be launched from the Treasury steps by Secretary Morgenthau and other officials present. Another premiere will be held here for western tours.

The seven stars who will start the nation-wide tours over seven routes will be selected this morning, and their names wired to the seven advance men who will be in the first city of each route today. Juggling of the routes assigned various stars was necessary because several of them have been out on recent bond-selling tours. To get the most effectiveness out of each star's appearance in connection with the 'Saluate To Our Heroes' Bond Drive, it was decided to check each player's recent activities and assign each one to territory not recently visited.

The last of the seven advance men to leave Hollywood checked out Saturday. Don McElwaine of Metro flew to San Francisco, and John del Valle of Columbia trained to Fresno. The other five left Washington Friday night after a day's meeting with Treasury Department officials. Connie Krebs of RKO went to Dallas, Bob Doman of 20th-Fox to Chicago, Gene Murphy of Universal to Chattanooga, Merv Hauser of Paramount to Philadelphia, and Dick Hyland of Warners to New York City.

Charles Einfeld, field director of the 300 bond rallies, sent a long wire to each War Activities Committee head in the first seven cities, stressing the importance of a proper star for the star tours and for the advance men's tours as well. In his wires, Einfeld not only offered his personal services, but pledged the complete cooperation of the entire industry.

Par Stockholder Suit Over Bioff Shake Is Dismissed

New York, Aug. 9.—Another minority stockholder suit against Paramount officers and directors was dismissed Friday in N. Y. Federal court. The expected court action was taken by Judge John Bright in the suit which had been filed by Lillian S. Ratner and G. Arthur Peck involving the same issues as set forth in the recent trial lost in N. Y. Supreme court by six stockholders seeking restoration to Paramount corporate funds of $100,000 paid to ex-labor leaders Willie Bioff and George E. Browne. The dismissal was sought by the defendants on the grounds of res ajudicata, viz: as having already been settled.

Judge Bright's brief opinion concluded: 'That the case in the Supreme court may not have been properly tried, as the plaintiffs intimate, does not in any way militate against the finality of the judgment there entered. The corporation and its stockholders have had their day in court, and the result is final.'

Publicists Meet With Warners Today

New York, Aug. 9.—Warners meets with representatives of the Screen Publicists Guild of New York tomorrow night in an effort to reach an agreement on contract demands. If no agreement can be reached it is probable that the matter will go to the National War Labor Board which has the power to determine what both sides must agree to.

It is understood that Warners is balking at demands for severance pay such as granted by other distributors, graduating to a maximum of 12 weeks for workers employed 10 years or longer. Company also is opposed to granting retroactive pay to date when negotiations began shortly after first of the year. Warners also is insisting on a straight two year pact with no provision on reopening on wages at the end of one year.

Greenthal Feted By 50 On Eve Of Blowing UA

New York, Aug. 9.—Around 50 of Monroe Greenthal's friends turned out Friday night for a stag dinner in his honor at Toot Shorr's. Gradwell Sears presided and Si Seadler did the toast mastering. Although tributes to the United Artists publicity and advertising manager who goes into service with the War Production Board were in a kidding vein, all present were deeply sincere. Sears summed it up with 'I made more in chain letters I tore up last week than Monroe's getting working for Uncle Sam, but the honor of being selected by Donald Nelson is great and reflects a tribute to our business.'

Watch That Waistline

Play Review

A LATER JUNE

If this thin slice of sex drama, now on view at Assistance League Playhouse (or was last Friday), is intended as window dressing for Claire Windsor, it won't do the glamorous gal much good where it counts most. It's unfortunate, too, for she deserves a better break if this is a comeback she's making as a bid for recognition from the flicker barons. The story is a bad fit for her, and the direction too lame to bring out the acting that Miss Windsor is capable of.

Long time star of the silents and one of the early glamor figures of the screen, she is definitely far from through, if this mild sample is any criterion. Still a looker who can make a house dress look like a Chanel creation, she has stage presence and the other attributes necessary to footlight or klieg light success. Burden her down with such trivia as Raymond Gross's so-called comedy-drama and her talents suffer from under-exposure and overly bad direction. Her crude handling is evident early, her voice allowed to become whisperish, whereas in later dramatic passages she rises to the occasion with vigor and strong dramatic declamation. A uniform blending would have achieved far more desirable results with the sitters.

Supporting cast assembled by Marten Lamont (or was it Bob Oakley?) is of the little theatre stripe, but withal youngsters who show some promise. Best are Diane Sward, a pert comedienne; Charles Peck and Vance Gooden. Others are Helen Dare, Jack George and Patty Tyson.

U Signs Edgar Barrier

Edgar Barrier, who played with Helen Hayes and Lunt and Fontanne, has been signed to a term contract by Universal.

Obituary

CHARLES E. FORD

Charles E. Ford, 43, film producer and former head of Universal Newsreel, died suddenly Friday morning from peritonitis. He had recently returned from South America on jungle film making expedition with Clyde Elliott and Jeffrey Bernard. Picture, originally planned for Monogram, was recently taken over by Jules Levey for United Artists release. Following many years with Universal as newsreeel manager and shorts producer, Ford came to Hollywood and functioned as western and serial producer for Republic during 1938 and 1939. At time of his death he was awaiting call to active duty as an Army officer, having been a cameraman in the last war. In addition to a wife, Helen, deceased is survived by mother and brother living in Florida.

Funeral services for Ford will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Week Kirk o' the Heather, Forest Lawn. Pallbearers will be W. Ray Johnston, Trem Carr, Richard Hood, Nate Manheim, Jeffrey Bernerd and Dr. Irving L. Ress.

M. S. EPSTIN

M. S. Epstin, 73, for many years business manager for Joseph M. Schenck, died Saturday of a heart attack. Funeral will be held tomorrow at 1 1a.m. at Pierce Brothers Hollywood chapel. Cremation follows. A nephew, David Lang, Metro scenarist, is among survivors.

BEATRICE LIEB SMITH

Funeral services for Mrs. Beatrice Lieb Smith, 80, stage and screen actress, were held yesterday at 2 p.m. at Pierce Brothers. Cremation followed. Mrs. Smith died at her home in Walnut Park Thursday.

Court Refuses Dismissal Of Joelson Anti-Trust Case Against Majors

New York, Aug. 9.—A motion for dismissal of the J. J. Theatres (Jules Joelson) complaint against the major film companies, Harry and William Brandt and Max Cohen was denied in N. Y. supreme court today by Justice Benjamin F. Schreiber.

Joelson, owner of the Times Theatre is opposition to several other houses on N. Yl's 42nd street, which are owned by the Brandts and Max Cohen. He charged the defendants with violation of the anti-trust law and clams a conspiracy to maintain a monopoly of theatres in the Times Square area causing his inability to obtain suitable product. He claims his theatre's gross has dropped from $125,000 to $75,000 a year.

Dismissal had been asked by the defendants on the grounds of failure to state a cause of action.

Labor's Unity Group Favors Bond Rally

Labor's Unity for Victory Committee meeting yesterday at the Central Labor Council temple received a report from its War Program Committee recommending a war bond rally for Labor Day. Purpose of meeting would be to urge all workers to increase their bond purchases to at least 10% of their earnings.

The Legislative committee also reported and group endorsed a slate of candidates headed by Culbert L. Olson. The Industrial Disputes Committee reported it was drafting tentative plans for a State War Labor Board and indicated its recommendation would be ready at its next meeting.

'Jordan' Troupe Beats Dim-Out Deadline

Paramount's 'Lucky Jordan' company is on location at Malibu Lake for week to get all required outdoor footage before the military dim-out order goes into effect Aug. 20. Wherever possible, night scenes on location will be made in daylight with filters. Frank Tuttle is directing and John Seitz lensing.

Also affected by dim-out regulations is Paramount's 'The Crystal Ball,' on which shooting schedule has been revised to go on location today instead of originally planned trek on Aug. 26. Company will work several places in Los Angeles area.

Majors Nix Percentage Wise Cut in Raw Film Stock

distributing organization and any cut in celluloid in its case is therefore completely under control of its producers. Universal and one or two other producer-distributors also held out against the percentage cut in films arrived at last week.

Upshot of meeting, at which Barney Balaban, Nate Blumberg, Nick Schenck, Grad Sears, Ned Depinet and others participated, was a decision to curtail raw stock use as much as possible in each individual case, with indication that footage thus saved would be about half that possible under last week's recommendations.

Industry heads held out prospect, however, that a major reduction in footage could be expected via the use of a three-sprocket projector in both production and exhibition, a new device proposed last month in Washington at a meeting with WPB officials, which would slow down projection of pictures. It was suggested that possibilities of this technical equipment be fully explored within the next six months before any drastic film conservation proposals are adopted.

Industry engineers recommending the use of the new sprocket estimated that some 500,000,000 feet of celluloid could be saved annually through its use. From 50 to 80 tons of steel would be necessary for the changeover in technical equipment, with understanding that WPB officials were inclined to grant the request for use of the material.

Several producer-distributors, in opposing the percentage-wise cut in celluloid recommended last week, claim that normal business would be seriously affected if these proposals are placed in effect. These distribs claim that the use of raw film stock in both production and distribution has been held down to a minimum compatible with volume of sales and accounts. RKO, for one, for purposes of economy during its lean years, has held prints down to a lower point than Republic, in ratio to number of showings per print.

Whether the recommendations made at Friday's meeting will be acceptable to WPB officials is, of course, uncertain. Drastic government decree, strictly limiting use of celluloid, is still reported hanging fire in Washington and may be issued at any time.

Asso. Prod. Lift For Leshin at Par

E. D. Leshin gets promotion to associate producer berth at Paramount, operating in the B. G. De Sylva unit. First assignment will be piloting next picture to be directed by Rene Clair. Leshin, veteran member of the studio's production department, was recently supervisor of 'Dr. Broadway' and 'My Heart Belongs To Daddy' for Sol C. Siegel.

NEARLY $4,000,000 IN BAG FOR 'YANKEE DOODLE' PREEM

Big individual purchases recorded over the weekend sent sales of War Bonds for the Treasury's 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' soaring past the $3,750,000 mark, with three days still remaining in which to reach the $5,000,000 goal.

Topping these weekend subscriptions was a $100,000 purchase by a downtown business man, who took his seats for the first western showing of the Warners picture at the Hollywood theatre Wednesday night, but who insisted upon remaining anonymous.

Harry M. Warner, president of the company which is donating its most important picture of the year and its theatre to this campaign to stimulate War Bond sales in southern California's 11 counties, bought a $50,000 Bond to see his own picture in his own house, and his wife, Mrs. Rea E. Warner, matched his purchase.

Other $50,000 sales to individuals were made to Mrs. Mervyn LeRoy and Gilbert C. Van de Camp, while numerous corporations and organizations came through with top denomination buys. A local securities corporation duplicated a previous $50,000 order to bring its total to $100,000. Joe Crail, acting for a savings and loan company, made a $50,000 purchase, and a firm dealing in contractors' supplies bought Bonds totaling $40,000.

Added to the long list of film players purchasing in connection with the premiere were Jack Benny, Rudy Vallee, Sabu, Billy Gilbert and Martin Kosleck.

Names prominent in Los Angeles society studded the list of purchases in the $10,000 to $20,000 bracket, including Mrs. Tom May, Mrs. Louis Isaacs, Edwin Rowley Ridgway and Thomas C. Ridgway, Jr., while Mrs. Malcolm McNaghten made a $25,000 purchase. Jostling them for places on the scroll of honor that will be placed in the captain's cabin of each of the three big Liberty ships now being built in the Wilmington yard of the California Shipbuilding Corp., and the cost of which is equivalent to the goal of the 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' premiere, were a number of labor unions. The American Federation of Musicians, Local 47, and the Sheet Metal Workers Union, Local 108, each tossed in a $10,000 purchase.

Indicating the widespread response to the drive, there were substantial subscriptions also from Mount Olive Lodge, from the Hollywood American Legion Post and from the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Health Association.

To serve the demand for War Bonds and seats at the 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' premiere, the Hollywood office of the Treasury War Savings Staff at 6443 Hollywood blvd., was opened all day Sunday, manned by members of the Naval Aid Auxiliary, who reported large sales even on the holiday.

Irene Manning, who has an important role in support of James Cagney in 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', made a personal appearance at the Hollywood office last night. Basil Rathbone is set for tonight, with Jane Wyman the guest star tomorrow night.

All these film personalities are being interviewed over the air by KFWB from 7:45 to 8 p.m., with Robert Arden as emcee.

Traffic will be halted today noon at the intersection of 6th and Hill streets while four 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' girls sell War Stamps and Bonds, entitling purchasers to admission to the 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' at Warners Hollywood theatre Wednesday night. Control of traffic will be in the hands of Captain Robert L. Dennis when six jeeps and an army truck take over the downtown intersection.

Scribbling

E. Edwin Moran and Harry Segall are doing final script on Charles R. Rogers' 'The Powers Girl', for United Artists release. Moran wrote two of the 'Topper' scripts, and Segall scripted 'Here Comes Mr. Jordan'.

Edward James set at 20th-Fox to do additional writing on 'Over My Dead Body' for Walter Morosco. On same lot Ellis St. Joseph starts scripting on 'Porcelain Lady', also for Morosco.

Howard J. Green has completed the script, 'You Can't Live Forever', a Pine-Thomas production which starts shooting Aug. 19.

DOS Heads Out For NY

David O. Selznick trained for New York Friday night for indefinite stay while he lines up a new eastern representative to replace Katharine Brown, recently resigned, and meets with United Artists executives. Selznick was due to head east more than a week ago, but loan of Ingrid Bergman to Paramount for 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' delayed departure.

SOEG Negotiations On in NY Today

tomorrow afternoon with company heads sitting in on the parley. Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, trains in this morning to supervise the negotiations.

The SOEG will be represented by Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Blanche Cole and Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions. The Guild is demanding wage scales for Coast exchange Collarites ranging from $28.80 to $72.80 per week, with the companies offering $23.50 to $45. Negotiations were switched to New York in the belief an agreement could be reached, after the Collarites had walked out on exchange negotiators.

Ross Buys 'The Robe'

Frank Ross has purchased film rights to Lloyd C. Douglas' new novel, 'The Robe', and will make producing deal with major company that will tie in the story property and Ross's services as a producer on percentage of profits plan.

Skelton Sets Pace For Film Talent Touring Camps

With Red Skelton setting the pace by making his 190th appearance before soldier audiences, the Hollywood Victory Committee war activities were spread over the nation over the weekend. Skelton and his wife spent three days with various desert troops, following their return from Kansas where they did six shows in two days in a tour of Army camps.

Linda Darnell, Dinah Shore, the Ritz Brothers, Henry Busse and his orchestra, Gracie McDonald, the Berry Brothers, Roy Rogers, Danny Kaye and the Kitchenettes, with George Givot as emcee, put on a benefit spot show yesterday at Gardner Field. The air cadets drew a full house and raised sufficient funds to build a swimming pool.

George Raft, Nancy Kelly and The King's Men did 'Soldiers With Wings' over CBS Saturday.

On the road with USO Camp Shows, Bing Crosby with Rags Ragland and Phil Silvers, did a Navy show at Seattle, and now swings to Wyoming and Colorado. Constance Bennett was in Louisiana and heads for Arkansas, Jeanette MacDonald, as well as Carole Landis, finished up in Texas; Bob Burns was in Michigan and now moves on east; Abbott and Costello worked Wisconsin and Michigan on their War Bond tour. Martha O'Driscoll and Dorothy Morris appeared at the Victory House in Pershing Square for the Treasury War Savings.

Ed Lowry has joined the Victory Committee staff of workers to help book spot shows. He will continue to make weekly appearances with his volunteer group. Harpo Marx unit with Ricardo Cortez, Tom Dugan, Virginia O'Brien, Gracie McDonald, Marilyn Christine, Melba Snowden, Judy Black, Lynn Boyer, Max Terhune, Vivian Faye, Muriel Goodspeed, Sheila Ryan, Wanda Stevenson, Dorothy Gilmore did nearby Navy shows.

Chick Chandler with Dale Evans, Dennis O'Keefe, Thelma Daniels, Buddy Pepper, Bill Roberts, Dale Butts, Harry Holman, Katherine De Haven, Rena Case, Lorraine Krueger and Bonnie Kildare worked a close-in Army camp, and Alan Mowbray with Don Barclay, Adia Kuznetzoff, June Havoc, Connie Haines, Gil Lamb, Peggy Ryan, George Riley and Leon Belasco hit an Army spot.

James Cagney, executive member of the Victory Committee, is scheduled to put on a double drive to sell War Bonds at the opening of the trotting and pacing meet at Goshen, N. Y., tomorrow. Treasury officials said Cagney will drive W. H. Cane's Millie's Mite in an amateur race against E. Roland Harrisman, Leo McNamara, William Burke and Frank Wiswall. Cagney is expected to attract a banner attendance and will lead a big Bond drive at the track.

Honor Men

Lawton Campbell, recent radio head of Ruthrauff & Ryan agency, has been commissioned a Major in the Army Quartermaster Corps. Read 'Speed' Kendall, L. A. Times Hollywood reporter and columnist, has been called up for his physical and will likely draw a commission in the Marines.

Warners Home Office Strike Ends As Pact Okayed

15% wage increase, severance pay up to a maximum of 12 weeks based on length of employment, vacations with pay. Union also is given a preferential shop, requiring that new employes must join the union within 90 days if they remain with the company. Warners had balked at this provision, and when negotiations were resumed after having twice been broken off, the union demanded a straight union or closed shop. Contract is for two years, with privilege of reopening on wages after one year if living costs warrant.

Other IA officials, in addition to Walsh, present when agreement was reached were, W. P. Raoul, assistant to Walsh; Joe Basson and Ray Price. Negotiations for the company were handled by Joseph Bernhard, who planed in from the Coast, and Harry Kalmine. Hal Bareford and Sam Schneider, who had previously done the negotiating for Warners, were not present when the pact was inked.

Conference was hurriedly arranged for today after Warners had learned IATSE stagehands, laboratory workers and operators had instructions not to cross the office workers' picket line. At the time the office workers were picketing the home office, exchange, warehouse and stage doors of the Strand and Hollywood theatres.

Strike started 11 days ago when union claimed that contract as presented by Warners was entirely different from the verbal agreement reached during negotiations. IA backroom workers who have been refusing to cross the picket line also were instructed to return to their jobs tomorrow.

Fox Goes to London On Goodwill Mission

New York, Aug. 9.—Lawrence Fox' hop to London over the weekend marks the second American foreign sales manager to make the trek in the last two weeks. Joseph Seidelman, Universal foreign chief, arrived in London two weeks ago by plane. Both trips are reputedly in the interest of solidifying British-American intertsts and both Fox and Seidelman are likely to attempt to impress the British government with the similarity of film problems between the countries and the necessity of continuing the production and distribution of American pictures.

ASC Bans Dual Cards in IA; Membership Deadline (15)

ASC, making him ineligible for employment in the studios.

Cameramen were advised that Dewey Wrigley has been expelled by the ASC, and that he will not be able to work as a director of photography in California when he returns from a 20th-Fox Utah location where he is currently shooting. Action was taken when Wrigley took over Virgil Miller's assignment without approval of the ASC board of governors.

Prexy Fred Jackman of the ASC said it was a question of whether a director of photography wanted to work location jobs or be employed in the California studios. He said they could work out-of-state locations with an IATSE Local 659 card, but that if they did, they would not be permitted to accept employment in the studios here. He pointed out the ASC has a five-year agreement with the Producers which provides that all directors of photography employed in the state of California must be members of the ASC in good standing.

Reports received by the ASC last night were to the effect that only eight first cameramen showed up for a special meeting called by IA Local 659 Friday, and two of these were lensers who had resigned their 659 membership who merely went along to see what the shooting was about. Telegrams announcing the meeting stated a former attorney for the National Labor Relations board would tell cameramen 'where you stand'.

Those who attended said the gist of the information imparted was that the ASC contract with the Producers was 'worth the paper it is written on'.

Representatives of the first cameramen were preparing yesterday to appear before the Conference of Studio Unions Wednesday night and urge that early action be taken on their application for affiliation. It was considered likely, however, that action might be postponed, since Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference, and Glenn Pratt, delegate from the Screen Office Employes Guild, are out of the city.

Jackman said last night the Conference would be advised that the cameramen are not bringing any problems to the organization. He said the last of these were solved when the ASC removed its directors of photography from membership in the IATSE. He added that the cameramen, now affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, is not a party to the Studio Basic Agreement of which IBEW Local 40 is a member.

Move by IATSE Local 659 to dictate to directors of photography how their crews should be handled hit a snag when a director at Warners advised 659 business representative that he was not affiliated with the IATSE and that if the IA had any complaints to make they would have to take them up with the studio management. Herbert Aller, business head of 659, who has been policing 20th-Fox location near Cedar City, Utah, returned to Hollywood over weekend, following suspension of Wrigley by the ASC.

NLRB is expected to act this week on ASC complaint charging Producers and the IATSE with unfair labor practice charges for attempting to set scales for first cameramen after Producers had already made a deal with the Society.

Camera situation is expected to be discussed in New York this week when Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, confers with Prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE, and heads of the major companies. There has been some talk the IA might refuse to work with non-IATSE lensers, but Producers say this would lead to a jurisdictional fight between the IA and the IBEW in which the companies would be innocent victims.

Leaders Ask More Time In Relief Campaign

The weekly report meeting scheduled Wednesday in the film industry's drive for Navy, Russia, Dutch and China War Reliefs has been cancelled at request of the colonels and Artists Managers Guild to give them more time to contact high-bracket earners before making their next reports. With an extra week, both the colonels and agents predicted the drive will go over the top by the date of the closing report meeting Aug. 19.

Under the chairmanship of William Morris, all members of the AMG are personally contacting the big earners who have not yet signed up for contributions. The results of this work have started to show with several large donations coming into campaign headquarters since the agents started giving active assistance in the last War relief drive of the year.

Demarest In Benny Pic

William Demarest goes to 20th-Fox for featured role in the Jack Benny starrer, 'Life Begins At 8:30', which William Perlberg is producing.

Births

SON, five pounds, to Mrs. Lou Schwartz, at Cedars of Lebanon, Aug. 5. Mother was formerly secretary to I. E. Chadwick, producer. Father is in the Universal camera department.

Connelly Returns To NY

Lieut. Col. Jack Connelly, who recently resigned his Signal Corps commission to head the Newsreel division for Society of the Americas was here for three days conferring on available material and flew back to New York last night. Frank Ahlstock who replaced Jock Whitney as head of the organization was here for one day and planed back Saturday. Connelly plans releasing two clips of American newsreel in the South American countries.

Zanuck To Continue Duties at 20th, Says Skouras

Status of Darryl F. Zanuck, as far as his 20th-Fox studio activities are concerned, was clarified over the weekend in a statement by Spyros Skouras, company prexy, who arrived from New York late last week for conferences on Hollywood operations.

Skouras said: 'As vice-president in charge of production Darryl Zanuck will, as in the past, continue to guide the production activities of our company.' Prexy's statement clears up rumors that Zanuck might possibly suspend his studio duties due to pressure of war activities as an officer of the Signal Corps, in charge of military films made here for the War Department. Studio duties will necessarily step aside for Army work whenever time requirements conflict, but there will be no reassignment of Zanuck's executive production guidance at 20th-Fox.

Martin's Agent Called In Aroff Trial

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—Nat Goldstone, Hollywood agent for Tony Martin, takes the stand tomorrow when court martial trial of Lt. Com. Maurice N. Aroff resumes after weekend recess. Goldstone has been called by the prosecution as a rebuttal witness. Aroff previously had testified that he arranged for the purchase of Tony Martin's $950 automobile through Goldstone.

Defendant also had admitted he had handled the unsuccessful attempt of Vic Orsatti, another Hollywood agent, to obtain a commission. He also testified his Los Angeles plumbing company had made a contract with the Orsatti agency to pay a 5% commission on contracts obtained through the talent office, but so far no business had been obtained.

Merrick Starts Work On 'Miss V From Moscow'

George Merrick starts production tomorrow on 'Miss V From Moscow' for Producers Releasing Corp. Al Herman directs, with cast including Lola Lane, Noel Madison, John Vosper and Howard Banks.

Another PRC release, 'The Boss of Big Town,' is chalked up for start next week under wing of producer Arthur Schwarz, with Arthur Dreyfuss directing. John Litel, Florence Rice and John Miljan have been lined up for the leads.

Mellett Borrows Fonda

New York, Aug. 9.—Henry Fonda has been loaned to the War Production Board by 20th-Fox for the first of three Lowell Mellett shorts to be produced under the 1942-43 program. He's to star in 'They'll Live Again,' with Eugene O'Neill producing. Story and direction by Will Price.

Anita Loos Returns

Anita Loos has returned from Des Moines and Washington, where she collected material for 'Women In Uniform', forthcoming Joan Crawford starrer at Metro, based on the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps.

Darnell To Col 'City'

Linda Darnell, on loan from 20th-Fox, gets femme lead in Columbia's 'City Without Men'. Sidney Salkow will direct for B. P. Schulberg, and Samuel Bronsten produces.

UA Makes Pact for 12 From Jack Benny Over 6-Yr. Period

Benny to star in one of these each season. First of the Benny pics will be one written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart with Ernst Lubitsch likely to direct. The corporation's second film will be 'Porgy and Bess' in Technicolor, directed by Rouben Mamoulian, who directed the stage play and will have most of the original New York cast in it. The Benny pic will go into production early in January with 'Porgy and Bess' to start in March.

Arthur Lyons and Loyd Wright negotiated the Benny deal with UA. It provides that Jack Benny be executive producer of the setup. Corporation will arrange its own financing and Lyons goes east this week to confer with Raftery and bank officials on it, as around $1,000,000 will be the average cost of the films.

There are still a couple of of UA deals on the fire. One with Murray Silverstone and E. M. Gluckman, to finance setup of two producer-directors and four writers, which may be closed by Raftery with Silverstone in New York. Other is one pending some time to have Tay Garnett establish his own production unit which he would provide finances for.

Raftery is due here in three weeks to discuss latter deal and check on progress of production plans.

RKO Corp. and Subsidiaries Show $643,360 Loss in 1942

New York, Aug. 9.—Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. and subsidiaries (including RKO-Radio Pictures) showed a let loss of $643,360 after all charges and taxes for the first 26 weeks ending last July 4, as compared with a net profit of $485,605 in the corresponding period last year. Showing for this year was after extraordinary studio writeoffs and reserves, totaling $633,804, while last year nothing was written off for these items.

Actually RKO profit from all operations before such writeoffs, depreciation and provision for income taxes amounted to $1,410,801, or slightly less than the $1,419,314 in the 26-week period ending July 5, 1941. Figuring Federal income taxes on a 45% rate, company set aside $752,787 for income taxes, or about 3½ times more than the $213,456 income tax provision in comparable first six months of last year.

Corporation noted that $26,388 was paid out in dividends on the common and preferred stock of a subsidiary (undoubtedly Keith-Albee-Orpheum) in the 26-week period. This compares with $52,500 in dividends on the preferred in 1941.

While not shown in preliminary statement released this week by RKO, the corporation suffered mostly from the decline in earnings from RKO-Radio Pictures. This producing-distributing company is credited with a net loss of more than $1,000,000 after all charges. This, of course, cut into the net figure for parent corporation.

In contrast, the theatre subsidiaries represented by Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp. and other theatre operating units virtually doubled its net profit in the first 26 weeks this year over 1941. Statement of K-A-O and subsids shows net profit of $507,571, after all charges, as against $213,440 in comparable period last year.

This vastly improved profit by K-A-O was made despite $474,860 writeoff for income taxes, as compared with only $94,915 in the first 26 weeks of 1941. K-A-O profit before provision for depreciation and income taxes amounted to $1,300,100 as against $635,402 last year, or approximately double that of 1941.

Payne-Oakie-Faye To Start 'Frisco' Aug. 26

John Payne and Jack Oakie co-star with Alice Faye in 'Hello, Frisco, Hello' at 20th-Fox. Picture is down for an Aug. 26 start with H. Bruce Humberstone directing and Milton Sperling producing. Feature will include a number of old tunes, among which will be 'Pony Boy,' 'Texas Tommy' and 'Grizzly Bear.' New numbers will be cleffed by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren.

20th Mulls Purchase Street Sets Out Of Dimout Area

Executives of 20th-Fox will investigate possibility of purchasing land outside the 'dim-out' area for erection of permanent street sets and other scenes used by studios for out-of-doors night shooting, according to decision reached at meeting Friday of studio executives, called by William Koenig, general production manager.

When dim-out order becomes effective, Aug. 20, night exteriors will be taken inside on sound stages whenever possible until feasibility of the plan for going outside restricted area is gone into. Moving night exteriors into stages is complicated by government's $5,000 ceiling on new construction and fact studio hasn't sufficient stage space to allow standing sets.

If plan for a new tract of land outside dim-out area goes through 20th-Fox will be able to accumulate sets in sufficient quantity to provide night exteriors for most type pictures. Filming of night exteriors in the daytime by use of light filters has been proven unsatisfactory in the past.

MG Execs Return

Louis B. Mayer, Al Lichtman, Benny Thau, and Howard Strickling trained in from Chicago yesterday. Metro exec quartette went east to confer with Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., on production matters—with group huddling in the Windy City.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

SHREWD showmen working with the Treasury in the Theatres Division of the War Savings Staff are predicting that there will be substantial additional sales of War Bonds and Stamps to people coming out of the 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' premiere tomorrow night. Experience these past several months has taught these theatre men that bond purchases at box offices vary in direct ratio to the patriotic intensity of the picture that's showing inside the house. So a War Bond booth will be operating in the lobby of the Warner Bros. Hollywood Theatre to catch the crowd while they are still in the tingling grip of the patriotic fervor which was the keystone of George M. Cohan's life and the inspiration of his songs, and which is the theme of this filmization of his life.

IMMEDIATE manpower requirements of war industries were forcefully demonstrated to a local theatre manager last week. With a circuit operation for at least 10 years, he was told by a friend that there were plenty of jobs in war industries outside of the aircraft field. Suggestion was made that he apply for job of apprentice electrician. Being inquisitive, theatre man applied in four plants of southern Los Angeles, and despite honesty that all he knew was the elemental electrical wiring system of a theatre—all asked him to fill out applications, and one offered to put him on the midnight shift immediately at a $1.25 rate for minimum of 40 hours weekly. Theatre man sidestepped the pitch, but is thinking it over for future move.

TAKING a page from the book of a certain well known gal-about-Hollywood, head of a newsreel outfit here put the bite on studio publicity heads for gifts to his son, recently married. Direct approach, without any of the usual apologetic asides, was employed with such instructions as 'you are asked to make the newlyweds a present of such-and-such, to be delivered at such-and-such an address.' At last reports compliances were made all around although some of the head flacks will have no chance to captialize on the gift due to the newsreel connection of the requested which would forbid any publicity for stars competitive to his studio-controlled outfit.

TWO process screens, synchronized with the camera and so arranged that two separate street scenes did not impinge upon one another, were used by Stanley Cortez, Universal cameraman, in getting an especial effect that Julien Duvivier wanted for 'Flesh and Fantasy.' First, it was necessary to get Edward G. Robinson looking at his slightly blurred reflection in a London street lamp. It also was necessary to by-pass the lamp and register the street scene beyond it; then there was a second street scene to be caught—that reflected with Robinson's visage in the lamp.

UMPI CHANCES FOR OKAY THIS YEAR GLIMMERING

the consent decree have held up sales policies for the new season until the last possible minute, and any further delays in getting under way will likely upset the sales forces for the entire year.

Although, publicly, sales execs state they still have hopes of getting favorable word on the UMPI sales plan to replace the blocks-of-five system, they're in private huddles in each home office laying plans for continuance of the five-block selling, and exchange managers have been advised in some instances to be prepared to launch five-picture block contracts in their respective territories when the word is flashed.

Despite the apparent cooperation of all of the five majors on the UMPI setup, and approval by practically all of the independent exhibitor organizations around the country, the UMPI sales plan has been the target for some intensive undercover plotting. The blocks-of-five system in effect under the consent decree for the past year has proved a boon to four of the five distribs, and sales execs of this quartet do not want the method disturbed, as grosses have zoomed to peak figures.

One sales official summed it all up with the remark that the fewer pictures a company can sell at a time, the higher prices which can be obtained from the exhibitors. He commented that, despite the promotional campaigns of exhibitors against block booking for many years, the theatre men got all the breaks in buying in bulk, and it's now up to the distribs to protect the up-to-five block selling plan against return to wholesale selling where arbitrary discounts have to be granted.

If an actor finished a scene without globules of sweat rolling from his brow, the fans up in the gallery, which corresponded with the left field bleachers in those days, would yell: 'Get off that dime, you big bum.' There are still a few scenery chewers in motion pictures, but the general trend is back to nature. A good actor nowadays is a fellow who acts like a fellow who is not acting.

Orchestra Wives

(Comedy Drama With Music)

20th-Fox release of a William LeBaron production. Stars George Montgomery, Ann Rutherford, Cesar Romero and Glenn Miller and his Band. Features Lynn Bari, Carole Landis, Virginia Gilmore, Mary Beth Hughes, Nicholas Brothers, Tamara Geva and Frank Orth. Balance of cast: Grant Mitchell, Henry Morgan, Jackie Gleason, Edith Evanson and Alec Craig. Directed by Archie Mayo. Screenplay by Karl Tunberg and Darrell Ware. Original story by James Prindle. Lyrics and music, Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. Dances staged by Nick Castle. Musical direction, Alfred Newman. Photography, Lucien Ballard. Art direction, Richard Day and Joseph C. Wright. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Robert Bischoff. Costumes, Earl Luick. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, Aug. 10, 1942. Running time: 97 MINS.

This is the best picture yet made about a band organization. Hot music and sexy intrigue are coupled in a major piece of adult entertainment which will roll up exceptional grosses. Into its rhythms and exhilarating tempo is fitted a dangerously gossipy yet constantly humorous narrative reminiscent of the play 'The Women'. Incident is human, exciting, shifty and packs a load of suspense. The story is credible, important in its realm of music, and colorful with its backstage intimacy in the affairs of a popular band outfit.

The story distills from jealous intrigue of a certain clique of wives and near-wives who follow their orchestra husbands around the country or wait for them to come home from romantic as well as melodic triumphs—idle wives of publicly admired and often-flirted-with bandsmen. Particular drama is their casual and callous efforts to wreck the marriage at first sight of Ann Rutherford, an interloper, and George Montgomery, a hot trumpeter with eclectic taste in women and remnants of affection for Lynn Bari, soloist with the outfit. These discordant maneuvers, told with pungent comedy and crisp dialog, and interlarded with stirring music, also involve the very existence of the band, which is broken and finally reorganized when solid love scores over the femme furies.

Potent entertainment for adult audiences contained in James Prindle's original story is brightly exploited by Karl Tunberg and Darrell Ware in the superior script, a model of comedy and melody coordination. The comedy is seasoned for the sophisticate elders; the musical score and the inciting numbers by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren, as well as the performance of soloists and instrumental groups, for band-wise youngsters. Combination should reach away out to the very rim of paying audiences.

Archie Mayo's direction is in the groove every moment, every scene—perfectly attuned to the nature of the offering, adding his finest craftsmanship to the other top merits.

Evident throughout is the seasoned guidance and showmanship of William LeBaron as producer in one of his most prosperous-looking contributions to the 20th-Fox program.

George Montgomery is well cast in the role of the philandering trumpeter who is bowled over by a genuine and lasting love for the infatuated daughter of a small-town doctor. Ann Rutherford, emotionally mature, is equal to every dramatic demand made by a richly romantic role. Cesar Romero is amusing as one of the band's tireless gallants. Lynn Bari ably shades her part as soloist and discarded favorite of Montgomery to thread her way between jealous fury and sincere wish to insure the happiness of the ingenue who has won her man away. Orchestra wives of catty trickiness, even with one another, and all turning in excellent performances, are Carole Landis, Virginia Gilmore, Mary Beth Hughes. A happy wife is Tamara Geva, her

Careful, Soft Shoulder

'Careful, Soft Shoulder' is a contrived spy melodrama, dressed up in comedy duds, that figures as satisfactory supporting material. Situation and dialog at times have a good old-fashioned touch, but this will only serve to keep the customers chuckling at a dizzy blonde who gets mixed up in Washington espionage. Oliver H. P. Garrett fashioned the original screenplay and made a directorial debut behind the cameras. The script is okay for release intentions and the direction is a generally good first effort. Walter Morosco's production embellishments are, as usual, expert.

Virginia Bruce is the blonde who attracts an enemy agent because of her in with Washington society and diplomatic circles. Spy convinces her he is an undercover Secret Service operative trying to find a leak in the Navy Department. She gets herself mixed up in some doings as lurid as those that spot a serial—even to the old mill and the threatened fall into its crushing gears. Miss Bruce discovers too late who her buddies are, but with the stalwart help of James Ellison, the man she is trying to trap, rescue comes in the nick of time. Script spends considerable time on scenes trying to point a moral about wastrel sons of the rich. These pace-slowers could be helped by additional editing.

Miss Bruce makes a holiday of her assignment, doing the best by the comedy and general scatterbrainedness of the character. Ellison does well by part of the do-nothing son who falls victim to Miss Bruce's blonde charms. Aubrey Mather is the freelance spy, properly menacing according to requirements. Sheila Ryan and Ralph Byrd capably take care of smaller spots, and others in the cast fit handily into the proceedings.

Charles Clarke's photography aids the production values, as does the art direction, sets and other technical factors.

Just Off Broadway

(Melodrama)

20th-Fox production. Stars Lloyd Nolan. Features Marjorie Weaver, Phil Silvers, Janis Carter, Richard Derr, Joan Valerie, Don Costello. Supporting players: Chester Clute, Francis Pierlot, Grant Richards, George Carleton, Alexander Lockwood, William Haade, Leyland Hodgson, Oscar O'Shea. Director, Herbert I. Leeds. Executive producer, Sol M. Wurtzel. Screenplay, Arnaud d'Usseau. Based on an idea by Jo Eisinger and the character 'Michael Shayne' created by Brett Halliday. Photography, Lucien Andriot. Art direction, Richard Day, Chester Gore. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, Louis Loeffler. Costumes, Herschel. Sound, W. D. Flick, Harry M. Leonard. Technical advisor, Det. Lieut. Frank L. James. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 10, 1942. Running time: 66 MINS.

'Just Off Broadway' is a worthy entry in the 20th-Fox whodunit series turned out by Sol M. Wurtzel, and will more than satisfy in its playdates around the country as the second attraction on the bill. Lloyd Nolan, as Michael Shayne, continues to ply his film detecting for the entertainment of the ticket buyers, and this time doesn't allow a little thing like jury duty at a murder trial prevent his nocturnal ferreting out of the real criminals.

Nolan, supposedly locked up for the night with the other jurors, uses the fire escape to duck watchful police guardians and collect evidence that will fasten guilt for two deaths on the attorney defending a young lovely. He is joined in his night of prowling by Marjorie Weaver, exhuberant reporter. Their prowling carries them to a night club, a theatre, the home of a jeweler, and finally to near mishap in a lonely warehouse where a prime witness is garroted. Pair dodge the police and a freelance news photog who is trying to snap the errant juror. When trial resumes the next day, Michael Shayne steps out of the jury box, straightens things out to everyone's satisfaction but his own. He gets 60 days in jail for contempt of court, the result of his evening out.

Nolan fits solidly into the Shayne character, adding a lightly humorous touch to help the melodramatics. Miss Weaver is an able companion, keeping pace with the detective at every step. Phil Silvers injects laughs as the news photog, always on the lookout for a sensational exclusive. Janis Carter is the defendant, Richard Derr the defending attorney, Joan Valerie a witness and Don Costello a night club operator. Chester Clute handles some of the comedy as Nolan's juror roommate, and Grant Richards shows well in a small spot as district attorney. Others of the cast give good support.

Herbert I. Leeds' direction keeps the movement speedy and the entertainment consistent, working from the well-framed screenplay by Arnaud d'Usseau, based on an idea by Jo Eisinger. Photography by Lucien Andriot and the other technical factors are expertly handled, as is Emil Newman's musical direction.

Advance Men Setting Stages for War Bond Tours

A quota of $165,000,000 has been set for New York state's goal in the billion-dollar War Bond Drive to be conducted during September under guidance of the motion picture industry. This goal was wired by Dick Hyland, advance man, to Charles Einfeld, field director of the 300 Bond rallies to be held throughout the country.

Hyland conferred in New York with Max A. Cohen, representing the theatres division of the War Activities Committee; Oscar Doob, public relations head of the drive, and Treasury Department officials, to make preliminary plans for the 'Stars Over America' tours in the east.

The Hollywood Victory Committee simultaneously announced that 14 stars have been lined up for these tours, but withheld their names until the players are allocated to one or another of the seven tours. Each player participating in the tours will be accompanied by a contact man, to protect player's interest and see to it that schedules are adhered to in each city. These contact men will be selected at today's meeting of the Studio Publicity Directors.

Einfeld last night received enthusiastic reports from advance men who met with regional Treasury Department representatives and War Activities Committee members to set up public rallies in six other cities, all starting points of 'Stars Over America' tours. The group, together with the cities from which they reported concrete results in their first meetings are Don McElwaine, San Francisco; John del Valle, Fresno; Connie Krebs, Dallas; Bob Doman, Chicago; Gene Murphy, Chattanooga, and Merv Houser, Philadelphia.

WALLACE SAYS MUSICIANS DIG THEIR OWN GRAVES

Musicians dig their own graves by making the instrument that destroys them. That was the theme of a radio talk by J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, president of Local 47 of the American Federation of Musicians, who was heard yesterday on station KPAS, Pasadena, in what was the initial airing of the union's disc-banning controversy. He was heard on 'Our Daily Bread' program, sponsored by the CIO and interviewed by Tom Van Dycke, CIO rep and producer of the show.

General opinion is that the broadcast was as propagandistic as that which the union side contends has been given by the radio and recording interests.

In opening the program Van Dycke said: 'In all the controversy we have never heard or seen the musicians' side of the story. It always has been the attack, never a word of defense.'

Program was composed mostly of letters of James C. Petrillo, AFM prexy, to Elmer Davis of the OWI, and James L. Fly of the FCC. Citing the patriotism of musicians and declaring the democratic principles and operation of the union, Wallace attempted to 'explain the situation simply' by quoting several individual cases of alleged abuses and by outlining the musicians' unemployment problem.

In answering the charge that musicians block technological advancement, Wallace drew an analogy between the iceman who was deprived of his livelihood because of the Frididaire, but said the iceman had nothing to do with digging his own grave by making or creating the displacing improvement.

Wallace also cited manufacturers for not coming forward with a solution to the problem. 'They all sit back and say we will all combine, the radio stations, recording companies and advertising agencies, and bring pressure on Washington to fight our battles. That is just what has been done,' he added, 'and that is very unfair.' He also asked if the companies were not to be investigated, too, and said, 'The agencies of the government have not asked the musicians to explain the situation. We resent being threatened through the press.'

Wallace concluded by adding quotes from his own recent statement in which he endorsed Petrillo's stand. Van Dycke then said that all organized labor applauded the courageous stand and offered the program as 'your pulpit as often as it can serve you'.

Studio Juicers Rush To Beat IBEW's $100 Deadline

Rush of lamp operators and juicers to get into the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers before the initiation fee is hiked to $100 Saturday has sent membership of Studio Technicians unit of IBEW Local B-11 up near the 500 mark, according to Business Manager George (Curly) Davis. Applications are currently being accepted for a $5 initiation fee.

Davis said scores of electricians are being sent to defense projects, stating an order for 250 was received yesterday from Las Vegas. He said the union has a standing order from San Diego plants and that journeymen are being sent south as rapidly as their requests for work are received.

Only regular studio employes are being accepted in the Studio Technicians unit of B-11. The unit already has applied for affiliation with the Conference of Studio Unions headed by Herbert Sorrell. Similar action has been taken by IBEW Cameramen's Local 1318. No action on applications is expected until Sorrell returns from the east.

ploitation director, arrive Thursday.

Executives will hold discussions on whether company will group its already completed pictures into blocks of five for consent decree selling, or await the decision on the UMPI plan, which would call for selling in blocks of either 12 or 13 pictures. Group also will be shown completed product, including shorts, and discuss promotion policies in light of current conditions over the country.

This is the first time Metro has had its sales head and aides, in addition to the publicity and exploitation chiefs, gathered together at one time at the studio for important sessions.

Louis B. Mayer returned to the studio over the weekend from Chicago, where he completed discussions with Nicholas M. Schenck, president, on plans for the coming year, and the studio conferences between New York sales and promotion heads of Loew's, Inc.

Hempstead Gets Busy

SIDNEY STROTZ, NBC western division head, floored by the flu.

BOND SALES BOOM PUTS 'DANDY' NEAR $5,000,000

Tomorrow is Yankee Doodle Dandy Day in Los Angeles, and a red, white and blue blaze of patriotic Bond buying is sweeping the city as Treasury Minute Men drive into the last two days of their whirlwind campaign, with the Bond sale, at midnight, standing close to the $5,000,000 goal for the 'Build Ships' premiere.

Belated buyers stampeded into the War Savings Staff branch at 6443 Hollywood blvd., swamping the augmented crew of Naval Aid Auxiliary women manning that office. Banks all over town reported a similar surge, while telephones in the Treasury office downtown shrilled ceaselessly all day long.

EVERYBODY'S DOIN' IT

After two weeks of steady buying at a pace that picked up acceleration daily, a sudden surge to get in on the premiere that is making both financial and show business history seems to have seized everybody with cash in hand and not yet bought up to the limit in 'Bonds of freedom'.

Seats at the 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' premiere at the Warners Hollywood theatre tomorrow night, allocated to the various Bond denominations from $25 to $25,000, were not yet exhausted last night, according to Howard D. Mills, administrator of the Southern California branch of the Treasury War Savings Staff, but they are going fast.

Extent of the spread of the Bond buying fever induced by the premiere is indicated by the fact that one buyer flew down from San Francisco last night to make sure that the $5,000 check he brought would be certified for a pair of seats at the first western showing of the James Cagney starrer. He was C. P. Decrevel, general secretary to the system adjustment board of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

UNIONS RESPONSIVE

Unions were among the most responsive to this last-minute urge to get aboard the 'Build Ships' preem. In addition to the Railway Clerks, purchases were made yesterday by the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union, $10,000; the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, $3,000; United Steel Workers of America, Local 2018, $1,000. These subscriptions brought the purchases by labor organizations to a total of $89,000.

War Bond orders from individuals and corporations poured in at such a dizzy pace that the accountants fell behind in tabulating them, but the top buy of the day appears to have been a $73,500 purchase by an unidentified Bel-Air resident. Another important purchaser was Mrs. Tom May, who added $25,000 to her previous subscription of $10,000.

Among Hollywood personalities buying War Bonds and obtaining seats for the 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' premiere were Irene Dunne, Robert Cummings, Paulette Goddard, Harry Wurtzel, Sidney Lanfield, Boris Morros, Robert Rossen, Norman K. Panama, John Howard Lawson, Charles K. Feldman, Jerrold Brandt, David Loew, Daniel M. Winkler, Frank P. Orsatti, Cobina Wright, Jr., Victor Saville, Arthur Murray, Donald Woods, Janet Gaynor and Adrian, and Edgar Bergen.

BOWRON PROCLAIMS DAY

Meanwhile, tomorrow is Yankee Doodle Dandy Day by official proclamation of Mayor Fletcher Bowron, and plans are going forward to make the premiere itself an event worthy of the record 'boxoffice'.

The 40-piece band from the San Diego Naval Training Station is being sent up to supply stirring music for the event, including those famous tunes by George M. Cohan, upon whose life story the picture is based—'Over There' and 'Grand Old Flag'.

Anticipating the biggest crowd in years, 100 Los Angeles policemen have been assigned to help handle the crowd sure to be attracted by the turnout of stars. Marines and soldiers also will be on hand to assist.

Scully Training To NY; Sees U Product

William Scully, Universal sales chief, who has been here for the past three weeks, returns to New York on the Super-Chief tonight. While here Scully saw almost half of company's product made for the 1942-43 distribution season, and talked with Charles Skouras on a Universal product deal for National Theatres.

William Heineman, Universal's western sales manager, who has been here for the past 10 days, remains to conclude the deal with Skouras for Fox West Coast Theatres before heading east.

'Bonds Of Freedom'

'We want $7,500 worth of bonds of freedom,' said Milo Dimkich yesterday, when he made a purchase in connection with the Treasury's 'Build Ships' premiere of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' at the Warner Bros. Hollywood Theatre tomorrow night.

'You mean War Bonds?' asked the clerk.

'I mean bonds of freedom,' said Dimkich. 'I'm making this investment on behalf of the Jugoslav War Relief Association.'

IA Bans 10% Permit Racket; Boys Lose $200,000 Take

holding permits will be admitted to membership. These will replace approximately 200 members who have died in the last 20 years.

Hundreds of competent operators employed regularly at salaries ranging from $80 to $120 per week have been doled out work permits which had to be renewed weekly. These permit men are said to have been taxed 10% of their earnings for the permits, in addition to the regular dues of $40 per quarter.

Federal agents also are said to have been given information that in addition to the dues and assessments, many of the permit men were required to kick back half of their salaries in order to retain jobs. This take is estimated to have averaged $4,000 to $5,000 per week.

After several union officials were questioned by U. S. Attorney Mathias Correa in New York, the union set up a committee to revise the by-laws so as to do away with the permit men and open the membership rolls to new operators. Situation also was discussed by IATSE Prexy Richard Walsh recently when he stopped over here en route to New York from the Coast.

There also has been considerable criticism over the $20,000 salary paid Business Representative John Smith and the $18,000 stipend given Peter Shayne to act as president and assistant business manager of the union.

Correa and Federal agents now are busy investigating the old 2% assessment racket tacked on IATSE members during the Willie Bioff-George E. Browne regime. It is understood the Government is especially anxious to learn how the money was divided among the Chicago mob backing Browne and Bioff at that time. The two were taken to New York several months ago from a Federal prison and have been questioned by Government representatives repeatedly since that time. It was reported from time to time that Bioff might be offering to sing in an effort to soften the income tax evasion charge still pending against him on the Coast.

Bioff now is serving 10 years, and Browne eight years, on extortion charges. They were convicted of shaking down motion picture companies of several million dollars on threats to call strikes in the industry.

C. B. DeMille Needs Five Advisors For 'Story'

Cecil B. DeMille will have five technical advisors on script and sets of 'The Story of Dr. Wassell' at Paramount. Military nature of the story requires technical services of a Naval officer. Other consultants will include an expert on the Dutch language; one on China; an advisor on Arkansas farm life, and a doctor to advise on medical matters. In addition, there's the regulation research director.

Lesser Sigs UA Deal To Release His 'Canteen' Pic

United Artists will release Sol Lesser's production of 'Stage Door Canteen' on its 1942-43 program, under a deal announced yesterday by Gradwell Sears, UA vice-president in charge of distribution. Commitment for 'Canteen' takes care of the one picture Lesser still owed UA at the time he moved over to RKO last year. Until recently Lesser had been considering a story under the working title of 'Strange Victory' to fulfill his UA pact.

Lesser will provide his own financing for the new picture, to which he acquired rights to title and general idea from the American Theatre Wing War Services recently. All profits above production and distribution costs will go to the Theatre Wing, which sponsors the Stage Door Canteen in New York and similar places in other cities. Lesser and UA expect to clear around $500,000 for the Theatre Wing.

Delmer Daves has been assigned to write the screenplay, and production will get under way in the near future.

Pix Part In Recording History On Film

'Old Movies,' a brief history of the motion picture and the part it playes in recording present-day civilization, is the title of the forthcoming Passing Parade film announced by John Nesbitt at Metro. Doane Hoag wrote the script.

the company has included in its earnings only those subsidiaries which have operations in the western hemisphere; the operations of all other foreign subsidiaries, including those operating in England, Australia, New Zealand and India are reported only to the extent received or determined to be receivable in dollars.

Second quarter of this year shows $1,000,000 increase in earnings over same period of 1941; while first six months of 1941 showed earnings of $4,379,000 as against same period this year with total of $5,823,000.

There were outstanding on July 4, 1942, 126,042 shares of cumulative convertible $100 par value 6% first preferred stock. After deducting $189,063 of dividends accrued for the quarter on these first preferred shares, the remaining $2,718,937 of estimated combined consolidated and share of undistributed earnings for the quarter represent 94c per share on the 2,901,580 shares of common stock outstanding on July 4, 1942, which compares with 66c per share for the quarter ended July 5, 1941. Computed on the same basis, the estimated combined consolidated and share of undistributed earnings for the six months ended July 4, 1942, represent $1.88 per share on such common stock outstanding, which compares with $1.56 per share for the six months ended July 5, 1941.

The board of directors of Paramount Pictures, Inc., today declared the regular quarterly dividends of 25c per share on its common stock and $1.50 per share on its first preferred stock, payable Oct. 1, 1942, to stockholders of record on Sept. 15, 1942, and preferred stockholders of record on Sept. 17, 1942.

Lyris Easts On Candy Buy For F-WC

Bill Lyris, head of the candy department of Fox West Coast Theatres, trained for New York yesterday on a buying trip. With goodies becoming increasingly scarce, Lyris will stop off in Chicago and possibly other eastern points in an effort to secure continued supplies for F-WC's important adjunct to its operations. He probably will be gone two weeks.

has been purchased. Equipment also is on hand for immediate installation after the shell has been cleared of counters, etc. Seats, carpeting, projectors, etc., were purchased some time ago when Calvert intended building another theatre but was prevented in doing so by Government's $5,000 building expenditure ceiling.

Idea has been thought of by some exhibitors, but none have ever done anything about it. Calvert's initiative and example may be the starting gun of a run on similar sites that are ideally suited to theatre purposes because of their construction. Government ceiling can be observed with whatever alteration is necessary. Those with equipment on hand from darkened theatres in areas that suffered from population decreases or through supply company affiliations may take the cue. Mushroom growth of stores of that type, and just as quick foldings of many, has left many vacant for conversion to film theatre purposes.

RKO Execs To Confab With Goldwyn On Hope Film

With Studio Chief Charles Koerner confined to his home battling a cold and slight fever, RKO eastern execs, including President Net Depinet, Theatre Head Edward Alperson and Malcolm Kingsberg will handle other business before group gets together on product huddles with Koerner on latter's return to his desk.

It is understood that the eastern trio must thresh out sales plans and percentage policies with Samuel Goldwyn for release of latter's forthcoming production co-starring Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, 'They've Got Me Covered'. Confabs with Goldwyn always run over extended periods for each one of his pictures, and the RKO execs figure to get started early on that particular picture to allow the producer plenty of time before accord is finally reached.

Aroff Court Martial Draws To a Close

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Final arguments in the Navy court martial of Lt. Commander Maurice N. Aroff were presented yesterday here by the prosecution and the trial board denied a second defense motion for dismissal of all charges against Aroff. Nat Goldstone, Hollywood agent, appeared as the final witness for the prosecution's rebuttal. Trial has been on for 12 days.

Donlevy Back At Par

Brian Donlevy goes back to Paramount on a one-picture commitment for featured spot in 'The Storm,' current best-seller novel by George R. Stewart. Player tabbed the role after Paramount execs figure he will click as the Marine commander in 'Wake Island.'

Jules Furthman is preparing the script of 'Storm' under guidance of executive producer B. G. De Sylva.

F-WC Shows 'Raid' Pic

It's No Secret

It's plenty ironic when radio gets around to airing a touchy industry problem such as the musicians union's disc-banning. J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, prexy of Local 47 yesterday gave what was believed to be the nation's first airing of the controversy on KPAS (Pasadena) from 6:45 to 7 p. m. To top it all, the broadcast was remoted from studios in Music City, the town's biggest disc emporium and home of the new Capitol Records Corp., one of the most acute sufferers.

PARAMOUNT COLLARITES MAY BE CENTER OF NY BATTLE

New York, Aug. 10.—Based on Warners White Collarite settlement aid received from the IATSE as a quick clincher, the Motion Picture Office Employes (AFofL) today took the first step in a campaign to try to knock off Paramount by weaning employes away from the Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild (CIO), which claims it represents 85% of those eligible. In leaflets passed out to Paramount office help today, the MPOE cites valuable assistance given by the IA and other American Federation of Labor unions such as the teamsters.

The SOPEG promises severe resistance to any campaign trying to muscle in on it at Paramount. Action is due Thursday on the SOPEG petition for an election of Paramount employes when the National Labor Relations Board holds a hearing here to be attended by David Golden, SOPEG prexy, and William Piehl, organizer of members of Paramount SOPEG chapter.

The SOPEG has a contract with Loew's, RKO, 20th-Fox and Columbia.

The MPOE deal obtained from Warners is for two years, and can be opened after one year on salaries in event increased living costs changed conditions. As a gesture of good will, Warners also is paying normal salaries to workers for 11 days they were on strike.

husband Jackie Gleason. Henry Morgan has several amusing scenes as Miss Rutherford's soda-clerk suitor. Grant Mitchell is her father. Edith Evanson is Romero's divorced wife, stalking her alimony.

Glenn Miller, featured with his band, fits into the drama like a thespic veteran, carrying off the role of himself with impressive sincerity and able reading of his lines. His bandsmen distinguish themselves, singly and in groups. Lucien Ballard's splendidly used cameras favor the musicians pictorially, to enhance their musical prowess. And Alfred Newman's musical direction stands solidly behind the songs and melodies of Miller and his men and the singers in the cast.

The Mack Gordon-Harry Warren tunes and lyrics are a well-rounded and inciting package, with 'Serenade In Blue', 'I've Got a Girl In Kalamazoo', 'People Like You and Me' and 'At Last'.

A whirlwind of dusky grace is the specialty dance of the incomparable Nicholas Brothers. Nick Castle staged it. Other fine technical credits go to Richard Day and Joseph C. Wright, for their art direction; to Thomas Little, for his set decoration; to Earl Luick, for his costumes; to Robert Bischoff for an excellent job of film editing.

Hollywood Honor Men

Uncle Sam was plenty busy in Hollywood over the weekend asking 10 Hollywoodites to get into uniform and to store away their mufti for a while. Robert Sparks, Columbia producer, checked into the studio yesterday to clean up office details prior to planing out to Marine base to assume duties of acting captain in the Marine Corps.

Assistant Director Seymour Friedman of Columbia, has received commission as second lieutenant in the Army Signal Corps.

Don Jacques, formerly in RKO studio mail room, and recently with Pathe News, gets induction into the U. S. Army.

Pat Costello, of RKO accounting department, has resigned to enlist in the U. S. Navy.

Arthur Klein and Stanford Tischler, of RKO sound department, have joined the Army.

Russell Breckenridge, son of RKO Press Agent Jerry Breitigam, graduated from Army gunnery school in Texas, and gets sergeant rank in the Air Corps.

Charles Minor, Jr., of Minor Theatres in Burbank, being inducted into the Army today.

Leo Miller, of Warners theatre department, leaves for the Army on Thursday.

Gene Berkoff, of Berkoff Theatres, now in the Navy.

Russell Hoover, RKO assistant cameraman, gets a junior lieutenant's commission in the Navy submarine service.

James Stone, Technicolor assistant cameraman, reports for duty this week as a captain in the Army Signal Corps. Stone will leave tripod crew of Paramount's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' this week.

Kalmenson Opens WB Regional Sales Sesh in S.F.

San Francisco, Aug. 10. — Ben Kalmenson, Warners general sales manager, opened the company's regional sales meeting today, the fifth of the series he is conducting. Local confab, to be concluded tomorrow, is for the Western district, headed by Henry Herbel. In addition to Kalmenson, home office executives participating include Mort Blumenstock, Arthur Sachson, Norman H. Moray and A. W. Schwalberg.

Joseph Bernhard plans to fly from New York for the meeting, with S. Charles Einfeld expected to come up from the studio for a brief talk.

Branch personnel attending include Al Shmitken, L. Blank, Al Brubetick, W. Wheeler and L. James, of San Francisco; Fred Greenberg, J. N. Howland, C. T. Charack, W. R. Walsh, H. Slater and A. E. Snyder, of Los Angeles; Al Oxtoby, F. Keller and T. M. McDouglad, of Portland; William F. Gordon, K. K. Pack, W. C. Saphro, J. Griffin and A. W. Baron, of Salt Lake City; Earl A. Bell, W. A. With something over $5,000,000 in the till, the exact 'boxoffice' for this history-making event still remained to be determined, for returns from the late Bond buying stampede

CHARLES KOERNER, RKO production chief, has asked to have more than $500,080 worth of literary material accumulated at the studio during the past several years, written off as worthless. Koerner, from accounts, refuses to throw good coin after bad by producing these scripts—reversing procedure followed by a number of previous RKO studio execs. It is understood that his request is getting sympathetic consideration from officials of the RKO parent company in New York. The stock of literary properties selected by Koerner as worthless may be placed on the books at nominal value of $1. If written off immediately, the additional charge against the company operations would put RKO in the red some $2,000,000 for the current year. Koerner's stand in refusing to have his new regime burdened with what he considers a $500,000 debit is considered sound. It is also understood he requested Leda Bauer, RKO eastern story head to come to the coast to gander the discarded story properties.

METRO, both directly and through undercover scouts, is thoroughly checking the leading man situation in Hollywood with idea of grabbing or tying up any likely replacements for the large number of studio contractees going into the armed forces via enlistment or induction. After studio heads reportedly had their secret scouts endeavor to obtain likely replament candidates who are far down on the draft lists due to marriage, children and financial status, results added up to a complete zero, and studio execs then started their own survey of the situation. Check even went so far as direct contacts with several other studios to inquire if any leading men had contracts expiring in the near future that might not be renewed, with plea to give Metro first word on any who might be dropped.

Wallace, at that time, spoke of the recording situation for the first time on the air. Report that NBC had also been approached was denied by Sidney Strotz, v-p. Because of its position in the situation, and because of never editorializing the net will not countenance the idea, he said. It was added that the net would neither accept a commercial program because of the controversial subject matter.

WPB CONSERVATION EDICT TO SLASH H'WD PRODUCT

the Federal authorities may go a little farther than the producers did voluntarily.

How detailed the curtailment ultimatum will be remains conjectural, as some points have not been decided, but officials hint the order will be very rigid.

Film industry will not be permitted to escape Federal control any longer on the contention that it is cutting down on use of critical and essential materials on its own initiative.

'Shortages are too great,' said Harold Hopper, chief of the WPB film division, today. 'We must be certain there will be conservation.'

Complete ban on industrial and advertising reels is looked for, and the number of entertainment shorts also may be reduced. Officials have discovered that around 3,000,000 feet of raw stock are consumed annually in non-theatrical promotion films and ballyhoo product which is not considered essential. Though such a prohibition would affect small commercial laboratories, mounting Government needs, including educational reels for civilian defense, military training and the like, likely will keep some of these going.

Chiefly, the WPB order will formalize and make binding the conservation formula devised by the industry, but the order also will have the further effect of placing a definite ceiling on output. At this time it is not intended to set individual quotas for each production company, though this may be done if the studios are unable to agree on how to split up the overall allowances.

Reduction of from 10 to 20% in number of features is indicated. WPB may be content at the outset with ruling that this season's output shall not top last year's, but the odds are there will be some percentage reduction that may be made more drastic if other conservation measures do not bring about the desired economies.

Skepticism continues that the producer's own curtailment program will prove sufficient to bring consumption down to the levels sought. Officials are cheered by the agreement to make fewer prints and to curb retakes, but doubt these reforms will do the trick. Fears are expressed that the industry will backslide after a short period, which is why WPB has resolved to put teeth into the agreement to make it binding.

Seven Sweethearts

(Comedy Drama With Music)

Metro release of a Frank Borzage production. Stars Kathryn Grayson, Van Heflin, Marsha Hunt. Supporting cast: Cecilia Parker, Diana Lewis, Isabel Elsom, Louise Beavers, Peggy Moran, S. Z. Sakall, Carl Esmond, Donald Meek, Lewis Howard. Directed by Frank Borzage. Produced by Joe Pasternak. Original screenplay, Walter Reisch and Leo Townsend. Musical score, Franz Waxman. Dance direction, Ernst Matray. Photography, George Folsey. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Paul Groesse. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis; associate, Jack Moore. Gowns by Shoup. Film editor, Blanche Sewell. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 11, 1942. Running time: 99 MINS.

In the midst of its war-grim, blood-stirring competitors for popular patronage, this wholly romantic, melodic offering sings pleasantly about youth and love and tulip gardens in a bit of transplanted Holland in the U. S. A. Without star name potency, the picture nevertheless makes its bid for favor on its own merits of sentimental charm, beguiling music and a wholesome note which will get much audience commendation to swell its returns.

First of Joe Pasternak's productions for Metro, 'Seven Sweethearts' expresses the same smart understanding of youthful appeal and casting wisdom which launched Deanna Durbin on her Universal career in 'Three Smart Girls'. The human angles, the showmanly requirements, the guidance of the combined craftsmanship and artistry follow the proved Pasternak pattern in this happy offering.

The 'Sweethearts' are the seven delectable daughters of a Dutch widower who operates a hotel in a Michigan town which is a replica of a Netherlands tulip plantation and which annually holds a colorful flower festival. The daughters, with boys' names because the expectant father never got a son, perform all the tasks around the hotel. The old man permits only the guests he likes. Van Heflin, a Chicago newspaper reporter, up to do the festival, insinuates his way in, calls the father, S. Z. Sakall, 'Tuts', and presently finds himself more or less in love with every one of the septet. He concentrates on Kathryn Grayson, who does the table waiting and sings. But at the same time he is the target for the eldest daughter, Marsha Hunt, who fancies herself as a potentially great actress and tries to get the boastful reporter to introduce her to the theatrical big shots in the city. Further romantic pressure is brought to bear because of the tradition that none of the girls in Sakall's brood may marry until the eldest has captured a husband. Love thus has to thread a devious way, fenced with laughter and tears. All the girls except the youngest and the oldest also have swains eagerly awaiting the moment when they too can take the vows. It's quite an amorous housefull, but all behaving very decorously.

Kathryn Grayson handles herself beautifully, literally, and with fine skill, in both her singing and her dramatic requirements. Love scenes with Van Heflin are heart-tuggers for charm and tenderness. Her voice

A Yank At Eton

(Comedy Drama)

Metro release of John W. Considine, Jr., production. Stars Mickey Rooney. Features Edmund Gwenn, Ian Hunter, Freddie Bartholomew, Marta Linden, Alan Mowbray, Juanita Quigley, Peter Lawford, Raymond Severn. Balance of cast: Tina Thayer, Minna Phillips, Alan Napier, Terry Kilburn. Directed by Norman Taurog. Screenplay, George Oppenheimer, Lionel Houser and Thomas Phips, from an original storyp by George Oppenheimer. Photography, Karl Freund, Charles Lawton. Musical score by Bronislau Kaper. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Daniel B. Cathcart. Set decorations by Edwin B. Willis and Harry Grace. Special effects by Warren Newcombe. Film editor, Albert Akst. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 11, 1942. Running time: 89 MINS.

'A Yank At Eton' suffers as adult entertainment to the extent that it undertakes, with obvious good intent and schoolmasterly emphasis, to propagandize better understanding between American and English folk through a tale about their school-age youngsters. The assumption in the story treatment is that closer affinity can be easily achieved by such seriocomic examination of national institutions like Eton. This admirable and earnest keynote, however, keeps intruding too flagrantly upon the simple running adventure of the young Yank amongst his British cocolleagiates—a story which, if left alone, was quite capable of creating its own implications without all the academic interruptions. Its approach is too smug, too much like a school lecture, for many of its intended audiences. The juve trade is more apt to relish its adolescent fun and its amusing contrast of British and American customs. The Rooney name, on its own strength, will give the picture plenty of initial momentum, and its comparative dullness as entertainment probably will not seriously hurt its box office.

Eton is that English upper school on the Thames, founded by Henry VI, upon whose playing fields the battle of Waterloo is said to have been won. Mickey Rooney, a chip-on-the-shoulder American who wanted to continue his football prowess at Notre Dame, is forced into Eton, very reluctantly, because his mother married an Englishman of the landed gentry. The story tells the reconditioning of the fresh young Yank in this tradition-steeped college, and the reaction of his untrammeled spirit upon the very proper lads with their old school ties, toppers and tiffin as well as upon the college masters and house matron. The comic stress of course is upon contrast in habits, customs, with Rooney's final absorption into the British mold, wearing the traditional topper and waxing sentimental about the venerable halls of the school, after many hazings, defeats and triumphs, testing character and behavior.

Rooney plays it with his characteristic vigor, giving the role the accentuated American cockiness which he has established as his screen personality. His attitude contrasts violently against the disciplined manner of Freddie Bartholomew, his step-brother in the story. Edmund Gwenn is headmaster of the school, and does an interesting character. Ian Hunter

Cairo

(Comedy Melodrama with Music)

Metro production. Stars Jeanette MacDonald, Robert Young. Features Ethel Waters, Reginald Owen, Grant Mitchell, Lionel Atwill, Edward Ciannelli, Dooley Wilson. Supporting players: Larry Nunn, Dennis Hoey, Mona Barrie, Rhys Williams, Mitchell Lewis, Cecil Cunningham, Harry Worth, Frank Richards. Director, W. S. Van Dyke II. Screenplay, John McClain. Based on idea by Ladislaus Fodor. Musical program: Songs, Arthur Schwartz, E. Y. Harburg, Harold Arlen; musical score, Herbert Stothart; musical director, Georgie Still. Dance diection, Sammy Lee. Photography, Ray June. Recording director, Douglas Shearer. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Lyle Wheeler. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis; associate, Richard Pefferle. Gowns, Kalloch. Film editor, James E. Newcom. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 11, 1942. Running time: 101 MINS.

A foreword kudoing writers who make the international spy a person of such great resource is the tipoff on 'Cairo'. From that start picture proceeds to kid the pants off espionage melodramas, filmusicals, Hollywood, foreign correspondents, and similar clayfooted idols. The result, if caught from the very beginning, is daffy fare that audiences will enjoy thoroughly. Spectators who wander in some time after the foreword will wonder what Hollywood is shoving off on the public, that is, until they catch on to what it's all about.

Jeanette MacDonald, who, as she remarks in the picture, 'knows her musicals', does a satirical takeoff on celluloid prima donnas that is geared for laughs, and treats her excellent songs in the lilting MacDonald style. Robert Young puts the bee on self-important war correspondents with a slickly drawn portrayal of such gullible gentlemen. Tying the stars' work together with emphasis is the direction of W. S. Van Dyke II. He milks the many situation and dialog laughs in the John McClain script, based on an idea by Ladislas Fodor, generally pointing the film for a tidy money reception in most playdates.

Story concerns Young, small-town reporter, who is launched as a war correspondent, and his adventures in Cairo with a gang of international saboteurs whom he believes to be British intelligence agents. He is duped into believing Miss MacDonald, movie star caught in Cairo by the war and long Young's screen favorite, is the leader of a spy ring. He gets a butling job with the singer because he's from California and she's homesick. First thing you know, the singer suspects Young, but it all works out right in the end. He becomes the best known correspondent and she is called back to Hollywood to appear in a picture opposite him. There are many funny incidents spotted through the script that will strike audience fancy, and those understanding the Hollywood scene will chuckle at picture's kidding of filmdom.

Ethel Waters solidly sells one big production number and otherwise acquits herself most ably for laughs. Reginald Owen's master spy assignment is a superior piece of funpoking. Lurking through the cast in the best screen skullduggery style are such choice lurkers as Lionel Atwill, Edward Ciannelli, Mitchell Lewis, Mona Barrie and Harry Worth,

RKO Coin Unfreezing Hits Snag When Rivals Beef

New York, Aug. 11.—Representations made to the U. S. and British Governments on behalf of RKO, under which the company was being given special consideration in getting approximately $2,800,000 frozen coin out of England, have struck a snag as a result of reported opposition from other producer-distributors. Walt Disney is among the largest independent interests involved, his slice being around $500,000.

Until opposition developed, both British and American officials were inclined to grant relief since RKO virtually only company failing to make money. It is believed the majors want a broader appraisal of the British coin situation, looking to a favorable ruling covering all companies. Peter Rathvon is understood working to set deal up again.

GABLE JOINS ARMY TODAY TO BE MACHINE GUNNER

Army recruiting station will administer the oath to the star. Gable told Major Brower he desires nothing but active service, that he does not wish to be used to stimulate Bond sales, for personal appearances, or to entertain fellow actors, but solely as a machine gunner.

'Well, boy,' said the major, 'if that's what you want you'll sure get it.'

When Gable and McIntyre were assigned together to a compartment on a Florida-bound train, the actor objected, saying he did not wish to travel in swank style.

'You will go the way Army sends you,' Major Brower grinned. 'We want you all together in one piece when you get to camp, and if the women get word of where you are they will mob you.'

It was revealed the real reason for delay in Gable's induction these last few weeks was dental work. Actor's physical condition otherwise has been pronounced tip-top, especially for a man of his age, 41. Actor has rejected all suggestions that he try for a commission the easy way, and repeatedly informed Army officers that all he wants is to prepare himself for the toughest kind of fighting, with a machine gun, and then to be sent where he'll be sure to get plenty of it.

Inspired by Gable's example, other stellar male leads at the Culver City studio are expected to follow suit soon and get into the fight. Although Metro officials deny reports of a pact entered into by Gable, Robert Taylor, Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, whereby if one enlisted the others would do likewise, it would not be surprising to friends of the stars if they volunteered soon for various branches of the service. Such an exodus of top manpower would severely weaken Metro in its new output of pictures. Loss of these stars would shift the full load to the femme marquee set, and what replacements the studio could muster to fill the yawning voids.

That other studios also may be hit by the loss of male stars to the armed forces is of more than minor concern to studio execs. With others following Gable's lead, patriotic fervor is certain to spread to all plants and once it develops into an exodus there's no telling where it will stop. Studio front offices are considerably worried over anticipated losses of topflight manpower and have spurred a search for names of the silent era who are beyond active service age and can be revived for serious theatre attention.

Grable, Jenkins, Ryan Start Camp Tours

The Hollywood Victory Committee's summer camp tour program was augmented last night by two new tours, with Betty Grable, Allen Jenkins and Sheila Ryan as headliners.

Miss Grable will join a USO Camp Show in North Carolina Aug. 24 and work through South Carolina until Sept. 5. Jenkins, going on tour for the second time, and Miss Ryan will open in Georgie Aug. 17 and swing through Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana until Sept. 5.

Planning on making tours before the end of the summer are Burns and Allan, Joan Blondell, Eddie Cantor, Jackie Cooper, Olivia de Haviland, Kay Francis, Paulette Goddard, Bonita Granville, Leon Errol, Veronica Lake, Bert Lahr, Pat O'Brien, Spencer Tracy and Gene Tierney.

This month will find 15 screen players covering the Army camps in a score of states.

Lewis Platters 4-Star Airshow For Army

First of a new series of transcribed programs for armed forces overseas was recorded last night at KNX under supervision of Maj. Tom Lewis of Army Special Services. Produced by Capt. True Boardman, talent included Loretta Young, Bob Hope, Frances Langford, Fred MacMurray and Bud Heistand, announcer. Script was written by Robert E. Lee and Jerry Lawrence. Series titled 'Mail Call' will be serviced via discs similar to the Army's Command Performance. In isolated outposts records and playing machines will be dropped by parachutes.

Perry Lieber Heads Public Relations

Perry Lieber, RKO publicity director, is the new chairman of the film industry's Public Relations Committee, having been elected unanimously at yesterday's meeting. He succeeds Howard Strickling of Metro whose term has expired. George Brown, Paramount publicity head, was elected vice-chairman.

The committee discussed tentative assignments of publicity department members to accompany the stars as contact men. It was stated personal representatives will be assigned by the studios to free lance players in addition to the studios' own personalities in the groups.

The Committee voted to extend cooperation where possible to the Downtown Business Men's Association which plans to stage a fashion show and other activities in connection with the organization's fall promotion campaign. It also was voted to cooperate with the Army Football Committee, now planning for Aug. 30, at the Los Angeles Coliseum, the first of seven games in which picked Army All-stars will play professional elevens in different sections of the country, with all net proceeds going to Army Relief.

It was announced that representatives of foreign language newspapers published in this country hereafter will be handled by domestic publicity departments instead of foreign departments.

'Army' Holding Up

New York, Aug. 11.—'This Is the Army' may be extended another four weeks if the sensational business continues. Also piling up record earnings for Army Emergency Relief.

OCD's Dim-Out Rules To Be Released In LA Today

Official dim-out regulations for theatres as so far outlined by the Office of Civilian Defense will be received today by the 225 theatres, niteries, etc., in the L. A. County zone supervised by the Theatre Defense Board. Same instructions were also sent to all Fox-West Coast managers in the coast-wise dim-out area which extends 150 miles inland, and which becomes effective Aug. 20. A list of 45 city and county lighting engineers accompanied the statement to aid managers with problems.

It stressed that the instructions are authoritative and the law, and not just the ruling of any unofficial group. List states that all vertical signs, roof signs, all exterior flood and decorative lighting, and lighting including neon on the faces or tops of marquees must be permanently extinguished. Ruling incluudes changeable letters, plus all bright or intensive illuminations on the soffit or ceiling of marquees. It is suggested that usual soffit lighting be replaced with a few low candlepower globes of such size and quantity as to create not more than one foot candle at any point on the sidewalk beneath the marquee.

Decision Due Pronto On SG Airshow

Walter Johnson, Coast radio head of Music Corporation, has returned from New York to report to Motion Picture Relief Fund on his negotiations for sponsorship of Screen Guild Theatre. Several deals were initiated back east and some decision will be made this week on which of the bankrollers rates first call.

Cleffers Offer Works For War Effort

Coast membership of Songwriters Protective Association has offered its services to Writers Mobilization Committee to aid the war effort. Melody writers and lyricists will be made available for camp shows, 'Lunch Hour Follies' and other forms of entertainment for the armed forces and volunteer workers.

RKO Grabs de Seversky As Tech Advisor

Major Alexander P. de Seversky will be chief technical advisor on Robert Fellows' 'Bombardier' which will be produced on the RKO lot with Pat O'Brien in the lead. Shooting is scheduled to start Sept. 25, with de Seversky reporting ten days before the start.

MG 'Blabbermouth' Set

National release of 'Mr. Blabbermouth,' a 2-reel special, has been reset by Metro for Sept. 1. The short was originally scheduled for distribution last Saturday.

ALL THANK YOU!!

Produced by WILLIAM CAGNEY

WHO—while the thanks are going around—wants especially to thank for the grand job they did on the screenplay of "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and their swell sportsmanship in relinquishing formal screen credit. Nevertheless, their inspired ideas and their brilliant writing added immeasurably in making the picture the hit that it is.

JULIUS and PHILIP EPSTEIN

Thanks again!
